Report. Teachers and Officers Elected

The Board of Trustees met in the Trustee Room at the College on Wednesday, July 8, with Dr. M. C. S. Noble, chairman and Dean Emeritus of the School of Education, University of North Carolina, presiding. Other members present were Foster B. Hankins of Lexington; J. H. Cowart, Ayden; O. F. Crowson of Burlington and L. S. Covington of Rockingham.

The reading of the annual report of President Bluford revealed the S. B. > "In spite of these facts," the president stated, "our Agricultural Department has grown to be the second largest to be found in any Negro institution in the country. Only Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, having a larger enrollment."

The report then referred to the efforts of the Federal Government, through a bill recently passed, to stimulate work in Agriculture, the trades and Home Economics. The new act carries an annual appropriation of $12,000,000.

The annual short course of the 4-H Club boys and girls of North and St. Augustine's College Choir. Carolina will be held here on July 28 through the 31st. This announcement comes from the two Negro District Agents, John W. Mitchell and Mrs. Dazelle F. Lowe, whose headquarters are at A. & T.

Plans are being formulated by throughout the state to make this one of the largest and best short courses for 4-H Club boys and girls in the annals of the organization.

A large number of delegates is expected to attend the short course. Approximately 400 will come from 16 counties where there are both County and Home Demonstration agents and from 11 counties where there is neither a County Agent or a Home Agent. This number does not include the 29 Negro county agents, the 12 Negro Home Agents and 4-H Club leaders of the state.

The organization was forced to cancel its Short Course out last year because of the infantile paralysis. Such gatherings were prohibited by the State Board of Health,

Progress

I 1934, the Register ventured for the first time to publish a summer issue. This was in the nature of an experiment because no provision had been made for it in the summer school budget, and no staff had been organized.

An unusually large number of recent college graduates and colleg minded people registered in the summer school, and there was soon apparent substantial interest in a summer issue of the Register. A staff was hastily organized with Charles W. Price, '35, as editor, and a campaign for a popularity contest organized for the selection of "Miss A. and T." of the summer school, as a means of securing

The contest was a signal success. Miss Helen Arlene Fleming of Morganton was chosen to the coveted place of honor and in the meantime sufficient money was realized to finance the publication.

In 1935, there was a similar demand followed likewise by gratifying results. Miss Elizabeth Wynn of Dudley, N. C., was chosen "Miss A. and T." of the summer school and crowned in an elaborate ceremony that attracted attention throughout the state. And the Register with Flossie R. Alston as Editor-in-chief appeared in its new and enlarged form; every member of the summer school received a

An Eye For Beauty

In the hustle and bustle of the classroom with the main idea of accomplishing what is outlined in the Course of Study teachers sometime fail to develop in their students an eye for beauty.

There are always so many things surrounding us which are the very essence of beauty but children often fail to see them because they are unable to appreciate the beauty in life.

Keats said, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever." This does not necessarily mean the beauties of nature. Most of us are able to appreciate the beauty of trees, flowers, mountains and streams. But how often do we fail to see the beauty of a kind deed, a good thought or a sincere smile? There are some people whose lives are thoughtfulness, and their sincerity toward others.

There is beauty in music, literature, fine paintings, and drama. Those of us who teach have a great an eye for beauty through the sub- job is supervision. jects which are taught. It takes some of the drabness and sordidness out of life. It gives hope and encouragement to a depressed

Do the Summer School Students Study?

If one would visit the college library and see it filled to its capacity with eager and studious students of the summer school sitting to the tables with books and pencils in their hands and the perspiration rolling down their sun-tanned cheeks, he would say that these people do study.

If any one wants any further proof as to whether the students are students studying or not, visit the classrooms while classes are in session and see the responses made when questions are asked. Consult the teachers for further evidence.

Further evidence can be secured by visiting the schools in which the students will be teaching during the winter. They are going to take the theories received in summer school and put them into practice in their respective schools. They are going to do more concrete teaching rather than continue in the ab-

A Study Of Educational Theory And Principles In School Supervision

In education experiment and modification have been brought about by changes in philosophies of education and new discoveries in science. Out of the needs of the people (society) and stresses of the time, school systems change to meet new problems and to meet our new concepts of organized society.

The Greeks were induced to philosophize by the increasing failure of their traditional customs and beliefs to regular life. They were led to criticize custom adversely and to look for some other source of authority in life and belief. The modern age advanced with an appeal to Educational reform has come about as a result of new theories. Progress in the study of psychology of industrial methods, and of the experimental method in science makes other conceptions of experience desirable and possible. This theory reinstates the idea of the ancients that experience is primarily practical. Educational practice always lags behind theory.

Of all systems of philosophy scholasticism, sensationalism, rationalthoroughly beautiful because of ism, idealism, realism, empiricism, their little kindnesses, their transcendentalism, and pragmatism, we are mainly adherents to the doctrine of pragmatism.

Professional advancement chiefly concerned with the improvement of teaching. The improveopportunity to develop in our pupils ment of teacher guidance on the Good supervision has one important purpose: the stimulation of selfstudy, self-analysis, self-evaluation, and self-improvement on the part of teachers. Since the school is the instrument of organized education some form of supervisory leadership is necessary for the direction of the habits of study, learning and thinking and the interpretation of educational data and problems.

Steps in supervisory procedure may be determined by the characteristics of the local school and community. The success of a supervisory program invariably depends upon the cooperative spirit, training and experience of the personnel of the supervisory staff.

The Teacher and His Job

I am wondering whether or not we ever stop to realize just what it means to have a job in a crisis like this. It is true in so many instances that teachers regard their jobs as a means to an end rather than an end to the means. We seem to be governed more by the salary we draw than by the service we render.

In several instances we are launched in the rural districts to work. There we become dissatisfied and careless about our work. Do you know that the rural people are becoming more and .more enlightened and desirous of good teaching? A leading farmer of a community recently went to the county board of education in quest for a teacher.

"Send us a teacher," he said, "who has a love for things rural and is willing to become one of us and help us solve our problems." "Our last teacher," he continued, "stayed with us for ten years and we do not want her back. She only spends five scant days with us a week and then rushes away to town to spend the weekend. She knows nothing about the problems with which we are confronted, therefore, she does not help our community very much."

This same complaint is becoming prevalent in several of the rural communities. Now, I am wondering whether or not any of us are guilty of such crimes as mentioned by the farmer who was in quest for a teacher.

The teacher must learn to adapt himself to what ever environment as a boy friend? in which he finds himself. If he does not possess the characteristics necessary for success, he should strive to acquire them.

The teacher needs to know more than the subject matter which he uses in the classroom. He should service is not limited to the four walls of the school. His influence munity, and he should be a moral

I have usually responded with a short remark as "It's fine" or "It's grand!" Now, given the opportunity to do so, I will give a fuller response.

Upon arriving on the campus of A. & T. College I was greatly impressed with the very spacious and beautiful campus. I was also very glad to find that the college contains a warm friendly atmosphere. Aunt Jenny's Column

Hello students of the A. & T. College summer school. I hope you are having a pleasant summer in the midst of this unpleasant weather. I have been away for a long time trying to broaden my experience in order to be better able to solve your problems.

Below you will find a few copies of the letters submitted to me by some of the students of the summer school followed by the answers I

Dear Aunt Jenny: This is my first summer to attend summer school at A. & T. College. I am from one of the states above the Mason-Dixon Line. I have almost fallen in love with a young man whom I had never seen before. People are daily asking me questions about our progress. Seemingly that something is wrong with him that causes so many people to be so inquisitive. Do you think it is all right for me to continue going with him?

-EXCITED.

Dear Excited: Your problem is a very puzzling one. I am not going to tell you what to do but simply advise you. You shouldn't abruptly stop going with him but take things a little slower until you find out more about the young man.

Dear Aunt Jenny:

My only boy friend has left town and will not be back within about two months. I love him and want to be true to him. My evening's seem so long and lonesome and I don't have any one to take me to parties and other social places. Another young man wants to be my boy friend. I slightly love him. Considering these qualities don't ting a boy friend.

Dear Anxious:

I think you are letting this get he best of you. In many cases those young ladies who are so loud, to anxious to be heard and seen, aren't thought so well of after all. Work Being Done On Campus Athletic Field and Farm

From the recent appropriations cceived by the college several new improvements are being made in the way of construction and repair.

Concrete walk-ways are being onstructed on the campus, the road ystem improved and the drainage system repaired. On the college farm two new buildings are being constructed, including a tool shed and barn for the beef cattle. The athletic field is being improved also.

The construction of the walkways, the repairing of the drainage system and the improvement of the road system are being done by the college students under the supervision of Professor Jerald M. Marteena, dean of the technical department of the college and professor of mathematics and mechanical ngineering. Mr. Marteena is the only licensed Negro engineer of the tate of North Carolina.

The work that is being done on the athletic field is under the WPA supervision.

The work now started is said to be just the beginning of the many improvements to be made in the near future. Funds for the construction of several buildings have been approved.

Course In Scout Mastership Offered

A training course in Scoutmastership will be offered at A. and T. College beginning Thursday, July 16 at 10:00 a.m. and continuing into Sunday, July 19. Greensboro; John D. Wray, '09, The purpose of this training course is to give the scouting program to a group of men who want to carry the scouting program to

The total cost of the course including text books, material and all meals will be $3.50. Greensboro Council is planning to take care of a part of this expense so that the final cost to those who plan to take the course will be less than the amount stated. Persons desiring to attend this course are urged to arrange with their employers through Dr. Carlson of the Greensboro Scout Council so that all arrangements can be made for such attendance.

W. R. Johnson Speaks

At a special noon chapel exercise on Thursday, July 9, William R. lic Welfare at Raleigh, gave an address to the Summer School students and teachers in the Dudley Memorial Auditorium. He was introduced by Dean W. T. Gibbs,

Mr. Johnson said in part: "During the last two decades every state director who gave detailed informa- in the South has decreased its Negro population except North Carolina." He attributed the fact that North Carolina had kept its Negro population to the advanced school system opportunities in industry ing places: The City Water Supply and is doing a very creditable job and other desirable factors which obtain in the economic and social life of the State.

"We have more accredited Negro high schools in North Carolina than in all of the other southern states E. Church, pastored by Rev. R. T. ers presented to the summer school "with all of our advantages we have hardly scratched the surface."

He then spoke at length of the great need for State Aid at Efland Home, the school for delinquent Neand former head of the depart- gro girls which has been largely sponsored by the Federation of Colored Women's Clubs and suggested that the teachers use their influence toward the end of having the State assume the full responsibility of caring for the home.

Further he said: "You cannot ride over twenty miles in North Carolina without seeing a vast vanguard of young men from eighteen to twenty-five years of age who belong to our prison population. The new emphasis in the field of education today is on community education, the education of our parents so that in early and adolescent years children will be given proper home environment and taught ideals so that such state dependents will no longer exist."
