Richard B. Harrison to Be Commencement Speaker

GOVERNOR OF N. C. EXPECTED TO BE IN ATTENDANCE

Ceremonies to Be Held in the World War Memorial Stadium.

INVITE OTHER NOTABLES

This is Largest Senior Class in History of College; Many to Receive Honors.

None other than the great Richard B. Harrison, "De Lawd" in the well known stage play, "The Green Pastures," and former professor of mathematics of A. & T. College, will deliver the commencement address to the class of 1934, on Tuesday, May 24, at 5 p.m., in the World War Memorial Stadium.

The academic procession will form on the college campus at 4:30 p.m. and will be led to the stadium by the college band. Members of the faculty, led by President Bluford, graduating classes, alumni, students, guests, and other relatives will participate in this feature, which promises to be one of the most impressive ever held at A.

This is the first time the commencement exercises have been planned for out-of-doors, and it was made necessary to accommodate the large number of people who will be on hand to hear Mr. Harrison and to see the class of 1934, one of the most brilliant in the annals of the college, receive their degrees.

This class also makes a special appeal to the people of Greensboro, due to the fact that many of its most active leaders are local boys and girls who graduated from Dudley High before entering college.

The Reverend Miles Mark Fisher, D.D., pastor of the White Rock Baptist church, of Durham, who is considered one of the best preachers in the South, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon on Sunday, May 27, at 3 p.m., in the Dudley auditorium. There will be an academic procession and special music by the choral club. Governor Ehringhaus has written stating that he hopes to be present on commencement day.

MRS. JANE S. M'KIMMON TALKS AT LAST VESPERS

State Demonstrator and Assistant Director of Extension Impresses Audience.

At the final vesper service of the college, which was held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Mrs. Jane S. McKimmon, state demonstration agent and director of extension in North Carolina, was the principal speaker.

Mrs. McKimmon took for her subject "Men and Women in the Home." She stressed with force the essential things necessary to make a happy home. Some of these were described as disposition, development of character, formation of habits. The parts of the mother and father were the points upon which she based her discussion.

Devotionals were led by Rev. J. C. Melton, East Market Street Baptist church, and Miss Ethyl Wise rendered a selection.

Kappa's Award to Leading Student

The Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity recently made a contribution to encourage scholarship. A cup is given each quarter to the student, not a member of the organization, who has the highest average for that period of time. A person who retains the highest average for three consecutive quarters is owner of the award.

Tedla M. Galloway, a member of the present senior class, was first winner, and C. I. Sawyer, who is also a member of the senior class, was second winner.

COLLEGE TAKES 3 ANNUAL AWARDS

Members of the Debating and Judging Teams Achieve Unusual Success.

ADVISERS ARE PLEASED

With the members of the debating and judging teams as instruments, the college attained a goal for which it has long been striving.

Each year a debate is held between A. & T., Virginia State College, and South Carolina State College. This year the members of the debating team of A. & T. brought home both cups. This was the second time that the college has won first place for both the affirmative and negative sides in the triangle.

Those persons who were on the team were: Frank Woods, '34, Helen Biggers, '37, James Poole, '37, Carl Griffin, '35, C. G. Mabry, '35, and S. Leonard, '36. Mrs. Oveta Jewel was adviser and trainer.

Another interesting contest was held on Friday, May 4, the annual intercollegiate judging contest. Visitors were representatives from Virginia State, Hampton Institute, Florida A. & M. College, and S. C. State College. Five medals were awarded members of A. & T. team for winning first place on different farm products. The team made perfect scores on seed identification and also won first, third, fourth, and fifth places in the entire contest.

At eight o'clock p.m. the essay contest, a part of the judging contest, conducted by Prof. C. L. Spellman, professor of poultry husbandry at the college, was held in the Dudley auditorium. Jesse Lanier, of A. & T., was winner of first prize, which was a gold medal, presented by Prof. S. B. Simmons, supervisor of vocational agriculture.

Mr. Asa Simms Speaks in Chapel

On May 2, at regular chapel hour, the faculty and student body were favored with a brief address made by Mr. Asa Simms, landscape gardener, Hampton Institute. Mr. Simms emphasized the importance of outdoor beautification by saying that it removes the possibilities for distinguishing the vicinities of one group from those of another group by their outward appearance. He made an appeal to the students especially of the agricultural and home economics departments.

JOHN T. SPELLER IS ELECTED PRESIDENT FOR NEXT SESSION

Week of May 7-11 Marks Another Epoch in Political History of College.

FIVE MEN ARE ELIGIBLE

Students At Large Show More Enthusiasm and Interest Than in Previous Year; Only Two Men Ran.

The week of May 7-11 marked another epoch in the political history of the college. At this time, John Turner Speller was chosen as the one whose abilities and interests are of such a nature as to insure complete satisfaction for making the necessary and sufficient accomplishments next year.

Speller is a student of the technical department and was recently initiated into the Gamma Tau scholarship society.

Those persons who were eligible for the presidency were: C. I. Hinton, Charles Price, William Burnett, G. C. Baughman, and John T. Speller. In the earlier days of the campaign, however, three candidates withdrew, leaving only William Burnett and John T. Speller.

The student body at large showed much interest and enthusiasm. Each campaign manager gave his speech for the purpose of acquainting the students with the character and ability of the person whom he represented. The campaign was in the hands of the present president of the student council, Clarence I. Sawyer.

TECH CLUB MEMBERS ON AN EDUCATIONAL TOUR

Several Cities Offering Things of Interest to Engineers Were Visited.

BAND HAS RETURNED FROM TOUR

The first educational tour of the Engineering Club of A. & T. College, of which E. S. Houston is president, was made last week, visiting Conowingo dam, the central heating plant of the governmental buildings in Washington and other points of interest to the student group. C. L. Cooper, professor of industrial education, and F. A. Mayfield, professor of architecture, accompanied them.

The "Tech" boys first visited Washington, where L. K. Downing, chief engineer at Howard University, and his staff acted as guides on an inspection tour through the engineering department of that institution and many of the U. S. government buildings, especially inspecting the new central heating plant which now supplies all of the government buildings. They also attended a meeting of local engineers while in the capital city.

In Baltimore they visited the plant of the Afro-American weekly newspaper and many clothing manufacturing concerns. The high spot of the trip was the inspection of Conowingo dam, located at Conowingo, Maryland, a part of the Conowingo Power and Light Co.

VARIED CHAPEL PROGRAM IS ENJOYED BY STUDENTS

Rev. George Dibble Finds It Interesting to Be Original and Informal.

SEVERAL VISITORS ARE PRESENT

An interesting, original, and varied program was rendered by Rev. George Dibble with the aid of the student body on April 27, at regular chapel hour. Rev. Dibble, who was conducting a revival service at that time for Rev. C. H. Rowland, pastor of the Episcopal church of the city, was accompanied by Mrs. Dibble, his son, Mr. Voss, and Rev. Rowland.

Having made a few brief remarks, the entertainer sang several songs, after which he requested the members of the audience to sing with him.

Two selections were played by Mr. Voss, the pianist, after which Mrs. Dibble made a short talk.

Rev. Dibble is the organizer of "Spiritual Jubilee Singers," a group of talented Negro musicians from Scotland.

The program consisted of one verse of an old hymn, "The Olden Days," and an Anthem by the choir, "The Lord's Prayer," a request for prayer.

PARAGRAPHS

Fear as often evidenced by our elected is considered amiable by some people in dictatorial positions, but as students we would have no representatives to be or not seem to be.

The hope has been voiced that before the exhilaration of graduation wears off, something will be accomplished by those about to bid us "Aye fond fare-thee-well."

Some people believe in the value of a true examination. They say, "Give us a true-false examination."

Shelley said, "The more we study the more we see our ignorance." With knowledge lessening our self-esteem we continue to study—some of us at least.

In advocacy of labor, "man's fortunes are according to his pains," said one; reversely, his pains are according to his fortunes, say I.

Choosing a Leader

As each school year draws near a close it leaves with us memories of the past; memories of joys, sorrows, accomplishments, and failures. Since experience has been thought to be the best teacher, such reminders should be guide posts for the years that are to come; and the stumbling blocks of the past should be converted into stepping stones for the future.

There is no situation necessitating an alternation which cannot be effected advantageously, by the student body, for the wellbeing of the college as a whole, if each student concentrates his interest toward that goal. This fact should be emphasized and brought to the minds of the students of our college preceding the election of the president of the student council.

The election of this officer is a duty of each student of the college and should be performed with the intention of securing efficient leadership for the year. The election of this officer is a duty of each student of the college and should be performed with the intention of securing efficient leadership for the year.

to this problem was clearly emphasized during the horrible years of the depression when the nation was searching and pleading for someone to take the reins who was able to master the situation and restore prosperity. Parallel to this is the situation of our college as well as others. We are in search of a student leader who possesses these qualities necessary to awaken the students and create among them an interest in student activities which are essential to the progress and expansion of any college.

In all elections we should direct our influence towards the election of that candidate whom we deem best fitted to master the duties and responsibilities of the office. For once we should put everything in its place. We should lay aside all class, fraternal and social relationships and think of the condition from the standpoint of initiative, interest and abilities.

May I magnify the necessity of capable leadership and persuade those who hold to the idea that this office is merely figurative, to discard it and put their best foot forward in an attempt to create among the students an interest in the activities of the college.

Editor's Note

Each year it seems to be the duty of the Editor to make a farewell address. It is not because of tradition, however, that this piece is written. It is rather to express my appreciation of the co-operation given me by the members of the staff as well as by the student body at large. With regret I must step aside and do as my predecessors have done, but I have reasons to believe that all will be well with THE REGISTER.

As spokesman for the staff, I wish to express appreciation to Dean Warmoth T. Gibbs, adviser of the staff, who, through untiring effort, has done much to aid in the success of the periodical.

LILLIAN J. LEE.

How Alive Are You?

Spring is here, and just how alive are you? Only a comparatively few of us are alive at all times, and especially at this time of the year. Our attention is turned to many different channels. We daydream, build air castles, and live in memories. Our minds are completely taken from our studies and other duties that are to be performed, in order to "look in space," as we ordinarily say, to free our minds from hard work and daily cares that we are subject to. So in "space" we discover no novel thoughts, ideas, or ideals that might help in our march to success. In building air castles, our minds travel unknown avenues in search of different and modern ways of spending our vacation. No doubt we picture ourselves either in France or Bermuda. We too are guilty of living in memories, sad and sweet. They might be those of our childhood, or of various unfortunate incidents and events that have occurred in our lives.

It is by these methods of idleness that life is wasted and passed up. In the following words some truth is found: "A moment lost in idleness is lost forever." No matter what the present conditions are, we should not live for the present only. We must admit that spring brings lots of attractions, but we must avoid some of them in order that we may strive to reach our goal, which should be a luxurious life filled with lots of happiness, good health, and good luck.

OPEN FORUM

Dear Editor:

During the Negro Achievement Week I tried to obtain from the various programs much concerning the life of the Negro—then I reflected. A vivid picture appeared—it was like a moving picture.

I saw Negro portraying numerous characters: he spaded the earth, he ran errands for the schoolmaster, he groomed the physician's horse, he gave the business man his pennies, and he cleaned the inventor's laboratory. An opaque cloud intervened for a second.

When the cloud passed, Negro was supervising a building project, he was teaching school, he was applying his medical knowledge, he was matching his technique of business with that of his white competitor, and he was spending hours in the laboratory, in an effort to make the obscure, transparent. These scenes caused a feeling of proud heritage which I think is felt by every Negro. With such conquests along the paths of our ancestry, why shouldn't we combat keen competition and attain our goal?

LAWRENCE GOFFNEY, '37.

To the Editor:

It has not dawned upon some of the students of the Agricultural and Technical College that personal appearance is important.

A person does not have to wear expensive clothes to be well dressed, but the correct choice is the predominant factor.

The things that determine whether or not a person should wear certain colors, prints and stripes, are the complexion, color, build of body, eyes, and texture of hair. A very slender woman should not wear dark colors or material with stripes running vertically. If her color is dark or her complexion is not fair, she should not wear reds or very gay colors.

There is much to say on this subject because many of the students do not regard their physical features before purchasing a garment.

BOOK REVIEWS

By MINNIE D. BROWN, '36

MODERN TRAGEDY—Phyllis Bentley.

The scene of this story is in England during the depression. The leading character, Walter Haigh, a young man of honest and respected parentage, became involved in the dishonest schemes of a textile mill owner. He strays from those principles of right and wrong as instilled by his parents and treads the road of many obstacles. Because of his ambition, to achieve and to marry the girl he loves, he blindly becomes the partner of Leonard Tasker. The results are disastrous and detrimental to many of the characters involved.

COMEDY: AMERICAN STYLE—Jessie Redmond Fauset.

"Comedy: American Style" portrays a group of colored almost white, living in Philadelphia. The wife with an overpowering desire to pass, wrecks the life of her children and husband.

From this point of view, this story cannot help from interesting Americans. It exemplifies strength, dehumanizing power of force that takes the measure of a man's worth and opportunity. Any haphazard chance of race or circumstances must not be over-emphasized. It would be well to read this book, for it concerns the life of today, and is well worth reading.

THE MOTHER—Pearl S. Buck.

"The Mother" is one of Mrs. Buck's best works. She has entered into the mind, heart and spirit of the Chinese peasant woman and brought to her readers "The Mother." It is an architectural unity, driving strength and simplicity to an elemental quality.

Its theme demonstrates spiritual changes, conflicts of opposing natures that are less dramatic, and more realistic but not sentimental. It teaches one how to appreciate unseen struggles. This story will also help us to enter into the souls and minds of poor people and to reveal their permanent values of life.

The College Library

By Martha White, '34

The following new fiction was bought with "fine money": Jessie Fauset's "Comedy, American Style"; Booth Tarkington's "Presenting Lily Mors"; Roy Flannagan's "Amber Satyr"; John Spivok's "Georgia Nigger"; Pearl Buck's "The Mother"; Sinclair Lewis's "Ann Vickers"; Harvey Allen's "Anthony Adverse"; Phyllis Bentley's "Modern Tragedy"; Ellen Glasgow's "Sheltered Life"; and of course, for the thrill seekers and mystery lovers, Christie's "Tuesday Club Murders," Eberhard's "Murder by an Aristocrat," and Queen, "The Greek Coffin Mystery." Come in and read. There is something for all tastes.

ALONG THIS WAY—James Weldon Johnson.

Did you ever stop to think that there are many types of books as interesting as fiction? In some cases more so than fiction. Why not read James Weldon Johnson's "Along This Way" and see what a full, interesting life this outstanding man of our race has lived?

His career as a lawyer, poet, musical comedy composer, diplomatic official, orator, and educator is interesting not only in that it shows his versatility, but also in that it gives by inference the story of the struggles of the Negro. Mr. Johnson's experiences have been wide, varied, and unusual, and his ability as a writer has enabled him to depict these experiences in a style which is most enjoyable.

Several lists were sent to A. & T. for boys to attend dances at Bennett, and out of 75 names no girls were invited. Why?

"It doesn't pay to be invited to a theater party unless you have at your command 30 cents cash," says Matthew Shute.

POET'S CORNER

KISSES

I kiss my mammy kinda slow,
And kiss my daddy quickly,
'Cause mammy's face is soft, you know,
And daddy's face is prickly.

I try to be polite and not
To show how much it tickles,
But gee! I'm glad she hasn't got
A face that's full of prickles.

THINGS WE COULD DO WITHOUT

I often wonder, time after time,
Why we have to go to class,
When the teachers always assign
Something they know we can't pass.

They give us this and that to find
(As if their lines bother us),
But if we don't have it when it's time,
They raise a (peep, peep) of a fuss.

I go to class when there won't be Things discussed that are too deep,
Because when I find nothing to interest me
I find myself and others fast asleep.

This morning I went to a very nice
class,
But I didn't know what 'twas all about;

Well, I suppose we'll have to pass,
But marks are something that we all could do without.

LOUISE GUNN, '36.

LITTLE STAR

Oh you little, little star,
I'm just wondering how far
That your brightly shining light
Comes to reach us in the night.

It's from far away, they say . . .
So I was told, just today;
But what I cannot, cannot see
Is the place where you can be;

And just what it is up there,
Yes, so far up in the air,
Always keeping you in place
In a strong and firm embrace.

Ah, I know that it is He
Whose great wonders we can see
Every day in and out . . .
All around and all about.

He has placed you far up there,
Way up in the silent air,
For to send a little light,
Just to show His love by night.

ANNIE BELLE CLARK, '36.

"WONDERFUL YOU"

I know a girl, her name I will not tell,
But gee oh gosh! I think she is swell.
Is she a peach? Well, you can bet I hang on to her like a leach.

Maybe I am right and then maybe I am wrong,

But gosh! I go for her mighty strong.
She might not have such classy clothes,
But she looks mighty good dressed in gingham from head to toes.

Her eyes like to little diamonds shine,
To let her two lips (so like rose petals) remain unknissed would indeed be a crime.

Her hair shines with lustré, so like the beautiful sea;

To me she will always my one desire be.

Oh, what's the use of trying to conceal
That which I can't help but reveal?
The girl I speak of is you,
"Wonderful you!"

F. K. LUCAS, '37.

SONG

When I am dead, my dearest,
Sing no sad songs for me;
Plant thou no roses at my head,
Nor shady cypress tree;
Be the green grass above me
With showers and dewdrops wet,
And if thou wilt, remember,
And if thou wilt, forget.

I shall not see the shadows,
I shall not feel the rain;
I shall not hear the nightingale
Sing on, as if in pain;
And dreaming through the twilight
That doth not rise nor set,
Haply I may remember,
And haply may forget.

The membership of the Ivy Leaf Club has been increased. The new membership includes: F. P. Beaty, Ethel M. Jackson, Melba Lee, Willie Keen, Etta M. Melton, Shirley Thomas, Mary Ward, Marie Allen, Vivian Farrington, and Virginia Brown. With this increase in membership the club has been able to start many new projects and hopes to do bigger and better things in the future for themselves as well as for A. and T. College.

The members of the Ivy Leaf Club gave its annual program April 18, in Dudley Memorial Auditorium. The club presented Ruby Eusebury in a piano recital, which was well received by the audience. The numbers rendered were: Prelude, Chopin; A la Bien Amie, Schubert; Humoresque, Dvorak; A Cyreny Study; Prelude C sharp minor, Rachmaninoff. The mistress of ceremony was Annie B. Clark, president of the club.

A cabaret dance was given by the club on the night of this same day in the Agricultural auditorium. The color scheme was pink and green. Tables were placed about in the room. Punch was served from the fountain. Music was furnished by Miller's Southern Troubadours. During the intermission the guests were favored with a dance number, a waltz by E. Bangston and A. Corbert. Shirley Thomas and Elreta Melton rendered solos. The cabaret idea appeared to have been well accepted by those present.

As the school year draws to an end it is time for each and every student and teacher to go to their respective places until another year. To us of the Ivy Leaf Club we always detest the idea of having to say farewell; in fact, we do not choose to say the old word. So instead we will just say "So long" until next year. Friends and schoolmates, our school term has been made enjoyable because of you. We wish you a pleasant vacation and keep in mind the fact that we shall live in hopes of being together again next term for bigger and better things.

"So long."

THE CHORAL CLUB

The Choral Club, under the able direction of Miss Ethyl B. Wise, has been in great demand for appearances in different sections of the state. During the last few months they have appeared in special programs at the following points: Peabody Academy, Troy, Mr. Ed Sinclair, principal; Chatham County Training School, Siler City, Professor J. W. Groves, principal; the Lincoln High School, Professor Joseph Edelin, principal; North Wilkesboro, and the First Presbyterian Church at Raleigh.

At all of these places the club was well received and many excellent comments have been received, all expressing how much the people of these communities enjoyed having heard the club. The students, too, have reported enjoying the opportunity of making the trips. The quartet ably assisted on each trip, receiving in every case much applause.

The club is now working hard for commencement programs in which it is scheduled to take a very active part.

They have already selected student officers for next year and have made plans for another very active season, beginning in the early fall.

AGRICULTURAL ASSOCIATION

The Agricultural Association increased its membership 45 per cent over last year. This increase was due to the wonderful work done in the department, graduates gone forth, and other important factors.

President Finney called the members together the latter part of September and the following program was formulated and has been carried out.

1. An opening social for new students. This affair was enjoyed by the faculty and students of the department.
2. Trip to the State Fair. About 25 members and five Home Economics students, and members of the faculty attended.
3. The Agricultural Honor Roll, made up of the following students: B. Elliott, H. Hargrave, J. Lanier, S. W. Mial, A. Walker, A. Edmiston, M. Bullock, G. C. Baughman.
4. Agricultural play, "Bootlegging

5. Discussion of current topics and class work in meetings; the A. A. A. and other topics were discussed.

6. Judging Team. Won the cup, and took first place in poultry, seeds, cows, and essay contest.

7. Trip to State Experiment Station. About 30 members went on this trip we visited the Winmark livestock Government Euorion farm, and Iredell County farm.

8. Annual picnic. The members and their friends spent an enjoyable afternoon, fishing, bathing, and boating at Friendly Lake.

The above program created much coordination and activated a spirit of cooperation in the department. The experience gained, and the information and data secured, could not have been received from books nor instructors. It is our aim to make our education practical and useful. With this in mind we will continue to succeed in our various activities with the support of our faculty and the college.

THE REGISTER STAFF HAS ELECTION FOR 1934-35 SESSION

Ga.; A. Newsome, '36, Albany, Ga.; L. Burge, '35, Greensboro, N. C.; J. Cirt Gill, '36, Elizabethtown, N. C.; H. Brown, '35, Wilmington, N. C.

The success attained with the College Register during the school year 1933-34, and which has stood out in bas-relief throughout the year, was made possible by reason of the loyal support and whole-hearted co-operation of the staff with the faculty adviser. The staff for 1934-35 hopes for continued success and for a bigger and better paper for the ensuing scholastic year.

TO THE SENIORS

By Virgil Stroud, '37

When school opens next fall, you will not return to be with us here in our daily routine of work, but you will be elsewhere, teaching, establishing businesses of your own, and the like. You will be thrown on your own resources and you will not find things moving smoothly along at all times. Therefore, with this poem, I am sure I express the sentiment of the Freshman class in wishing you much success in whatever enterprise you may pursue and urging you on "when things are not what they seem":

"Be honest and upright and fair and square,
Let this be your object and aim;
For it isn't the winning or losing that counts,
It is how you play the game.

"Your very best efforts may sometimes fail,
When they are put to the crucial test,
But it is some satisfaction for you to know
You've given the game your best.

"But gaining a victory through deceit
Is to your discredit and shame,
For it isn't the winning or losing that counts—
It is how you play the game."

THANKS

I wish to offer thanks to all who helped me in any way during the election of the president of the Student Council. I also wish to thank those who opposed me, for I realize that the progress of civilization is based upon competition. Were it not for the efforts of each individual student I am sure that my efforts would have been in vain.
