Orchid blossoms were bursting out last week at the A&T College Reid Nurseries from plants cultivated for experimental purposes by the A&T Department of Horticulture, M. P. McCleave, instructor.

Allegary Wilder, Miss A & T, Is Presented At Game

Allegary Wilder, Miss A&T, was one of the highlights of the game between the Aggies and Tennessee. Miss Wilder entered the game riding in a black 1962 convertible driven by James Richardson. Her escort was Rumsey Helms, president of A&T's student government. Miss A&T was given a warm welcome by her fellow Aggie admirers and a salute from the A&T College Marching Band. During the game Helms and Miss Wilder viewed the game from the fifty-yard line. When asked what their plans were for the weekend, Miss Wilder replied, "I plan to spend a quiet weekend here on campus by going to the dance on Saturday night and attending church Sunday morning."

New Services Are Offered By Library

The Reader's Adviser is located in the Browsing Room of the F. D. Bluford Library. This new position has been created to provide the faculty and students with assistance in the use of the library and with book selection in an effort to stimulate more effective use of the library and library materials.

The Reader's Adviser will furnish information concerning the location of materials, assist with research problems, and instruct groups in the use of the library upon request. Any problems concerning films, books, authors, publishers, or the library and its resources may be referred to her.

Mrs. Vivian Hurlley, a new addition to Library Staff, has been named adviser.

Helms said that he had received an invitation from President Lyndon Johnson to be his guest at the White House and that he planned to accept if student government didn't keep him here on campus.

Students Are Urged To Seek Perfection At The Fall Quarter Convocation

Fourth Annual PRO Opportunity Confab Set

The Fourth Annual Professional Opportunities Conference will be held at A&T College on Tuesday, October 20, in the Charles Moore Gymnasium.

The conference will begin at 9:00 A.M. with a general assembly at which time Julius Thomas, formerly of the National Urban League, will give the keynote address. All of the participating representatives from the Federal and State agencies will be introduced during the morning assembly.

The conference hopes to have representatives from 15 to 20 agencies of the Federal and State government here all day to talk with interested students (individually or in small groups) about academic preparation for, and employment with, their respective departments. The student confabs will follow the 9:00 A.M. general session.

The objectives of the conference are to apprise the students of many employment opportunities awaiting the adequately trained individuals; to provide the students with some knowledge of the requirements for certain choice positions long before college graduation; to provide the consultants a "fertile field" from which they may recruit personnel; and to counsel the students on job opportunities and the specific requirements for the same.

The Conference is not for seniors only but for freshmen, sophomores, and juniors as well.

Speaking to over three thousand students, faculty and staff during the Fall Quarter Convocation held in Charles Moore Gymnasium, Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, A&T College president challenged the students to strive increasingly for perfection and a true sense of responsibility.

President Dowdy centered his speech around the theme "Students of Responsibility." He described the true student as a person devoted to learning, one who is constantly in search of new areas of service.

Further, he said that the true student has an "incessant commission to search for truth." "He is not in search of fame or publicity." He likened the student to a mile runner who, patted on the back for his accomplishments, is told to forge tenaciously until his goal is achieved.

"The true student knows why he is in college. His clear shining goal will illuminate his path. He knows he will face competition," said Dr. Dowdy.

Continuing, Dr. Dowdy asked the students, "How can I challenge you in this time when opportunities are opening before us?" He said that, as true American citizens, students must strive to play a greater role in the total activities of the nation.

The president added that "the history of the world is a drama. The world is like a play in which we have entered the last act. Our scene has been a most recent one; therefore, we must increase our pace."

He appealed to the students not to fall or weaken when faced with problems. He emphasized that to achieve excellence is not an easy task. It involves hard work and real sacrifice.

Dr. Dowdy also admonished the students to transform the atmosphere in the dormitory into one of true intellectualism. He advised them to regard books as their friends. He stated that the student's compartment should be such that the canteen will abound in intellectual discussion and that there will be no need for line supervision in the cafeteria.

Concluding his address, President Dowdy stressed that the students should be determined this year to achieve results unprecedented in the history of the college. He said that they should help the teachers to achieve this objective.

In a dramatic end to his address, Dr. Dowdy quoted the first stanza of the Alma Mater.

Also participating in the program was Rumsey Helms, Jr., Student Government President. Helms said that the college is the place for the students to prepare themselves. He said, "The challenge is

Lionel Hampton To Entertain At Annual Ball

The annual Homecoming Ball to be held at A&T College on Saturday evening, October 31, will feature the music of Lionel Hampton and his orchestra.

Marvin B. Graeber, chairman of the Ball Committee, said that the Hampton band had been selected by his group and final arrangements were completed two weeks ago.

Hampton, popularly dubbed "King of the Vibes," not only is the nation's top stylist on the vibraphone, but ranks high among all-time jazz performers on the drums and piano.

The Ball is sponsored by the A&T College General Alumni Association for the benefit of its Scholarship Fund.

The affair is to be held at the A&T Charles Moore Gymnasium from 8:00 to 12:00 midnight.

and Sylvester Jenkins, Columbia, South Carolina, South Carolina representative.

Pershing Wall, Greensboro, the North Carolina representative, heads the committee in charge of local arrangements.

Nearly 150 delegates from locals of the organization in this region are expected to attend the sessions, Wall said.

Senior Class Bulletin

Photos of senior class members to appear in the 1965 edition of the AYANTEE, the college yearbook, will be taken for three days only on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, November 3, 4 and 5.

The photos will be handled under contract by the Meyer's Photo Studio.

Sittings for the photos are scheduled for the Faculty Lounge, F. D. Bluford Library daily during the period from 1:00 to 5:30 P.M.

James Randall, editor of the AYANTEE, warned that, unlike in the past when several additional dates were scheduled, the 1965 schedule will not be extended according to contract terms. Failure to show will necessitate omission of the photo from the yearbook.

By EULA M. BATTLE

"Too many freshmen enter college with only a vague sense of purpose and direction, with very little idea of what to expect of college and what their college expects of them," says Saul Orkin, admissions and guidance officer at Union Junior College, Cranford, New Jersey.

Similarly, Ralph Cooper Hutchinson states in Work Your Way Through College that the average student enters college "Having never used 70% of his mental muscles."

Having breezed through a very pleasant orientation — President's reception, freshman social — many freshmen are so dizzy that they fail to listen to anyone who mentions work. Well meaning advisers, deans, and upperclassmen say many things which freshmen may, to their sorrow, ignore — "College is a place to learn."

Because many of the students choose a college career for reasons other than learning, broadening their knowledge, expanding their skills, and developing their analytical powers, classes begin and the realities of college are suddenly all too evident.

You will be a student for a relatively short time, so don't jeopardize your entire scholastic career by spending most of your time on extra-curricular activities, and "Make the most of your independence."

What are you doing here? Did you come because everyone expected you to come, because your sister, brother, or cousin came, or because you wanted a change of scenery? Assuming that you have the intelligence, the personality, and the skills necessary for college work, you still may not be tough enough to weather the storm which will face you for the next four years. However, keep in mind that, if you are able to succeed in this first crucial year of college, you should be able to overcome any difficulties you will encounter here. There are four imperatives which will help toward seeing you through your college career — good health, self-discipline, persistence, and motivation. Because good health is an essential requirement for college work, it is necessary that one practice the rules of hygiene in regard to sleep, diet, and exercise.

Knowing from your high school days that there is much to distract from your studies, you will soon realize that there is just as much or even more in college to attract your attention. Besides the many distractions which confront college youth — social and extracurricular activities, television, card games, telephone calls, many students allow daydreams to intrigue upon their work. Subsequently, time slips by without the student's finishing, or perhaps even beginning, his tasks.

Try to work at a well-lit desk in a quiet, comfortable room. Make a fairly rigid study schedule, and make up your mind to stick to it. "A willingness to allot adequate periods of time for study and the strength to abide by such a schedule will make it possible for you to do your best," says Saul Orkin.

Likewise, persistence is needed; tough problems can be solved only by repeated "bulldozing." Learning is not always easy and even the best of us must put forth great efforts. One can not depend on his excellent high school record nor on his high I.Q. Those persons who succeed are the ones who are willing to sacrifice and work hard to realize their goals.

If you are not strongly motivated, you should face this fact squarely and try to do something about it. You must WANT to be in college; you must want to learn, and you must want to succeed in your chosen vocation.

Topics Of The Times

By J. A. A.

Well, our annual exodus has begun. It seems that at the beginning of the fall quarter of each year a great problem arises in Brown Hall. At the rate that things are going, every hour during meal time is the wrong time to avoid an enormous line. Is it that freshmen and sophomores cannot resist Brown Hall, or is it that freshmen and sophomores just do not want to eat in the dining hall provided for them?

If this problem remains unaltered, then what happens to the juniors and seniors who must sacrifice classroom punctuality and become tardy almost constantly. What is to be done? Must we be treated like high school students and be asked to present identification card to prove we are in our designated dining hall? Or shall we adopt an honor system and take it upon ourselves to dine where designated? Let us hope that each student adopt an honor code and permit juniors and seniors to have their dining hall to themselves.

... And I do solemnly swear, that if I'm elected, seniors will graduate in FOUR years.

Campus Pulse: Letters To The Editors

College Freshmen

Editors of THE REGISTER:

This year so far the upper classmen have given the freshmen class a hard way to go. Many students say the freshman class is taking up too much room, and they are making it impossible for some sophomores to eat and get to an early class. This may be true, but each year the freshman class gets larger and larger. Our class was probably talked about in the same way.

So, students of the upper classes, be patient and try not to be too hard on the present freshman class. They only want an education and this is good.

Linda Parks

Editors of THE REGISTER:

There has been, for some time across campus, ill feeling of the freshman class toward upperclassmen. Can it be that freshmen can not be content in associating with colleagues of a higher caliber, or is it that upperclassmen cannot conform or will not adjust to the incoming new member to the great Aggie Family.

I have surveyed other college campuses and their freshmen go through freshman-pro as if they were being initiated into a great fraternity. This is not true on A&T's campus, but we are having just as much difficulty adjusting as other colleges with freshman-pro.

Let me suggest a few means by which the situation may be improved. The student government should hold a meeting for the purpose of letting the freshmen know that they are accepted into the college on equal standing with other members of the Aggie Family. The freshmen should realize that they are new members of the family and react accordingly, knowing that they are not as well-versed on the college situation as their fellow upperclassmen. There should be some type of recreational activities in which freshmen could participate along with upperclassmen so as to get a feeling of togetherness.

College Band

Editors of THE REGISTER:

I would like to bring to your attention, some facts about our college band.

During this season, the Agricultural and Technical College Band has been performing at different places.

The band was invited to the reception of Mrs. "Ladybird" Johnson. In Charlotte, North Carolina, the band performed at the Johnson C. Smith University; and in Greensboro, at the Agricultural and Technical College football games.

I think it would be appropriate for someone to submit an article about the band's trip to Florida on November 5.

Book Reviews

Editors of THE REGISTER:

I would like to commend the newspaper staff on presenting book reviews in the college newspaper. I think this publication is worthwhile and in many cases profitable to the students. Not all students have the time to sit down and thoroughly read a book. Some books may not be at their disposal. But certainly each student has time to read a paragraph or two concerning a particular book. THE REGISTER is available to all students and is usually found in convenient places about the campus.

Again I would like to thank THE REGISTER staff. With publications as the one mentioned above, THE REGISTER will continue to get my support.

Is World Government Possible?

EDITORS' NOTE: The following composition, written in class, was based on "World Government or World Destruction" by Stephen King-Hall.

FREDDY V. FAULK '68

Because of the situations and conditions prevalent throughout the world today, we are faced by the question of whether world government is possible. We need to consider the factors that make world government a need, what is being done to attain world government, and what the chances of being successful are.

The factors that make world government a need are more numerous today than at any other time in history. The reasons are the development and the discovery of such weapons as the atomic bomb. Whereas tactical warfare had to be waged in the past, destruction of a whole nation, and possibly the world, is likely today. Such a possibility makes world government a necessity.

Attempts have been made and are still being made to achieve such a goal. In the past, the League of Nations was established. It was unsuccessful and was followed by the United Nations Organization. Today, many countries are working hard to make the United Nations a success. These countries are not putting forth such an effort merely for the fun of it or just for publicity. They realize that, if we are to survive, some form of world government or control is necessary.

Is such an achievement as world government possible? In other words, what are the chances of establishing world government? Personally, I think that the chances are relatively good. I feel this way because, even though the Communists want to take over the world, they know that war may mean total destruction.

World government not only can be achieved; it must be achieved if we are to survive.

The Peaceful Warrior

"An honest portrait" is what Virginia Kirkus calls MARTIN LUTHER KING: The Peaceful Warrior, which Prentice-Hall will publish. Written by Ed Clayton, noted Negro newspaperman and editor, it is Dr. King's official biography for children, and is illustrated with full-page pictures by David Hodges.

Beginning with Dr. King's childhood, this book describes the hardships of second class citizenship in the ghettos of the South. It tells how Dr. King was inspired by the great Indian leader Mahatma Gandhi to start his own "peaceful revolution" and how non-violence became a permanent part of the civil rights movement. The book follows King and the Negro movement through the historic March on Washington in terms that a child can easily grasp.

Ed Clayton is one of Dr. King's closest associates and the public relations director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. He has worked on special writing assignments for LIFE and contributed feature articles to The Associated Press, the United Press and The Associated Negro Press.

David Hodges is a free-lance commercial artist and has worked for leading advertising agencies and book publishers.

School Spirit

Editors of THE REGISTER:

The school spirit at A&T College appears to be nil. At football games, only a few people build up enough courage to sound off, while others stare at them amused.

I am sure that this poor support makes the team feel quite uncomfortable. Everyone likes to feel that he is being supported, but our team can boast of this only when a touchdown is made by it.

Even though the Aggies may lose once in a while, they still represent us and our A&T. I am sure no student here wants to see another team beat the team of his Alma Mater. In this event, we should act this way by supporting our team and our school and its activities also.

This can be done if each student accepts this responsibility individually, and not worry about what others will think.

"In your heart, you know I am right" — go out and support your team!

Foreign Students Elect Kamara As President

The Foreign Students' Association at its first meeting for the present school year elected Moses Kamara from Sierra Leone as president. Other officers elected included Joseph Okeke, Nigeria, vice president; Joyce Johnson, Jamaica, secretary; Gloria Panton, Jamaica, assistant secretary; Obadiah Ngaya, Kenya, treasurer; Mrs. Winifried Davis, Jamaica, program committee chairman; and Andrew Redd, Liberia, parliamentarian.

On the 9th of October the foreign students were entertained at a dinner by various families in the Greensboro area, at the Y.W.C.A. The dinner was arranged under the Host Family program which was started four years ago. The aim of this program is to provide the foreign students in the community an opportunity to meet and know Americans in their homes, and thus to have a "home away from home." The students also share their cultural heritage with the Americans.

Presently there are twenty-five countries represented in the five colleges in Greensboro, with five countries represented at The Agricultural and Technical College.

The foreign students have also been invited to attend a conference in Williamsburg, Virginia during the Thanksgiving holiday weekend.

The adviser for the Foreign Students' Association is Miss Geneva Holmes, who has travelled to Africa, Europe, Latin America, and the Caribbean.

Dr. F. A. Williams, head of Extended Services, was unanimously selected to be co-adviser to the association.

About ROTC Personnel

By WILLIE RANDOLPH

The ROTC Detachment, located in Campbell Hall, has started into the 1964-65 school year with 510 students enrolled in the Army and a similar number in the Air Force. Included in these numbers are several young ladies of both the Army and Air Force.

The Army had only one new member added to the staff this year, Sergeant Joseph W. Sharpe, a former member of the staff, whereas the Air Force added four new members.

Major Richard Santure, professor of Air Science, is replacing Colonel Willis J. Hubert, former professor of Air Science. Major Santure is a native of California, where he attended high school and did two years of college training. He is the father of three children.

Major Santure was commissioned into the Air Force in 1944 as a navigator at Handover, Texas. He flew 35 combat missions in Italy during World War II, after which he returned to Ellington Air Force Base in Texas. He has received the distinguished Air Medal seven times and the distinguished Flying Cross Award once.

Captain Donald Malloy, a graduate of the R.O.T.C. program, has served over eight years in the Air Force. He has been married nine years and is the father of three children.

He has been stationed in Florida, Germany, Libya, North Africa, California, and now North Carolina. Captain Malloy is the information officer for the Air Force R. O. T. C.

He said he requested to come to this school because he had heard about the R.O.T.C. program here. He also stated that he was very much pleased with both the Army and Air Force programs here and the school as a whole. He is making plans to take several courses while he is here.

Staff Sergeant Casey Sharpless, who is the adviser to the drill team and Air Police, entered the Air Force in 1954. He is the father of two children. He was stationed in Germany.

Sergeant Moore, who is the coach of the rifle team, is the father of three children and he has been in the Air Force for eight years. He has been stationed in Spain and at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base.

Cadet Lt. Colonel Reginald Mitchiner, who is the acting Corps Commander, says that the R.O.T.C. program this year looks very prosperous.

Speaking Of Sports With Hank

Well, the Aggies have broken into the win column finally and in a very explosive manner, indeed. They did it with a resounding 46-27 victory over the J. C. Smith Bulls to start them off on the right foot in the C.I.A.A.

As was the practice last season and it has started again this season, the Bulls scored first and the Aggies had to come from behind for the victory.

The Aggie offense was sparked by the return of Cornell Gordon, an All C.I.A.A. Quarterback, who fired a 15-yard touchdown strike to Conrad Lattimore to start the Aggies rolling.

Michael Johnson a flashy little freshman halfback showed promises of future greatness when he broke loose for T.D. runs of 45 and 34 yards. He also picked up over 100 yards rushing for the night.

If this wasn't enough, fullback Willie Beasley ripped off a T.D. jaunt of 55 yards and then added a 40 yard pass interception to total 12 points for the night.

Carmie Elmore, a 235 pound freshman fullback from Shelby, North Carolina, intercepted an errant Bull pass and carried it to paydirt to round out the evening scoring.

Al Maloney proved that he still has the magic toe as he kicked a 20 yard field goal and three extra points to pick up six points for the night.

Clifton Matthews got into the scoring column as he caught a swing pass from quarterback Gordon and picked up a two point conversion.

The defensive line was also responsible for two points as it trapped the Smith quarterback for a two-point safety.

Ronald "Bevo" Francis came up with a spectacular one-handed catch of a Willie Gray pass and stood the fans on their ears. "Bevo" is showing return to form and our hope is that he will again be an All C.I.A.A. candidate. "Bevo" also set up Willie Beasley's second touchdown as he caught a Cornell Gordon pass and, as he was being hit, flipped off to Beasley who was trailing the play and Beasley breezed into the end zone unmolested.

Defensive stand outs for the evening included defensive ends Conrad Lattimore and Heywood McKie who are continuing their excellent defensive work from the end position.

William "Bull" Sinclair looked good before his home town fans as he thrilled his loyal supporters with his bruising tackle.

Elvin Bethea, a freshman tackle, teamed with Sinclair to play havoc with the Bull halfbacks all night.

Robert Jeffreys turned in a Yeoman-like job from his centerline backers post as he was practically a part of the Bull backfield during the second half throwing the Smith quarterback for repeated losses.

Ernest Buggs returned to the Aggie defensive line up at his end position and turned in a good game for his first start of the season.

Freshman end Ben Wright and halfback Willie Epps were in Sebastian Infirmary with facial lacerations, but they should be at full strength when the Aggies face the Spartans Saturday afternoon.

William Briston is still being slowed down by his leg which he injured in the encounter with Norfolk last season and surely wants to be ready when we face the Spartans again.

It is doubtful that Alvin Hill, a 245-pound guard-tackle, will play again this season. Hill suffered a severe sprain and torn ligaments in the Tennessee game.

Furney Pollock, a 180 pound halfback and punting specialist, is still suffering from a knee injury and will not be able to see action against Norfolk this week.

The Norfolk State Spartans are next on our agenda; and from here, it looks as if the Aggies should be home free in this one.

The Spartans are 0-2 in the conference and are experiencing a tough time of it this season. The Aggies have never lost to the Spartans and this editor sees no reason to start now.

AROUND THE CONFERENCE

The Morgan Bears completely blasted the N.C.C. Eagles off the field 27-0 as Coach Banks has his Bears mauling once again. Coach Herman Riddick of N.C.C. was seemingly caught by surprise as his Eagles were held to a mere 38 yards rushing in the first half.

The Maryland Hawks under their new coach, Sandy Gilliam, had to come from behind in their 12-6 victory over a surprisingly strong Virginia Union eleven. I don't know whether this is a sign of the strength of Union or the fact that Maryland has not quite adjusted to its new coach, but the Hawks should be a stronger team than this.
