Women To Lead Dual Role
As Mothers and Career Women

By Gladys M. Morris

Dr. Mary Rutting, president of Radcliffe College, has stated that the need that lies ahead for women is a dual role as motherhood and career. Home Economics readily prepares one for both.

INCREASING NEED
The need for home economists has increased in the last ten years with recent surveys. The service of professional home economists are needed and desired more than ever before in the history of this country. Reasons may be any of the following: (1) There are more families today, and they need more help in the home. (2) Changes in family living conditions over the last decade have made the home more of a problem; the homemaker more difficult in all aspects of life. (3) The greatly increased number of products and the expensive advertising system have made it impossible for the average homemaker to judge the relative merit of these products.

OFFERS SEVERAL CAREERS
The Department of Home Economics offers careers in the following subject areas: (1) Clothing, (2) Foods and Nutrition, (3) Home Economics Education, (4) Institutional Management, and (5) Nursery School Education. Two-year terminal programs leading to a certificate in (1) Clothing and (2) Foods and Nutrition.

The majority of the freshmen in this year's department are enrolled in Clothing and Foods. They are: Doris E. Canada, Mesquite, Texas; Joyce Conner, Boston, Mass.; Madge L. Gilliam, Greenville, S. C.; Frederick H. Harrell, Tifton, Ga.; and Mary S. Ray, Columbus, Ga.

A class in first year chemistry at A&T College had the holidays in mind when they decorated this Christmas tree from equipment in the laboratory. The main attraction of the tree is the common ring stand and regular clamps hold round bottom flasks, containing color fluids which served the purpose of decorative balls.

A&T Athletic Director Receives Ph.D. at Ohio S. U.

By William C. Bell

Mr. William M. Bell, director of physical education, was awarded the Doctor of Physical Education degree December 19, 1960. As a requirement, Dr. Bell completed a dissertation on "A Clinical Study of the Physical Education Curriculum in Ten Negro High Schools with Respect to the Relationship of Physical Education to Fraternal Fraternity Fraternities." The dissertation was devised as evaluative criteria for the purpose of the report of the Ohio philosophy and principles of physical education in secondary schools, dated Dr. Bell, in doing research he investigated several schools in North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Washington, and Maryland. On the basis of his findings, Dr. Bell gave many suggestions in the physical education department at the schools surveyed.

A&T Choir Presents Annual Christmas Carol Concert

The A&T Choir presented its annual Christmas Carol Concert Sunday evening, December 10. The program featured a group from the Tours, "For Unto Us A Child Is Born," by Johann Bach, a selection of madrigals, and English folk songs, which included: "O Magnum Mysterium," "The Three Kings," "Silent Night, Holy Night," and "O Holy Night," the latter as arranged by William Dawson. The concert concluded with the featured composition, "Carol Fantasy," by Norman Lockwood, which served as an accompaniment of brass, timpani, piano and organ.

Among the featured soloists were Destine Barnes, mezzo-soprano; Emily Woolard, soprano; and Glenda Gilliam, tenor. The piano section consisted of William Davis and Robert Smith, both of Greensboro.

The choir was conducted by Mr. Howard A. Finnell, chairman of the Music Department and was accompanied by Miss E. Berenice Booker, at the piano and Mr. Charles J. Blue, at the organ.

BELGIANS TAKE OVER

II, who was chiefly responsible, redeveloped and the results of the decision of the country. After his death in 1901, the Belgians were wrong in their philosophy, and so the result has been chaos. But the present events in the Congo today, it is happened in the Congo. The Belgians are correct in their philosophy, and for the time being the Belgians have not yet to graduate from the Postal Department for a number of years. But there was no training cadre of civil, military, and personal cleanliness.

BELGIANS WRONG

But the present events in the Congo are showing that the Belgians were in their philosophy, and the most dramatic example of this can be seen in the revolts of the Congolese army, an army in which Belgian paternalism has prevented any African soldier from rising higher than the rank of a private. The grave consequences of the philosophy of paternalism were therefore irreparable, especially at the present time when African nationalism is asserting itself throughout the continent and the "Wind of Change" blowing west from Colonialism.

Events have clearly demonstrated that political ambitions in the Congo can no longer be suppressed. But what is really striking is the fact that although there was no intention on the surface, nevertheless, there were hidden tensions and a burning desire for freedom amongst the Congolese people. And so when Independence came in July, 1960, as a nation they had not prepared for it.

The government consciously relinquished their political control and efficiently when the Belgians being post than "our own Professor Weaver." We will do the job and I hope that will be the judgment of all Americans. There seems no other man better than "our own Professor Weaver" as a consultant on the Tennessee Administration, the U.S. Housing Authority, the National Defense Administration, the Soviet Administration, the Office of Production Management, and as New York State's rent administrator. He has contributed invaluable service to the nation, and the plan, where he directed the Mayor's Committee on Self-Sufficiency. In addition, he served as assistant chief of the Labor Union and was a consultant on the Tennessee Valley Authority as a consultant.

The Aggies Were There

When the North Carolina gubernatorial campaign was at its height, A&T College cadets were thrilled by an unexpected visit from Mr. Terry Sanford. He just dropped into his Saturday morning class, landing his helicopter on the practice field where cadets were drilling.

It is possible that any eligible voter in the group would have supported Mr. Sanford before after his recent appearance on television. Certainly other cadets told their parents of the affable Mr. Sanford.

Aggies were further pleased with the receipt of an invitation to the inaugural in Washington. But those who participated have had little to say about the actual event. Perhaps their silence is a reflection of the grandeur of the event in which they participated.

Some expressed disappointment over having gotten only a brief look at the new governor. But this disappointment was partially offset by the work involved in the performance by either the drill teams or the band.

Efforts to distract the drill teams as they went into their intricate maneuvers served only to inspire the performers.

The band likewise permitted no distractions. Its members rose to the occasion with dignity.

Yes, A&T was there to celebrate the beginning of a new year and a promise for a much needed impetus in education for all citizens in North Carolina.

A Student Complains...

Before the Christmas holiday period, a student from Cooper Hall confronted members of the editorial staff with complaints about the manner by which the Student Government appropriates its funds.

He went on to point out that many parents work hard for bill money and stated, "The Student Government members shouldn't just sit back and squander or waste this money by making such large appropriations for newspaper members to attend conventions in Chicago and for Miss A&T's Homecoming Gown Fee."

"The latter may make it difficult for someone to "borrow.""

A Reporter Views The Governor's Inauguration

EDITOR’S NOTE: This article is an outgrowth of North Carolina’s Inauguration of Governor Terry Sanford. Ernest L. Johnston, Jr., went to Raleigh with the three units (band, drill, and Air Force ROTC Drill Teams). All were in great spirits because they knew that it was a high honor to be invited to the Inauguration of Governor Sanford.

The day was a beautiful one with the sun shining as brightly as on any June day. Approximately 9 A.M., about the same time the clock chimed 12 o'clock, the usual cut-out of Raleigh to Raleigh, was completed. We were all ready to begin the parade.

Upon arriving on the outskirts of Raleigh, the horse was stopped at a shopping center and Mr. Walter Carlson, band director, turned the horse and spread the word that we had reached Raleigh. He then said that there had been no trouble from the locals, and that many jokes were told in order to pass the time.

After the horse and half ride to the Capital was one of perfections and high spirits. Sense of humor and many jokes were told in order to pass the time.

The spot coverage of North Carolina's Inaugural Parade will be sent in.

Great Plans In Store
For Campus Organizations

By ERNEST L. JOHNSTON, JR.

The new year has many things awaiting completion over the previous year. Many new courses have been scheduled with modifications of the present courses. Many students are themselves to do much better than last year and the plans that weren’t carried out in ’60, are anticipated to be executed by the students.

Most organizations are already in the process of planning for this year. The Religious Emphasis Week. These plans will include discussions, panel discussions, and many other events. Not only are organizations planning to plan for the activities for this week, but many of them are getting organized for the year. At least until the end of June.

HELPING THE NEEDS

The A&T Student Alumni Association is planning to send clothed and needed goods to children in South America. By establishing a “Y” for girls to organize, the group worked very hard last year and the plans that weren’t carried out in ’60, are anticipated to be executed by the students.

CANDY DISCUSSED

With the purpose to link the home and college with religious life, the association is planning to have Jim Green, director of the Religious emphasis Week, but many of them are getting organized for the year. At least until the end of June.

CONGO DISCUSSED

The Women’s Athletics Association is organizing a panel discussion on “Congo Discussed.” The panel discussion will highlight the year’s activities. The group was accompanied by Dr. Foushee’s Cleaners. They are using Madame Hulbert, a philosophy professor from the neighboring college, as their leader. The group worked very hard last year and the plans that weren’t carried out in’60, are anticipated to be executed by the students.

A&T Gains Double Win
Over Shaw and Va. Union

The A&T Aggies go into the 1961 basketball season off with a bang. Thursday night in the Memorial Gym, A&T ran all over Shaw University, 93-39 in the Moore Gym. These victories not only gave a boost to the team but brought the home opener of the season. The Aggies made 12 of 15 free throws off the backboards and limited Shaw to 11 of 27 field goals.

For 77-73 Win

A&T Aggies who were averaging 61.6 points per game, appeared to have their best game of the season over the slightly favored Panthers burnouts for a 54-31 victory.

At Hands of "Golden Bulls"

Aggie Cagers Tumble From Unbeaten Ranks

A second half slump which saw A&T lose the ball numerous times on bad passes, fumbles and violations resulted in disaster as the Aggies were knocked from the unbeaten ranks in conference play.

The "Golden Bulls" of Johnson C. Smith won by a score of 86-81 in a game played in the Moore Gym.

The loss gave A&T a 5-1 conference record all pulled Smith's mark to 4-1.

A&T completely outclassed Smith in the first half, setting up its offensive plays. After five minutes of the second half the roof fell in as the Bulls scored 13 points to the Aggies' two.

Too many miscues caused A&T to lose the ball in clutch situations and kept them from catching up with the fired up Bulls. The Aggies were also lousy on the free-throw line as they scored only 7 of 19 charity tosses in the second half. By losing the ball so frequently in the second half, A&T attempted only 26 field goals as compared to 40 for Smith.

James Hester, who ranks third among the leading scorers in the CIAA, "was top scorer in the game with 21 points. Walter Holtschew, who was the key man in the Aggie offensive plays, scored 19 points to lead A&T in scoring. Holtschew scored hard driving layups with both hands and gave A&T a temporary cushion lead.

Herb Gray scored 16 points, 12 of them from the free throw line. Hugh Evans, playing the best game of his collegiate career popped seven field goals for 14 points.

The Bulls held the Aggies' top scorer, Hank Marshall, down to 11 points.

Gray snatched 22 rebounds off the boards while freshman Wylie Briggs had 19 rebounds.

It was A&T's first loss to J. C. Smith since 1954. Since that time the Aggies have won 13 straight games over the Bulls. It was also A&T's second loss in the Moore Gym in the last four years.
