A & T Fields Largest Band In History

Occupies Enlarged Quarters

The 1955-56 version of the marching band under the direction of Mr. Walter F. Carlson and the new drill master and assistant, Mr. Richard Jones, recently began activities for the year with the largest band in the history of the school. The band, comprising 135 pieces, has an enrollment of 66 freshmen. The majorette section has doubled in size, increasing its membership from six to twelve.

The new drill master, Mr. Jones, is a graduate of A & T College and Northwestern University. Mr. Jones, a member of the T. S. Navy Band during World War II and V in North Carolina, West Virginia, and Alabama and has been invited to have Mr. Jones here and conduct the band.

The band now occupies enlarged quarters in Crosby Hall. Among many advantages are a larger practice room, more storage space, many individual practice rooms, and a spacious stage.

The program for the fall season includes many outstanding field and marching events. Trips to Morgan State, Virginia Union, and Winston-Salem Teachers College are expected here for the annual alumni association, will greet standing alumni members; and Mr. Ralph L. Elreta M. Alexander, attorney at law in Greensboro. She is a graduate of North Carolina Agricultural and Technical College; a concert by the A&T Band; a worship service in Memorial Church; lunch, dinner and several novelty numbers.

\section*{H. S. Seniors To Visit}

More than 5,900 graduating seniors from the high schools in the Greensboro area are expected to be hold at A & T College on Saturday, October 22.

Acceptance to invitations mailed out a few days ago began pouring in early last week. W. R. Samples, dean of men at the college and chairman of the committee arrangements, notes that the week that the participation for this year one will probably exceed previous ones. He added that interest remains at all high schools in North Carolina and border states and indicates that any Carolina high could be invited.

A schedule of activities planned for the senior includes a conducted tour of the educational facilities at the college; the A & T College Symphony Orchestra, the football game between the A&T Aggies and Wake Forest Teachers College, lunch, dinner and several novelty numbers.

SHARED SOME RESEARCH PAPERS—Those eight ranking students in the School of Nursing at A & T College who were ranked first of the freshman group and the junior group, were given educational expenses paid by the Foundation during the current academic year.

\section*{Nursing School Gets $21,000 Grant}

The A & T College School of Nursing has received a $21,000 grant from the Richardson Foundation, Inc., of Greensboro and New York, according to information received from the president's office. The outright gift, provided for the purpose of advancing financial aid to student nurses, is to be used during the next three years.

\section*{Registrar's Office Releases Roll}

The roll of the Registrar's division of approximately 2,235 students enrolled at A & T College during the fall quarter has been released. The office also noted that there is a ratio of 59 males and 64 females. Last year's freshman enrollment was 265. Of this number there were 295 males and 70 females.

An important point which may be of interest in the enrollment is the fact that freshmen are enrolled in each of the three fields of study, engineering, agriculture, and mechanical. This enrollment is a sign of the increasing interest in the last year's number.

The enrollment of the college is as follows: 596 freshmen, 492 sophomores, 967 juniors, and 17 senior students.

WELCOME!

On behalf of the student body, the President of the Student Council extends a warm welcome to all friends and well-wishers who will attend the homecoming extravaganza today.
Who Should Go To College

By MICHAEL DEVEREAUX ’59

Everyone is able and eligible should go to college. In the days of our grandparents and great-grandparents, before them, little or no formal education was needed. The standard measure of measuring a man’s worth was being able to read and write. There were people who were educated but the number of people who were not vastly outnumbered the number who were. This was based on the view that going to college was not necessary to learn a trade or to do any other work needed to sustain life. The fact that those in the past did not go to college was not a condemnation of the past but an indication that it was accepted as a way of life.

The jobs of those in the past were different from those of today. The jobs of today are different from those of the past. The jobs of the future are different from those of today. This is because the world is changing and the jobs that are needed are changing as well. The jobs of today require a higher level of education and training than the jobs of the past. This is because the world is changing and the jobs that are needed are changing as well.

A Guide For Living

James V. Beardsall

Modern man is learning that he is helpless to save himself without God. It may well be that the world at the present time is being humbled by the same process of which God is the head rather than mankind by the inscription on the penny. God does not hold out His arms to our burdens but in its very simplicity has never aged. It is not hard to visualize what a “mixed-up” world this would be if this were not so. Even the most uninformed should have excuses for any infractions of any rule or action or thought may be guided. The rule, says the Chaplain, was written years before anyone who now reads it ever thought of it. We must not, we cannot fail.

In this new age of atomic energy and supersonic aircraft it seems that some things which were characteristic of good behaviour and fine breeding a few generations ago are in danger of being considered “old fashioned” and belonging to another age, something that was good enough for the past but not necessary in the modern age. It is not hard to visualize what a “mixed-up” world this would be if this were not so. Even the most uninformed should have excuses for any infractions of any rule or action or thought may be guided. The rule, says the Chaplain, was written many years before anyone who now reads it ever thought of it. We must not, we cannot fail.

A Club of Chaplains is aware of the danger of our losing sight of the assumption that the population of the United States vies the high schools take in more students and turn out more graduates than before. As a result more graduates turn to college.

The person who wishes to go to college should consider the course among which he must choose.

Mrs. Aggrey Delivers Chapel Message

The faculty and student body were inspired Sunday, October 2, in the regular chapel hour by an inspirational message delivered by Mrs. Roso D. Aggrey of Salisbury, North Carolina, in her message “Miracle in Our College Life.” Mrs. Aggrey said that “one young woman are the hope of the race, they make fine young men. Americans crave for newness and superiour with out attention to the inward newness. One whose education does not include the knowledge and belief in the Holy Spirit is in an odd condition.”

Mrs. Aggrey also pointed to the students as to how they should live in human relations with each other. “First, create an atmosphere here at A&T College for good living.”

In conclusion, she said that “Miracles remain in realms of thought and we must make them operate in our lives. When there is an awareness of a need for reliance on God, all our problems are more easily solved. We must work and fight to achieve our goals. This is a matter of giving what you have and dedicating yourself to God.”

Mrs. Aggrey has served as principal, teacher and supervisor in the public schools of North Carolina; president, Western District of the Parent Teachers Association Congress, and president of Teachers Association and others. She is in the present presidency of the North Carolina Federation of Women’s Clubs. University, North Carolina. The addresses were given by Gloria Booth, president, Y. W. C. A. and Rev. Cleo T. McCoy, chaplain.
