A. & T. Welcomes Students At 43rd Annual Opening

FINE BEGINNING

College Officials Are Pleased at Excellent Prospects for the Year.

MANY NEW STUDENTS

Nearly One-Half of the Entire Student Body Is Composed of Freshmen.

Despite the depression, students seekers of knowledge are determined to "find a way or make one."

Monday, September 11, when the doors were opened, former and new students made their way to the registrar's office. Enthusiastically, students sought to complete registration while friendships were being made and renewed.

Officials of the college witnessed the most promising opening of the past four or five years.

With over 100 members, the freshman class constitutes a large portion of the student body. The class is destined to be one of which the college will be proud in the near future.

Variety in the freshman class is a sign of improvement. Heretofore practically all students have been interested only in the teaching profession. This is not true, however, of the newcomers. Very few of them have registered as science students, and instead are planning to be doctors, engineers, musicians, farmers, builders and constructors, and the like.

An attitude of "business before pleasure" invariably followed registration. With the wholesome atmosphere and ambitions, students' success for the entire year can be assured.

Several of the leading states are represented, especially by the freshman class.

NEW ORGANIZATION IS FORMED TO AID STUDENTS

"Sinking Fund Organization" Proposes to Help Working Students Finance Their Education.

"SOCRATES" JOHNSON FOUNDER

James F. Johnson, a contemporary student here at the college and better known as "Socrates" has lived up to his name by being the founder of a new organization known as "The Sinking Fund Organization." It is the only one of its kind on the campus. The organization is composed of students who are working their way through college.

The purpose is to eliminate such obstacles as have been confronting these students during the past years. Among these are the possibilities of losing their jobs for reasons such as lack of training, an unexpected trip out of town, and other similar reasons. The organization will be closed to all students who are not largely dependent on their jobs. At the meetings the discussion of the various phases in keeping a job will be held.

The organization has been approved by President Bluford, Dean Gibbs, Mr. N. C. Webster and other officials. These men have pledged their full support, which will be an asset to the organization. There is also the full support and good will of the student body in the success of the infant society.

Co-ed Wins Award

L. Hortense Galloway deserves commendation for having received the cash prize and sorority key given by the national chapter of the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority for excellence in scholarship. She is a member of the chapter located here on the campus.

Hortense has been instrumental in the perpetual growth of our own institution, having participated in several activities on the campus. She is an active member of the present senior class and associate editor of the student publication.

We, the members of the staff, extend to her many congratulations and wish for her much success.

DR. LOUIS SMITH SPEAKS AT VESPERS

Noted Educator Fully Explains the "Six Roads to a Better Life."

MISS E. WISE SINGS SOLO

Dr. Louis Smith, noted educator, was the principal speaker at our first vesper service held Sunday, October 1. A short program preceding Dr. Smith's introduction was as follows: Scripture reading and prayer by Rev. Ligon; "Ave Maria," solo by Miss E. Wise, director of the musical department; "The Heavens Resounded" and "Steal Away," selections rendered by the choral club with James Scarlette as tenor soloist.

President Bluford, acting chairman of the service, introduced Dr. Smith after the program had been completed.

Dr. Smith's subject was "Six Roads to a Better Life." He divided his subject into two groups: (1) three things one should learn to do; (2) three habits one should form. Included in the first group were the three statements: "Learn to work," "Learn to love others," and "Learn to fight."

In the second group he stressed the following: Habit of intensity, habit of cooperation, the habit of unwavering morality.

FRESHMAN CLASS MADE UP FROM MANY SECTIONS

Representatives From Eleven States and the District of Columbia Compose Freshman Class.

One of the largest and most representative freshman classes in the history of the college is the way President Bluford characterized the present class.

With 121 freshmen coming from 14 different high schools in 11 states, from Massachusetts to Colorado, and the District of Columbia, there is good ground for giving them such recognition.

After passing through the official initiation, they have turned out to be quite an asset to the college already. The cheering section has been well organized and all other activities have felt the effects of the freshman enthusiasm.

R. B. HARRISON IS HEARD IN A. & T. COLLEGE CHAPEL

World-Famous Actor as "De Lawd" in "Green Pastures" Gets Big Ovation.

APPEARS AT NATIONAL

Former A. and T. Professor Expresses His Pleasure at Present Prospects of the College.

Richard B. Harrison, "de Lawd" in the famous play, "The Green Pastures," has had many thrilling experiences in his lifetime but one of the most pleasant of his whole career was Friday, October 6, when he returned to A. & T. after an absence of three years. The great actor was visibly moved by the ovation accorded him by the students of the college when he arrived, and again after he had been presented by President Bluford.

In about a 30-minute speech he explained how he decided to accept a place in the play that has made him famous throughout the world.

Mr. Harrison was given an official welcome to the city in a meeting sponsored by the Civitan Club in the O. Henry hotel, when he was presented an official appreciation signed by Mayor Harrison, City Manager Joyner, President Bluford, President D. D. Jones, and many other leaders.

IMPROVEMENTS SEEN IN TECHNICAL SCHOOL

Trades Have Doubled Their Enrollment Under Supervision of New Dean.

DEPARTMENTS ARE SEPARATED

The technical department is making rapid progress under the direction of its new dean, Professor J. M. Martena, who has just returned from a two-year leave of absence which he spent at the University of Michigan, working towards his doctor's degree.

The enrollment of the technical department has almost doubled. The trades have shown a great gain over last year, many of them doubling their enrollment. In the college department the number of industrial art students remains the same, while the architectural and building department has doubled its number. However, the outstanding department of the technical college is electrical engineering.

This department was begun by Professor Bowling three years ago with only five students. This year there are 14 students, more electrical engineering students than any other Negro college, including Howard, can boast. This department is in a class by itself in the technical college.

Dean Martena and Professor Bowling are planning to equip the electrical laboratory so that the students who graduate from this department will be equipped to take out by apprenticeship engineering degree.

The technical faculty has been greatly strengthened by the coming of Dean Martena and Professor Bowling. A branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers is being planned.

The results of this technical department intend to contribute to the pace in scholarship and extracurricular achievements.

GRADUATES OF 1933 SECURE EMPLOYMENT

Despite adverse circumstances, the graduates of the class of '33 were very fortunate in securing jobs for the present school term.

They have been placed as follows: Josephine Barrier, Caudor, N. C.; T. H. Broome, principal, Catawba, N. C.; C. L. Bryant, Wilmington, N. C.; Otis Buffalo, Charlotte, N. C.; R. J. Capott, Albemarle, N. C.; O. A. Dupree, Grimesland, N. C.; Ebberhart, Cora Garden, N. C.; L. Foust, High Point, N. C.; M. M. Graves, Duplin county; T. H. Holland, Columbia, N. C.; M. J. Kelly, Troy, N. C.; W. I. Morris, Southern Pines, N. C.; N. H. Sessoms, Brevard, N. C.; L. Standback, South Carolina; Doris Vick, Troy, N. C.; H. P. Wallace, Kenansville, N. C.; V. D. White, Brevard, N. C.; C. Scott, Virginia.

Ralph Davis and D. J. Knight have returned to school for further study at Atlanta University and Massachusetts School of Agriculture, respectively.

SENIORS ORGANIZE FOR YEAR'S WORK

Under Able Leadership the Class Can Be Sure of Successful Ending.

D. J. VICK IS PRESIDENT

Realizing that time is short, the seniors launched out and led the college in perfecting organization for 1933-34.

The present senior class is one that has made a decided impression for the past three years. One that is determined to complete its course with satisfaction resting in the minds of its advisors as well as its members.

Let it be said, when we shall have finished, that we have done our best and that is the only requirement of any class or individual.

As a group, the seniors have been successful in aiding in the growth of the college. Under able leadership we are sure of a successful ending.

Dorsey J. Vick, who is now president, was vice president last year. Other officers are, namely: Lillian J. Lee, vice president; L. Hortense Galloway, secretary; N. Woods, treasurer. Edward Houston and Hattie G. Wright were elected as chairmen of social and program committees, respectively.

As representatives of the senior class on the student council, M. V. White, D. F. Galloway and A. H. Morrow were elected by a unanimous vote.

ATTENDANCE IS LARGE AT SUNDAY SCHOOL

The Sunday school opened September 17th with a large attendance. It seems as if we are really going to have a live Sunday school this year. We are hoping that all the young men and women will help us put this program over by attending and giving us their wholehearted support.

The officers for the school year are: Prof. L. A. Wise, superintendent; Samuel Kennedy, assistant superintendent; Charles Priece, treasurer; Sametta Sellers, secretary; Ella C. Edwards, assistant secretary; Alda Newsome, reporter.

COLLEGE FACULTY IS STRENGTHENED FOR THIS YEAR

Five Former Professors Return After Year of Graduate Study.

TWO NEW LADY TEACHERS

Miss Crawford Becomes Dean of Women and Miss Wise Heads Music Department.

The A. & T. College faculty has been greatly strengthened this year by the addition of new teachers and the return of former teachers who have done further study at some of the country's leading universities. Among the new instructors we have Miss Carolyn Crawford, graduate of Columbia University, who is dean of women and head of the home economics department of the college. Miss Ethel Wise succeeds Mr. Baker as instructor of music. Miss Wise is a graduate of the Howard University School of Music. While in Howard she made several extensive tours of the country, giving concerts in the interest of the school.

Heading the list of the returned instructors we have Dean Warmoth T. Gibbs, dean of the science college, who spent a year at Harvard doing graduate work in political science. Mr. Martena, who spent a year at the University of Ohio, has succeeded Professor George Washington as dean of the technical college. Mr. L. A. Wise, head of the department of business administration, has returned after spending a year at Atlanta University.

Dr. Robert Weaver completed work on his Ph. D. in economics at Harvard University. He is head of social sciences at the college.

Mr. A. C. Bowling completed his work at Ohio State University and

FRESHMAN ORIENTATION WORK HAS BEEN FINISHED

Faculty and Students Acquaint Freshmen With Meaning of College Life.

PRES. BLUFORD GIVES WELCOME

The freshman introduction to the college began Monday, September 11. President Bluford delivered the welcome address and presented to the new students the faculty and officers of the college.

On Tuesday, the following day, the deans of the various departments outlined the type of work that is carried on in their departments. Professor Spellman, acting dean, came from the agricultural department; Dean Gibbs from the school of arts and science; Dean Martena from school of mechanics, and Dean Cooper from the trade school.

Tuesday afternoon a tour was made, beginning on the campus, in the various buildings and concluding with a visit to the college farm.

Having completed the tour, the freshmen were given the rules and regulations of the college. The dean of women and the dean of men gave such explanations as were necessary, including explanations of various student organizations.

PARAGRAPHS

Because all freshmen are green doesn't necessarily mean that all green students are freshmen. Keep your eyes open.

Co-operation will be a wonderful word when students learn the meaning of it and "govern themselves accordingly."

The juniors may be sophisticated and the sophs may be wise, but they surely are letting the freshmen leave them in the rear. We wonder why they are so backward.

The seniors are first, but they might be last when it comes time to pay that fee of one dollar for practice teaching.

Generally speaking, the last of a thing is always the best, but it's different after you've entered college.

Success of The Register

From time to time throughout the school year we might find it necessary to turn from philosophical talks to quiet family advice. Having had quite a bit of philosophy given us already, we feel satisfied in making a sudden change.

It is commonly known by all students, even freshmen, that the college REGISTER is the official student publication of the college, meaning, of course, that it is a paper published by the students.

Publishing the periodical, then, is not the duty of the staff, but by means of the staff the students are able to have it done systematically.

Some few are wont to believe that a certain few should write, yet no one would be interested in reading the paper if only that few did all the writing.

Practically all students will ask this question "When will the first issue of THE REGISTER be out?" and yet they have failed to ask the first question, "When is the news for the first issue due?"

It is impossible to get a paper out before we have gotten the material in. We wonder sometimes why the students cannot realize such things.

The success of THE REGISTER lies in us as students of the college. If it must represent us, why not let it do so one hundred per cent?

Some are guilty of giving this answer when asked about the paper: "You didn't ask me to write anything." Suppose every person had to be asked to write. The members of the staff would have to begin by asking each other to write and then go out to the students. By the time they would have finished there would be no energy with which to work.

We are not speaking to students as individuals only, but as groups. Every little helps, whether from individuals as such or from groups of individuals.

To say that every person should send in an article each time that the paper goes to the press would be absurd, because we would not have the space, but we do say that everyone should make some sort of contribution at least once during the school year.

The Open Forum is a section given for student thoughts. Surely one can write what he thinks, if he thinks. And I'm assuming that we all think. Let us kindly think the problem through.

Before closing the family talk it might be necessary to speak of the manner in which we are to write. We care nothing for large words and elaboration of ideas. Plain, clean, clear-cut English is the fundamental thing.

If you wish to lighten the burden of the staff, please be careful of your spelling, punctuation and use of words and phrases.

We are proud to say that the freshman class is making an impression. A glance at the paper will prove the statement. Any new ideas or thoughts will be gladly accepted.

We shall leave it to the students to use their better judgment and govern themselves accordingly.

"Actions Speak Louder Than Words"

Once again the curtain has been drawn, but as participants in this colorful procession marching from the shadows let us endeavor not to be thought of as that type—

"That struts and frets his hours upon the stage and then is heard no more."

We can best avoid being classified with that most ordinary person who is identified as having been to college only by his statement of that fact, by practicing helpful habits daily.

To be successful here and in after life we must merge our ambitions with actions. Actions guided by conscientious convictions; actions coupled with a sense of duty and honor. The student who forms the habit of accurate, keen observation, who allows to pass no opportunity to aid in any activity, is here known as a leader because of his freedom from the laggardly habits that bind the hands of many.

In Pilgrim's Progress we read of a man who built a prison about himself. As a boy he had drowled until he put a bar of idleness between himself and the worthy things he might have done. He neglected his dress until he erected a bar of untidiness between himself and the cultivated people. He was so conceited and disagreeable, overbearing and discourteous, that he placed a bar of unfriendliness between himself and his fellows.

Today is ours in which we may determine whether we are to live in the palace of fellowly esteem or in the cage of ostracism. Our actions, as to how we apply ourselves to our duty, point our direction in life. Whether our march is from oblivion to oblivion, or from there to the heights, it is certain that our tomorrow is going to be what our today makes it.

BREVARD SHORT, '36.

Co-operation

On entering college, students have a tendency to stand back and let the older students carry on the different activities about the campus, but it is now coming to a showdown that everybody must put his best in everything to make some of the things worth-while.

Co-operation is united to relieve and not combined to injure. The union means united efforts among individuals. The relief sought will vary with circumstances. Men often work in union to accomplish political or religious reforms. This is co-operative effort of one kind. Again people unite for their social, moral and educational advancement. Carried on in the right way this also is co-operation.

There are a number of ways for us to co-operate on our campus. We have our religious organizations such as the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. and the Sunday school. Such organizations help to train us morally and we should support them so that we may be able to lead.

The world is now calling for leaders and we are now in position to get the training. We should be willing to co-operate and get this training.

The president's annual reception in honor of the freshmen was held at his residence Wednesday, September 13. There they enjoyed a pleasant afternoon.

Friday, September 16, brought to a close the freshman introduction. In the chapel services, led by the president of the student body, a brief history of the college was given by T. L. Jones, a member of the sophomore class. Having heard the history, each freshman stood before the audience and gave his name, high school from which he came, city and state.

The upper classmen entertained the freshmen Friday night. This concluded what is known as the freshman orientation week.

Professor H. Clinton Taylor, instructor of fine arts, is studying on a general education board scholarship at Columbia University. He will be absent for the remainder of the year.

Dean M. E. Spaulding, of the department of agriculture, continues his graduate study for another year at the Agricultural College of Massachusetts.

No other changes have been made in the faculty.

OPEN FORUM

The Editor of the College Register:

We have on our campus many students who are tasting college life for the first time, and others who are experiencing campus life here for the first time.

When we enter the main entrance, or other entrances, we come upon the grounds on which is located our college and our home during our stay here. The manner in which we conduct ourselves on the grounds, in the classroom, and in the dormitory will determine, to a large extent, whether or not we are the type of individuals who should be classified as A. & T. College students.

Perhaps many of us may be guilty of undesirable acts because we never thought of the incident as anything of a serious nature, and others of us "just didn't know." In either case, I hope that we will co-operate with Mr. Brown and the others who try to keep our campus beautiful. We may do much by depositing paper in the waste baskets, in the dormitories and not about the grounds. Many of us know how inviting our campus was last spring, with the thickly soded grass completely covering the campus except for the narrow walks that conveniently connected the many buildings about the grounds. I'm afraid that Mother Nature will not be able to duplicate the grandeur of last spring's beauty unless we become more mindful of our walks and "Please Don't Walk" signs.

Our dormitory is our home! The appearance of the windows in most cases is a good index to the look of the room. Our rooms need not be extravagantly furnished, but they can at least be neat and clean. Pleasant surroundings are conducive to thought. We can be more mindful of the noise in the hallways. Someone might be studying!

Now, fellow students, let's get together and do nothing that will mar the looks of our college and our home.

C. I. SAWYER,

President of Student Council.

The Editor of College Register:

The Young Woman's Christian Association welcomes the freshman girls heartily. We, as members of the organization, feel that membership in the "Y" adds just the touch of sincerity that a college girl needs for a well-rounded career. The Y. W. C. A. is only a grown-up Girls Resrve Club. Many of our freshmen girls were members of this latter organization in high school and are fully aware of the desirable results of such connections.

The Y. W. C. A. has for its three-fold duty the development of the spiritual, mental and social sides of a girl's life. This development can take place in the right manner only when the right environment is provided. We feel that the Y. W. C. A. supplies this environment.

This organization, though not purely a religious one, places a certain amount of stress upon the spiritual side of life. Many young women entering our colleges have not had the benefits of very much religious or spiritual training. The Y. W. C. A. supplements this meager knowledge with newer and clearer views. We plan to present some of the leading religious thinkers during the year. There will be meetings given over to the discussion of various religious views and theories.

The mental development is the next concern of the Y. W. C. A. When a young lady enters college she realizes that it is indeed time to do some serious thinking. She has many confused ideas, no doubt. The various discussions and projects throughout the year direct the minds of the girls in the right channel and challenge them to think clearly.

Some will say that the social side will take care of itself. We feel that this development needs as much consideration as the mental and spiritual sides.

We must live together here and it is exceedingly necessary that we know how to live together harmoniously. The Y. W. C. A. directs the social traits of the girl in the right channel by allowing her to enjoy social activities in the most desirable environment. With this in mind the social committee has planned hikes, teas, special holiday festivities, theater parties and visits to various institutions.

The Y. W. C. A. again welcomes the new girls who have already joined and cordially invites others to follow their lead.

L. HORTENSE GALLOWAY, '34.

WHY GO TO COLLEGE?

Students of yesterday, students of today, and students of tomorrow have faced, are facing, and will forever face the question, Why go to college? Some are able to give good reasons, for they have looked ahead of the present conditions and are following the footsteps of great men who have won fame. Others are not able to give good reasons, because their minds are focused upon their present conditions. Therefore, they are forced to hide behind ignorance and blame the world. Truly anyone who has finished high school can produce many reasons why one should go to college. As he looks back he realizes what he has accomplished, and with this realization he determines to go on to college and improve his conditions.

Students of yesterday, you have had your experiences. How did you master your privilege? Were you negligent? Did you toll day in and day out to make the best of your opportunity? Today is ours. As you have filled the colleges in the past, seeking an education, so we are following in your footsteps today. We are profiting by your mistakes. Where you dropped your load we are continuing to carry ours. We are seeking success, we will not stop until we have won the victory.

There are six reasons why I think we should go to college. These are (1) to develop the possibilities of our minds and hearts; (2) to prepare ourselves for some responsible positions; (3) to give us a broader outlook on life; (4) to raise our standing among our fellow men; (5) to learn how to think deeply, clearly and quickly; (6) to increase our earning capacity and make us better liver.

MARIE ALLEN, '37.

To Editor of the College Register:

It is commonly supposed that when a person seeks literary power he goes to his room or in some quiet place and plans an article for the paper. According to my mind he is beginning at the wrong end. He should first learn the fundamentals of correct English. I would suggest a course in grammar for all college students. As a rule, if we master the language once we can employ it for oral or for written purposes.

It is fortunate, then, that self-cultivation in the use of English must chiefly come through speech, because we are always speaking.

In self-cultivation in English you must watch your use of words. That is all that is needed. In doing this it is necessary to know what qualities of speech to watch for. I find three in my study of English—accuracy, audacity, and range. It is impossible for a person to use good English unless it is exact English. We should be very careful about the words we use. Why not make the words fit our thoughts like a glove?

Another way to cultivate English is to widen our vocabularies. This may be done by resolving to adopt two new words each day.

If we wish to cultivate ourselves in the use of English, we must make our daily talk accurate, daring and full.

GREETINGS FROM ALPHA PHI CHAPTER, A. K. A. SORORITY

To the old and new students the Alpha Phi Chapter extends a warm welcome, trusting that the past summer has been eventful and profitable.

The present enrollment indicates A. and T.'s increasing popularity. It is our aim to hold up its past record by buckling down to hard work and lending a hand wherever needed.

This year's installation gives the chapter the following officers: Soror Marion Tatum, president; Soror Alda Newsome, vice-president; Soror Haitie Wright, secretary; Soror Euphrey Bigelow, treasurer; and Soror Carolyn Law, chapter reporter.

GAMMA TAU

Hello Everybody, and how do you do! Greetings to all from members of Gamma Tau honorary society. Fall is here again, and now is the time to get down to business.

The very name of the organization gives one an idea of what its members have been doing, are doing, and will be doing—striving for higher scholastic attainment.

Only nine of the present seniors were eligible for membership, having maintained a B average for three years, and last spring six of these nine were able to claim membership.

At the last meeting of the last school term officers were elected to serve the term 1933-34: Preston Haygood, president; D. J. Vick, vice-president; Lillian J. Lee, secretary; Drewella F. Galloway, treasurer.

Already we have been successful in giving an opening social at which the men of the department became better acquainted. The plans for making a trip to the State Fair at Raleigh are well on the way under the supervision of J. J. Lanier.

We are proud to welcome 24 freshmen into our department, and we have prospects of effective work coming from this class, which is very talented.

The organization has as its leaders for the year C. S. Finney, president; G. C. Baugham, vice-president; J. H. Spaulding, secretary, and J. J. Lanier, treasurer.
