A & T College Alumna Addresses Livingstone Student Organizations

Mrs. Lucille Piggott, an A&T College alumna, was guest speaker for the Pan-Hellenic Council at Livingstone College in Salisbury, Sunday, September 30.

The program, held annually at Livingstone, is sponsored cooperatively by the Greek-letter organizations for the purpose of informing the freshman class about aims, purposes, and programs of such organizations.

Mrs. Piggott, director of the Mid-Atlantic Region of the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Incorporated, and a member of two honor societies, reminded the audience that the first American society bearing a Greek-letter name was Phi Beta Kappa, a scholarship honor society.

Then referring to the social fraternities and sororities, she said "All of these organizations recognize, promote, and encourage high scholarship. They constantly focus attention on present-day problems as they adjust their programs to provide local, national, and international services."

Among their projects are Youth and Family Guidance Community Services, Guide Right Program, Volunteer Service, Achievement Week, Juvenile Delinquency Projects, Scholarship Foundations, Social Action, and Emphasis on Youth.

"A Greek-letter organization stresses a sense of responsibility to self, to others, to college, to country, and to society. It, therefore, becomes a beacon of the universality of mankind, extending its rays of hope, of help, and of happiness found in unselfish living," said the speaker.

Regarding another value to be gained through affiliation, she said that a fraternity or a sorority provides a basic human need—the universal bond of friendship. Furthermore, the fraternity system is responsible for a positive contribution to the primary function of the college. It, therefore, is under an obligation to encourage the most complete personal development of its members — intellectually, morally, and socially.

"Affiliation can give one a deep and abiding faith in a design for living the good, the noble, the creative, and the meaningful life," she continued.

She left the following challenge with the freshmen: "Go Greek! When you have made your choice, to that choice be true. From that day forth, wherever you go, whatever you do, that organization will live through you."

Mrs. Piggott was preceded by one representative from each of Livingstone's eight Greek-letter organizations. Each representative spoke for five minutes about his specific organization.

Homecoming Will Cover Four Days

The coronation of the new "Miss A&T," Rosebud Richardson of Wilmington, in ceremonies at Moore Gymnasium on Thursday evening, October 25, sets the stage for the four day homecoming celebration. The All-Student Homecoming dinner will follow in Murphy Hall.

The Celebration will mark the annual Homecoming observance to be held at A&T College October 25-28.

The program released by Mr. Jimmie I. Barber, dean of men and chairman of the homecoming committee lists other events this year. Main event of the observances is the football game between the A&T College Aggies and the Morgan State College Bears at Memorial Stadium at 1:30 P.M., Saturday, October 27.

The program for Friday, October 26(lists judging in the annual Art Poster Contest, a competition in art production for the best presentation on the homecoming theme, and that evening a social and a pep rally will be held in Moore Gymnasium.

The program on Saturday, the big day, opens with the All-Alumni Breakfast and alumni registration at Benbow Hall, beginning at 6:30 A.M. Host for the affair is the Gate City Chapter of the A&T College General Alumni Association.

A parade, to contain 60-odd floats and other units, will leave from the campus at 11 A.M. and wind its way to the stadium in preparation for the 1:30 P.M. football kickoff.

The Annual Homecoming ball, at the North Carolina National Guard Armory Saturday evening, will feature the music of the Buddy Johnson Orchestra, with Ella Johnson, vocalist.

The activities conclude with the annual Alumni Worship Service at Harrison Auditorium on Sunday, October 28, at 11 A.M. Dr. Earl H. McClenney, president of St. Paul's College in Lawrenceville, Va., and a 1930 graduate of A&T College, will deliver the message.

Reunions for the classes of 1922, 1932, 1942 and 1952 will be held during the observances. Special meeting and programs are being arranged for members of these classes.

Sterility Could Result From The Use Of Female Hormone To Treat Males

Prolonged treatment of males by certain hormones may result in sterility.

That is the opinion of a professor at A&T College who makes this statement in a scientific paper he has written to appear soon in VETERINARY MEDICINE, a national professional journal.

male rats over extended periods by the injection of this certain type of female hormones definitely injures the male spermatozoa, and probably its production facility, leading to sterility.

The same treatment, in larger dosages, is being prescribed to humans for correction in enlarged sexual accessory glands. Dr. Pati said, and it is possible that identical ill effects could occur.

He is now involved in additional study to determine if the same occurs in female rats when treated with exogenous male hormones.

Dr. Pati's principal interest is not concerned with human ailments and their treatment, but with lower animals, specifically with dairy cattle, and ways and means of improving and increasing milk production and extending the productivity of such animals.

This and other revelations are emerging from experiments being conducted as supporting studies to the main and original problem.

Other studies conducted by Dr. Pati, and reported in professional journals, include: "Reconstituted Buttermilk As A Diluent For Frozen Bull Semen Storage" and another on distemper in dogs.

DR. NITYANANDA PATI

The professor is Dr. Nityananda Pati, a native of India, and a graduate doctor of veterinary medicine from the University of Calcutta. Dr. Pati also holds the master of science degree from Texas A&M University and the Ph.D. degree from North Carolina State College. He has been professor of biology at A&T since 1959.

The paper entitled, "Effects of Exogenous Female Hormones in the Organs of Male Rats," reports findings on a study which has been conducted at the college for the past several months.

The experiments have been conducted on rats alone; and on the basis of his findings, Dr. Pati is convinced that the treatment of

Dean McLaughlin Is Main Speaker At Assembly

Mr. J. C. McLaughlin, a 1931 graduate of A. and T. and presently professor of rural sociology, was the speaker at last Tuesday's assembly.

Basing his address on the Biblical question from the Book of Exodus, "What is that in thine hand," Mr. McLaughlin told those present to start preparing now for the future.

"What will you be doing three or four years from now?", he asked. You will be the one who will have to answer that question. What you do then is dependent upon what you do now. Your years here will determine what it is and how you use it."

Mr. McLaughlin also told the audience that education does not come cheap. "Some Sacrifices have to be made", he said.

Listing the most important things in life as those which are unseen, Mr. McLaughlin presented some guidelines for a successful life. He suggested the following: (1) make a plan for life; (2) establish a purpose; (3) live positively; (4) develop good habits; and (5) believe in something.

In closing, the speaker queried, "Who are you? Where are you? Where are you going? How do you intend to get there? - What is that in your hand? The verdict is yours!"

Other persons appearing on the program were Rev. A. Knighton Stanley, Mr. S. C. Smith, Mr. J. M. Martena, and Rev. Cleo McCoy.

Dr. Frank A. Oliver of the State Department of Public Instruction was the speaker for yesterday's assembly. He spoke on the topic "Significant Issues from the Perspective of a Public Educator."

PLANS FOR CORONATION ARE ANNOUNCED

At a luncheon given recently, Mrs. Eula Vereen, director of Food Services, outlined plans for the Coronation Ball to be given in honor of Rosebud Richardson, "Miss A&T" and other campus queens.

Although plans have not been completed, the ball, the first of its kind at A&T College, promises to be an elaborate affair. It will be held in Charles Moore gymnasium October 25, 1962 at 7:00 P. M.

Rosebud, a senior Sociology major from Wilmington, North Carolina, will be crowned by Diane Bell "Miss. A. & T." 60-61. Miss Bell is presently doing graduate work at Howard University in Washington, D. C.

After the ball a dinner will be held in Murphy Hall for all members of the Aggie family.

STUDENT ATTENDS RETREAT

Bettye Price, a sophomore at A&T College, represented the United Southern Christian Fellowship Foundation at a planning Retreat at Camp New Hope in Laurinburg, October 6-7.

At the Retreat plans were made for a statewide conference for freshman and foreign students to be held at Camp New Hope November 17-18.

Bettye, a native of Madison, is a student counselor in Curtis Hall and a member of the mathematics club. She also represented the USCFF at an African Affairs Conference at Montreat, in late August. Others in attendance at this meeting were Ezell Blair, president of the Student Government, and Oscar Johnson, biology major. Both the Conference and Retreat were sponsored by the Presbyterian Church U. S.

The Literary Scene

The Novel And The Film

By GEORGE RALEIGH

When a highly respected novel is made into a motion picture, it is usually greeted with murmurs of "Hollywood glamorization," "box-office peddling," and commercialism, commercialism, and infinitum. This is generally true. But not always. Those who criticize so strongly too often do so without knowledge of the limits of the film in respect to the novel.

The novel can stop and explore the inner thoughts of the character. It can mediate and reflect. Certainly no film technique has yet been invented to compliment Joycean stream-of-consciousness. But if the film cannot go inside the mind of characters to show their makeup, cannot go into detailed explanation a la Theodore Drieser, it is capable of giving through commentary on their environment.

For instance in the play, "Streetcar Named Desire," all the action took place in one or two rooms, in small confined spaces. But in the film, the camera took us outside right into the seamy French quarters of New Orleans, enhancing our sense of realism, drama and conflict.

Recalled to mind here, which illustrates the gripe in point, is a novel by Hemingway, TO HAVE AND HAVE NOT, which was done twice by Hollywood, once with Humphrey Bogart as the protagonist, Harry Morgan, and again with John Garfield in the lead role. The first version was a good, deplorable example of "box office peddling."

The second attempt, however, while not following the exact pattern of the book, was an excellent example of what the picture industry could do with some well-placed effort. I think that the tone and mood of the picture would have possibly appeased even Hemingway, the old perfectionist himself. The direction, photography, and acting were full of the brooding sense of doom which effectively erupted into the orgy of violent death that was the book's trademark.

The camera can do what words on paper can never accomplish. The camera can bring to the viewer the visual impact of life in all its intensity, intimacy, brutality, and tenderness. One picture is still worth a thousand words. Witness films like "On The Waterfront," Elmer Gantry, "Look Back In Anger," "Two Women," "The Hustler," and the cinematic masterpiece, La Dolce Vita (The Sweet Life). Here is a film which probes the degradation of modern man. Here is a film which is stunning, a vivid mirror of our times. A film to parallel Eliot's "Waste-land." A film which in its artistic integrity led the editor of the Daily News to compare some of its scenes with the chiarascuro of Rembrandt. A film which won world-wide acclaim for its director, Fredrico Fellini.

These examples, however few, prove the untapped value of the film, a value that must not be neglected, misused, or denied, but cultivated and brought to its highest realization.

Success Without A Hero

BOOK REVIEW

By CECIL BROWN

THE THIN RED LINE, James Jones. Charles Scribner and Sons. $5.95.

James Jones, author of From Here To Eternity and Some Came Running, has written another war novel, The Thin Red Line. The novel tells the story of an American rifle company that landed on the shore of Guadalcanal and how the Japanese troops almost decimated them completely before "They learned that the enemy, like themselves, was killable; was defeatable."

Jones' new novel is interesting in a different way. He has written his novel completely minus of that almost essential ingredient which every good story must have: reader identification. There is no character in the story with which you can identify yourself. In fact, there is no real hero. Yet, this is an excellent novel. How is this possible?

Well, the catch lies in Jones' mastery of the material and the viewpoint from which he wrote. Jones' scenes are so sharp, clear and objective that they obviate your having to identify yourself with a lead character in order to be elated by the novel. And since there is no lead character, there seems to be no incentive to keep you turning the pages. But again, Jones makes up for this with his ability to create a verbal picture. (There is a good one every three pages.) Reading through the 495 pages is like flipping the pages of Look magazine with big glossy pictures of men killing men. Because of this, you can read the book again and again without being unimpressed. Death is always impressive.

Haskel Frakel, reviewer for Show magazine, has this to say about Jones and his novel: "Jones has come a long way as a writer since From Here To Eternity. The new talent that exploded in all directions in Eternity has now been harnessed, and Jones is in control of his material every inch of the way. Never once does he leave his rifle company or objective for any private philosophizing as he did in the stockade section of Eternity."

To put things in a capsule, James Jones has written a novel that will be read by many people. A writer is as good as his most recent story or as in this case, his most recent novel. Jones is a very good writer.

and graduate assistant to the Associate Chaplain, Yale University. He has been the recipient of a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship, Rockefeller Fellowship and Grant, and a research grant from the American Missionary Association.

On this campus, the Fellowship is planned as an integral part of the religious activities program. It seeks to formulate a program and ministry for students here which will bring them into meaningful contact with, and understanding of, the local churches and community. It does not replace the present program but rather complements it. It is the purpose of the full-time ministry of the Fellowship to supplement the present program of the religious activities and to work particularly in areas of campus Christian life which the present program does not include. The program is non-denominational.

In a recent speech to local ministers, Reverend Stanley outlined the general structure of the program. This includes: (1) the charitable outreach of the Christian community; (2) the attempt to modify social structure; (3) the symbolic witness of Christian sigmas in society; (4) the attempt to engage the Christian faith in dialogue with the world; and (5) the gathering of saints and sinners for common worship, mutual edification and strength, and the sharing of a common life.

Reverend Stanley also told the ministers, "You, A&T, and I are indeed pioneers in this new program and ministry. Our task is crucial; our responsibility is pivotal. A&T College and the Greensboro community are the first situations in America to accept the proposals and program of the United Southern Christian Fellowship whose bold purpose is to establish and to support fulltime, nondenominational ministries for students in all the larger pre-dominantly Negro Colleges and universities.

International Relations Club Hears Two Guest Speakers

Various campus organizations are electing officers and launching programs for this school year.

INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS' ASSOCIATION

Two guest speakers were heard by members of the International Students Association when it met Sunday.

Mrs. Jones of the Greensboro Y.W.C.A. spoke of the Y's interest in seeing that each foreign student be attached to a family in Greensboro. This she said would afford the students an opportunity to know Americans much better.

She also said that the Y.W.C.A.'s annual international dinner will be open to all the students who can afford to attend.

Reverend A. Knighton Stanley, director of the United Southern Christian Fellowship Foundation, pledged his service to the students and explained to the students the aims of the organization he heads.

Also present at the meeting was Miss Geneva J. Holmes, International Students' adviser.

SENIOR CLASS

The Senior Class has fully begun its activities for the school year. The initial project of the class is participation in the Homecoming activities.

To propel the Senior Class through a prosperous 1962-63 school year are George Little, president; James Garrett, vice president; Lorraine Thomas recording secretary; Glenda Mills, corresponding secretary; and Lewis Bell, treasurer. Sandra Edwards is Miss Senior.

The cooperation of every member of the class is requested so that the seniors can make this, their final year at A&T., a most enjoyable one, both scholastically and socially.

AGRICULTURAL ASSOCIATION
Earnest Simmons, a senior from Roanoke Rapids, was elected president of the Agricultural Association at its initial meeting.

Other officers elected were Moses Kamara, West Africa, vice president; Jacqueline Ruffin, Windsor, secretary; Isabella Steward, Murfreesboro, assistant secretary; Herman Burnette, Mebane, treasurer; and Patricia Lawson, Blairs, Va., reporter.

At this meeting, a fund-raising campaign and a membership campaign were launched. In addition, the group agreed to enter a float in the homecoming parade.

EXPLORERS CLUB

Shirley T. Ricks, a junior from Wilson, is president of the Explorers Club which is advised by Mrs. Elizabeth D. Clark, instructor of biology.

Assisting Shirley will be Claude Barrant, Jamaica, W. I., vice president; Carolyn James, Newton, secretary; Jo-Ann Fontaine, assistant secretary; Israel Hill, Windsor, treasurer; and Moses Kamara, West Africa, reporter.

Among matters discussed were ways of recruiting new members, the club's annual picnic, and recreational sites. Future plans include guest speakers.

The club welcomes all students who are interested in plant life.

NEW RESIDENCE HALL HAS A GOOD START

The two-hundred women in the New Residence Hall elected eighteen of their peers as section leaders and as representatives to the A&T Women's Council.

The representatives are as follows: Annie Anderson, Brenda Blackwell, Natalie Chew, Louella Corpening, Sylvia Dean, Ruth Gavin, Janet Goodson, Luetta Heckstall, Elaine Holt, Carolyn James, Martha Love, Agnes McCoy, Vir-

J., chairman of the Department of Journalism, Detroit University; Mrs. Kathleen Leabo, editor, Scholastic Editor; Professor William A. Mindak, associate professor of Journalism, University of Minnesota; and Professor Gary Bartness, University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee.

OTHER EVENTS

Other events scheduled to take place during the three days include a banquet at the Central Office Building of the Ford Motor Company at Dearborn, Michigan, and an Automobile Show.

Last year, the convention was held in Miami Beach, Florida, at the Hotel Fontainebleau where the REGISTER was represented by five delegates.

Can education bring happiness?

This is a question that in recent years has caused much lively debate and several hundred stabbings among American college professors. Some contend that if a student's intellect is sufficiently aroused, happiness will automatically follow. Others say that to concentrate on the intellect and ignore the rest of the personality can only lead to misery.

I myself favor the second view, and I offer in evidence the well-known case of Agathe Fusco.

Agathe, a forestry major, never got anything less than a straight "A", was awarded her B.T. (Bachelor of Trees) in only two years, her M.S.B. (Master of Sap and Bark) in only three, and her D.B.C. (Doctor of Blight and Cutworms) in only four.

Academic glory was hers. Her intellect was the envy of every intellect fan on campus. But was she happy? The answer, alas, was no. Agathe—she knew not why—was miserable, in fact, that one day while walking across campus, she was suddenly so overcome with melancholy that she flung herself, weeping, upon the statue of the Founder.

By and by a liberal arts major named R. Twinkle Plenty came by with his yoyo. He noted Agathe's condition. "How come you're so unhappy, hey?" said R. Twinkle.

"Suppose you tell me, you dumb old liberal arts major," replied Agathe peevishly.

"All right, I will," said R. Twinkle. "You are unhappy for two reasons. First, because you have been so busy stuffing your intellect that you have gone and starved your psyche. I've got nothing against learning, mind you, but a person oughtn't to neglect the pleasant, gentle amenities of life—the fun things. Have you, for instance, ever been to a dance?"

Agathe shook her head. "Have you ever watched a sunset? Written a poem? Smoked a Marlboro Cigarette?" Agathe shook her head.

"Well, we'll fix that right now!" said R. Twinkle and gave her a Marlboro and struck a match. She puffed, and then for the first time in twelve or fifteen years, she smiled. "Wow!" she cried. "Marlboros are a fun thing! What flavor! What filter! What pack or box! What a lot to like! From now on I will smoke Marlboros, and never have another unhappy day!"

"Hold!" said R. Twinkle. "Marlboros alone will not solve your problem—only half of it. Remember I said there were two things making you unhappy?" "Oh, yeah," said Agathe. "What's the other one?" "How long have you had that bear trap on your foot?" said R. Twinkle.

"I stepped on it during a field trip in my freshman year," said Agathe. "I keep meaning to have it taken off." "Allow me," said R. Twinkle and removed it.

"Land sakes, what a relief!" said Agathe, now totally happy, and took R. Twinkle's hand and led him to a Marlboro vendor's and then to a justice of the peace.

Today Agathe is a perfectly fulfilled woman, both intellectually and personalitywise. She lives in a darling split-level house with R. Twinkle and their 17 children, and she still keeps busy in the forestry game. Only last month, in fact, she became Consultant on Sawdust to the American Butchers Guild, she was named an Honorary Sequoia by the park commissioner of Las Vegas, and she published a best-selling book called I was a Slippery Elm for the FBI.

KAMPUS BEAT

By TOCAG

LEWIE' DELIGHT: The other day a group of students were discussing the hard time they were having understanding a particular course. . . . During the course of their conversation a young man who was an outsider broke in and asked them if they studied their notes taken in class. . . . One of the young men in the group turned suddenly, and with raised eyebrows asked. . . . Man, What notes? . . . That man forbids us to copy anything he writes or says.

BROKEN LAWS: Now, I wonder where I could have been when they passed this law? I mean the one requiring only one movie on Saturday nights when there is a dance on campus. . . . Oh, I remember now. . . . It was while I was away at congress debating the issue of whether all students could get into the gym to dance or into the auditorium at one time.

THINGS I REMEMBER: When noise in the dormitories sounded like one great big jam session. . . . When the Saturday night movies could not be heard. . . . When continental suits and slacks were in style. . . . When there was too much ROTC. . . . When classes did not have over one-hundred students. . . . When the televisions in the dormitories did not work.

THINGS WE COULD USE: A new gymnasium. . . a little more school spirit. . . an intellectual atmosphere on campus. . . a debating team. . . an effective organization dedicated to interesting A&T's students in politics. . . a Student Union building. . . participation of A&T students in more national collegiate activities. . . a round of applause for the persons responsible for the new televisions and ping pong tables in the dormitories.

LINDSAY AND LAUREL STREETS: The canteen really jumps these days. At one time the people hanging on the rails were there just to be there; but now, sitting on the rail has become a must. . . . It serves as a place to wait for an opportunity to get into the canteen and also a place to eat what one has bought. . . . You see the canteen is too small. . . . The 4-way stoplight at the corner seems to have been a mistake. . . . It appears that nobody knows who is supposed to go when four cars arrive at the same time.

will have a total of fifty thousand dollars. This sum would take care of our student needs and would enable us to launch an appeal on a broader basis.

Permit me to relate a few details concerning Pius XII College. This College is the only private institution of learning on the African continent. It alone is totally free from government regulation. It is the only college in the High Commission Territories of Basutoland, Swaziland and Bechuanaland. Moreover, in all of southern Africa here alone African students may obtain an education untainted by racialistic ideologies.

The College has grown slowly but steadily since its founding in 1945. However, because of conditions in South Africa the original funds on which the College relied are no longer available. Presently, we have 175 students pursuing either the Arts or Sciences.

Although under Catholic auspices we are not Catholic in any narrow sense. From thirty to fifty per cent of our students are Protestant, Hindu and Moslem. We have no religion courses as such but rely entirely upon example and scholarship for the building up of an African intellectual class. The College staff is composed of nationals from Holland, Ireland, the United Kingdom, South Africa, Canada and the United States. About half of the lecturers are from America and Canada. They represent a variety of religious denominations. Our students come from South Africa, the High Commission Territories, Northern and Southern Rhodesia, Nyasaland, South West Africa, and occasionally Kenya and Uganda. The first Chief Minister of Uganda, Mr. Benedict Kiwanuka, is a graduate of this College.

This College was erected in Basutoland in order to escape the fate which befell African education in South Africa. As you are probably aware, tribal colleges have been set up in African populace. This past year we received over 700 applications from Africans in South Africa. Although completely surrounded by South Africa, Basutoland is under the protection of Great Britain and enjoys democracy.

For every student accepted here, the College is forced to raise a five hundred dollar subsidy. Room, board, and tuition for one year cost each student three hundred dollars — a sum far below actual costs. But even this relatively small sum cannot be paid by the ordinary African. The average working head of family in South Africa earns only twenty-one dollars a month. Much of this human misery is caused by job reservation. It is because of this situation that we must find outside sources of help.

We hope that your student body will consider the grave peril facing Africa in the modern world. Whether on the grounds of religious humanitarianism or hope for a sound political world order, we believe that our students deserve to be helped. Student help will in turn enable the College to survive. Should this light of learning be extinguished the world may well suffer the consequences in more expensive ways. We earnestly hope that your student body will consider a donation of twenty dollars a worthwhile project. Even if you can contribute only a fraction of the amount your moral support will be keenly appreciated. Additional funds would obviously be most welcome. All gifts received will be immediately acknowledged and we would be happy to maintain personal contact between our students and yours.

We are pleased to say that the Norwegian University student body has recently raised the sum of six thousand three hundred dollars. With this sum we have been able to provide for the needs of twenty-seven students.

With every best wish, I remain,

Sincerely,
Richard P. Stevens, Ph.D.
Secretary, Scholarship Committee

The Council also voted to send a telegram to James Meredith who recently won admission to the University of Mississippi. Meredith, in one of the most chaotic dramas of our time, was recently admitted to "Ole Miss" under guard of several thousand military and federal marshalls.

Text of the telegram had not been completed at this printing; but the President of the Student Government, Ezell Blair, stated it would express the sympathy of the students of A&T College with his dramatic achievement and would also express the student's support of his endeavor at Ole Miss.

Aggies Rack Up 4th Straight Win To Remain Undefeated In CIAA

The A&T Aggies continued their undefeated streak October 13 when they beat Maryland State 20-8, in Princess Ann, Maryland. The victory was the third in as many CIAA contests, and fourth overall in college play.

The first quarter was a defensive battle between the two great teams. A&T broke the game wide open in the second period when quarterback Willie Ferguson and scampered 21 yards for a TD. This was the climax of a 82 yard drive in which the fans saw the Aggie quarterback mix his air and ground attack which proved very effective in the drive. The extra point was good. Wiley Harris, center for the Aggies, recovered a fumble four minutes later on the 44 yard line of Maryland. Quarterback Mitchell moved the ball for the first down on State's 31 yard line. He then pitched a pass to Ronald Francis in the end zone for the second Aggie touchdown. Alvin Maloney kicked for the extra point. The first half ended with the score North Carolina A&T 14, Maryland State 0.

State recovered an Aggie fumble at the A&T 45 yard line. They moved to the 2 yard line where, with a fourth down and 1 yard to go, Bill Johnson slipped over his right end for State's lone touchdown. Tom Wilson ran off tackle for the extra point.

Matthews intercepted a pass thrown by State's Clyde Thompson and with a bit of razzle-dazzle running carried for 54 yards and the Aggies' final TD. The extra point was unsuccessful. The score was

A&T 20, Maryland State 8. The kicking of Westmoreland and the sharp defensive play of the Aggies proved too much for the State offense. The team intercepted four key passes to halt threats by Maryland State.
