Officials Declare 1923 Has Been a Year of Substantial Progress.

SUCCESSES ARE NOTABLE

Large Increase of New Students This Year Cause Reorganization of Staff.

B. Banks Wins Award

Boswell H. Banks, a senior, was recently awarded the Omicron Psi Phl fraternity. This recognization was presented to him for writing an essay on "The Significance of the Achievement of the Student, a subject which interested all college students.

BP was active member of the local Omicron Psi Phl fraternity and Gamma Phi honorary society. To the many students of the staff extend congratulations.

EDIT-EX-EDITOR IN-CHIEF COMMENDS THE STAFF

Charles L. Bryant, Jr., Writer Editor and Members of Register Staff.

OTHER ALUMNI WRITE

Recently the editor received a letter from Charles L. Bryant, Jr., who was editor-in-chief of the student publication of the class of 1932 and indications are very well placed with the success of the staff. He continues to support and encourage the editors and members of the staff.

Bryant also stated that his college publication is indeed a remarkable accomplishment of all its parts. That you are proficient in this particular phase of your journalistic endeavor has been emphasized in the two publications recently referred to from the press. These are some of the Most

In congratulating you for the success you have so nobly achieved, I wish you the best of everything." (Continued on Page Two)

CALS CALL FOR ORGANIZATION

Alumni Body Welcomes All Chapters of Organization to Get Together.

T. A. Harris, well-known and popular alumni agent of Butler, N. C., and Samual Harris, the former director of publications, were reported as making excellent address. They were able to get a head for their trades and industries, which may be seen through, and will be constructed of a complete new tunnel system at a cost of $42,681.16. These projects will be approved.

President Blake has important features in mind for the alumni association. He hopes to see it take some definite shape during coming year. He realizes that those who are alumni and former students may be found in foreign countries. A word from you in the Alumni column will reach all friends you have not seen or heard from since leaving college.

So you can not lose sight of those who have come to us this year. Your untiring effort to edit a representative college publication is indeed a remarkable accomplishment of all its parts. That you are proficient in this particular phase of your journalistic endeavor has been emphasized in the two publications recently referred to from the press. These are some of the Most

In congratulating you for the success you have so nobly achieved, I wish you the best of everything." (Continued on Page Two)

Points for Alumni to Consider

1. The college is interested in such of your publications as may be made to have you communicate with it more frequently.
2. The college would be pleased to place your name on the mailing list if you wish. We would be glad to keep in touch with you.
3. The college would be pleased to carry on an alumni school reunion with such news and features as you may suggest. We are sure that if you are a vital part of the college, and would be glad to do so in your interest.
4. Remember The college goes to hear the alumni at the alumni reunion.

A word from you will more than encourage and inspire the present students of your alma mater.

PROFESSORS WRITE

J. R. Lenear, '17, Enjoy Meets alumni.

J. R. Lenear, as A. T. graduate, in the class of 1918, who is now located in Boston, sent the committee his greetings.

A THOUGHT IN PASSING

To Editor of Register:

Now the time is to begin the year--and many a year's work is done, and we hope the year to come will be better than the last.

We hope to open the year by the students of the College, and to provide a medium for the expression of the views of the faculty and other interested parties.

We will continue the register of the year, and hope to get a better understanding of the needs of the students and the College.

We will endeavor to make the register a source of information and a means of communication.

We will also strive to make the register a means of educational and cultural development.

We will endeavor to make the register a source of entertainment and amusement.

We will also strive to make the register a means of economic and social progress.

We will endeavor to make the register a means of political and social progress.

We will also strive to make the register a means of intellectual and spiritual progress.

We will endeavor to make the register a means of scientific and technological progress.

We will also strive to make the register a means of artistic and cultural progress.

We will endeavor to make the register a means of moral and ethical progress.

We will also strive to make the register a means of physical and health progress.

We will endeavor to make the register a means of emotional and spiritual progress.

THE STUDENT THINKING
President Butler of Columbia made the following address to the Institute of Arts and Sciences, "Thinking." He pointed out that he realized that the game of life was more stimulate than any other. If you use more intuition than you do, you will be guided. The man you would much like to see is a young man who has thought through his life and through with the life he would call "well spent." Will you let him develop his ideas and opinions through your experience, your day's reading, and your other activities? The day you realize that the greater thing is more important than the lesser thing, you will know that you have been well spent.
