CLASS OF '41

47th Collegiate Year Begins With 698 Students

290 FRESHMEN ENROLLED

Little Theatre Begins Rehearsal For "The World and His Wife"

Prof. J. Percy Bond, Jr., director of the A. and T. Little Theatre told a representative of THE REGISTER that work has begun on the first production of this scholastic year. He reports that the freshmen class has brought some unusual talent in dramatics and stagecraft.

With this talent of the newcomers and with the aid of former players, he expects to show an adaptation as made by Charles Nirdlinger of "The World and His Wife," from the original grand success "El Gran Galitoto by Jose Echegaray. The play has been cast and is at present in rehearsals.

The following students were successful in the last dramatic try-out and are eligible to become potential members of the A. and T. Little Theatre: Beulah Adams, Helen Adams, Elizabeth Arrington, Selma

According to information coming from the office of the Registrar, the 47th session of the college opened with an all-time high enrollment record. The freshman class, representing 20 states and the District of Columbia, surpassed all previous records with an enrollment of 290 students, which swells the total enrollment to two short of 700.

A sharp increase is noted in all departments. The Agricultural department has a 20 per cent increase and the Technical department reports a 15 per cent gain. All of the dormitories are crowded and many students had to be housed in the city because of the lack of accommodations. In the men's dormitories alone there are 325 students.

The current enrollment increase will aid greatly in strengthening the various students organizations. According to Prof. Warner Lawson, head of the Music department, the Choral Society and nationally-known Men's Glee Club will be greatly improved this year. Profs. B. L. Mason and E. J. Specialists Represent Various Sections — Have Had Varied Experiences

The students of A. & T. College are indeed fortunate this year in having opportunity for guidance under the direction of such invigorating and efficient faculty members, who are specialists in their fields and hold the interests of the students as their prime concern.

The regular faculty has increased by the addition of 13 new and competent members. These new minds are already cooperating with the general program here at the college and we are confident that their sincere efforts are appreciated. We note the following:

Mr. Hugh R. Arnette of Tacoma, Washington. Mr. Arnette graduated from the College of Puget Sound in 1931, receiving his A. M. from

Work On New Structures To Begin Soon

A grant totaling approximately $160,000.00 by the State and the Federal Government has made it possible for the college to begin at once upon the erection of three new buildings, a dormitory for women, a home economics practice house and three cottages for teachers.

These additional new buildings will satisfy a long felt need in housing students and in promoting the general growth and efficient operation of the college.

The architect has been chosen and is now busily engaged in drawing up plans and specifications for the construction of these buildings, the work on which is to begin immediately.

'Y' Members Present Their First Program

Stanford McKethan, Glenn Rankin and William Gamble gave the student body their impressions of the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. conference which was held at Lincoln Academy in Kings Mountain last spring and to which they were delegates.

Mr. McKeathan gave the general aims of the conference and the ways in which they were realized. He emphasized the problems which 135 students and leaders of 35 colleges and universities from Florida to Pennsylvania cited as barriers in the way of the building of Christian and world communities.

NEW PLAN FOR LYCEUM BEGUN

This school year, the Negro Colleges of North Carolina have formed themselves into a co-operative unit for the selection and presentation of artists on the Winter Lyceum programs. Mr. Warner Lawson, of A. and T. College, is chairman of this committee. The definite purpose of this plan is to pool funds in order that a higher type of artist may be presented in the several schools. This will be a decided advantage because the students will be able to enjoy more and better concerts.

Sunday School Objectives Outlined

The Sunday school, under the leadership of J. W. May and with the assistance of a co-operative group of teachers, initiates an interesting program for this year.

The objectives of the Sunday school include a broad scope of activities, and already the members are showing their willingness to carry out the objectives — by being present in large numbers on the first Sunday. The contest between the various classes will continue (Continued on page 4)

Course In Senior Thesis Writing Offered

This year for the first time in the history of the institution, an organized course in Senior thesis writing is being offered. The class is instructed by Mr. Brooks and meets from one to two hours each week. This time is spent in discussion and demonstration exercises.

As outlined, the course offers instructions as to the idea back of thesis writing. It gives the scientific procedure on collecting material and evaluating it, and most essentially, writing it in good form. The objective of the course is to get better theses and to have them completed before commencement.

All seniors in the departments of Education and Sciences and Business Administration are required to take this course.

FROSH-SOPH TILT DRAWS INTEREST

The traditional forensic struggle between the freshmen and sophomores will continue this year with unabated interest and determination. This may be gathered by observing the expressions and actions of members of both classes.

PARAGRAPHS

Well, if Japan can swallow China, it'll be the greatest trick that has ever come out of the Orient.

Have you ever noticed when the other fellow doesn't like your friend he's "prejudiced"; when you don't like him you are simply showing that you are a good judge of human nature.

Have you ever noticed that when the other fellow pick flaws in things he's "cranky"; when you do, you are "generous."

When some of our friends part from us we are sad; when others part we are glad. Do you have any person in mind whom you will be glad to miss?

Have you ever thought why it is that our minds tend to wander when prayers are being offered by a minister during a service?

Ye paragrapher is wondering what talent and personalities will be exposed in this freshman class. We are finding some already.

In looking up your history and mine, I found a statement that should interest you. Li, a Negro woman of remarkable beauty, was Empress of China in the fourteenth century. Formerly a concubine of Emperor Hsiao Wu Wen, who ruled from 373-397 A. D., she became his wife. The people of southern China are still Negroid, but the Empress Li was of African Negro descent.

The Curtain Rises

The summer has passed away. With the coming of fall, there are many new things to which we always look forward, and with fond anticipation in most cases. The one thing in which most young people are interested is school and college. We at A. and T. are no exception to this rule.

The Register, along with everyone else on the campus, is happy to welcome the freshmen and new students to the college and to participate in all the good things that the college has to offer. We want to congratulate the former students on their success in returning to continue their college careers.

All of the members of the staff with but one exception are back and are prepared to continue the work of The Register. It is gratifying to see them manifest such keen interest in this work.

The actors are present. The stage is set. The curtain rises, and we begin a new year. For you and yours, may it be the most successful in the annals of the College.

The Future In Preparation

As the gong of time tolls off the years, a series of successful events are woven together, but the minds of people are focused on future incidents. Seldom is the past revealed except in history. As the present is our only thought, while the future is resourceful to tomorrow is prepared man and woman.

Then if we must face the future and carry on the educational program and moral standing, a present preparation must be made.

Preparation when simplified falls under four classifications: personal responsibility, interest, the ability to react according to associates and environment, and the appreciation of accomplishments of others. Then when analytically and logically concentrating, simple ideas of praise picture themselves as being valuable. For example, the tale of "The unprepared farmer and the wise thinking lark," which links coherently with a man of unprepared future and a man of interest and ability, making it evident for need of preparation.

We must prepare to live and reflect a well rounded physical, mental and moral training which should bear all the qualities of life as a composition of discourse.

Finally, we must remember to face the world firmly; we must apprehend with much interest the value of time, the patience of accomplishment and be prepared.

GEORGE MILLER, '41.

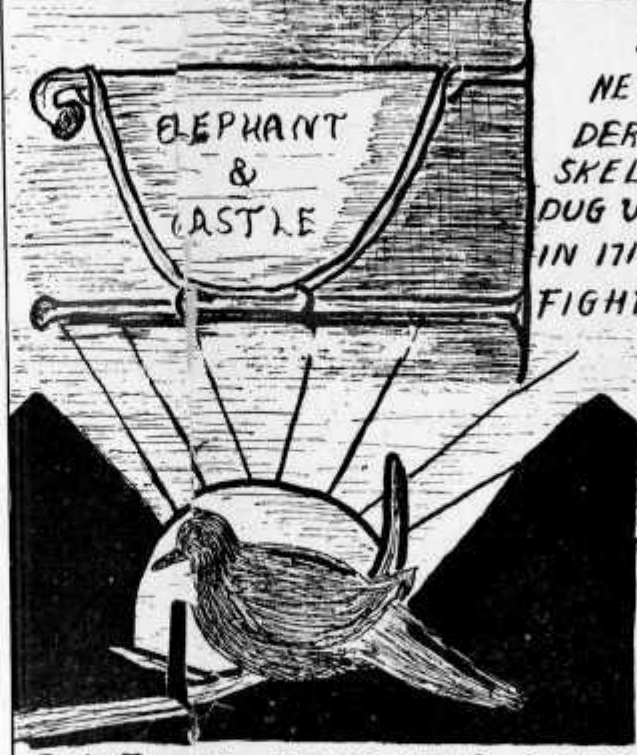

Ideal Fellowship

This term marked the first time in the recent history of our institution that freshmen have been accorded reasonable and humane treatment by students who were here the year before.

The unkind, unfriendly and somewhat barbaric methods of welcoming, as have been used in recent years were not resorted to this year. It is true that the former students were sent letters this fall, requesting them to receive freshmen in a more cordial manner. However, your work is of the opinion that the former students were in sympathy with those requests and felt themselves obligated to abide by them.

The freshmen have now been orientated and it is apparent that they have an amount of understanding concerning our institution and are fast becoming contented students.

This column feels that the former students are responsible for their contentment and it is with joy and gratitude that the administration and THE REGISTER commend the students in a moderate manner in which they greeted the freshmen this fall.

Surely human kindness, fellow-ship and sound reasoning are spreading on our campus as never before.

Public Pulse

What Is Life?

The poet, Longfellow, in his well known poem, "A Psalm of Life," tells us that "Life is real, Life is earnest." Another writer has said that life is what you make it.

Even though my hope of years is much narrower than those of these writers, I can verify their definition of life, but I should like to say in addition that life is a battle; a battle that often leads to defeat if fought half-heartedly and one that always leads to victory if fought untiringly and whole-heartedly.

On the battlefield of life, there are thousands of enemies ready to advance at all times. We see those who take life bravely, who stand fearlessly at the front in the face of their enemies with dauntless courage and conquer them one by one. That is the fellow who gets a promotion to a higher rank.

We gaze upon this field of battle again, and what do we see? We see a man who at the very faint crash of a gun, jumping headlong into the trench and lies low, trembling and fearful, but he urges his fellow partners to go above while he loads the guns in safety below. He is a coward, and very soon he will die, not from shot, but from heart failure.

At the camp we see a fellow singing a snappy tune as he sets the table. That is all he wanted to do, all he can do, besides assisting the cook. Yet he will keep the folks back home on the edge of their chairs listening to how he conquered the enemy one day, alone! That is the man whose life is as simple as the flight of a bird, and who forever flies upon the wings of Wurd, come day, go day.

Life is a precious thing and should be treated as such. Christ came so that we might have life and that we might have it more abundantly. Thus, we should try to use our lives to the very best advantages; to put all we've got into it, not only for the sake of the personal benefits to be derived, but for the sake of those who love us or who are interested enough in us to enable us to live more abundantly.

College is a fine place to start living. There are so many opportunities to test one's self from various experiences that we can see what we are made of. Then, too, we are thrown in contact with so many lives that are either congenial to ours or that the very antithesis of ours, and it is among these lives that your light shines, flickers, fades or dies. May we all endeavor to let our lives shine. And remember Longfellow's words:

"Let us then, be up and doing
With a heart for any fate.
Still achieving, still pursuing
Learn to labor and to wait."
PEARL B. GARRETT, '39.

We Who Are Entering A. and T. College

This great college that you and I have chosen for our Alma Mater, I am sure, will do much in equipping us with certain fundamental information, as well as an appreciation of our obligations to society. However, unless we take the proper attitude toward our work or play or other activities, a diploma or any other insignia of educational standing will profit us little. Hence, let us take the right attitude toward our work.

We have many obligations before us. The greatest one of these is proving to our parents and friends that we are worthy of their assistance and the cause which we represent. Perhaps these obligations alone cover all the obligations of our lives. But moreover, we should try to make a slump in new students common by staying in our places, honoring upperclassmen, because I believe they should enjoy such prestige, and getting our lessons. It appears to me that a general idea now prevails that new students do not catch themselves doing these things.

It might seem complex doing these things, but let us overcome these small difficulties, and I believe that we will find a slump in new students' common, at hand. In addition to the two obligations mentioned, we must try to prepare ourselves in an A like manner, in the field of work in which we are to be engaged—vocational, agricultural, arts and sciences or what not. Then we can go back to serve the communities from which we came. These communities, or homes, are teeming with problems, so grave, so urgent, so expansive and so apprehensive that they, no doubt, will tax the minds of people of future generations. Since this is a fact, we all know by our own small experiences that we must have the best of learning to tackle the problems at home, such as race prejudice and the green eyed monster—jealousy.

Therefore, we who are entering the Agricultural and Technical College of North Carolina, let us acquire knowledge, take the right attitude toward our work, and make a clear vision of the road ahead. Our ability will be with us, then, and the people about us will see our potentialities. After years spent here doing these things, success will be only a step farther, because we will be forearmed for the evils of failure.

Whither Tradition At A. and T.

It is plausible, at the outset, to inform you that the contents of this article are free from all prejudices, complexes and any forms or evidences of antagonism.

It is noticeable to those who are close or casual observers of people, movements and things, that many changes of policy and practice have been instituted or have spontaneously thrust themselves, by an evolutionary process, upon the student body of A. and T. College.

It pleases me to inform you that there is no attempt on the part of the writer to enter into the realm of radicalism; however, it is hoped that by these few words something will be revealed.

It is a tradition here at A. and T. that students be seated in the dining hall according to classification and not by choice or circumstance. This term, however, the students have seated themselves as their minds dictated.

It was very comical to me a few days ago to see a Freshman take a chair from a Senior. Such to my mind should not have been.

I am no so orthodox as to contend that all traditions should be kept. I am, however, conservative enough to maintain that certain traditions because of their progressive values should be kept.

Frankly, I am opposed to the general amalgamation of Freshmen, Juniors, etc. The basis of my opposition is that if Freshmen are allowed certain privileges heretofore denied them, they assume a domineering complex which results in a pernicious element that is a threat to, and an underminer of, certain definite goals toward which they ought to be striving. The previous statement applies not only to Freshmen but also to the other classes respectively.

I hope the present mix-up is not a backward step for A. and T. The predominant force at which I am driving is the stifling of individual initiative. We do not want the initiative of any individual to fall into a state of lethargy because of desuetude.

It has been my pleasure to visit, during lunch hours, the dining halls of many colleges throughout the United States, and I regret to say that we seem to have departed farther from the rules of etiquette than any I visited. I speak, sincerely and sympathetically, because I am a voice "within the veil." Can't we do better? Must we lag

Dairy Department Shows Remarkable Development

One look at the College dairy is enough to convince anyone that somebody is doing something there.

The writer of this column asked Dr. W. L. Kennedy, head of the dairy department, to show him some of the improvements which have been made during the 2 years this division has been under his supervision. The first to be noticed was the new dairy laboratory which has just been completed and installed last week at a cost of $3,600.00. It is located on the ground floor of Noble hall and is one of the finest to be found anywhere. The three large granite top desks allow forty eight students to work with absolute freedom and ease. This addition to the department is one of the most recent improvements made by the College, and as a laboratory, is surpassed by none on the campus.

At the College farm, the writer was shown the herd which consists of 55 of some of the finest stock to be obtained. There were about a dozen young heifers bred by such stock as purchased from Wheeler Brothers in South Carolina and Cows bought from the nationally famous stock of State College in Raleigh. Nineteen of these cows give milk daily, the total supply averaging 40 gallons. With the work of $2,100.00 worth of new equipment and two student and two full time employers working under the personal directions of Dr. Kennedy, the dairy department has been able to send to the dining hall each morning 700 half pints of milk which is consumed by the students. This milk is pasteurized in a hundred gallon spray type pasteurizer whose work is made more effective by an auxiliary 7 horsepower condenser which chills the brine used to produce the cold necessary to kill germs. Before each pasteurization process all of the equipment through which the milk passes is sterilized twice.

It has been learned that by the first of June of the current year, the department is expecting to own about a hundred heads of cows. Of this number about forty will be used for milking purposes. The others will be used for beef and breeding purposes. Of the twelve young heifers now on the farm, nine are expected to be giving milk by the beginning of the next Fall session.

Surprisingly enough, the entire supply of milk from the College dairy to the dining hall last Fall was brought up in a ten gallon can. One year later, this Fall, a ten gallon can, in addition to the 700 half pint individual bottles is brought and left every morning.

The institution is putting forth every effort to see that the department operates as it should. Green behind. The manner in which we bless our food is rather sacrilegious, in a mild way, if such can be.

Let's all do better! I know all of us are not guilty of the aforementioned faults but I admonish all in order that I won't miss the guilty.

If an orderly blessing can not be sung by the entire student body I'd suggest that someone be appointed Chaplain of the dining hall to bless the food. Remember, we are supposed to be striving to become well rounded individuals in a mean tricky world. Watch your etiquette at all times!

W. M. G.

feed is being sored in the silo for feeding during the Winter and another silo is being constructed to take care of the excess rations which cannot be stored in the already overflowing silo, and general incidentals are being added to increase its productivity.

It was a cold day when your columnist went to look over the dairy and he found the cows well sheltered in stalls, but without blankets to keep the animals warm. It also seemed that two pens are needed for the ills as well as lockers and a drying room for the dairy hands. The boiler which gave heat to the water and the milk rooms was no in the very best condition, but with the improvements already made to this department, it is no doubted that these slight, but important, matters will be taken care of forthwith.

Greetings from Dean of Women

Greetings and Salutations to the students of A and T., old and new. Together we stand on the threshold of life's journey. Understanding is the foundation, cooperation is the passward and diligence is a requirement to success which pays desirable dividends. Wish best wishes for rich rewards.

Greeting from President of Student Council

My dear fellow students:

On behalf of the student body of the Agricultural and Technical College it gives me great pleasure to welcome those of you who are entering our college for the first time. I trust that your desire to come here, where much effort has been put forth to bring about conditions that are conducive to true scholarship, a well balanced social growth and personal improvement and development, has been accomplished by the determination to achieve as much as your ability will let you. You will be expected to take your place here as interested and responsible person who will participate in the curricular and extra-curricular affairs of the students of the College, that your training may be complete and your personality well rounded.

The student council and the student body will gladly give any possible assistance to aid you in getting adjusted to our college community.

May your school year be a very enjoyable and successful one.

Yours sincerely,
STANFORD McKETHAN,
President of the Student Council

THE IDEA BEHIND "GOING TO COLLEGE"

Dr. W. L. Kennedy, professor of Dairy Husbandry, gives to the college student his convictions in the article below. Dr. Kennedy experienced the things about which he talks while an undergraduate at the University of Illinois, where he won both his Bachelor and Master's degrees. Pennsylvania State College conferred upon him the Doctor of Philosophy degree.

By W. L. Kennedy

When a person is in grammar school and high school, the attainment of a degree, manifest by two mysterious letters after one's name, is the ultimate objective of college. The name, John Jones, A. B., carries tremendous significance; it implies personality, power, and a consummate intellectual capacity.

Unfortunately this attitude toward a degree is carried over in to college. The majority of students still cling to their native conception of the potency of that decorative sheepskin which is handed to them at commencement and which automatically confers upon them the degree of B. S. or A. B. They have completed the four year course in large scale production of culture and are now in possession of the document which is the "open sesame" to success and fame. They will hang this shepskin on the wall like thousands of John Joneses have done before them, and in six months the glamour will have all departed. They will settle down into the rut and try to eke out an existence in competition with millions of others, bachelors of science and art.

The average student body is merely a herd of sheep, shoved into the fall of their freshman year into a pen of prescribed training, fattened, and then turned loose on the pastures of modern, high-speed existence with the hension of their alma mater.

Students should be made to see that they are not being educated by allowing themselves to be molded into the standard mass pattern without any outlet for individual expression or opportunity for the leisurely absorbing of the rich heritage of culture which is theirs by the grace of great men who have gone before them.

If universities would only adopt some plan similar to that of vagabonding that which has been frequently discussed in educational columns, we feel sure that those students who have a more intelligent striving for a degree, would be eager to take advantage of the opportunity. For the rest of the common clay, we say this: The opportunities are there waiting for you to seize upon them.

shipped from the factories and already work has begun. According to information given THE REGISTER, the cafeteria will be completed and ready for use by October 20.

It is believed that this system of feeding will meet the popular approval of the student body in general. It will allow for a greater variety of foods to be chosen by the individual student at a very minimum cost, it was revealed.

Frosh-Soph Tit Draws Interest

Prof. Brooks, coach of debate, 30 former high school debaters responded for the freshman class, and for almost two hours Dudley auditorium was filled with oratory as only it can be filled by determined youngsters of the State High School Debating League. It all adds up to debating troubles for the sophomores.

A few anxious sophomore scouts were seen standing in the hall listening intently to the whole tryout procedure, but as a sudden flight of eloquence swept across the room and into the hall, they stood aghast, then recovered, looked at each other, shook their heads silently, walked away to forget what to them must have been akin to a nightmare in the daytime.

Last year the sophs brought to an end a long reign of freshman superiority by winning a two to one decision. Again this year, the battle royal is on, more heated than ever before and the outcome will be in doubt until the decision of the judges settles the dispute and crown someone champion.

P. and the Southern Tenant Farmers' Union in their programs to see that the common man, and especially the Negro, takes his place in the scheme of all activities on an equal basis with other groups.

Mr. Rankin dealt with the plight of agriculture and the rural problems as they affect millions of people in 16 of the southernmost states and told of the work of various agencies operating to eliminate the deplorable conditions.

These reports were made September 24 at the regular chapel hour, at which Carter Foster presided, and marked the first chapel program of the year conducted by the students.

Jollification Terminates Freshman Week

The climax of the freshman week of orientation was the jollification held Saturday evening, September 18, in the gymnasium. William Fisher was responsible for the well arranged program which the upper-class enjoyed with the freshmen. Assisting Mr. Fisher with the program were Mr. Carl Keyes and Mr. William Gamble.

After the freshmen had introduced themselves more fully by giving a display of their talents. There was quite a bit of confusion when each boy was told to take the girl who had impressed him and join in the grand march. Some exciting games afforded more enjoyment, and the pleasure derived from the few dances which followed was even greater. In order to arouse the school spirit, Arthur Headen led the students in some of the school yells and had them sing the "Alma Mater."

The height of the evening came in the form of a delectable repast, and the students departed as the strains of "Home Sweet Home" were played.

Nit Wit: Do you notice anything wrong with my approach?
Wit Nit: It's not the approach that worries me, it's the departure.

Frosh: You shouldn't burn that grass. It will be as dark as you are.
Soph: If I don't, it will be as green as you are.

Teacher: How do you know that the bones were evidence of the Ice Age?

Bewildered one: Because they were still cold.

Champ: Were you at my last fight?

Pal: No, what happened?
Champ: Boy! Was it a fight? I gave him a left; I hit him with a right...

Pal: Then what?
Champ: I got up and hit him again.

Noted Lecturer Talks To Frosh

A special address by Dr. Charles Satchell Morris, II, professor of English and Sociology at Tennessee State A. and I. College, Nashville, Tennessee, closed the five-day orientation period for freshmen and new students at the college Sunday afternoon, September 19, at three o'clock.

This was the first vesper service of the new school year and was made possible by the faculty committee in charge of the orientation program.

The distinguished orator chose as his theme, "The Spirit of God in Action," and said that among other things the Spirit of God is tolerant, sacrificial and humble. "We must respect the opinion of others. Toleration is expected of us if we are to be tolerated. Genuine superiority is not ostentatious, but is founded in simple endeavor and consecrated service, and we must remember that certain duties and considerations are due to others," he said.

Prof. C. R. A. Cunningham led the devotionals and the choral society under the direction of Prof. Warner Lawson sang, "Lord, I Want to be a Christian" and Dett's arrangement of "Better Be Ready." President Bluford presided and introduced the speaker.

Naomi Of A. & T.

The reputation of Joe Louis pulls millions of dollars into the box offices of Madison Square Garden.

The wit of Will Rogers set the jaws of a nation chewing gum . . . And the voice of Roland Hayes thrills thousands of listeners every year.

Today, everything depends on the reputation of a person or a product. It is that way with my column, too! For a whole year, Naomi of A. & T. has been known to answer letters received from students of varying classification, having distinct personalities, and miscellaneous difficulties or problems. Naomi has endeavored to be impartial and sincere, truthful, yet sympathetic. Feel confident to express your real self in your letters. Your problem can be solved best if I am given enough information to analyze your particular background, thereby advising you more effectively and accurately.

Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors, please do not become mentally afflicted because of something preying on your mind. Get it off by seeking the advice of a specialist on the worries, difficulties and complexes of college students. Write all letters to Box 69, and they will be answered in the next issue of The Register. I WILL DO THESE GOOD.

Aggies Open Conference Schedule Against St. Paul

Coaches Inman Breaux and William Thomas are rapidly whipping the riddled Aggie aggregation of A. & T. College in condition for the Bulldogs' initial C. I. A. A. game here Saturday with the much improved St. Paul squad from Lawrenceville, Virginia. This battle of missing heroes promises to be one of great importance in determining the season's outcome of these two teams in the conference circle during the present football season. The Aggie football squad has been greatly handicapped as well as riddled during the present season due to the graduation of two of the best backs in the association along with three varsity linemen. The squad has been handicapped further due to losses caused by serious injuries and ineligibilities. However, hopes have been greatly brightened with the return of such shifty backs as Hill Daily, Mayes and Lynch and such stalwart linemen as Pope, Goud and Keyes along with a number of reserves from last year's squad. Among the new recruits, Parrish, Hill Williams and Butler show signs of breaking into the lineup for the 1937 edition of Aggie Bulldogs.

It is a fact that the coaches will have a job shaping the squad for the stiff competition found in the C. I. A. A., especially after being held to a 0-0 deadlock score last Saturday by Claflin University of Orangeburg, S. C., the college over which A. & T. triumphed 21-0 last season.

A. & T. faces one of the toughest schedules in the history of the institution.

All home games will be played at the Memorial Stadium in Greensboro.

Literary Fraternity Begins Program

The Kappa Phi Kappa Forensic Society held its initial meeting on September 27 for the purpose of electing new officers and appointing a committee to work out plans for the debating program for the year.

The officers for the society elected are: President, James Pendergrast; vice-president, Pearl B. Garrett; secretary, Ruth Nicholson. Miss Izora Jones was appointed to act as hostess on all occasions. Miss Fannie Nicholson will assist her in entertaining and seeing to the needs and comforts of visitors.

Messrs. Glenn Rankin and Jeremiah King were elected to serve as hosts.

On the evening of September 30, the group invited the freshmen to attend a meeting in the reception room of Morrison Hall for the purpose of showing them the activities of the society.

Freshmen Show Great Enthusiasm For Debating

From the way things look, this is going to be a bigger and better year for the Debating Society. Large, small, fat and skinny freshmen from everywhere signed up for the debating tryouts. It is gratifying to notice that several of them are young ladies.

In a few weeks the time-famed annual Freshman-Sophomore debate will take place. Everyone is wondering if the Frosh will recapture their lost glory this year by winning the decision from the Sophomores, who emerged victorious last year, after many, many years of continuous and ignominious defeat.

The Freshmen who participate in the coming debate with the Sophomores usually have a splendid chance to make the Varsity debating squad, which has won the coveted championship of the Tri-State Debating League for the last four years. More power to the Freshman-Sophomore debate; more power to the Varsity debates!

Agricultural Association

The Agricultural Association is off "like a flash." We have many activities confronting us this year. Some of them are new and some are traditional.

Our association meets every Friday morning at 8 o'clock, in room 205 (Noble Building). Most of our meetings are conducted in the form of programs. Guest speakers, motion pictures, and musical presentations constitute the major portion of these programs. We extend to each of you, regardless of classification or department, an invitation to our meetings.

The association staff for this term is as follows: President, Chester Bright; vice-president, Haywood Johnson; secretary, Chester Harrison; treasurer, Marshall Campbell; chairman of the social committee, Bush Buffalo; chairman of the program committee, Molton Zachary; chairman of the publicity committee, Carter Foster, and faculty adviser, Professor C. E. Dean.

Record-Breaking Enrollment

As registration ends we again notice the Agricultural department has again broken its enrollment record. Its present enrollment numbers 227, which is an increase of approximately 50 students over last fall term's enrollment.

Many improvements, which include additions to the laboratory facilities, a complete renovation of the dairy department, and efficient assistants in all departments, have taken place since last spring.

The present enrollment is one to feel proud of. It is believed that with the aid of recent improvements, agricultural students will be trained on a more efficient and practical scale than has been done before.

Aggies Make Good Start

Hot broiling sun and a program of strenuous exercises greeted the Aggie football squad for the 1937 season.

Sixteen varsity lettermen will be out of the lineup this year due to such causes as graduation, expiration of playing time and ineligibility. These players are: Ends, Harrell, Garvin, Morgan, Banner and McCoy; backs, Norman, Graham, McClain, Stroud, Cope and Robinson; line, Marable, Conway, Gee, McDougle, Coleman and Pittman. To fill the places left vacant by these men will be a difficult task for Coach Breaux and his aides, Bill Thomas and Harry Lash, who are working daily to put on the field a team that will well represent A. & T. The squad is being put through strenuous drills, stressing blocking and tackling, getting to face the nine hard games on schedule.

In spite of the loss of such a large number of players, Coach Breaux believes that the team this year will be equally as prepared as any team that ever took the field since he assumed his duties.

Some of the men who are showing outstanding promise and who are playing their last games this year are Karl Keys, J. W. May, Ralph Wooden, Clarence Washington and Charles Revis.

Outstanding among the others are Lynch, regarded as one of the best backs in the conference, "All-Star" Pope, the hard charging Bradley and the diminutive but powerful Roy Hill.

Collegians Reorganize

The rhythmic unit, the "Collegians," has reorganized again this season to give plenty of swing music.

The band personnel is as follows: Weldon F. Williman—Director of the band, commonly known to the group as "Billy," the drummer man. A junior, who hails from Pittsburgh, Pa.

Van H. Foster—First trumpet player, assistant manager of the band and arranger. A senior who comes to us from Kannapolis, N. C. We call him "Louie" because of his brilliant work on the trumpet.

James C. Hasty—The manager, an excellent reader and smooth arranger, commonly known to the fellows as "Professor." He really works on the "ivories" like Earl Hines.

William Privett—A sophomore who shows promise as a second trumpeter. He is a contribution from New Brunswick, N. J.

Leon Mizell—Third trumpet man—a lively sophomore, and the pride and joy of Norfolk, Va., his home. He is known to his fellows as "Reverend." Be sure to hear him.

Melvin Wall—Former manager of the band, who is expecting to graduate this quarter. He plays the tenor sax and is one of the outstanding members of the organization.

Paul E. Gidney—Of "the land of the sky," Asheville, N. C., toots the first saxophone and shows musical talent and technique of a master musician. He is a senior.

Leon Davenport—Plays second sax and comes from Norfolk. "Davy," as he is called, is a newcomer, but great promise is seen in him.

Daniel Leatherbury, of Atlantic City, N. J., is also a beginner in the band, but you can't tell it. He has already found his place and is doing surprisingly well.

Karl "Poppa" Keys—Yes, he plays bass in the band. A senior and a football player, par excellence. New Bern, N. C., claims him as her son.

Women Form Athletic Association

The young women of the college are happy to welcome the new physical education director, Miss Roberts, of Chicago, Illinois. The organizing of the Women's Athletic Association on Tuesday evening, September 28, 1937, was something new in the world of sports for the women of the college. This association was organized to stimulate interest, standardize and promote ideals of health, sportsmanship and athletics. This organization is only open to upper classmen at present and freshmen women after the first quarter.

All of the young women are very interested, and are expecting to gain much from the organization.

What's In A Name

Marguerite Williams

Oh, my goodness! Do you mean to tell me that you have been here this long, and haven't made yourself known to more of the newcomers? Don't answer me. I'll do something about it. This instant I pledge myself to acquaint you with our new members of this happy family. Names may not count but it pays to know them. Follow me.

The GLYMPS are fond of our dear Alma Mater. One Glymp got a glimpse of A. and T., and told another Glymp, and now she is taking in her glimpses in the person of Miss Dollie Ann Glymp from Gaffney, S. C. She specialized in beating out rhythm with her fingers and singing to make it sound hotter. What a treat it is to hear her!

CELESTRAL PAGE Miss Page comes to us from Lumberton, N. C. She is a frosh and has taken a special liking for English. In fact, she plans to major in it. Although she may not be from the heavenly choir, she can let forth a very sweet melody.

He is from Dudley High School, is interested in dramatics (strangely enough) dancing, and—with the clarinet in the band and is said to be a basketball player you'll want to see on the court.

What's all this? Music! Laughter! Bright lights! Let's get nearer. It is a young lady exhibiting and teaching the new dance steps. And can she swing! Susie-Q-ing, trucking this way and that way, she even rivals your old "swing lady." Miss CAROLINE PHELPS is the name if you're interested. She's a freshman from Rocky Mount, Va. So long, Be prepared for another trip next month.

Delta Sigma Theta

Welcome! Welcome!—to the sisters of the Alpha Mu chapter of the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority. On Saturday afternoon, September 27, 1937, the members of the Delta Sigma Sorority were greeted with an informal surprise social by Soror Gertrude Matthews at her home on North Dudley street. Thanks to Soror Matthews for her unique method of getting us together and for the most delicious food she presented us at such a perfect time.

When we looked around, we missed the faces of those faithful Sorors who were absent because of graduation. Nevertheless, with our new efficient members, we shall strive to live up to our ideals of character and scholarship.

The beginning of the fall quarter means the beginning of another year of hard work. We shall look forward to the following officers for our success: President, Matilda Johnson; vice-president, Lena Mae Johnson; recording secretary, Gertrude Matthews; corresponding secretary, Willie Mae Johnson; treasurer, Ruth Williams; adviser, Mrs. N. W. Lawson, and dean of pledges, Gertrude Matthews.

MANY ACTIVITIES GET UNDER WAY

President Bluford has frequently said that he is anxious to see all phases of the college program begin actively at the opening of the school year. As a rule the football coaches and players have worked on this idea and other extra-curricular activities have tended to wait for the football season to close.

This year things are different. The Choral Society and Glee Club have already advanced well into mid-term singing style. The debating society has begun its regular meetings and the freshman tryouts are well under way. The freshman-sophomore debate will be earlier and better than it has been for several years.

All preliminaries for membership in the Dramatic Society have been completed and one or two major plays have been selected.

The young women heretofore have waited to begin their athletic program with basketball in the winter quarter. This year they have organized an athletic association which will direct the program of athletics for women throughout the year. Miss O. A. Roberts is faculty adviser.

Stanford McKethan, the newly-elected president of the student council, called on the classes for their representatives during the first week of school. This is a good indication that the Student Council is going to be a working organization this year. He reports that the classes are responding nicely and that his organization will be in smooth running order without delay.

The Gamma Tau Society of scholars has held its initial program for the year and completed plans intended to render it a more influential body in the development and

Explication

They fail to understand,
My laughter and my song.
My skin dark like my Congo.
My teeth white like the shining river sands.

White like the ivory tusks of my jungle friends.

My laughter deep and rhythmic,
Like the measured beat of the tom-tom.

My song strong with the strength of the jungle, and stirring
Like the cry of the frightened koo-doo.

Or soothing and eternal,
Like my river flowing gently on Forever.

They wonder that I laugh and sing.
In face of fear and spite and wrong
But I have faced the Congo terrors
And heard the wailing of my brothers.

Beneath the lash of pale torment
Have seen them driven from their home land.

To live in fear and pain and longing
And die above some distant sail.
Still the beating of the tom-tom,
Falls on my ear with marked precision and my river, unmoved
Flows on forever.

A Child's Prayer

God, please send two little angels
To watch me through the night,
And let them stand beside my bed
When I turn out the light.
God, I thank you for keeping me
While I was out at play,
Now watch my puppy through the night,

So he won't run away.
And watch my dolls and tea sets,
To see that they don't break.
I will look after them myself.
Tomorrow when I wake.

Now, God, please bless my daddy
And little Jimmy Dale (You know the boy that plays with me and pulls my puppy's tail.)
And bless my mama separately,
And keep her nice and warm,
And keep her close beside my bed.
To kiss me in the morn.

THE OCEAN AFTER HIGH SCHOOL

Ending, but not beginning
To swim the ocean that many fear,
An ocean that is forever lending,
Advice to success if you will hear.
An ocean that many meet with a frown,

Doubting themselves of being drowned,
Just because the other side seems far away.

And it can't be reached within a day.

2.

Ending, but realizing
The problems that many meet.
The ocean that will be rising,
And washing you from your feet.
Then floating you to the shore,
To start the same journey once more.

To see if you will stand, direction of student thought and actions on the campus. Gamma Tau is also working out a plan whereby the Sophist Society of younger school might become better organized and more effective.

The first meeting of the Sophists will be presided over by Doris Boyd, the president of Gamma Tau,
and the first meeting of the freshman class will have as its presiding officer, Stanford McKethan, the president of the Student Council. In both of these cases this is in keeping with college traditions.

And achieve success if you can.

3.

Ending, but not beginning,
To face the world that many fear,
An errand we are sending,
Ourselves both far and near.
The fruit we shall reap.
Whether we rejoice or weep.
It will be ours and to it we shall cry.
And a memorial to us after we die.

But, Boy, I Had To Dig

Said the little red rooster: "Believe me, things are tough.

Seems that worms are scarcer, and
I cannot find enough.

What's become of all those fat ones
is a mystery to me.

There were thousands through that rainy spell — but now where can they be?

Then the old black hen who heard him didn't grumble or complain—
She had gone through lots of dry spells, she had lived through floods and rain.

So she flew upon the grindstone,
and she gave her claws a whet,
As she said: "I've never seen the time there weren't enough worms to get."

She picked a new and undug spot;
the earth was hard and firm."

The little red rooster jeered: "New ground! That's no place for a worm."

The old black hen just spread her feet — she dug both fast and free.
I must go to the worms," she said,
"the worms won't come to me."

The rooster vainly spent his day,
through habit, by the ways

Where fat, round worms had passed in squads back in the rainy days.

When nightfall found him supperless, he growled in accents rough:
"I'm hungry as a fowl can be. Conditions sure are tough."

He turned then to the old black hen,
and said: "It's worse with you;
For you're not only hungry, but must be tired, too.

I rested while I watched for worms,
so I feel pretty perk.

But how are you? Without Worms, too, and after all that work?"

The old black hen hopped to her perch and dropped her eyes to sleep

And murmured in a drowsy tone,
"Young man, hear this and weep:
I'm full of worm and happy, for I've es'en like a pig,

The worms are there as always —
but, boy I had to dig!"
