College Reflects

Shallow Opinions

On Viet Nam War

By LEW HUN, JR.

Though the tide of criticism and agitation over the war in Viet Nam has subsided, in part, the war itself continues. From seamy installations and hills of victory, the media continue to remind us that the United States is leaving blood, and in likely that the conflict will allow a permanent cease fire. Thus, the new year spells continued war in Viet Nam and accompanying concern around the globe.

Approximately a month ago, we witnessed the appearance of an article titled "A Life Sentence in Viet Nam" (Dec. 16, 1965) which was an expression of some of the concerns of the students of the College. This article reflected the concerns of the students of the College. As this reporter suspects, the article appeared in the campus newspaper, The Ramsey Lewis Trio, "an essentially cheerful, optimistic group. This may lead to the A&T College student body on February 17 in Harrison auditorium. Even though Ramsey is the natural pace of the group, El Dee and Red's talent is eagerly displayed. Thus, these three groups are among the country's most exciting performers of soul music.

Governor Moore Urges Students

To Join Program

Governor Dan K. Moore recently urged college students interested in state government to apply for the 1966 summer Internship Program. In announcing the 1966 Internship Program, Governor Moore stated that twenty-five North Carolina college students will be selected to participate in the eleven-week program. Students will attend an orientation program and then work for ten weeks in selected state departments while attending evening classes on the North Carolina State campus.

To be eligible, students (1) must have satisfactorily completed three years of college, (2) must be residents of North Carolina, and (3) must be currently enrolled in a college or university either within or outside the state.

The State Internship Program will begin June 7, and continue through August 19, 1966. Students will be paid $75.00 a week while employed.

Governor Moore stated that he had asked the Institute of Government to be responsible for administering the internship program. The Institute has been preparing the program since it was established in 1962. Students will be selected for the program by a committee including prominent professors of political science and government teaching in North Carolina colleges and universities.

Students interested in applying for the Internship Program may secure applications from college placement officers, departments of business, government, history, or political science in North Carolina colleges and universities, local chapters of the National C.F. E. S. A. (National Congress of Students and Teachers) of the N.C. E. A. (National Congress of D.A.T. (National Congress of C.A.T.), and the North Carolina State Personnel Department.

Applications must be mailed to the Institute of Government, Chapel Hill, N.C., before February 15, 1966.
A LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Increased Price - Injustice!

EDITOR OF THE REGISTER!

This letter is in regard to the new food service which recently began on our campus. First of all, I would like to say that the food and service are very good; but, as is true of most any department, I feel an injustice has been done to the off-campus student.

As the price of the meal books has not gone up, the price of the individual meal has. An off-campus student does not need a meal book because he knows, of course, that what he eats will not exceed the amount on his meal book. The take-out service also makes it possible for the student to have more than one meal a day and be able to save money. The meal book is for students who plan to eat their meals at the low-dorm-student rate.

Although the price of the meal book has not gone up, some other services have, and quite a bit, I should say. The cost of a meal at the dining hall, which includes soft drinks, extra cheese, and two rolls (true-false, multiple-choice), correct interpretation of the question as you read, this key word or phrase should be jotted down as you go along; however, these questions should not claim all of your attention. Ample time should be allowed to the secondary questions. It is generally better to answer the less difficult questions first. Extra time may be used to complete difficult answers or to check the accuracy of answers before passing in exams.

Often students lose credit because they fail to read a question carefully or because they fail to follow directions. In reading a question, students should watch for such words as key, central, essential, significant, questions is essential.

A good practice is to read through the entire examination before answering the questions. You may be able to eliminate some of the questions as you go along; however, you may also find that some questions on the exam offer clues to the answers of other questions. This time is very valuable. As you read a question, key word or phrase should be jotted down as you go along; however, these questions should not claim all of your attention. Ample time should be allowed to the secondary questions. It is generally better to answer the less difficult questions first. Extra time may be used to complete difficult answers or to check the accuracy of answers before passing in exams.

If you have taken examinations before and drawn a complete blank, you should take care that you "overlearn" the material to be covered on an examination. If you study beyond the point where you are sure of the material, you may easily overcome such mental blocks. As a student stumps you, go on to the next question and come back later. Generally, if you begin to write, your thoughts will begin to flow.

Prepare throughout the semester for your final exams. Be sure to allow plenty of time to review at the end of the semester so that you will be sure of the material to be covered. If you wait until the night before exams and try to "cram", you will probably fail. The exam which does not require preparation, the intent of this editorial is to be sure anyone with a good solution is asking for guessing.

The art of taking an examination is the ability to make calm and efficient with the questions confronting you. Because a time limit is set, main questions (those which are allotted the most value) should receive top priority; however, these questions should not claim all of your attention. Ample time should be allowed to the secondary questions. It is generally better to answer the less difficult questions first. Extra time may be used to complete difficult answers or to check the accuracy of answers before passing in exams.

The Mixed-Up World Of Men And Women Dress

NEW YORK (AP) — Men’s and women’s clothes are becoming increasingly interchangeable, but that doesn’t mean men are becoming more effeminate and women masculine.

It is a product of a new kind of relationship among young men and women, one in which the president of the Center for Research in Marketing, Inc., Peekskill, N.Y., and the National Retail Merchants Association.

Particularly among the young, women have become individuals to be valued as much than man.

“Every woman would cut her hair this way if she saw how easy it is,” says Anna Lenz of Munich. To contrast her closed cropped hair, she wears makeup that takes an hour to put on.

“Men love my hair short,” says Sassoon model, Judy Mursch, 23, of Copenhagen, Denmark. “They rub their hands in it. They can’t believe it.”

Lynchburg, Va. (AP) — Allen Parks, a 6-foot-2, 225-pound tackie and academic whiz at Lynchburg's Chilhowie High School, has become the first Negro to sign a football grant-in-aid with Duke University.

Parks, who plans to study law, announced last night he has ac­cepted Duke's offer of a four-year athletic scholarship. Duke officials said they were greatly pleased.

"It's a good boy, a very good boy," said Eddie Cameron, Duke athletic director, who is attending the NCAA meeting in Washington. He confirmed that the Blue Devils have tried hard to recruit Parks.

Duke has Negro students, some on academic scholarships. One is a starter on the Duke freshman basketball team. But the university, a member of the Atlantic Coast Conference, never before has offered an athletic scholarship to a Negro. Parks has an academic average of 90 at Dunbar, where he will graduate this spring, and is pres­i­dent of the senior class. He was recruited by Carl James, assistant coach and head recruiter at Duke.
