Omegas Announce New Program; Pan Questions Move's Legality

A fraternity at A&T College has announced that it is initiating a new pledge program. The Pan Hellenic Council has replied that such a move is illegal.

In a recent article, Earl McClenney, Jr., president of the local chapter of Omega Psi Phi, announced that his organization had initiated a six weeks' pledge pro-

The announcement had come at a smoker given for freshman males. In announcing the move, McClenney is quoted as saying, "We have finally got the courage to put an end forever to these silly requirements on initiates and pledgees over an extended period." "He added that the "foolishness" had been a waste of time for the pledgees as well as the members of the organization.

When the program came up for discussion at the last Pan Hellenic Council meeting, opponents of the move pointed out that under present constitutional stipulations the move is illegal. The Council presently requires that individuals pledge for at least two full quarters and complete three quarters of college work before they may be initiated into Greek letter social organizations.

A statement subsequently released by the Pan Hellenic Council states. "The recently published article by The Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, stating that its period of pledging is for a 6-8 week interval is presently ineffective on the campus of the Agricultural and Technical College. The present two-quarter pledging period holds for all prospective Greeks on this campus."

When questioned concerning the program, McClenney replied that because of the secret nature of his organization, he was not at liberty to disclose details of its pledging

He added, however, that during the period the pledgees will be assigned projects which will contribute to their continued cultural and academic development as opposed to their previous approach. All other regulations required by the college, the fraternity, and the local Pan Hellenic Council will be strictly adhered to, the Omega head indicated.

McClenney further indicated that the administration had already approved his program and would in the near future issue a directive which will alter the present Pan Hellenic requirements for pledgees. Other members of the Pan Hellenic Council expressed an ignorance of the administrative move; and, as of yet, it has not been confirmed.

The Omega program was authored by a committee composed of Thomas Brown, chairman; James Kearney, Tarboro; James Mitchell, Durham; and William Wardlaw, Jr., New York City.

Plans For Forum Are Formulated By Two Groups

Plans for a psycho-socio forum are being formulated by A&T College and Bennett instructors.

The program will include group and advisory participants from both colleges. Membership will be extended to juniors and seniors majoring in sociology and psychology with at least a 2.5 average. The organization is interested only in students who are willing to read and to do qualitative thinking.

and to do qualitative thinking.

The aims of the psycho-socio forum are (1) to incite intellectual correspondence between A&T students and Bennett students, (2) to encourage the student who is emphatically interested in learning, and (3) to discuss contemporary psycho-sociological problems of the individual and society.

College Record Reveals Slight Enrollment Drop

A report released this week by the Office of Admission reveals that the college's enrollment has dropped to a total of 2890.

The drop represents a decrease of 115 from the fall quarter total of 3005. The biggest losses apparently came from the freshman class and the Graduate School.

The fall quarter report listed 895 freshmen, 576 males and 319 women, and 39 advanced freshmen. Forty-five are listed as new fresh-

The decrease in the Graduate School represented a loss of three full-time students and 59 part-time students. The fall quarter report carried 29 full-time graduate students and 190 part-time for a total of 219, while the latest report lists 26 full-time and 131 part-time students or a total of 157.

Enrollments in the other classes are on the increase. There are 687 sophomores as compared with 670 in the fall. The senior class also experienced a sizable jump from 457 to 474, while the junior class jumped from 590 to 597.

The percentage of state students took a slight decline from an even 80 per cent to 79.3 percent. Out-of-state students now compose 20.7 percent of the total enrollment compared with an even 20 percent last quarter. There are 2290 state students and 600 out-of-state students compared with last quarter's totals of 2403 and 602.

By schools the School of Engineering suffered the greatest loss. Enrollment in that school is down from 1055 to 981. Enrollment in the Schodol of Agriculture dropped from 645 to 626; Education and General Studies, 1060 to 1042; Nursing, 95 to 94; and Technical Institute 150 to 147. Special or partitime students also dropped from 135 to 95.

The decline in enrollment also had a slight effect on the malefemale ratio. Forty-one fewer undergraduate males enrolled for the winter quarter while only 12 fewer

Lane Addresses Male Students At Men's Week

Male students at the college were told last week they must pass a "placement test in responsible citizenship."

Speaking was Austin D. Lane, a 1957 graduate of the college, who was delivering the address at the banquet climaxing the annual Men's Week observance.

Lane, who is presently educational director of the senior residence hall at Howard University, told the more than 500 male students and their guests that they must be aware of and confront the realities of life.

He went on to say that they must recognize opportunities to perform services. He added, "The human being is in a dilemma and you must create obligations when none exist."

"To be different," he continued, man must be responsible. He must be courageous enough to divorce himself from the will of the group. Many have been brainwashed because of the way we relate to the group. In too many cases the will of the group prevails rather than the will of the individual."

Lane concluded by advising those present to reassess their values in the light of the circumstances and to be aware of responsibilities and perogatives and exercise them.

The banquet, which was one of the highlights of the weeklong observance, also served as the occasion for the presentation of awards

Discussions To Headline Schedule Of Activities For Language Arts Week

Discussions, finals of a speaking centest, a lecture, and a play are highlights of the annual Language Arts Week, February 17-21 at A&T College.

The week's program gets underway with a discussion of Moliere by Miss Glenda Mills. A member of the French Department, Miss Mills is a recent graduate of this institution and is a member of Lambda Iota Tau, a literary honor society which is sponsoring the discussion.

A. A. A. Program Seeks Persons For Positions

By IDELLA BOONE

The Afro - Anglo - American Program, a joint university effort to prepare teachers for educational services in Africa, is seeking candidates of unusual ability aptitude, and motivation who would prove to be excellent teachers in African secondary schools or teacher-training colleges.

Applications from well-qualified graduating seniors, or from those with advanced degrees, will receive careful consideration for selection in the program.

The need in Africa for highly competent supervisors, administrators, and teachers in secondary schools and training colleges is growing rapidly. A number of Government - supported programs designed to help meet that need have mounted in recent years; however, the A.-A.-A. Joint Program possesses certain unique characteristics, notably the provision of first-hand access to English education — a direct model for education in most English-speaking countries of Africa.

Special seminars and individual tutorial guidance are an integral part of the training program. This training is offered by Teachers Colleges, Columbia University, and the University of London Institute of Education for the 1964-65 academic year.

For further information, one may see Mr. W. I. Morris, director of placement, who is located in Dudley Building.

The discussion is scheduled for 7:30 P.M. in the Taylor Art Gallery. Mrs. E. McKinney Johnson is adviser of the sponsoring organization.

Mrs. Pearl Bradley will present the finalists in the annual public speaking contest at the next program. Scheduled for February 18, the program will start at 9:00 A.M. in Harrison Auditorium.

The theme for this year's contest is "The Negro's Drive for Civil Rights: Past, Present, and Future."

A panel dicussion of William Faulkner's INTRUDER IN THE DUST is scheduled for the same day at 7:30 P.M. in Bluford Library Lounge. The discussion is sponsored by the Fortnightly Club. Miss Jean Bright and Mr. Jimmie Williams are advisers.

"The Negro Author and Racial Themes" will be the topic discussed by Stylus at another program scheduled for February 19 at 6:30 in Taylor Art Gallery. Miss Dorothy Eller and Miss Maurguerite Porter are advisers.

A lecture will be presented by Mr. Roger Landrum following the discussion. Mr. Landrum is former instructor of English and African Literature at the University of Nigeria.

The week will be concluded with a production of BETWEEN TWO THIEVES by the Harrison Players. Curtain time is set for 8:00 P.M. February 20-21. Mrs. Sandra Motz is director.

The Language Arts Week is sponsored by the Department of English. Mrs. Portia Crawford, a member of the department, is co-ordinator of the week.

Book Authored By Dr. Stroud Receives Favorable Comments

A new book, authored by an A&T College professor, has been released by the publishers. IN QUEST OF FREEDOM by

IN QUEST OF FREEDOM by Dr. Virgil Stroud, professor of government, has been released by the Royal Publishing Company of Dallas, Texas.

The book is a study of the sit-ins and freedom rides of recent years, an account of the movement with an assessment of their accomplishments, written in Greensboro, where, on the A&T College campus, the recent movements had their inception.

In reviewing the book, Dr. Darwin Turner, chairman of the A&T Department of English writes, "We twentieth century Americans live in an unusual time. Rarely has any generation so frequently experienced events which immediately signal their historical importance. Yet, stunned by the cyclonic changes, most of us merely struggle to survive. We leave to later generations the task of gathering the facts of our existence and evaluating our activities."

Dr. Turner further stated that Professor Stroud has examined some of the judicial and legislative decisions related to civil rights. He has set forth the reactions of newspaper editors in the South, of participants in the sit-ins and "freedom rides," and of southern legislators. Finally he has suggested the steps which must be taken to accelerate "profound and lasting change in race relations in the South."

Dr. Turner concludes that perhaps Dr. Stroud's most significance contribution is his compilation of contemporary editorial reactions during the tulmultus moments of 1960. Future historians will depend upon such records preserved for the attention and evaluation of subsequent generations.

Another critic described the production by saying, "Great restraint and objectivity are attained in evaluating the protest movements against the backdrop of the Negro's fight for first-class citizenship. Throughout the book is the theme that Negro Americans are also American citizens, who seek not special privileges, but adherence to the same constitutional guarantees in their behalf."

The author is a graduate of A&T College with highest honors, and holds the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from New York University. He has held his present position at the college since 1954.

Have you had to remove the top from your bottle of milk before leaving the lunch line in Brown or Murphy Hall? If you've eaten in either of the two dining halls on campus within the last week, the chances are that you have.

No doubt you were at first puzzled by the practice; or, if you are like some people, you were a bit annoyed. Perhaps you even refused to comply until you had received a full explanation.

If you did receive an explanation, it probably went something like this: "Students have been taking too many bottles from the dining halls, and the move is intended to help relieve the problem.

The move then is designed to help relieve a situation which has plaqued the dining halls for years; the removal of property by students for personal use. The loss of silverware in the last copule of years has been even more serious.

The logic behind the dining nall's most recent attempt to curtail sucn practices is that any one would hestitate to transmit an opened bottle of milk in his pocket or purse; thus, the flow of bottles would be cut off.

Adequate explanation and logic? Perhaps. At any rate, it emphasizes the problem and brings into focus the question of just who is responsible for some of our many complaints.

Students readily complain of deficiencies on behalf of the dining hall management. They complain that the food is of poor quality. They complain that they have to eat ice cream with forks or that they sometimes have to wait and wait for silver to eat at all.

Some of our complaints are justifiable; others are not. How can we complain of insufficient equipment in the dining halls when a great amount of the missing equipment may be found in our dormitories? That 37 crates of milk bottles were removed in one weekend illustrates the seriousness of the problem. At five cents a bottle such a loss quickly adds up to many dollars. No wonder we cannot have milk at each meal. Even if it were available, there would not be enough bottles.

The milk bottle situation then brings into question just who is responsible for our complaints. Can the dining hall management and administration continually supply and resupply silver and bottles which are taken from the dining halls never to be returned until rooms are searched and canvassed.?

The obvious answer is no. This is one instance in which students bear the responsibility. The bad part of the whole deal is that those not responsibile must suffer along with those who commit the offenses. Obviously thre are students who have never removed a milk bottle or taken silver, yet these must also run the risk of spilling their milk from their tray, eating their ice cream with a fork, or having to wait for enough silver to be washed.

The policy of having tops removed from milk bottle may or may not solve the problem being considered. It should, however, stir the conscience of the offenders to a degree which causes them to refrain from removing such property and to return that which they have already taken.

A Man's World

Is A&T College slowly but surely losing its distinction of being a man's world? Most available evidence tends to indicate a trend in that direction.

The recent report on enrollment from the Office of Admissions is the last bit of evidence to be added. Although the report made no mention of the ratio of men to women enrolled at the college, it did divide the total into sub-totals by

The report listed 1775 undergraduate males and 958 undergraduate females. That still seems like a wide range; in fact, it is almost two to one. But, if one considers that there has been a slight but steady decrease in the last couple of years, the figure begins to shrink a little.

Even in the course of one quarter it decreased .02, Not a large decrease, but start adding those up and see how long it will tak.

There are of course other indications. Women have more than their share on the honor rolls. (unfortunately on the failing lists too), and more and more of them in other leadership roles.

While the candidacy of Senator Margaret Chase Smith for the Presidency might amuse some, A&T males might look at it as writing on the the wall. At the present rate, the time won't be long before a women will again be president of the Student Council, editor of the REGISTER, and editor of the

Perhaps the only segment which can breathe safely is the football team. And who knows? Perhaps even it might have to worry.

Student Group Has Session With A. A. Organizer

By CECIL BROWN

Last month over 150 students packed Hodgin auditorium to hear an ex-drunk talk about himself and alcoholism.

This man spent twenty years drunk, consuming over three quarts of liquor a day. As a result, he ran his friends away, lost a fortune, and became disgusted with himself. His last drunk lasted for five weeks, of which ten days he didn't eat. He ran his wife out of the house, locked the doors, and clapped his hands jubilantly: he a crate of liquor in the basement. For weeks he wouldn't let anyone in the house. And he drank and drank and drank. It's amazing that his drinking wasn't fatal. "I owe my life to God," this man says. His name is Robert Hall, organizer of A. A. institutions across the country.

The students loved him, not so much as a speaker, but as a personality. The one thing that everybody remembers about this man is his sense of humor. No one understands a drunk, he told us, like another drunk. We have to help each other. And he laughed.

"Okay fire the questions to me," he said. A student raised his hand.

Campus Pulse

As a college family, we need to give all of the encouragement that we can to our campus leadership and to embark upon those pro-grams which will identify new leadership and help it to emerge. The crusade upon which our people are now embarked will require a steady flow of intelligent, honest and creative leaders.

May I urge you, therefore, to give support to the programs offered to you during this Men's Week. A large part of your education will be at that point where you bring classroom studies, library research and collateral reading to bear upon a live issue, a new idea. We must be brought into confrontation with the current movements in history and the crises facing mankind.

Let us remember that our experience in college is a kind of "dress rehearsal" for more responsible work in the days of adulthood lying immediately ahead. If we take lightly these opportunities, we will have to spend time later in trial and error experiences learning things that we should have learned during our college days. If we take full advantage of these opportunities, we will be able to start our careers with decided advantages and with more adequate preparation for effective service.

Congratulations to the committee and best wishes for a successful

Coed Defends Food

Editor of The REGISTER:

For years there have been, and still are, complaints about the food in our cafeterias. It stands to reason that due to the great quanti-ties of food to be prepared for the students on campus, it should not be expected to be seasoned as well as the food in our homes. There are times when I too complain. Even though I keep in mind the most logical explanation that could have brought about the complaints, they still occur.

I think sometimes that the students who complain most are the ones who are not used to various types of foods. to know the differ-

My family is known for food and good cooks. Therefore, I have al-ways been exposed to different foods in different ways. Though maybe not the best cut of meat or such has been provided, it has always been well prepared. This is one reason I believe that if stu-dents knew foods well enough and considered the quantity to be pre-pared, there would not be as many complaints as there are.

It may be good to give a section to our dietitians with some com-pliments in exchange for the many sneers and smears heard around campus for years

Mr. Hall: (humorously) No one knows. A. A. doesn't. Doctors, psychologists haven't been able to decide. Only an alcoholic knows what an alcoholic is, and he's not able to tell anyone; he can't ex-press it. decision yourself. Question: Can an A. A. member ever take a drink again, just a little one?

Mr. Hall (smiling) Honey, I wish they could! No, (seriously) once an alcoholic always an alcoholic. In A. A. we have a slogan that goes, "One drink's too many, and five thousand are not enough Question: Does A. A. have a special method or technique in helping its members? Mr. Hall: Yes, group therapy. The same technique used by psychologist - only the psychologist can't get to the seat of a man's problem, as effective as another group can.

Question: Are there any special

Mr. Hall: No. The only requirement that a person needs is the desire to stop drinking.

At that point the eleven o'clock bell sounded for classes, but students did not finch. They were unusually interested. The symposium continued until twelve, with a steady flow of enthusiastic questions.

Over 250 students attended this meeting. The audience included students from Bennett College. Dr. Richard Fields of the psychology department at Bennett brought his personality class. Cokes were served. And of course, more questions.

Question: Can a dope addict find refuge at an A.A. meeting?

Mr. Hall: Yes, because A. A. teaches self-discipline. It gives the person something to face life with - confidence. And this is what the addict needs. His problem is similar to the alcoholic's because they both have personality defects.

Question: Are there many young people in A. A.?

Mr. Hall: Yes, many young people realize they are alcoholic and see no point in letting alcohol ruin their lives. They come to A. A. and get help (not cured) before it's

Mr. Robert Hall's visit to our campus has cleared up some misconceptions about alcoholism. We are now better equipped to fight alcoholism, before and after it has taken root. Whether one is an alcoholic or not, alcoholism hangs over him like an accident; it can happen to anybody.

Mrs. Hattye Liston, assistant professor in education, was in charge of the presentation.

It all came about because she is now a 2nd Lt. in the U. S. Army Nurses Corps. She was commissioned earlier in the year at special ceremonies, exactly six months prior to her graduation in June and has been called to active duty. Her active duty assignment is to attend classes which will lead to her coming graduation, a special her coming graduation, a special provision and opportunity under the U. S.  Most Business College of Denver have accepted the program with equanimity, many with enthusiasm and some with dismay. The DENVER CLARION reference in the Program of the Program o ference is to the Business College's new Communication Problems Section, which determines whether a student is getting help from friends

It works like this: If a student uses one level and style of language when he writes a paper in class, yet uses another and quite different style when he writes a term paper, the difference shows and the student comes under investigation.

Says the section's Mrs. Eliza-beth Green: "If a student writes only part of the paper himself and copies part, the difference shows, too. It's as simple as that."

Here's an example of two papers submitted by the same student. The first was written in class:

The second paper, written out of class, was submitted about the same time:

"If the foregoing seems prosaic, it nevertheless is necessary to establish, first, that the Cuban Revolution was by no means a manifestation of vaguely idealistic yearnings but was directed toward concrete social goals; second, that these goals were, and had every reason to be, the common property of the great 'unredeemed' mass of the Cuban people."

Mrs. Green notes that, although the second paper was found to have been copied from a textbook, the student failed to give footnotes ex-plaining this. "The student who submitted it had expected to grad-uate that quarter," she said. "He

"Wonderful Three" Plays Music During Brown Hall Meal Hours

Who is your favorite disc jockey? Jammy Ditty? Ernie? Jocko? Dick Clark? Bob Poole? Big J? Muriel H? or some other radio or television personality? If you eat in Brown Hall, the chances are that you won't name any of these. Chances are, however, that you might name one of the local trio known as the "Wonderful Three."

Familiar to A&T students, the three are student disc jockeys who provide music and commentary during the lunch and dinner hours in the junior-senior dining hall.

The trio is perhaps better known by their individual "professional" names, the Mighty Tiger, Mr. Wonderful, and the Mighty Bear.

Better known as the Mighty Bear, Robert Jamison is the "old man" in the trio. An electronics man' in the trio. An electronics major from Martinsville, Va., he has been working at the position since last year. Jamison is interested in radios and has his ham as well as commercial licenses. He expects to graduate at the end of this quarter and then "work a lit-tle while and come back to school."

Like Jamison, the second member of the trio Loris Harris is scheduled to graduate at the end of the quarter. The Trenton, N. J., senior combines a program of photography and business and is known by associates as the Mighty University Park, Pa., Feb. 7 - - - Florida A&M and Prairie View (Tex.) A&M have been the leading Negro collegiate football teams over the 13 seasons since 1950, according to average ratings develop-ed by Penn State's Dr. Roger B. Saylor.

Saylor is the Penn State professor of business statistics who annually rates high school and college football teams under a formula which gives equal weight to wins-and-losses and the overall strength of opposition.

Florida A&M's and Prairie View's virtually equal ratings of 497 and 496 respectively place them well ahead of Southern (La.) University, which had an average rating of 479. These three schools plus Texas Southern, Tennessee State, and Grambling (La.) comprise a group rated well above all others in the period considered.

Florida A&M, coached by Jake Gaither all these years, has scored 109 wins against 13 losses, an average of one loss per year. The Rattlers have completely dominated the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference for years, last losing a conference game in 1952 Athletic Conference for years, last losing a conference game in 1952 when Bethune - Cookman edged them 8-7. There were 63 senior colleges which are attended predominately by Negroes playing football in 1963. This represented a net de-cline of six from 1951 to 1953, with 10 having dropped the sport during this period while four were added. The additions included Edward

Waters (Fla.) and Virginia State at Norfolk, which were junior colleges in 1951, Mississippi Vocation-al, and South Carolina Trade. The better known schools dropping the sport include Lincoln (Pa.) Univer-sity, Texas College, and Xavier

The four leading Negro football conferences are the Southwestern Atlantic Conference, with eight schools from Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Texas; the South-ern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, with 15 teams in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, and Tennessee; the Central Inter-collegiate Athletic Conference with 18 teams in Delaware, Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia, and the District of Columbia; and the Mid-west Conference with one member from Kentucky, Missouri, Ohio, and championship? This Another question invariably circles the minds of loyal Aggie followers about this time of year, and this year for good reason. With the season past its midpoint, Cal Irvin's court magicians sport an 11-1 conference record and are 12-2 over-all.

What's given this edition of the Aggies the added momentum which has lifted them over conference opposition? The answer probably lies in two factors: hustle and talent.

One thing is evident: the Aggies have demonstrated more get-upand-go than has been seen since the days of Joe Howell and Al Attles. No more can fans complain of players not playing, for it is cer-tain that everyone is playing for the team and the team is playing to win.

It is also evident that Cal Irvin's recruiting is beginning to pay off more than ever. Maurice McHart-ley and James Jackson, after three years in the Aggie uniform, con-tinue to sparkle in offense as well as defense. McHartley, out for the first part of the season with an injury, has returned to the lineup and has given the team that extra sparkplug which many sensed as missing in the earlier games. The Detroit ace is presently averaging nearly 20 points per contest, an asset to any team.

One or two men, of course, cannot make a team; and, of course, Jackson and McHartley have had their support from the rest of the team. In fact, it appears that Coach Irvin might have such a surplus of talent, that he has enough men on his bench who could easily make first-string at many other schools

Warren Davis, as usual, is doing a Herculean job in the rebounding department. Out last season, the big center has had his share of baskets too.

Backing Davis in this depart-ment, Webber, Davis, and Mul-care also merit attention. Played sparingly, thus far, Mulcare has come through in the clutch. Vir-tually unknown, Webber and Camp-bell are steadily making names for themselves in sports circles.

In the back court along with McHartley, freshman sensation

George Mack and sophomore standout Robert Saunders are doing adequate jobs plugging the holes made by the loss of Hugh Evans and Jerry Powell. Their inexperience at times show through, but that is rare and is to be expected.

Wylie Briggs' return to the lineup gives the squad a big all-pur-pose man, who can dribble and shoot as well as compete with the

Perhaps it is a bit of premature speculation, but A&T followers don't think so. Their message to the guardian of the trophy case is "Clear out the cobwebs; here comes another trophy."

How did the trio get involved in the business of providing music, in-formation, and gossip for their classmates? Jamison explained it this way, "I had always liked to mess around with microphones mess around with microphones, and when I got a chance to par-ticipate with Willie Stroud last year, I accepted it."

With two-thirds of the team graduating in March, what does the future hold for the music program in Brown Hall? Everretts, the lone survivor, is now in the process of finding replacements. Several persons have already applied. Ever-retts said that he would like a girl and a fellow as replacements, but so far no girls have applied.

Perhaps you are interested in the position. If you are, you may obtain further information by contacting any of the three.

Aggies Record 86-68 Victory Over J. C. Smith

A&T's Aggies fattened their CIAA lead by overwhelming John-son C. Smith 86-68 before 5,500 fans at the Charlotte Coliseum.

The win gave the Aggies an 11-1 conference and 12-2 mark overall.

Leading the A&T win was Maurice McHartley who collected 28 points. Also in double figures for the Aggies were James Jackson with 19 and Warren Davis with 12. Top scorer for J. C. Smith was Stoney McMorris who scored 25

A&T hit 48 per cent of the field goal attempts, making 34 of 71.
J. C. Smith had a 34 per cent shooting average for the night from the floor, sinking 24 of 70.

A&T jumped off to a 10 point halftime margin and boosted it to 21 at one time.

Aggies Breeze Past Pirates In 101-71 Win

The A&T College Aggies breezed past Elizabeth City State College Pirates 101-73 behind a second half scoring barrage in a CIAA basketball game played in Charles Moore Gymnasium.

Spurred by the halftime rest, the Aggies came storming back to down the east coast team which in the first half had held its own against the more powerful Aggles.

A&T jumped off to an early lead of 10-4 and appeared headed for a route; but after five minutes of play, Elizabeth City tied the ball game at 15-all and remained within five points of the high-riding Aggies for most of the first period. The Aggies led 43-36 at halftime.

The Aggies broke the game wide open at the beginning of the second stanza. Warren Davis, who had 14 points for the night, was the big gun in that rally.

He scored four straight field goals, a part of the 12 points which the Aggies dumped in the first three and a half minutes while Elizabeth City was held to one field goal.

In those first few moments, A&T had pushed ahead 55-38. That was the beginning of the 58 points which the locals dumped in during the final half.

Maurice McHartley led all scorers with 21 points, just a fraction above his season's average of 20 points. Three other Aggles scored in double figures. In the group were George Mack with 14, Jim

Jackson 11, and James Webber, 10. High Man for Elizabeth City was Richard Todd who scored 17 points during the encounter.

The win increased the Aggies' record to 12-1 in conference play and 13-2 overall. The loss eliminated the Pirates from a possible berth in the CIAA tournament to be played here at the coliseum

ARF!

Benjamin Franklin (or The Louisville Slugger, as he is better known as) said, "A penny saved is a penny earned," and we, the college population of America, have taken to heart this sage advice. We spend prudently; we budget diligently. Yet, despite our wise precautions, we are always running short. Why? Because there is one item of expense that we consistently underestimate—the cost of travelling home for weekends.

Let us take the typical case of Basil Metabolism, a sophomore at UCLA majoring in avocados. Basil, a resident of Bangor, Maine, loved to go home each weekend to play with his faithful dog, Spot. What joy, what wreathed smiles, when Basil and Spot were re-united! Basil would leap into his dogcart, and Spot, a gemine Alaskan husky, would pull Basil all over Bangor, Maine-Basil calling cheery halloos to the townfolk, Spot wagging his curly tail.

But the cost, alas, of travelling from UCLA to Bangor, Maine, ran to $400 a week, and Basil's father, alas, earned only a meagre salary as a meter-reader for the Bangor water department. So, alas, after six months Basil's father told Basil he could raise no more money; he had already sold everything he owned, including the flashlight he used to read meters.

Basil returned to California to ponder his dilemma. One solution occurred to him—to ship Spot to UCLA and keep him in his room-but Basil had to abandon the notion because of his roommate, G. Fred Sigafoos, who was, alas, allergic to dog

Then another idea came to Basil—a stroke of genius, you might call it. He would buy a Mexican hairless chihuahua! Thus he would have a dog to pull him around, and G. Fred's allergy would be undisturbed.

The results, alas, were not all Basil had hoped. The chihuahua, alas, was unable to pull Basil in the dogcart, no matter how energetically he beat the animal.

Defeated again, Basil sat down with G. Fred, his roommate, to smoke a Marlboro Cigarette and seek a new answer to the problem. Together they smoked and thought and-Eureka!an answer quickly appeared. (I do not suggest, mark you, that Marlboro Cigarettes are an aid to cerebration. All I say about Mariboros is that they taste good and are made of fine tobaccos and pure white filters and come in soft pack or Flip Top box.)

Well, sir, Basil and G. Fred got a great idea. Actually, the idea was G. Fred's, who happened to be majoring in genetics. Why not, said G. Fred, cross-breed the chihuahua with a Great Dane and thus produce an animal sturdy enough to pull a dog-

It was, alas, another plan doomed to failure. The cross-breeding was done, but the result (this is very difficult to explain) was

But there is, I am pleased to report, a happy ending to this heart-rending tale. It seems that Basil's mother (this is also very difficult to explain) is a glamorous blond aged 19 years. One day she was spotted by a talent scout in Bangor, Maine, and was signed to a fabulous movie contract, and the entire family moved to California and bought Bel Air, and today one of the most endearing sights to be seen on the entire Pacific Coast is Spot pulling Basil down Sunset Boulevard—Basil cheering and Spot wagging. Basil's mother is also happy, making glamorous movies all day long, and Basil's father is likewise content, sitting at home and reading the water meter. O 1964 Max Shuir

Pacific Coast, Atlantic Coast, the great Heartland in between -not to speak of Alaska and Hawaii-all of this is Marlboro Country. Light up and find out for yourself.
