Ag Club Prexy Attends Convention
Returns To Map Plans For Year

Roy J. Williams from Warsaw, junior agricultural economics major, attended the Annual American Farm Economics Association Convention held on the campus of the University of Maryland, College Park, Maryland, August 23-24, 1966. Roy is a member of the Agricultural Economics Club here at A&T, a student leader of 32 collegiate chapters in the United States and Canada, and is a member of the American Farm Economics Association.

The purpose of the convention was to give undergraduate Agricultural Economics majors the opportunity to meet others from various institutions and to participate in (1) public debates, (2) a speakers' forum, (3) an economics quiz, and (4) essay contests related to agricultural economics. A number of addresses were also given by representatives from governmental and private agencies.

It was the first time that A&T College was represented at such a convention. Approximately 250 persons attended and most of the students were from the larger universities.

Roy is president of the Agricultural Economics Club, and, at a recent meeting, he gave the challenge for the coming year to the membership.

Intellectual Power

With today's emphasis on power of every hue and color, it was inevitable that, at last Tuesday's convocation, Dr. Dowdy would propose a redirection to the quest for intellectual power.

His list of nine elements included in this power is indeed impressive. These elements he called powers of creativity, judgment, analysis, evaluation, self control, perseverance, imagination, motivation, and a sense of humor. Each of these, separately, are desirable attributes; together, they make the possessor invincible.

That there is a need for a redirection to the quest for intellectual power is more evident than in the reference to individuals with the potential, who reach the bast-off stage but whose rockets fail to leave their pads.

At A&T, every student has the potential for intellectual power, but for those who do, now is the time and this is the place.

Let us begin now to try to develop in substantial degree the elements which assure the full realization of the ultimate intellectual potentials that we possess.

This must be the goal of every Aggie. This is the objective of every scholar.

Conventions

Conventions have affected man for at least six centuries. It is one of the few times that the A&T College community comes together with one objective in mind—the redirection of itself to the tasks of teaching and of learning.

Although the word is not a large word, it has far reaching effects, and it has survived at least 500 years. Such a long period of time attests to the strength of the word which is still popular throughout the nation.

GUEST EDITORIAL

Freshmen, Be Strong

By George Johnson, ’70

Judging from experience a person could justly say that the A&T freshman is the most confused person in the country. He has hit the slopes and has been told he is tomorrow's leader of men.

He is convinced he will carry the weight of the world's problems on his shoulders. The freshman is inspired; he feels confident. But how long will it last?

It takes a great speaker to make a lasting impression on a young mind, and even his inspirational talks have to be boosted from time to time. What has taken a speaker hours to build up can be blown down by a few seconds in the upperclassmen with loose tongues. Humiliation and shame can ruin a man's ego and pride. And it certainly won't help a confused freshman if he is really strong, he starts over and gains experience from such things, but if he's weak, he could be ruined forever.

A recent release by a North Carolina State University anthropologist has given something new in the study of prehistoric Negro life forms.

For the first time, the publication, titled "Race and Race Determination," lists a unique individuality of the quarry, the name of the quarry is "Terry's Kit." This is a tragic low to the predominately Negro institution that has been "in the quarry for years.

Friedrich P. Wallace of the North Carolina State University to a research study released last semester the mean scores of North Carolina students on the National Police Examination (NPE). Of the more than thirty-three participating institutions, it was shown that all predominantly white schools scored higher than any predominantly Negro institution.

To be sure, Duke University had a national average number one with an average score of 600 out of a possible 650. The University of North Carolina Chapel Hill, U. N. C. G., and Wake Forest followed with scores of 592, 582, and 580 respectively.

The Negro Colleges, which took the floor; received an average score of 411, while North Carolina College, J. C. C. to the world with 480, 430, and 440, respectively.

Regardless of the shadow, these scores certainly reflect something, that something being, it seems, the fruits of a solid system of education; a solidified crop by nearly any standard. The system was initiated by the case of Plessy v. Ferguson through which the Supreme Court sanctioned the "separate but equal" doctrine in 1896.

The Negro College, the majority of conventional white colleges, Negro society, has made great strides since the time of General Armistice, and Booker T. Washington of the revised Education and Thurgood's Institute, but still lags behind the desegregation and expectations of "The Great Society." The Negro College of "twelve years" with its main function of preparing Negro students has its four-year standards of modern education and has scored in excess of its standards of production.

Wading the right grove or the institution, the question is: What are the causes of the different levels? What are the remedies, what is the future? The informed analyst would say that what is seen, however, that score in the 600's in comparison with those in the 800's in the country, is the reality of any system. Presently, North Carolina colleges and teachers education remains the same.

One might think that the only function of a college choir is merely to sing at our worship services and as a social club. However, there are several specific functions of the choir that the casual observer may not be equal to.

The members learn songs for entertainment; but at the same time learn about music and singing with the "art" of "art," thereby grasping the beauty of the note forms about artful singing. Mr. Howard H. Pickels, chairman of the A&T Department and director of the choir, says that the purpose of the choir is "to introduce the members of the college to the world of music and to the varied repertory of the styles of music from the fifteenth century to the present works of the masters.

Being a member of the choir, one learns just what singing entails: posture, vocal formation, sense, acceptable diction, and especially, mood. Mood is of great importance because if one is able to "feel" the mood of a song, be it happy or sad, solemn or sacred, then his perception of the song becomes more acute even if the music is being done in a foreign tongue.

A second function of the choir is to instruct the student in such a way that, when he leaves the College, he will be able to sing in church choirs, the military and churches, and be able to expose others to the more important aspects of artistic singing.

In the choir "we educate ourselves, the public in what is good in choral music" commented Mr. Pickels. Concluding, he said that emphasis is placed on the major choral works—such as cantatas and symphonies. Variety is stressed in that one becomes not only familiar with one phase of the musical realm but with "talk oriented tunes, madrigals, Broadway tunes, and the songs of world, religions, and other languages. Anyone who attended last year's spring concert will probably remember that variety of this type was achieved.

All of the newly elected officers of the choir realize that they have responsibilities. This is still another function—that is empowering the students into competent leaders so that they will be able to become leaders in their communities, and possibly on an even wider scale.

The officers are Robert Powell, president; Robert Thomas, vice-president; Wm. B. Peck, secretary; Claudia Foster, treasurer; and Josephine Stinson, social chairman.

With the 1966-67 season just under way, the choir has already presented Gilbert and Sullivan's "Trial by Jury", programs in the future will include the production of "Guys and Dolls", the annual Carmen de Cid Concert, and the Annual Spring Concert. The tour program will also be observed this year, commenting on the tour program, Mr. Pickels said that this program helps to provide the members of the choir with a great deal of exposure to different cultures.

Swing jazz and the 1920's

By BILL R. ADAMS

Special thanks should be given to the efforts of jazz patrons Jean Handy and Donald Thompson, and to political science professor Alan Rosenthal, who took notice of this excellence and requested that it be published in The Register.

The pool was officially opened on Sunday, May 15, at the Central Hotel. The opening ceremony was attended by Mayor John B. Hahn, bassist Donald Thompson, and Handy's piano player, War. The pool was ready for use when he only had to wait for the weather to clear up.

There are also opportunities for students interested in religious studies, and Italian for students interested in Italian culture. The pool is located on the campus of Florida State University, and contains a variety of water-based activities such as swimming, aquatics, and water sports.

In the song "If Only We Knew," Hahn was as skillful at capturing the beauty of the moment as Handy was at making it meaningful. By BILL R. ADAMS

A&T Wins First CIAA Football Clash

By THOMAS ALLEN

A&T College, after a pounding defeat by Tennessee A&T last week, before bouncing back to hand the Johnson C. Smith Bulls their third defeat in three games. The Aggie offense, led by quarter- back Craig Sills, scored early in the first quarter on a two-yard run by Coleman Tall, their muscular fullback. The JSU Bulls came back with two touchdowns to make the score 13-7. The Bulls were sparked by their quarterback who did a tremendous job keeping their offense firing from a painful leg injury received in the opening scrambling. That's all behind him now; and he will get his first real action against the Norfolk State Spartans this week to Bert Piggott, head football coach for the A&T Aggies.

Bethea Is "Mean" On The Field

"Elvin Bethea is fully healed and ready to play football." That was good news which came directly from Bert Figgatt, head football coach for the A&T Aggies. Bethea, the star tackle with the Aggies, is the anchor man in the usually strong A&T line. A junior, at 6'3", 225 pounds, he packs tremendous wallop in the Aggie defense and is equally effective on offense in opening gaps for his ball carriers. He could conceivably become one of the all-time great tackers to wear the blue and gold.

Bethea, as rough and tough as they come, loves football as a contact sport. He likes to block and frequently throws the key ones to shake loose his runners. He is hardly ever satisfied with one block on a single play, but will retrieve and go for another if he thinks that a second might help. It often does.

The point is, Bethea believes that football is a contact sport and feels that he must make effective contact with the man who is his opponent. That has included his "mean" on the football field.

Bethea has been limping during most of the training season, suffering from a painful leg injury received in the opening scrambling. That's all behind him now; and he will get his first real action against the Norfolk State Spartans this week to Bert Piggott, head football coach for the A&T Aggies.
