College Lists 444 Prospective Graduates

GWENDOLYN SHERROD

One Senior Coed Become Member Of Pi Omega Pi

Gwendolyn Sherrod, a senior majoring in business education, from Statesburg was recently initiated into the Gamma Phi Chapter of Pi Omega Pi, Business Education Teacher Honor Society. Miss Sherrod presented a paper on "The Challenges of the Future Business Education Teacher," in which she stated that the future business education teacher is confronted with a three-fold challenge: the students of tomorrow, the innocation of computers, and the ever-changing business conditions.

With the increasingly complex and complicated society, forthcoming generations, if not adequately educated, will have difficulty in understanding. Surely, this presents a challenge to the business teacher. How can one teach that which is not clear to him or which he does not understand? Will the teacher of the future have to constantly reply, "I don't know" to the questions asked by the students of tomorrow? There will perhaps be times when she cannot even say, "I'll find out" because

Coed Gets Grant To Study Biology At I. I. T.

An A&T College coed Lillian A. Laceywell, has received an assistantship in the biology department at the Illinois Institute of Technology for the 1965-66 school term.

Miss Laceywell, an honor student majoring in biology, is from Rigelwood, North Carolina. She is a member of the Student NEA, the Traffic Safety Club, Alpha Kappa Mu Honor Society, Gamma Sigma Sigma Sorority (coordinating secretary), and the Baptist Student Union.

Having engaged in student teaching at Dudley High School, Lillian does not plan to pursue teaching as a profession. "I plan to pursue a Master's Degree in Microbiology," she says, "and after graduate study, go into research in pathogenic microbiology."

With an average in her major of 3.38 and an overall average of 3.20, she is a participant in the Honors Program at the college.

Lillian will receive a stipend of approximately $2,100 for two semesters of study at Illinois Institute of Technology.

Hobart Taylor Associate Counsel To President Johnson To Speak At Seventy-Fourth Annual Commencement

Hobart Taylor, associate counsel to President Lyndon B. Johnson, will deliver the main address at A&T College's seventy-fourth annual commencement exercise Sunday, May 30.

Dr. P. T. Turner To Take Leave To Do Research

By EULA BATTLE

Starting June 21, Dr. Darwin T. Turner, Chairman of the English Department, will be on leave from the college for a year to do research and to teach during the summer. From June 1-15 and Sept. 15, Dr. Turner will be doing research at Fisk University on a grant from the American Council of Learned Societies. The subject of the research will be the writing of Jean Toomer, a 20th-century Negro author. From June 21-August 15, he will be directing the workshop of the Carnegie Institute for Teachers of English in the predominantly Negro Colleges. The institute will be held at Indiana University in Bloomington, Indiana for 1965-66.

Dr. Turner has been given a fellowship in the University of North Carolina - Duke Co-operative Program in the Humanities. He will be at the University of North Carolina doing research in the writings by American Negroes and in dramatic literature.

When Dr. Turner came to A&T in 1959 he had the following to say about the college: "This is a school which is old enough to have a rich tradition and yet young enough to continue to grow until it reaches heights envisioned by those who has decided himself to the proving it to grow." Since that time, he has dedicated himself to the promotion of high ideas and excellency in scholarship.

Dr. Walter C. Daniels, professor of English, will be acting as chairman of the English Department during Dr. Turner's absence; and Dr. William H. Robinson will head Humanities.

annual commencement exercise Sunday, May 30. The program, a combined baccalaureate and commencement, is, scheduled for Charles Moore Gymnasium. Starting time is 11 a.m.

A former practicing attorney in Detroit, Michigan, Taylor is a native of Texas. He is a graduate of Prairie View A&M College, holds the M.A. degree from Howard University, and is a graduate of the University of Michigan School of Law.

Taylor, appointed to his present position in April 1964, also continues as vice chairman of the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity, to which he was appointed in 1962 by the late President John F. Kennedy.

In the latter position, Taylor is responsible for developing and implementing committee programs aimed at eliminating discrimination in the federal government and among contractors or sub-contractors who perform services for the federal government. He also directs the committee's plan for progress, a program which involves the voluntary participation of more than 290 leading national industries.

Other commencement activities scheduled for Saturday include the annual National meeting of the A&T College General Alumni Association in Carver Hall at 9:30 a.m.; the annual joint concert by the A&T College Band and choir, beginning at 5:00 p.m. on the Dudley Building lawn; the president's reception in Cooper Hall recreation room at 7:00 p.m.; and the annual alumni dinner at Towne House Motor Lodge at 7:30 p.m.

Cary Bell Highlights Register's Annual Banquet

Cary P. Bell, 1963-64 editor of the REGISTER, delivered the main address at the annual awards banquet last Saturday night in Brown Hall. Presently participating in the Foreign Affairs Scholars Program at American University School of International Studies, Washington, D. C. Bell will soon complete his first year of graduate study in June.

The Foreign Affairs Scholars Program is a plan designed to attract talented youth into the foreign service as career officers. The summer prior to entering American University Bell spent ten weeks as an intern in the Department of State.

Bell who was commissioned as a second Lieutenant in the army upon his graduation last year will interrupt his graduate studies to enter active military service sometimes next month.

In addition to serving as editor of the REGISTER while enrolled at A&T College he held membership in Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc., Alpha Kappa Mu National Honor Society, and Lambda Iota Tau Literary Society. He was also listed in WHO' WHO AMONG STUDENTS IN AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES AND COLLEGES.

Something of a celebrity since his recent appearance upon the cover of JET, a national magazine, in connection with the article on the Foreign Affairs Program, Bell briefed the banquet audience on his activities as a Foreign Affairs Scholars Program Participant.

"The program has been established through a Ford Foundation grant in cooperation with the Department of State, United States' Information Agency, and the Agency for International Development. For each of the four years the program is to run, forty students are selected for participation." He explained that those persons who are retained in the program receive fellowships for graduate study in international relations, economics, and other related fields. "Of the forty, first year participants, in our program three of us were successful on the examination (Foreign Service Entrance Examination Administered by the Department of State to participants after one year of study)," Bell said.

The complete text of Bell's speech may be found on page 6.

Other speakers on the program were Mrs. Carrye H. Kelly, associate professor of English, who gave the anniversary commemoration statement; Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, president of A&T College, who presented the new editor; Mrs. Loreno Marrow, faculty adviser, who presented the awards; and Dr. Jesse

These Were The Years

By ALOHA PEYTON

Another school year is ending, another graduating class is leaving the folds of A&T College to advance into the so called "real world" and meet the "real" challenges of life.

The past four years hopefully have been of progress for the forthcoming graduates. We should have progressed from unsure, indecisive, confused freshmen to confident, knowledgeable, sophisticated seniors.

These years have been or should have been years of preparation. All those advocates of the "it's better to cheat than to repeat" and the "all I want to do is get by" philosophies will get a chance to see the results of these ideas applied to real situations. Those who struggled through honestly will hopefully reap rewards for their struggles, and those who breezed through brilliantly will hopefully continue in brilliance.

If not times of progress and preparation, the past four years have surely been ones of memorable moments. Some of us will remember homecomings or other gala affairs, some will remember outstanding persons who visited the college, some will remember love affairs that grew or dissolved on this campus. Others will remember the people, both student and faculty, they met here; the social groups they joined here; the success or difficulty they encountered here.

All of us will have some memories, good or bad, happy or sad, which will remain with us throughout life.

The past four years have given each of us something which connects us permanently with this institution. We have been Aggies; and whatever else we may become, we shall always be Aggies.

The Challenges Of Today's Society

By EULA BATTLE

Today's society offers many challenges. It challenges one to prepare for the future, to promote good will toward all men, and to live a successful life. In order to meet the challenges of today's society, one must develop morally, spiritually, and intellectually. If one does not meet the challenges of today's society, he cannot hope to succeed in the modern world.

It has been said many times that the future is only for those who prepare themselves. If one does not prepare himself, there is no place for him in today's society. In days gone by, one could make a good living without an education. He did not have to prepare himself intellectually; however, it is becoming impossible for one to make a living without an education.

In the days of the "Wild West," men found it necessary to help each other in order to survive. Today, this is not so. In a sense, man does not need the help of his fellowmen. I do not mean to say that man can live alone because no man is an island. He cannot completely isolate himself from society; therefore, he must be willing to show kindness toward his fellowmen. Color, race, creed nor nationality matters. Today's society challenges our spiritual and intellectual attitudes.

If man will realize that he must prepare for the future and that he must promote good will toward all men, then he will be well on the road to a successful life. He will have developed morally, spiritually, and intellectually. He will think of his future, and he will realize that the world owes him nothing. He will conclude that if he will put forth an effort and if he is willing to work to meet the challenges of today's society, he will be successful.

Consequently, today's society challenges our attitudes and our values. If one plans to become successful, he must develop a set of values that will enable him to meet today's challenges.

Don't get alarmed, but I think you have on the Steps To Follow In Doing 'Jerk'

wrong robe shortie !!!

There is no room for 'squares' today. Rock 'n roll has taken the scene for today's younger generation. Along with it comes dances of all variations.

'The Jerk' is a relatively new dance with simple movements. It is not difficult to learn this dance. First, there must be a willingness to do it without restraint.

If you are clumsy in feet movement, you should have no trouble doing this dance. It requires no feet movement, though variations of 'The Jerk' allow it.

The first step is to put the feet close together and listen to catch the beat of the music. Secondly, you hold the arms above the head at a relaxed angle, you now begin to snap your fingers to the music. This is followed by a slight bending of the knees. Now, the only thing left to do is to jerk in position. I might add that your finger-snapping and jerking should be in time with the music.

To give some class to the dance, you might try walking with the beat of the music and continue to jerk the body and snap the fingers. Another variation is the jump from one side to the other in time with the beat, continuing to maintain the jerking and finger-snapping. Favorite variation among young people is to snap once and jerk twice.

'The Jerk' requires a great deal of energy and movement. I would recommend it for losing weight and daily exercise.

The Thoughts Of A Woman

NANNIE LILLY

I sit here and I think but I don't understand the life, The rights, and the ways of a man. I can see that some things he does are the nature of His character.

I'm aware that I am woman and he is man.

I understand that his life is somewhat different from mine.

I know that I, as a woman, am here to love and to cherish him.

He says his heart is mine; I know my heart is his.

But yet he betrays and I suffer, then I wonder, what price Am I paying?

The price of his loving me or the price of me loving him.

Why is it that life is so sad without him and full of joy With him, but yet painful?

Why do I (woman) love him? I want to love him, yet I'm afraid Of loving him; therefore I do not want to love him.

Why are his words so real, so true, so promising but yet so Hard to believe.

Though I want to believe him yet I do not want to believe Him, but still I do believe him.

I share him with others because he is never mine alone.

I despise him because of his deceitful and flirtatious actions.

But I do love him because he is part of me and part of my life.

He is the cause of some of my many smiles.

He is man and without him I am only part woman.

Even with faults he is ever so clean because his dirt is Vaguely seen.

His possession of kindness charm, and loving affections Causes my mind and my heart to be deceiving.

Therefore, I know of nothing but the clean, true and loving man.

I know of his faults, but I'm not perfect either. So I give his faults not a thought, and cherish the sweet, Kind and loveable man.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editors; Now that the Student Government elections are over, I would like to know what has been accomplished. I do not want to be misleading, so I will try to clarify the above statement.

First, I am trying to figure out what type of an election this was. When I say what type, I do not mean whether or not it was a communistic type election, nor do I mean whether or not it was secret ballot or an oral response election. What I do mean is that I would like to know why we had two elections for the same candidates.

At first I thought it was because there was a tie between two or more candidates. However, this was not the case according to the chart I saw of the results. However, there must be some logical explanation.

I am wondering are all provisions governing these changes are in keeping with the Student Government Constitution. I have not seen a copy of the constitution, and I sure would I like to see one, but surely it is not a so loosely constructed document that it provides for such handling of elections as the one just held.

Please do not misunderstand me. I am not committing myself to the point of hating that this type of election was wrong. All I want to know is why, how, and for whom was this type of election held.

Sincerely yours, Wille Randolph

she may not know where to look to find the answer. This is not to belittle the teacher of today, but it is a belief that many things will go and must go unanswered concerning the mysteries of the world. Perhaps at such times machines will be employed twice as much as they are today.

Miss Sherrod's research indicated that the new big industry in this country will be education. This means an endless spread of junior colleges, four-year colleges, graduate schools, and business, government, an union-affiliated education centers. It also means programmed instruction, teaching machines, and televised instruction. Where will this leave our future business teacher as well as other teachers? How will the teacher compete under such conditions?

For a decade or more, the future has been talked about and written about and dreamed about; but now the future can be seen in space programs, in engineering and in the young children of today who will have many questions directed to one individual — the teacher!

Earlier in the school year Gamma Phi chapter sent its president, Martha George, a senior from Sherwood, Maryland, to its 19th Biennial Convention at the Palmer House in Chicago, Illinois. Miss George returned with many ideas for the betterment of students who are preparing for teaching. It was strongly recommended by the convention that all students belong to the professional organizations of their major fields and that during their junior and senior years they devote more time to their professional organizations and honor societies in preparation for employment.

Officers for the ensuing year, 1965 - 66, are Geraldine Hodges, president, Donna Garner, treasurer; and Gwendolyn Sherrod, secretary. PI OMEGA PI on campus is releasing four graduating seniors year — Martha George president, Thelma Fryar, vice president, Lily Cotton, reporter, Willie Jacobs, and Gwendolyn Watson.

INITIATED INTO NATIONAL ENGLISH HONOR SOCIETY

These students at A&T College, all majors in English, were last week initiated into Lambda Iota Tau, the English honor society.

The group includes from left to right: James Harrington, High Point, Ida Taylor, and Jonas Thompson, both of Rocky Mount; Hilda Smith, Durham; Carolyn Jones, Moyock; and Mrs. Winnie Webb Lloyd, Bolton,

New Editor To Attend Workshop Sponsored By U. Of Minn. And A.C.P.

William E. Goode, the newly selected editor of the REGISTER for 1965-66, will attend a college publications workshop at the University of Minnesota this summer.

The workshop, being sponsored by the University's School of Journalism and the Associated Collegiate Press will run for two weeks, from June 14-25. It will be an intensive two-week session in which the editor will get a chance to study the files of All-American and first class rated publications from colleges throughout the country. He will also have an opportunity to exchange ideas with college newspaper staffers from other parts of the country.

In addition to the workshop in the afternoons, there will be "shirt sleeve" sessions in the mornings in photography, typography, and makeup which are optional to the participants.

Goode is a junior English major from Greensboro. He graduated from Dudley High School in 1962, and attended Mankoto State College in Minnesota and Tennessee A & I State University before coming to A&T as a sophomore.

After graduation next year, he plans on a career as an Air Force pilot.

Mother Of Three To Get Degree On Sunday

A mother of three, who had her education interrupted more than 20 years ago will receive the bachelor of science degree at A&T College commencement exercises on Sunday.

Mrs. Margaret V. Horne, now a resident of Greensboro, who quit school in Alabama for marriage, will have a dream come true with her graduation from A&T.

MISS ALLEGRA WILDER

Wilder - White To Say Vows Next Month

Two of A&T College outstanding students, Miss Allegray Wilder of Belhaven and Bernard T. White, Greensboro, will end their college careers with an exchanging of wedding vows.

The wedding to be held on Saturday, June 12, 4:00 P.M., at the Greensboro Protestant Episcopal Church of the Redeemer.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Wilder of Belhaven, has reigned as Miss A&T for 1964-65. Miss Wilder is an honor student majoring in mathematics. She is president of the Student North Carolina Teachers Association and a member of the Alpha Mu Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority. Some of the other organizations in which she holds membership are the Student Government, the Pan-Hellenic Council, the Women's Council, and Who's Who in America Colleges and Universities.

Mr. White, the son of Mrs. Alma White of Greensboro and the late Mr. A. T. White is an honor student majoring in electrical engineering. He has been a member of the college varsity swimming team for four years and co-captain for three years. He was twice awarded the Guilford Dairies Honor Award for having maintained the highest academic average of all varsity athletes.

Mr. White has accepted a position with the International Business Machines Corporation as computer programmer at its plant at Endicott, N. Y. and will begin work on June 21.

Dr. Andrew Best Delivers Address At Annual Fellowship Banquet

Dr. Andrew Best, M. D. from Greenville, was the guest speaker at the sixteen annual banquet for the Fellowship Council and the third annual banquet for Chapel Usher Board.

Dr. Best spoke on the subject, "The Brotherhood of Man." He gave a very inspiring speech in which he asked and answered several questions: Who is my brother? What is my brother? How important is my brother? What can I do to help my brother?

He concluded his speech by reminding everyone that there are still many mountains to be climbed and many valleys to be crossed and that everyone that is asleep had better wake up and clothe himself with the garment of knowledge because the future is uncertain, and we must be ready to face it.

The occasion also included the awarding of awards in several degrees. These included the Meritorious Service Awards for four years of distinguished service in campus religious activities; the Honorable Menton Awards, for one to three meritorious service in campus religious activities, and the Twenty-Year Service Awards, for persons with twenty or more years of continuous employment at this college. There were also several awards given to those who showed outstanding leadership and service in religious activities.

Other events of the evening included two songs by Evander Gilner, Jr. Dr. Dowdy gave the closing remarks.

News Brief

Mrs. Katie Dorsett of the Department of Business and Marion Horton, president of the local chapter of Phi Beta Lambda, will attend the national convention of that organization June 14-16.

The meeting is being held at the Sheraton-Gibson Hotel in Cincinnati, Ohio.

A & T College To Operate Institute For Superior Freshman Students

A summer Institute for High School Freshman Students with High Ability, is to be conducted at A&T College beginning on June 14 and continuing for 10 weeks through August 20.

The Institute, to be directed by S. J. Shaw, director of Freshman Studies, lists four major objectives: (1) To give the student opportunity to begin early his college career, and under an arrangement which could lead to earlier graduation; (2) To provide an enriched, accelerated program of study for the student in an intellectual and cultural environment, with close supervision and guidance services to help in a smooth and comfortable transition from high school to college life, and (4) To provide instruction in small class group, with close personal attention, to allow the student to progress as his ability permits.

Courses in English, mathematics, social science (Western Culture), and natural sciences will be scheduled offering college credits of 12 semester hours.

The enrollment is to be limited to 50 students who have, or will complete high school prior to the opening of the Institute. Selections will be made on the basis of performance in high school and without regard to race, sex, creed, color or national origin. Students who rank in the upper fourth of their high school classes will be eligible to apply.

Selections will be based upon applications, including transcripts of high school records and the score earned on the College Entrance Examination Board Test (SAT), received prior to the deadline.

Inquiries or applications should be directed to: S. J. Shaw, Director of Freshman Studies at A&T College.

Alumna Employed By Newsweek Spends Day Visiting On Campus

By EULA BATTLE

Catherine A. Hinson, who was cited in the March 30, 1962 issue of the REGISTER as "one of the first Negroes to break the color barrier in hiring policies of the local clothing stores, is now the only Negro employed by NEWSWEEK in New York City. Miss Hinson was an active member of the REGISTER staff before she graduated in 1963. While attending A&T College, she majored in both English and history. She served as fashion editor on the REGISTER staff for three years during which time she won several awards. Not only was she active on the REGISTER staff, but she was also a member of the Richard B. Harrison Players. For her achievements in drama, she received several trophies, pins, certificates. She also served as student correspondent for TIME and LIFE magazines.

Miss Hinson said in a recent interview that she was recommended to NEWSWEEK by Mr. E. F. Corbett, public relation officer at A&T College. Having worked for a year for NEWSWEEK, Miss Hinson has moved from copy girl to clipper to research reporter to head of the research department. She took a course in art at the Metropolitan Museum. However, her research articles have included not only art but music, education, science, medicine, and press conferences.

In her work, she has met President L. B. Johnson, Vice President Hubert Humphrey, the late Nat King Cole and Sam Cook, Senator Robert Kennedy, and many other interesting and important people. Miss Hinson was also fortunate enough to be on hand for the CBS coverage of the presidential elections. Her most recent research paper is entitled "Chicago Lyric Opera" covering a ten year period — 1954-64.

Although she has been offered a modeling job, she prefers to continue her career in journalism. She will be a research reporter in NEWSWEEK'S training program until 1966. After that, heretofore unknown doors may be opened to her, and she will be in position to take advantage of the advancement of opportunities in the field of journalism.

In October when Miss Hinson receives her vacation, she plans to visit the Greek Islands. When asked why she had chosen to visit the Greek Islands, Miss Hinson said that she was interested in Greek Theatre. Incidentally, while at A&T College Dr. William H. Robinson was her tutor in the area of theatrics. Presently, her main fields of interest are art and entertainment (movies and theatre).

When interviewed, Miss Hinson was visiting her parents here in Greensboro, her home. She also had made plans to attend the annual Mother's Day ceremonies held here at the college.

MISS CATHERINE A. HINSON

Organization News

Campus organizations have put final touches on their 1964-65 programs and have made plans for the coming school year.

ALPHA PHI ALPHA

The Alphas ended this school term with their annual Black and White Ball. This affair was one of the highlights of their program. The brothers of Beta Epsilon used this affair as medium for the formal presentation of their sweetheart for the coming school year. She is Patricia Lanier. Her court was provided by the Sphinx Club of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity. They were Anita Patterson, Miss Sphinx Club and Carla McLaughlin, and Doris Johnson, attendants. Music was provided by Smokey and the Tropics.

Other items on their program for the year the monthly film on topics of importance to the college student and a benefit dance for the March of Dimes.

Officers for next year will be Warren Campbell, president; Tyrone Russell, vice-president; Harvey Corbett, recording secretary; James M. Wilder, corresponding secretary; Morris Davis, treasurer; and Arthur Haley, dean of probates.

The men of Beta Epsilon Chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity take this opportunity to say Congratulations to all the graduates.

SPHINX CLUB

The Sphinx club is the pledge club for the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc. The following young men are members of the Sphinx Club: Wray Herring, William Strickland, Howard Wallace George Douglas, and Melvin Johnson.

Also included are Richard Womack, William Crawford, Stephen Wallace, Leon Kay, Ronald Scott, Marcus Street, Robert McNair, and Bernard Cockerham. These young men hope to cross the burning sands during the fall.

The sweethearts of the Sphinx Club are Anita Patterson, Sphinx Queen; Carla McLaughlin and Doris Johnson.

RICHARD B. HARRISON PLAYERS

Climaxing their program for this school year, the players had their annual awards banquet and a picnic. They also elected officers and made plans for next year. The officers are Charles Atkins Gary, Indiana, president; Willie Randolph, Elm City, vice-president; Louise Gooche, Henderson, recording secretary; Sandra Daye Greensboro, corresponding secretary; James Thorne, Elm City, treasurer; Roy C. White, Elizabeth City, parliamentarian; and Eula Battle, Whitakers, reporter.

The players expect to have as profitable a year in 1965-66 as they have had during the past school year. They plan to do four plays next year. Among them will be Inherit the Wind and A Raisin in the Sun.

AIRLINE RECRUITERS

Miss Sandy Morton, left, stewardess with Eastern Airlines, talks with A&T College seniors, Misses: Murial D. Green and Brenda Moore, concerning careers as airline stewardess, during a visit to the campus this week.

At back are: J. G. Cervini, Miami, Fla., director of stewardess recruitment and John T. Logue, New York City, public relations staff, both of Eastern Airlines.

And So Ends Another Year

By LEE A. HOUSE

All of the football games have been launched, struggled through, cheered at, and talked about. This is of course includes that 'hullabuloo' homecoming the Aggies, old and new, witnessed. These were the highlights of the fall season of the '64-65 year. The "swans" of "overcrowding" freshmen, the "wise" sophomores, the "jolly" juniors, and the "wondering" seniors over-ran the campus in September. By storms, the "wild-eyed" freshmen played the traditional roles of "rats in a maze". No one had trouble identifying everything and everybody connected with the "old pro's", the sophomores, who were bubbling over with news. The "Brown Hall visitors" who just didn't look or act like seniors, strangely, were becoming intellectuals; they were tagged juniors. The "questionable graduates," known as seniors: "super", "junior", and "scared" were readily called seniors. With the coming and going of distinguished visitors, convocation, Thanksgiving, quarter exams, astonishing grades, an abundance of other notables characterized the Fall of '64 at the big "T".

Spangling the spicy winter months, the Aggies were pally down to business; eager beavers, we were. The freshmen underwent a transformation from wild-eyed to starry-eyed. The sophomores grew ever-wiser as the juniors "maintained their cool" while they intellectualized. The seniors grew more shaky—to graduate or not to graduate; that was the question. The fall quarter grade list had been spied upon. The honor roll was at an ebb. The freshmen had two alternatives: claim stupidity, or make use of the defense mechanism known as rationalization (the campus was too big, or we just weren't adjusted). No freshman made the "A" honor roll; only 13 appeared on the honor roll at large. The "F's" habituated or carried the majority on nearly every level; however, they served as stimuli for harder work not just stimuli of the past.

The most conducive period for "drop-outs", "love-birds", "the making of 'f's'", "day dreams, and nearly any and everything but "hard-down study" is tagged the spring quarter in Aggieworld. Amazing enough, we studied diligently during the spring quarter. For healthy changes of pace, however, the Aggies flocked to or out on the "campus green", the canteen, the baseball games, the spring dance, picnics and cook-outs, and surprisingly enough, the library, the classrooms, vesper services, and other academic gatherings received quite a few student patrons.

The spring quarter convocation, the Honors Day Program, was possibly second only to the inauguration. The top scholars from each department and the institution at large were honored. The inauguration and all its compliments blazed a trail as the biggest event of the year. Dr. L. C. Dowdy, sixth President of A&T, having reigned for a year, was exalted by student, faculty, alumni, and many others. Scholars from Yale University to Atlanta University were on hand to share in the history-making event. With the coming of the Marvellous Temptations, the return of the Aggie student teachers, and the student government elections, the whole campus began to lean toward that final day—that terminating day.

Whether you end the year on a note of gaiety or sadness, the end cometh. The choice is yours until the 28th day of May, 1965; and so ends another year.

Bell's Address Given At The Annual Register Banquet

My dear friends, meeting with you tonight makes me think of times past of earlier banquets and experiences which we have shared. As then, I am pleased and honored to enjoy your company. Believe me, it is wonderful to be back home with the Aggie family.

I am not a strong believer in Extra-Sensory Perception or that sort of thing, but sometimes I wonder about it, for Mrs. Marrow and staff must have sensed that there was nothing I would like better than to be on hand for this year's banquet. Needless to say, then, when the invitation to speak was extended, I literally jumped at the opportunity. I am happy to note, on the other hand, that I am listed as "main address" on the program rather than guest speaker, since in many respects I still feel very much a member of the staff; I suppose I always will. Now, those of you who know me well might know I am a man who has always preferred writing to talking — besides I think that most people get more from the small talk and gossip which go on among the tables than they do from anything the speaker might say. Yet, all things cannot be accomplished through one's preferred medium, and adjustments are always necessary. So tonight I am going to talk for a while.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS SCHOLARS PROGRAM

Since the appearance of an article in a national magazine a couple of weeks ago has created a degree of interest in my activities since this time last year, it has been suggested that I brief you on what I have been doing. Some of you might recall that at last year's banquet my acceptance into a program in foreign affairs was announced. Officially known as the Foreign Affairs Scholars Program, the program has been established through a Ford Foundation grant in cooperation with the Department of State, United States Information Agency, and the Agency for International Development. To run for four years, it is designed to attract talented students from minority groups into careers as foreign service officers with one of the three previously mentioned agencies, and it is an outgrowth of the small number of Negroes and members of other minorities who are employed in the area.

For each of the four years, forty students are selected for participation. Each is provided a ten-week work experience as an intern in one of the three agencies during the summer. Those who are retained in the program receive fellowships for graduate study in international relations, economics, and other related fields. At the end of the year, each participant takes the Foreign Service Entrance Examination administered by the Department of State. The exam has been called one of the stiffest in existence, but the examination itself is not that difficult. What makes it difficult is that is competitive, and one must compete with some of the best students from some of the best schools. Of those taking the examination (a little more than 3000 took it with me in December), approximately 21 per cent receive passing scores of 70 or better. Of this 21 per cent, approximately 5 or 6 per cent finally is selected as foreign service offices, so the process is a highly selective one. Of the forty first-year participants in our program, three of us were successful on the examination. Now the JET story is a long story, but I will make it short. It seems that JET had twice mentioned our program in not too complimentary terms, so when our director, Dr. Vincent J. Browne of Howard University, filed a vigorous protest, the article which appeared in the May 6 edition was arranged.

ON THE COVER OF JET
Appearing on the cover of a national magazine for the first time has of course been a novel and interesting experience. Not only does the cashier in the store where I purchase groceries cash my checks with no question now, but I find it to be quite a bit of fun to receive letters from people I haven't heard from in ages. You might be interested to know, by the way, that Secretary Rusk is familiar with A&T. Having gone to Davidson himself, he worked here in Greensboro during his summer vacations in one of the banks downtown.

1964-65 STAFF
But enough about me and my activities, let us turn our attention to the matters which we have really come to consider. We have gathered, as is the tradition, to pay tribute to the outgoing editor and her staff and to properly initiate the new. The remainder of what I am going to say, then, pertains to you — the old and the new. To Aloha and the working members, and I emphasize the expression "working" members, of the 1964-65 staff, I offer congratulations on having survived the last year. I am sure you understand and appreciate my use of the word "survived." As a former editor, I am all too well aware of the hectic pace your activities must have acquired. Perhaps you have not been satisfied with your production at all times; but, under the circumstances, you have done a commendable job, and I am proud of you as I am sure other members of the college family must be.

To the new editor and his staff goes the charge of responsibility for the perpetuation of a grand tradition of excellence in journalistic pursuits. Mr. Goode joins a long list of illustrious and productive editors: the Ellis Corbetts, Virgil Strouds, Warmoth Gibbs, Jr's, Albert Rozlers, and Tommy Gaddies.

To the new staff goes the responsibility of continuing something started many years ago and which continues today. It is you, the staff, of 1965-66 who must decide what role, if any, the REGISTER will continue to play in an ever-changing academic and collegiate environment. Hopefully your answers will be positive ones, and you will decide to keep the REGISTER in the forefront of college activity. Hopefully you will say that the REGISTER's role will be extended in a vigorous and dynamic fashion. To do this, each of you must decide what the REGISTER means to you, not only as a student in the college community, or as a member of the staff, but as a mature individual who has accepted the charge of responsibility. Your decision must be based not on terms of prestige which might accrue, but on terms of sincere interest and dedication to a job well done.

FUTURE ROLE OF THE REGISTER

As a publication produced for and by the A&T community, the REGISTER is first and foremost a medium of expression and communication. As the revolts and demonstrations at the University of California and other institutions indicate, the need for both is possibly greater than ever before. A&T has fortunately not experienced the unrest and open revolt against authority on matters ranging from free speech to compulsory ROTC which have characterized other campuses this year. Hopefully it will not. Let it be hoped that A&T will experience a level-headed and orderly consideration of changes and the need for them. In this respect, the REGISTER can and should play an indispensable role by keeping channels of objective communication open. The college newspaper can be the best and least expensive means of informing the college community of changes which affect it. Furthermore, it may serve as the medium through which students, as well as faculty and staff, may express their views on controversial as well as less debatable matters. You, therefore, are presented a wonderful opportunity.

Yours will not, however, be an easy task. Publishing a weekly can be, and usually is, hard work. By this time next year, many who started with you will have failed to finish. Many might find the going too rough or not be willing to make the sacrifices required, while others might not be interested to start with; those you can do without. Yours will be long hours of sometimes brainracking activities spent in preparation of editions which few might read and even fewer appreciate.

Being editor of the REGISTER or a member of the staff will be no holiday, as many of you will soon discover. Many times, if not most, the sole response from your reading public will be one of severe criticism rather than praise. Many times you might be asked "When is the next paper being published or why isn't the paper ever on time, Rarely however will you be asked, "Is there anything I can do to help," Rarely, if ever, will you receive letters to the editor or information without soliciting.

Many times you will have to contend with petty people with petty ideas. Needless to say, these and other experiences all contribute to a feeling of frustration and depression. You might find, for instance, that your bed hour has been pushed up, or that you will end up doing layout rather than doing tomorrow's assignments, or you might find your self dozing in 169 Carver instead of going to that movie with your best girl. Then too, it is of little consolation to be reminded, by the way, that a survey conducted by the Associated Collegiate Press in 1963 revealed that of all student leaders, editors of college newspapers lost more in terms of grade averages, weight sleep, etc. during their tenure than any other group. It is little consolation to learn that editor's spend more time on the job than other student leaders, that for many it means a forty-hour work week or more. Having lost 10 pounds myself last year, along with a couple of grade points, I can vouch for the validity of that survey.

PASSING OF STAFF

Yet, the job must be done; it is not an impossible one. It can and must be done; in the jargon of show business, "the show must go on." I tell you these things not to scare you but to let you know in advance what you face. The job requires great expenditures of time and effort, but it is interesting, can be exciting, and is fun. Someone must do it, and since you are intelligent, able and willing, you will do it.

Tonight you accept that responsibility with the passing of the staff. Significantly the staff is always pointing forward signifying progress or forward movement. Just as the REGISTER has progressed over its 72 years of existence, hopefully the coming year I note the same trend. Perhaps staff will accomplish something which no other has done. Perhaps you will achieve an All American Honor rating or the highest award. To you, then, go not on a charge of responsibility but my best wishes for a successful year.
