Coronation Of Miss A&T Opens Homecoming

Aggies — Bears Set To Battle For Loolead

The A&T Aggies and the Morgan State College Bears will collide tomorrow in a football game which might determine the CIAA championship.

Both teams will enter the game undefeated in conference play. The Aggies have been tied 8-8 by the Maryland State Hawks and presently hold down second place in conference ratings with a 26.00 Dickinson rating. Morgan State is first with a 30.00 rating on the Dickinson scale.

The game has been rated a must for the Aggies if they are to remain in contention for the conference flag. A&T enters the game as the underdog, but since it is the locals' homecoming, Coach Bert Piggott is expected to have his charges keyed to a high pitch.

Both teams started the season as strong conference favorites. Both had placed high in CIAA standing last year behind the North Carolina College Eagles who defeated the Aggies on Thanksgiving for the conference flag.

Morgan, which now sports a perfect 4-0 record, defeated the Aggies last season in a hard-fought contest.

A win for the Aggies tomorrow would not only make hundreds of returning alumni happy, but would probably also propel the Aggies past their Baltimore foes into first place.

The attractive Miss Sandra Hampton, a Greensboro freshman, will serve as "Miss Homecoming" at annual homecoming activities at A&T College. She is the sponsor for the Lettermen's Club, the A&T varsity organization.

A graduate of Dudley High School, Miss Hampton last summer attended the Governor's School for Gifted Students in Winston-Salem.

Sandra Hampton, Freshman Coed, To Reign As Miss Homecoming

Aristotle once said, "Personal beauty is a greater recommendation than any letter of introduction." Even though this maxim was expressed years ago, it is still practiced today as members of the Lettermen's Club recently illustrated in selecting Miss Homecoming.

Sandra Hampton, a freshman from Greensboro, was selected by the athletes as the young lady who best exemplifies beauty, poise and personality.

But beauty is not the only thing Miss Hampton has to recommend her. The freshman lovely combines her beauty with intelligence and talent. A graduate of the local Dudley High School, Sandra was among the group of students selected to attend the Governor's School for Gifted Students in Winston-Salem last summer.

She is also the recipient of an Alpha Kappa Alpha scholarship, presently by the Beta Iota Omega chapter in Greensboro.

The daughter of Mrs. Harding Hampton, Sandra will represent the Lettermen's Club at functions planned for the weekend.

Register Staff Members Attend Collegiate Press Conference

Six members of the REGISTER staff attended the 40th annual conference of the Associated Collegiate Press in Chicago last week.

The conference, held at the Conrad Hilton Hotel, was the largest in ACP history. Attending were 1,105 student delegates from 608 newspapers, 447 yearbooks, and 57 magazines. Advisers to student publications numbered 133, bringing the total number of delegates to 1,238. Other invited guests raised the total to approximately 1,300.

Other statistics included 324 colleges and universities representing 41 states, plus the District of Columbia and Canada. There was in all a total of 516 publications represented.

Max Shulman, noted author and TV writer, gave the main address at the ACP Awards Luncheon. Mr. Shulman spoke to delegates on, "How to be a Writer, or Oblivion Made Simple." His opening line — "With even dogs reading books, it's no wonder everybody is thinking of writing a book." — drew peals of laughter from the delegates.

On the serious side, he warned aspiring writers, "Don't go into Broadway with your writing." He warned them of the slim chances

Queen And Court Are Presented At Annual Homecoming Ceremonies

Homecoming 1964 came to A&T College last night with all the glitter and sparkle which had been predicted.

This year's extravaganza officially opened with the formal presentation of Miss A&T and her court at the coronation ceremonies in Charles Moore Gymnasium.

Allegray Wilder a senior mathematics major from Belhaven, is the lucky young lady who last spring was selected by her fellow students to represent them as campus queen.

Clad in a flowing white gown and the traditional royal cape, Allegray, with her attendants, was presented to the campus in a brief but impressive ceremonies. She was escorted by Rumsey Helms, president of the Student Government. Miss A&T was crowned by Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, president of the college. Mrs. Lois Kinney, instructor of speech and English, was narrator and director.

Miss A&T's attendants are Claudia McLaughlin, freshman from Charlotte, Marilyn Little, sophomore from Greensboro; Jo-Ann Goolsby, juni from Greensboro; and Jeanne Ellis, senior from Rocky Mount.

Last night's affair was but the first in a series of gala events planned for the weekend. The tempo picks up tonight and continues through Sunday.

Rumsey Helms, president of the Student Government, has announced that plans have been completed for the pep rally, bon fire, and wiener roast.

A completely new and novel affair has been planned for Saturday morning. Described by planners as a pre-dawn dance, the affair commences at 2:00 A.M. and will last until 6. Maxine Br., has been secured as guest artist for the function.

As usual the parade and football clash will serve as a focal point of the weekend. This year's parade has been shortened because of the Cumberland Development Project, but from indications it will be just as spectacular as previous ones.

Since both the A&T Aggies and Morgan State Bears are undefeated in conference play, a great deal of attention is being given to the game as a deciding factor in determining the conference champion. The Aggies have been tied by Maryland State, and the game is practically a must win for them.

Lionel Hampton and his orchestra will provide the music for the last big social function of the weekend. The king of the vibes and his music men will play for the annual homecoming dance. A packed house is expected as student tickets went on sale today at $1.50. Adult tickets are $2.50.

In addition, many other activities, designed for returning alumni, have been planned. These include class reunions and the annual alumni meeting and breakfast. The Classes of 1924, 1934, 1944, 1954, and 1964 are holding reunions.

This week will be climaxed with a sermon by the annual Alumni Service at 11:00 A.M. in Harrison Auditorium. Reverend James Toomer, pastor of the Camp Grove Baptist Church, Danville, Virginia, and an A&T graduate, will deliver the sermon.

LIONEL HAMPTON

Allegray Wilder, Miss A&T; and Rumsey Helms, president of the Student Government, are campus leaders.

Top Campus Personalities Mix Intellect And Personal Charm

Ask any student who the two leading campus personalities are and more than likely the response will be Miss A&T and the President of the Student Government.

These two leaders are selected by their fellow students in the spring of each year as their representatives during the following academic term.

This year's two top personalities are both honor students with majors in difficult areas; furthermore, both enjoy a great deal of popularity among their peers.

Miss A&T is Allegray Wilder, a senior mathematics major from Belhaven. Allegray, who serves as president of the local undergraduate chapter of Delta Sigma Theta, is currently president of the state organization of the Student NEA.

These members of the staff of the A&T College REGISTER, boards a plane for the annual meeting of the Associated Collegiate Press held last week in Chicago.

Homecoming, 1964

In recent years, student participation in homecoming and their display of school spirit have been almost null. The reason for this seems to have been a lack of sufficient student geared activities during the homecoming season.

This year's homecoming, however, is starting out to be quite different from those held during the past three or four years.

There have been student sponsored programs nightly during this week. The senior class set these programs into motion with a dedication service on Monday night. A "Hollow-win" student get-together was held on Tuesday evening by the junior class. The sophomore class sponsored a coronation dinner Wednesday. Last night the coronation ball was held. And the freshman class has planned for tonight a mock funeral and a bonfire.

Saturday morning there is scheduled a pre-dawn dance and afterwards breakfast.

Such activities as these make students feel they have a stake in the school's homecoming, rather than being just observers of alumni activities. It boosts their school spirit and makes them want to return to Dear Ole A&T during Homecoming after they become alumni.

There are many thanks to be given for what evidently will turn out to be one of the best A&T College Homecomings ever. The editors of The Register take hats off to: The Student Government, Dr. J. E. Marshall, dean of Students, Miss Barbara Dodd, for working with the Student Government, the Homecoming Committee, and to the individual classes for planning and carrying out their respective activities.

The Burden Of Honor

Someone is playing a dirty trick on us, says The Scholastic Notre Dame, Indiana.

This honor system isn't the happily-ever-after thing it is like — it's more of a bombshell. The funny part of this is in the way the system forces one to lay his character out on the table for inspection. This is no way out of showing anyone what Notre Dame students really are like, be it good or bad.

Really, the situation is more than a little frightening. You see, you aren't supposed to cheat, not even when you're flunking a course or when you need good grades. It even seems that the more idealistic parts of Goldwaterism are being tried via the new honor system: Total initiative for the individual is allowed by the program, possibly with the purpose of emphasizing the virtues of pre-Fall man.

It seems to be pretty much necessary for the success of the honor system that everyone must follow it, but we find it a little disconcerting to note that the number voting to accept the load was far from unanimous. But there is something for everyone, and the untrusting "realists" are told that, in case of emergency, they are merely to "squeal" on their plagued buddy or on the friendly football player next to them.

Yet we have come this far and, like other decisions, this one can't be reversed. The burden has been accepted and the only thing to do is to perform the task wholeheartedly. The only obvious alternative is to get out of Notre Dame.

But the wholehearted acceptance necessary for success will have the administration displaying a patience they have thus far kept hidden in condemned parts of the Main building, and we will have to see the Notre Dame student use a courage he does not know he has.

We have to go at this thing with what will probably be a somewhat panicky zeal. The success of the program will be difficult to achieve and will require the approach of a zealot. But the cost of failure will be so great to ND that the situation should almost automatically produce some small mental panic.

Any of our other campus programs could fail and we wouldn't have as much cause to worry.

This honor system could be destroyed, though, by only a few clumsy fools, students caught in organized cheating. And would our critics enjoy that! Notre Dame would never hear the end of the drivel about the simple failure of the system. It would not be looked at as the success of a normal, opportunistic human nature but would be spotlighted and underlined as a typical example of "Notre Dame's lack of Christian spirit — Not even at Notre Dame, the Catholic university, does the real nobility of Catholicism survive."

So even though it is a dirty trick, the system must work. And it will require more than the monetary effort of a Saturday football game. Our characters are to be on display for the whole of the time that we are here. The administration wants to see the results of our training, what we are really like, and so we will show them.

Noble parents and gentle CSCs, the moment of revelation is at hand!

The Wellesley Writing Conference

By DR. DARWIN T. TURNER

Chairman of the A&T College Department of English

Each year numbers of Negro freshmen withdraw from college or are dropped because of poor scholastic performance. Although some of these lack the ability to perform acceptably in college, many other potentially successful students suffer because of shallow backgrounds in mathematics and in English.

To explore means of reducing this annual loss, approximately fifty high school and college instructors were assembled for a conference sponsored by Educational Services, incorporated, and directed by Dr. Herman Branson, Department of Physics, Howard University. Meeting on the campus of Pine Manor Junior College, Wellesley, Massachusetts, from June 21 until August 14, the participants in the conference planned enrichment programs in mathematics and in English to be started in February, 1965, with 1200 college-bound seniors at six centers: Morehouse College in Atlanta, Fisk University in Nashville, Dillard University in New Orleans, Howard University in Washington, Texas Southern University in Houston, and Webster College in St. Louis.

Because the instruction is to be conducted on Saturdays during the students' senior year and five days per week for eight weeks of the summer following graduation, the members of the English division were asked to propose a program different from either the senior year in high school or the freshman year in college. At the end of eight weeks of deliberation, the English division, chaired by Dr. Arthur Davis of Howard, reported two programs.

One group of teachers contended that most students perform poorly because they have not been motivated to want to learn or because their teachers have emphasized "commanded" learning rather than "inductive" learning. That is, rather than permitting the student to learn principles, the teacher has stated the answers and has required the student to memorize and repeat them. This group believed that the most important task of the English division was to select subject matter which would stimulate the student to want to learn and to improve himself. The program proposed by this group is based on the students' reading passages from the journals and letters of such people as Charles Darwin, Vincent van Gogh, and Virginia Wolff. The student will write and talk about these materials. The reading and writing problems of the individual students will be treated in laboratory sessions.

The second group agreed that most students are inadequately prepared for freshman composition, but it argued that if a student will fail because he cannot understand what he reads or because he does not write according to the standards of college students, exposure to additional readings and additional opportunities for writing will not in themselves effect a cure. Believing that a paramount responsibility of a teacher of English is to show a student how to understand what he reads or how to improve his writing, this group proposed a language-centered program.

The principal effort of this group was to devise new and imaginative ways of helping a student to understand the principles of such "traditional" matters as style, coherence, organization, and the use of transitions, and diction. The students, it was felt, has heard these terms and probably has never been taught the principles governing them because many teachers of English have not been sufficiently trained in language and composition. They, like their students, have learned the rules, have read the literary documents, have voiced their emotional reactions to the works. Often, however, because they do not know why they write as they do or how they derive meaning from a literary work, they cannot help the student improve.

This fall, editors will work with the programs and ideas, attempting to polish them or to fuse them in such a way that they can be introduced to the students in February.

October 26, 1964

Dear Mrs. Marrow,

Just a few lines from a long-lost former REGISTERIAN, Ernie Johnston. I know you thought I'd dropped from existence, but as you notice from the letterhead, I'm still trying to write.

I was discharged from the army in September and started to work on the Ledger a week after. Actually, I had obtained the job prior to getting out of service.

Although the work on a daily is quite different from the Guide, (Norfolk Journal and Guide) I love every minute of it and wouldn't trade it for anything.

I am the only Negro reporter on the staff; and for that reason, I really want to make a success of it. Although I have been away from writing for two years, I am getting back into shape and doing better every day.

When I get my first by-line, which I hope won't be too long, I'll send you a clipping. I am sending one of my articles.

My family is doing very well; and you should see my little girl. She's really something and grown at 18 months.

Tell the staff to put all they have into writing. The things they learn there will help them if they decide to enter the newspaper field. It certainly helped me.

I hope more students will decide to enter the field. If you get the chance, please scribble me a few lines to let me know how the paper is doing and also slip a few REGISTERERS into an envelope.

Ernest L. Johnston, Jr.

Editors' note: The following article was written by Ernest Johnston for the NEWARK STAR-LEDGER.

A TRIBUTE TO LUCKY

Everyone knows a man's best friend is a dog. If Lucky could talk, he would say he is a girl's best friend.

Lucky is a spotted hound dog that wandered away from home with his mistress, Jill Centola, on September 9, tripping off a three-hour search.

Jill, the 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Ventola of 46 McCall Avenue, Livingston, was found by two boys, Robert Uhler, 15, 455 Eagle Rock Avenue, Roseland, and Donald Allen, 15, 61 Norman Avenue, East Orange, in Roseland, a mile from the girl's home.

The boys were attracted by Lucky's barking and upon investigating found the dog standing guard by a tree where his mistress was sleeping.

So, for the first time in its history, the Essex Board of Freeholders said yesterday it will publicly commend an animal along with the two boys.

Letter To The Editors

Editors of THE REGISTER:

First of all, I would like to commend the staff of THE REGISTER on the wonderful job it's doing in the publication of the college newspaper.

In consulting with THE REGISTER weekly, I find the material presented is of great importance. I realize too, in order to have a successful newspaper, there must be an adequate amount of information. This is where the students of the college can give their opinions on the school as a whole or just contribute general information occurring on campus. I think this is an opportunity that each student should grasp because the newspaper depends upon the students' articles and information to have a newspaper.

In short, it is the right and the responsibility of every student to assist with the publication of our paper.

A student counselor since her sophomore year, Allegray enjoys working with and meeting people. One of her enjoyable recent experiences was representing North Carolina at the Student NEA conference in Vancouver, British Columbia, last summer. Last night's coronation would probably also be high on her list.

Rumsey Helms, president of the Student Government, is a serious young man who immediately impresses the observer with the idea that some day he is going places.

An Alumni Scholar, Rumsey is one of the few students who have been selected for that distinction. When Rumsey graduated from Bassett, Virginia's George Washington Carver High School, he was determined to become an electrical engineer, a goal which he still pursues in A&T's School of Engineering.

Despite his high I.Q. and level of attainment, Rumsey is no one-sided bookworm by any means. He combines his studies and student Council duties with participation in the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity and several other campus organizations. He is also a senior officer in the Air Force ROTC program.

If Rumsey were asked what his most interesting recent experience has been, he would probably refer to a White House reception he attended a couple of weeks ago. Rumsey and other student leaders were special guests of President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson at a reception honoring student leaders and emphasizing their role in American society.

A&T's two "representative students" will serve as hosts and hostesses for the events of the coming weekend.

Paine College President Talks About Civil Rights Revolution

Reverend Dr. E. Clayton Calhoun, president of Paine College, Augusta, Georgia was vespers speaker on Sunday, October 25.

Before a packed audience of A&T students, faculty and staff, Dr. Calhoun spoke on the topic "This Side of the Wall."

In his speech, based on the present civil rights revolution, he said that people by their minds have created a wall between themselves and other people.

Confirming, Dr. Calhoun said, "No man can build a wall so high or wide that could shut us off from the claims of Christ."

The speaker referred to the movement of positive non-violent action which was started here at A&T College. He said that the decision to start this movement was not an easy choice. It involved a choice between decency and mob action.

He reiterated that there is a danger at this stage of the revolution. This danger, he said, stemmed without a sense of dignity.

He told the audience that they should not hate those on the other side of the wall of hate. "Christ lays claim on both sides of the wall, and reconciles every man," he said.

Dr. E. Clayton Calhoun holds a B.A. Degree from Florida Southern College, a B.D. Degree from Southern Methodist University, and a B.D. Degree from Florida Southern College. Further studies have been pursued at Scarritt College, Nashville, Tennessee; Boston University, University of California at Berkley, and Soachan University, Chivas.

His professional career has embraced service pastorates in Methodist Churches in Florida and North Carolina; Missionary to China; and president of Paine College since 1956.

Most prominent among his written works are Of Men Who Ventured Much and Far, a biographical study of the opening of Christian Missions in the Central Congo, and The Forgiving Forgiven, a treatise on the theological ground of the mission of the church in home relations.

Graduate Awards Are Announced By National Science Academy

Washington, D. C. — The National Academy of Sciences — National Research Council has been called upon again to advise the National Science Foundation in the selection of candidates for the Foundation's program of graduate and regular postdoctoral fellowships. Committees of outstanding scientists appointed by the Academy-Research Council will evaluate applications of all candidates. Final selection will be made by the Foundation, with awards to be announced on March 15, 1965.

Fellowships will be awarded for study in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological and engineering sciences; also in anthropology, economics (excluding business administration) geography, the history and philosophy of science, linguistics, political science, psychology (excluding clinical psychology), and sociology (not including social work). They are open to college seniors, graduate students working toward a degree, postdoctoral students, and others with equivalent training and experience. All applicants must be citizens of the United States and will be judged solely on the basis of ability.

Applicants for the graduate awards will be required to take the Graduate Record Examinations designed to test scientific aptitude and achievement. The examinations, administered by the Educational Testing Service, will be given on January 16, 1965, at designated centers throughout the United States and certain foreign countries.

The annual stipends for graduate Fellows are as follows: $2400 for the first level; $2600 for the intermediate level; and $2800 for the terminal level. The annual stipend for post-doctoral Fellows is $5500. Limited allowances will also be provided to apply toward tuition, laboratory fees, and travel.

Further information and application materials may be obtained from the Fellowship Office, National Academy of Sciences - National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C. 20418. The deadline for the receipt of applications for graduate fellowship is December 11, 1964, and for the regular postdoctoral fellowships, December 14, 1964.

Chapter Of GSS Is Considered For A&T Coeds

During the summer the Girls Service Sorority became a probationary chapter of Gamma Sigma Sigma which is a national service sorority.

The policy of Gamma Sigma Sigma is to include both Social Sorority members and non-members of all races and creeds, who are duly enrolled and in good standing, in their respective colleges and universities.

The sisters of Gamma Sigma Sigma gain a lasting bond of friendship. It also gives the members an opportunity for friendship, participation in service projects, development of leadership abilities, and association with college and university women dedicated to the common principles of service, friendship and equality.

Since G. S. S. has been organized, its members have performed a service of projects, such as donating articles to the needy, serving as hostesses for banquet and dinners at the YWCA, and at the annual ROTC Banquet, and assisting Reverend Mr. Cleo McCoy in addressing Christmas Messages.

On November 3, G. S. S. is planning to hold a baby sitting service at Hayes Taylor Memorial YMCA for those mothers who would like to vote in the national elections.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS WITH HANK Aggies Drop T C Rams 50-12

AGGIES DROP T. C. 50-12
 It was nothing but a show, folks, nothing but a show as the A&T Aggies again demolished those pesky little T. C. Rams 50-12 for their victory of the season.

The Rams as usual started as if they were going to match the Aggies scoring machine as Richard Souls gathered in two T.D.'s for the Rams, but the Aggies soon brought this to a screeching halt with some devastating defensive play that shut the Rams out for the rest of the afternoon.

The Rams though defeated 50-12 were lucky indeed because Coach Bert Piggott pulled out most of his regulars early and gave his reserves a chance at the Rams.

Ronald Francis bested the Rams' Richard Souls in the pass catching department to take over the lead in the CIAA. Bevo pulled down six tosses during the afternoon.

It was really a matter of who wanted to score or gain for the Aggies in this one as Cornell Gordon, Melvin Phillips, Willie Beasley and Clifton Matthews rolled at will over and around the out-classed Rams.

Tempers flared early during the game and in the final stages with the Aggies deep in Ram territory a little extra curricular activity erupted near the Aggie Bench, and the Aggies were more than prepared to take care of themselves in this department also.

The Aggies have rolled for 110 points against the Rams in two seasons and this corner is wondering if they will return next season and not quit on us as the Shaw Bears did. The Rams have never beaten A&T so perhaps they will keep trying.

The defensive teams at A&T have always been something to see, but this year the team is an awesome sight to behold.

Perhaps the most significant improvement is the play of the defensive ends; though few in number, they do a whale of a job game after game.

Coached by Coach Hornsby Howell, these fine men have really helped beef up the Aggie forward wall. Haywood McKie, Conrad Lattimore, Ronald Francis, and Ernest Buggs have really blasted those opposing quarterbacks who used to roll around our ends for yardage. They now think twice before they come around; and when they try the middle, they have to contend with Bull Sinclair, "Ed Eddie Baby" Edwards, "Dog Alston" Herman Red Simmons, Joe "Jose" Flood, and the like, so it's now rough going for those opposing backs.

HOME COMING

Homecoming comes but once a year fans and that time is fast approaching. Those supposedly big bad Bears from Baltimore come in this year fresh from a routing of Hampton and reports indicate that they are now ready for the Aggies.

This is paradoxical, however, because whether they know it or not we are ready for them also.

The Bears blasted us last season 21-0 to ruin our hopes for the CIAA Flag and the charges of Coach Piggott are definitely ready.

Coach Groomes has completed his scouting duties and all reports are "go" as the Aggies pry for their annual tilt with those Morgan Bears. This corner is going all the way with A&T; and from the way things look from here it's A&T by 6.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

After homecoming, it's another toughie for the Aggies as it's on to the land of RATTTLERS when the Aggies tangle with those FAMU bad boys.

The Aggies, after last year's being rated as an even choice to defeat the Rattlers, were demolished by Bob Hayes, Jim Tullis, Ed Dennson and company. Tullis and Dennson have moved on, but Hayes is fresh from gold medals in the '64 Olympics and should be raring to go in this one.

This means nothing but speed in the Florida backfield, but with the improved play of our defensive ends and line-backers, we should be able to contain Mr. Hayes and his crew in this one.

It has been a long time since the Aggies have defeated the Rattlers; and so, come on, Aggies, and let's cut out some of this FAMU nonsense.

After the Florida tilt the Aggies return home for a clash with those unpredictable Virginia State Trojans who have already upset N.C.C. and are hoping to do the same to the Aggies.

The Aggies were hard pressed to defeat the Trojans, and it was only in the closing minutes of play that the Aggies really ran up the score. This could be a good game.

It will be another case of Virginia vs. Virginia as it will be curtains for the pride and joy of tide-water Cornell Gordon before his hometown fans, as he hangs up his home uniform for the final time in this one.

Six A&T Aggies Are Sideline For The Season

The A&T Aggies Trainings' office has reported that six Aggies are sidelined for the season.

Benjamin Wright, freshman end from Fayetteville, is out for the rest of the season with torn knee ligaments.

Michael Johnson, freshman half-back sensation, who made an outstanding debut against the Smith Bulls, suffered a broken ankle and is out for the remainder of the season. He had gained 169 yards and scored 18 points for the Aggies this season.

Lloyd Smith, Aggie end and defensive halfback, is out with a back injury. Smith had been playing mostly as an offensive end position but this season switched to defensive halfback and was showing great promise.

Fred Battle, Aggie tackle from Chapel Hill, is out with a knee injury. He was injured during pre-season drills and went as far as he could go before his knee forced him to the sidelines. Battle is expected to undergo an operation in the near future.

Alvin Hill, A&T guard is still out with torn knee ligaments and is not expected to see action again this season.

William Bristow, end from Fayetteville, is out for the remainder of the season because of a leg injury suffered last season. Bristow's leg is still weak, but he is progressing through corrective therapy and should be ready to go next season.

Aggie Spotlight: Bevo

Ronald Francis, right, star end with the A&T College Aggies, bested the Rams' Richard Souls in the pass catching department to take over the lead in the CIAA. Bevo pulled down six tosses during the game between the Aggies and the Rams.

"Aggie Spotlight"

Melvin Phillips (30) star halfback with the A&T College Aggies saw nothing but goal posts until Sherwood Casey, (52) linebacker from Winston-Salem State College collided to bring the runner to a screeching halt.

The Aggies whipped the Rams 50-12 in the CIAA clash played at the Winston-Salem Bowman Gray Stadium.

Senior Photos Are Scheduled For Three Days

Photos of senior class members to appear in the 1965 edition of the AYANTEE, the college yearbook, will be taken for three days only on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, November 3, 4, and 5.

The photos will be handled under contract by the Meyer's Photo Studio.

Sittings for the photos are scheduled for the Faculty Lounge, F. D. Bluford Library daily during the period from 1:00 to 5:30 P.M. One evening period has been set for Wednesday from 6:30 to 9:30 P.M.

James Randall, editor of the AYANTEE, warned that, unlike in the past when several additional dates were scheduled, the 1965 schedule will not be extended according to contract terms. Failure to show will necessitate omission of the photo from the yearbook.

A & T Swim Team In Nine Meets

The A&T College Aggies swim team will participate in nine meets during the upcoming season, four of them in the home pool.

The schedule, released this week by Forrist Willis, head coach, lists the following dual meets here at Charles Moore Gymnasium: Hampton Institute, December 12; Howard University, January 9; Morgan State College, January 16, and Johnson C. Smith University, February 6.
