MOSES KAMARA

Mr. Joshua Nimmo, African nationalist leader in Southern Rhodesia, has decided to return to the country to continue his fight for independence from Britain. The arrest was ordered by the white-dominated Rhodesian government headed by Ian Smith, the new Prime Minister of the country.

A new government, described by many as a united front against the anti-government forces inside and outside the country, was also formed.

In Southern Rhodesia, the police have raided the home of a prominent lawyer, Mr. Juma M. Kanga, a well-known figure in the anti-government movement.

The police have searched the lawyer's home and taken away a number of documents and files.

Many Cultures Are Explored By ISA Group

The International Student Association recently presented a program, "Cultures of Four Lands," at the Mansfield Auditorium.

The film entitled "Independence of Jamaica" depicted highlights of the revolution, marking the independence of Jamaica on August 6, 1962 after three hundred years of British rule.

During the question and answer period, students from Jamaica, Korea, Liberia, Nigeria and Sierra Leone answered questions about the various countries.

The question period involved the way of life in these countries, their economies, and their attitude toward race relations, Communism and colonialism.

The audience was entertained with calypso music from the West Indies.

On Thursday, the 16th of April the association presented a similar program at a special meeting of the Washington Street Elementary School Parents' Teacher Association.

Local Student N.E.A. Celebrates April As Teacher Career Month

April is Teacher Career Month as is evident by the many activities focused on and sponsored here on campus by the James E. Buddle Student National Education Association chapter.

Local chapter of student N.E.A. joined with the National Educational Association, which established Teacher Career Month in 1963, to draw public attention on the need for getting and keeping the best possible teachers in elementary, secondary schools and colleges.

Initiating Its Teacher Career Month celebration with the publishing of a newsletter — The N.E.A. Recruiter — the organization has already published three of its four planned publications for the month. The first edition, which was produced by Professionals Publishing, Inc., for its director Mr. J. M. Heard, was for its editor Alfred Poynter, a former member of the association, who now is associated with TIME magazine, have been Oliver E. Gruman and James W. Wickers, respectively.

Sponsored by Student N.E.A. during Teacher Career Month, the newsletter is "The Teacher Molds the Future," and affirms that children are the seeds of our future generations.

National Week Is Celebrated By S. S. Group

The A&T College Student Senate took part in the annual celebration of National Week for Teachers on campus this summer and the School Week which began April 13.

The theme for this year's celebration was "God's Universe." Highlights of the celebration included the participation of the fraternities and sororities. On the 13th, individuals representing the sororities on the campus led the class discussion on the topic "God's Universe and Our Responsibility." The Freshmen in turn were represented by one of their members to lead the dormitory classes in discussing the role of each member of the family in a Christian home.

During the 8-day celebration Student Senate passed another resolution to extend their students' appreciation to the "Approved Program Approach for the Future Teachers of A&T College." They have been selected to work this summer at the National Science Foundation in the Department of Education. The student selected for the program this summer will be selected by the A&T College Student Senate at its first meeting of the fall semester.

Promotional opportunities in the municipally funded state schools are available with a minimum of 850 per month and a maximum of $1300 per month.

The program in nutrition is the largest full-time program in the department.

Mr. R. W. Price, director of the A&T College Sunday School, directed the promotion.
