"From Little Acorns--"

"From little acorns, big oak grows." So has the origin and growth of Mother's Day celebration progressed. A day set aside to pay tribute to mothers has its origin in a small informal memorial meeting.

The original idea is generally credited to Miss Anna M. Jarvis (1864-1948) whose mother died on May 9, 1906. In 1907, a small memorial gathering was arranged by Miss Jarvis. A church service was held in her native home town — Grafton, West Virginia — in 1907. Following this observance of Mother's Day, Jarvis began the observance on May 10, 1908, and Pennsylvania proclaimed it a state holiday in 1913.

To extend the celebration of Mother's Day, Miss Jarvis wrote thousands of letters to influential men and interviewed them about the possibility of national observance. After all these efforts, the answer to her plans was received on May 10, 1913 when the U.S. Congress made Mother's Day a national holiday to be observed in May. The President had signed an act of Congress.

In the subsequent years, it became customary for sons and daughters to wear pink carnations if their mother were alive and white if she were dead. Through the years, red carnations have been substituted for pink carnations. The white carnation, signifying sweetness, purity and endurance, was adopted as the official floral emblem by declaration of Congress.

As celebrations for honoring your mother begin, keep in mind that mothers are made of many ingredients. Above all, their place in a small memorial gathering is arranged by Miss Jarvis. A church service was held in her native home town — Grafton, West Virginia — in 1907. Following this observance of Mother's Day, Jarvis began the observance on May 10, 1908, and Pennsylvania proclaimed it a state holiday in 1913.

The polls are now closed and next year's campus leaders have been elected. Naturally, there will be the usual amount of people who will be running for office. There are probably many students who will be attending the next year's campus leaders. Some of them have gone to the extent of paying high fashion. "You don't have to have a lot of money to be chic," Debbie continued. "Many women who spend great sums on their clothes are lucky. Knowing how to dress, having a good knowledge of fashion, is enough. From example, from the leadership of others who express their good taste." If a student hardest lessons to learn is how to shop. When I first had a contract and my own money I filled my closet with clothes that I liked. I didn't have to pay anything. At that point I had not learned how to shop. I failed to learn the art of fashion. I should have learned not to fall for the fashion magazines. Some women find it difficult to shop and dress for themselves. Perhaps they are not cling­ing to the idea of being beautiful. If they are not cling­ing to the idea of being beautiful, they had not yet had the confidence to take stock of themselves. They are not yet ready to be free. There is a need for time to time to check your habits and ask yourself if the style of your hair and dress are right for you.

Avoid Fashion's Booby Traps

Hollywood — Can tiny girls follow in the footsteps of the stars? Debbie Kowalski says no, yes. "But you have to work harder all the time," she says. "You have to have it made or it's your only defensive line to your proportions or have it ordered in a big way."

Debbie was wearing an attractive pink coat with black buttons. "I've been a fashion reporter for 20 years," she said. "And it's true, it's a lot easier to shop if you have a little money." She continued that after being so long in convertibles for "The Singing Nun" she has a real flair for the "little girl" style of dress. "You don't have to have a lot of money."

Some women find it difficult to shop and dress for themselves. They are not yet ready to be free. They are not yet ready to be free. There is a need for time to time to check your habits and ask yourself if the style of your hair and dress are right for you.

There are certain age barriers in fashion. For instance, "Youth has always dressed in different ways than the rest of the world," said a fashion expert. "But as you get older, your dress andyour habits change. There is a need for time to time to check your habits and ask yourself if the style of your hair and dress are right for you.

Students Receive Messages From Viet Nam

As I said I'm somewhat short in education myself. I was sent to the students of A&T 17th Avn. Co., 1st Cav. Div. (Air Borne) along with supporting the 4th Infantry Division and the 1st Air Cavalry Division. This will be my first year overseas and I must say that it is getting hotter every day. The temperature during the day ranges from the high 80's to the mid 90's. And with the coming of summer, it's going to get worse, especially here (summer) here and the weather is nothing like home, but then we have use of the typewriter. The only bad thing about working nights is you don't have to worry about any short in education myself. I was sent to the students of A&T 17th Avn. Co., 1st Cav. Div. History Session Presents Papers

At Social Science

Teacher Confab

The Thursday History Session of the Thirty-First Annual National Association of Social Science Teachers and of the National Con­vention of Sigma Sigma Honor Social Science Fraternity was held in room 11 Hodgin Hall from 2 P.M. until 4 P.M.

Proving over the session were Mr. Louis G. McDonald, president, and George Breathett of Tennessee State University, and Bennett College respectively.

"The Negro Soldier In The American Civil War" was the topic of Paper I, by Mrs. Burns Williamson of Dudley High School at Greensboro.

Following this paper a question and answer period was held to allow persons attending the session to get a clear understanding of the position the paper took.

The highlight of the paper was Paper II presented by Marcus Scott, Jr., of Tennessee State University, Mr. Scott's paper centered around the question of the Freedom's Saving Bank, as a leader of the Negro's saving banks.

It usually takes from one week to two weeks from the time a request card is returned to the in­vention. It is a long, tedious process.

As stated before, the ordering, acquisition, cataloging, and classification is a long process. Having a knowledge of the fore­ going may serve to lessen the hesitancy and disquiet of instructors and students who are tired of waiting for ordered books.
