Greetings:

"As our Christmas Season approaches, I extend to every student a very warm and heart felt wish for a very Merry Christmas and innumerable blessings during the New Year. As you depart from our campus for the holidays, it is my hope that you will take every safety precaution necessary to protect and return you to the Aggie Family in good spirits with both healthy attitude and healthy body on January 3, 1966.

You know that Mrs. Dowdy and I will miss you greatly from the campus during your period of vacation. Therefore, we will be waiting eagerly for your return. BEST WISHES FOR A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR."

Yours truly,
President and Mrs. Lewis Dowdy
Peace On Earth?

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

The whole ideal of Christmas is embodied in this verse from the scriptures. From the very beginning praising was expected to be of God for gifts given to the Christ child. He taught His son that no man might have a right to life after death, a being greater than himself to believe in, and a counselor and comforter in time of strife.

As His Son, whose birthday we celebrate at Christmas, the Christ child showed His "good will toward men" and to promote peace among them. Has "The Prince of Peace" failed so miserably? Today there is war and bloodshed in Vietnam. Almost every toy ever designed is now a deadly weapon: bombs, planes, war tanks, guns, rifles, and many other implements for destruction.

Does this embrace or enhance the idea of "peace on earth, good will toward men"? Should not adults, especially parents, be the first to explain to their young, and meant for men of all ages? The peaceful Christmas spirit that man really has no built-in weapons of destruction such as lances, claws, horns or antlers, and that his weapons of spirit and love to his neighbors? Yet, how can one teach peace successfully in the midst of destruction?

Each year, we see mankind straying further and further from the real meaning of Christmas. Christmas decorating and shopping begin before Thanksgiving. One writer describes the Christmas season as one which "aglow with time for love, and glee, a time of good cheer and the symphony of cash register bells. It is prefaced by a frantic spurt of Christmas shopping and followed by the bitterness of broken toys and unsold bills."

Has mankind forgotten that first Christmas must have been like? One cannot re-capture that sense of expectancy — the promise that came with the Christ child? Instead of giving in to the commercialism so prevalent during this season, mankind must use it to promote the family. Ask your children to understand why so much explaining is necessary for harmless toys that Santa brought; or say nothing; children never would think of using any destructive weapon — boy or otherwise — to destroy. Would they?

Surely, it is a progressive approach to achieve a positive end. Tell the child that the brain which allows man to think and maneuver gave birth to the destructive weapons which he now possesses. Beside him that Christmas is a time for praise, exchange of gifts, and — most important — a time for love. Assure him that the toys which Santa brought him are just that — toys. Tell him that he is not a deadly weapon, and ask him to understand why so much explaining is necessary for harmless toys that Santa brought; or say nothing; children never would think of using any destructive weapon — boy or otherwise — to destroy. Would they?

By the time a person reaches the age of a college student it is generally thought that he knows how to act like an adult. But this is not always the case. Many students spend more time on the campus black and other places than they do on campus. And yet, it is these same students that cry the blues when they fail a course. Leisure hours will be greater as students grow up and attend the courses.

Students Prepare To Celebrate Christmas

Christmas is approaching fast and New Year’s Day is just around the corner. While the commercial world surrounding us is busy decorating and preparing for the gay festivities of the holiday, colleges and universities alike are closing to join in the various activities con- cerning the celebration of the birth of Jesus Christ.

As we celebrate this birthday, let us recall the message of the angel brought to the shepherds in the fields during the first Christmas: “Glory to God in the highest, Peace on earth goodwill to men.”

This message today is as impor- tant to mankind as it was to the men who heard it first many years ago during the first Christmas season.

Therefore, as we depart to cele- brate Christmas and the New Year, let us think of the true meaning of the holiday season; for today there is a great need for peace and un- derstanding to balance the evils of the world.

Seasons greetings and best wish- es for a prosperous New Year.

using a syllabus and regulations more flexible than those of any other department on the campus. For instance, the instructors have the privilege of extending or shortening class as they please. The classes on the other hand, maintain classes as often as it is necessary.

Unfortunately, I haven't had time to observe all the classes of this wide educational branch. Nevertheless, from what I saw, I can say that being a part of a place where one can go to something is something of the utmost importance. Learning is growing very popular. Furthermore it is the only department in which students don't have to worry about reading books or flunking.

and after some discussion by staffers, the Student Government minute book was printed without alteration.

From the minutes which were released for publication there is no indication as to what action was taken on committee reports. Notice there is no either indication of what the committee reports and since certain committees did report. Course of action to be taken or progress made is not discussed.

The following questions might arise concerning items set forth in the Student Government minutes:

How are Student Government leaders? What is the procedure regarding formal ball for the Student Government leaders? What was said about the future of this wide educational branch. Unfortunately, I didn't have a chance to read the minutes as they were published.

A&T's defending CIAA basketball champs finally jumped into the win column Saturday night by wallop­ping Saint Augustine's by a score of 120-46. A&T displayed the fine form that powered them to the conference title last year.

Robert Saunders, Aggie play­maker and captain, led the scorers as he burned the nets for 24 points. His highest total thus far this year.

Second-year man Sylvester Adams pumped in 23 points and James Wrobler and Anthony Skinner scored 12 and 14 points respectively.

A&T completely outclassed the Aggies as they hit all shots from the floor compared with Saint Augustine's 21. It was this accurate shooting and board control that enabled the Aggies to take an early lead and stretch it giving Coach a chance to use his reserves.

The Aggies are now 3-0 for the season.
