Negro History Week

The month of February is celebrated with a week of activities dedicated to the history of African Americans. This celebration is important because it commemorates the contributions and struggles of African Americans throughout American history. The history of the Negro in America is rich and varied, encompassing the experiences of millions of people who have faced and overcome numerous challenges.

Fashions

FASHION DYE

As one walks around campus and looks out of the dormitory windows on beautiful days, one can almost see the colors of fashion. This year, fall colors range from orange to subtle reds, and there is a definite slant toward the more casual and comfortable styles.

SHIRTY SKIRT

The shorty skirt brings back memories of the 1950s. This style is characterized by its length, which falls above the knee, and it is often paired with a matching blouse or sweater. However, it is important to remember that personal comfort and style should always come first.

DRESS

Try the flash-of-cabio dress. It is textured blended, crepe de chine, with a full skirt and beautiful neckline. The dress is very flattering and suitable for both day and evening wear.

MAKE-UP

It is important to maintain a good skin care routine, and this is especially true for those who are not yet legally able to drink. A good skin care routine includes:

1. Cleansing
2. Toning
3. Moisturizing

These steps are essential for maintaining healthy skin and can help to prevent breakouts and other skin issues.

Jazz

Jazz is a beloved music genre that has been around for nearly a century. It has its roots in African American music and has evolved into a diverse and complex art form. Jazz is characterized by its improvisational nature and its ability to express a wide range of emotions.

Competition Now Open For Travel

The National Berrilla Corporation is offering a Travel Competition to celebrate Negro History Week. There will be a trip for two to Africa, sponsored by the Travel and Catering Service "EARN and EAT," and an additional prize for the winner of "African Heritage."

The competition is open to all students and will be judged by a panel of experts. The deadline for entries is February 28, 1963.

OUR MAKE-UP

BY ELKA JONES

There's much more to make-up than just painting the eyes. Make-up is a tool that can accent or alter your features, helping you look your best. Here are some tips to help you get the most out of your make-up:

1. Remember that the function of make-up is NOT to give us a mask - like a clown's. The purpose of make-up is to accent our best features and help us look our best.

2. When you're making up, the best job we've ever done is to look natural. This means that you have to go easy on make-up; you have to play it pretty, perhaps more than usual.

3. Never, never, never if we're shakily about how we put it on, and never, never, never let it disappear. There is no advantage in appearing make-up, in other words, can be heavy, but should never look heavy. The trick is to appear soft, to use your brushes, and to use them with a light touch.

4. It is a question that the member of this club or an artist painting what hopes will be his masterpiece. This is a question that we all must answer in common with him. We, too, need a healthy skin. When we go into the right points, the most appropriate material, and the best opportunity of making our faces.

5. We can't break the code. Rule No. 1 is for evening occasions under artificial lights. Not only must the make-up be made under such lighting, but the occasion must be in place for the face of using the extras that add that effect.

6. Make-up, in other words, can be heavy, but should never look heavy. The trick is to appear soft, to use your brushes, and to use them with a light touch.

College

The resources which thereby become available are as follows: Coleman was awarded a degree in music with a concentrating in jazz studies. He has a strong background in instrumental and vocal music, and his work has been featured in numerous performances and recordings.

There is a strong tradition of jazz education at Howard University, and Coleman has been a significant influence in the development of the genre. His work has been recognized with numerous awards and honors, and he has been instrumental in shaping the direction of jazz as an art form.

British Scientist Applauds Science Education in U.S.

The American science education program is one of the best in the world, a British scientist said in a recent address to American college students. He added that American science education is stronger than its critics think, supporting the view that the United States is ahead of Europe, and is getting stronger all the time.

This opinion is that of a British scientist who, along with his colleagues, has been strengthening the American science education program by training students in the latest developments in chemistry.

The scientist, a chemistry professor at Cambridge University, noted that American students have a real advantage over their European counterparts in the sciences. He said that American students are better prepared for graduate work, and are more likely to go on to do research. He also noted that American universities have a more diverse range of courses, and that students have more opportunities to specialize in their field.

The scientist concluded by saying that he was impressed by the dedication and hard work of American students, and that he believed that American science education would continue to improve in the future.

The Aggies are on the trail of the CIAA championship and will be facing their major challenge this week as they start their last road trip. They'll play host to rated Norfolk State and Winston-Salem Teachers in what could be a sudden death for the loser as far as the championship is concerned.

Next week the Aggies will journey to the road to play three very important games. The first of the three will be another encounter with the high-spirited team at Norfolk State. Running out the road trip and the season will be Hampton Institute and the pesky team at Elizabeth City Teachers.

The local team has registered victories in their remaining three games to capture the championship and a top berth in the upcoming CIAA Tournament.

High jumping James Jackson led the Aggies to a powerful 86-47 victory over the Falcons of Saint Augustine's in a recent game played in the Charles Moore Gymnasium, last weekend.

The home team called on its bench early in the game as Saunders, freshman guard, replaced McHatton and Skinner replaced Heath. The bench became the boards as the Aggies racked up 24 rebounds as compared to 40 for the visitors. Time after time, the team left the crowded gym of nearly 4,000 fans gasping as it came up with sensational plays.

The visitors jumped off to an early lead as Bolton scored a free throw and a field goal for the early lead; however, Jackson came back with a 10 footer to bring the team within one point of the lead; early in the game as Saint Augustine's took the lead on a dumping field goal by Jackson. It was there that Aggie scoring attack with 29 points.

As the teams took the floor in the first half, Saunders scored three straight field goals to give the Aggies their biggest lead of the night. At the half, the Aggies led the visitors 48-34. Ewing and Mulcare tallied the points for the home court early in the game as it came up with sensational plays.

The squad may have a bit of trouble as they wing their way to Tobacco Coastline tour and probably the toughest team at Maryland State February 15. On their last venture into the northern states, the Trojans got the better of the Aggies.

The local team has registered victories in their remaining games in order to win the championship. Virginia State has two more contests for the season. One of these is rated as a tossup between the two teams involved.

If the Aggies can overcome the "Jinx" that seem to prevail when playing the over-rated Rams and their home court over the Coastline visitors.

As of now the Aggies have a 1-3 record. They need to win all of their remaining games in order to win the championship. Virginia State has two more contests for the season. One of these is rated as a tossup between the two teams involved.

North Carolina upset the well-respected team from Winston-Salem in a recent CIAA contest by 6 points. While those scores were in the making, Virginia Union surprised the Norfolk State team on their home court by giving them only their second defeat in the conference this season. The Norfolk State squad came down Tobacco Coastline to win 80-66.
