Lutheran Student Center Opens On Bluford Street

Perhaps many of you who walk by the big white house across the street from Bluford Hall and have noted the sign with Lutheran Student Center written on it, and you may have asked yourself just what, who, and what purpose this center serves. The Lutheran Student Center is a ministry of the Lutheran church in the campus community. The services and activities there seek to aid college students in finding theological, spiritual, and social stability. The Christian Gospel is applied to the problems of the college mind and to the college situation.

The schedule of activities at present include Wednesday evening devotion sessions from 9:30-10:30 p.m. After several weeks have been scheduled, the first titled, “Light of the Path,” starring Sidney Pollard to be held on Sunday, October 30 at 7:30 p.m. This movie is free and all students are welcomed.

In the near future, a full-time pastor will be coming, and the center will be open regularly for studying, and other programs. At present, the devotions and classes are being led by Thomas Johnson, a seminarist on leave, working towards his Master’s Degree at UNC-G. He is also an assistant in the English Department at UNC-G.

The leaders at the center are asking for and will appreciate any help from the students on campus because of the many problems they are having because of the absence of a full-time pastor.

Dr. Dowdy Outlines Plans To Raise Standards

President L. C. Dowdy cited the production of excellence in school as the “prime job” of A&T College at the meeting of the college board of trustees last week.

Dr. Dowdy outlined a series of programs which will ultimately result in the rise of admission standards for students and the upgrading of the faculty.

According to Dr. Dowdy, the graduation plan is scheduled to rise by degrees over the next several years.

"IF OUR THINKING is that it would be a mistake to suddenly raise the standards to the climax that half the students would be rejected."

Such a move, he continued, "would perhaps deny an education to many students who may develop as excellent citizens."

To this end, he said, certain faculty members are being specifically designated "to return to graduate school to complete requirements for the doctorate, or to quality them for the respective areas in which they are teaching."

The program is being financed from faculty contributions, church and friends of the college.

Other programs aimed at raising the level of scholarship include:

Continuation of summer school for upwards of 100 selected high school seniors of unusual academic promise who “will turn the mediocre of our graduating class.”

A special study of freshmen to discover as rapidly as possible the students who do not have basic ability to do college work, so that they may begin some other program earlier rather than later.

This “escalation” process will continue through 1970.

Dr. Dowdy outlined a program to improve the level of instruction also in such a way, especially in areas where more strength is needed."

Dr. Dowdy reported that to this end, he said, certain faculty members are being specifically designated “to return to graduate school to complete requirements for the doctorate, or to qualify them for the respective areas in which they are teaching.”

In the near future, a full-time assistant in the English Department will be serving as a speaker on writing, and a participant with the National Council of Teachers of English. Mrs. Copeland received a certificate for her outstanding services of twenty years at a banquet held by the Dairy Department. Mr. Copeland has two sons, both of whom are married — Dr. Frank Robinson, Jr., an education representative from the School of Education, and Mrs. Copeland’s daughter, Mrs. W. Copeland, early this month at Shiloh Baptist Church in Greensboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Spurgeon Copeland recently visited the College. Mr. Copeland, former business manager of The Register, is presently employed in Plainfield, N. J.

Copedland-Robinson Speak Vows At Shiloh Baptist Church

Mrs. Catherine H. Robinson was united in marriage to Mr. Horace W. Copedland early this month at Shiloh Baptist Church in Greensboro.

Mrs. Copeland is presently serving as a full-time student on the Teaching Education Committee in the School of Education and General Studies.

She is serving as an adviser to the Cape Fear College women’s group for the past three years. She served four years as chairman of the Freshman English Committee. This is her second year as a representative from the School of Education and General Studies to the college council and her third year as an adviser to the Junior Affiliates of the National Council of Teachers of English.

Mrs. Copedland completed her undergraduate studies at Shaw University and her graduate studies at A & T College.

She was a participant with the 1964 Rockefeller and Carnegie Institute at Indiana University. Bloomington, Indiana. Mrs. Copedland has served as a speaker on several occasions for college-sponsored activities such as the Women’s Council Luncheon and at the Wilmington Senior High School and at the Wilmington Junior College where she served as a panel member of English, speech, and drama.

By her previous marriage, Mrs. Copedland has two sons, both of whom are married — Mr. Frank Robinson, Jr., an education representative from the School of Education, and Mrs. W. Copeland, early this month at Shiloh Baptist Church in Greensboro.

Mr. Copedland is superintendent of the A & T Dairy Plant where he has been working for the past twenty-five years. In 1950, Mr. Copedland received a certificate for his outstanding services of twenty years at a banquet held by the Dairy Department. Mr. Copedland has two children, both of whom are married and now married to children of their own. She is a graduate of Greensboro’s James B. Dudley High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Florence Copeland are residing at 1000 Broad Avenue, Greensboro.

Staffers Attend ACP Conference In Philadelphia

A delegation of ten REGISTER staffers and their adviser, Mrs. Lorena Marrow, attended the forty-second annual conference of the Associated Collegiate Press (ACP) and the National Council of College Publications Advisers (NCCPA) held at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, October 20-22.

The delegates at the convention consisted of representatives from colleges and universities throughout the nation. Approximately 1300 attended the convention.

The group was able to participate in sectional meetings aimed at the improvement of local college newspapers. The leaders of the sectional meetings were composed of prominent journalists and newspaper advisers.

The initial meeting of the conference was opened by Professor Fred L. Kildow, director of ACP. The speaker for the occasion was Mr. Charles Kuralt, CBS New York Correspondent and former editor of the Daily Tarheel. Mr. Kuralt discussed one of our current world problems — the war in Viet Nam.

Friday's session was highlighted by an awards luncheon. Awards were presented to Pacemaker newspapers by the American Newspaper Publishers Association. Among those newspapers receiving this award was THE DAILY TARHEEL of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The NCCPA presented the Distinguished Service to Journalism Award and the High School and Collegiate Journalism in the Nation Award.

Speaker for the luncheon was Charles Ferguson, senior editor, Reader's Digest. Mr. Ferguson related the life of Horace Greeley to journalism. He gave a biographical sketch of Greeley's life. Mr. Ferguson pointed out that Greeley had certain characteristics which must be employed by today's journalists. He listed these characteristics as a sense of order, a stickler for great details, a sense of timing, a sense of talent, but, most of all, a willingness to take personal responsibility for what one says.

He summed up Greeley's life by quoting Greeley himself: "To write nobly is better than to rule."

The delegates were entertained at a convention dance by Joe Martin and his orchestra on Friday night.

Following sectional meetings on Saturday, the convention adjourned. The ACP-NCCPA has released plans that the 1967 convention will be held at Chicago (Conrad-Hilton Hotel, October 19-21.

Delegates from the REGISTER included Eula Battle, Diane Bannister, Gracie Mebane, Ida V. Sellers, Stanley Johnson, Lee A. House, Jr., Earnest Fulton, William Adams, Dennis Fairley, and Jesse Lanier.
The Staff And ACP

With freedom, there is responsibility; with privilege, with privilege, with privilege.

Several members of The Register staff attended the ACP conference in Philadelphia mainly because of certain sacrifices the Register is privileged to make.

The Register is the voice of the campus. It is heard throughout the nation because of an exchange program between college newspapers; therefore, it is the responsibility of The Register staff to see that the news which is printed is representative of an educational situation. The staff has the responsibility of determining whether the public has a right to know and if it needs to know certain details concerning certain topics.

The very presence of the staff is proof enough that the public can benefit from the conference program, it was decided that the staff would be chosen and take the young men. The young ladies and faculty advisor traveled by train. The trip to the 1966 ACP conference involved responsibility, privilege, and sacrifice for The A&T College Register staff.

Homecoming is Here

It is now time for the "chickens to come home to roost." Homecoming is here, and so are a substantial number of the A. & T. alumni. School spirit is at an all-time high.

Students, faculty, and alumni are here for a week of fun and frolic; yet, this is the time when students should, themselves, be at their best.

The desire to win is present in each of us at this time, but we must not forget that victory is not just that which is won in competition. We desire to win cause us to be bad sports. Nor should we allow our desire to "party" make this homecoming a "home-goneing."

Through the years, young adults have been given more and more responsibilities. We can accept these responsibilities if we are willing not to abuse our privileges as set forth by this institution.

A. & T. has undergone many changes over the years. The student newspaper has undergone many changes also. This is a week for fun and frolic; yet, this is the time when students should, themselves, be at their best.

1901 Graduate Makes Return For Alma Mater's Homecoming

One of the oldest, living graduates of A&T College, returned "home" two weeks early for the college's annual homecoming celebration, but for October 29th.

Rev. Arthur E. Rankin, Philadelphia, Pa., a graduate of the class of 1901, now a retired minister and author, came early. He explained, to observe the college in operation, the progress it has made over the last half-century and to renew acquaintances with friends of long standing. "I plan to sit in on some classes," added Rev. Rankin.

Now 87, Rev. Rankin last year celebrated his 50th anniversary of service in the ministry; and, with his wife, their golden wedding anniversary.

A native of nearby Brown Summit, he said he intends to "make" that also includes the homecoming ball, set for the Greensboro Coliseum on Saturday night, and to renew acquaintance with friends.

The Katanga

On the crest of the next wave rode the Katanga from Africa. The Katanga is a "buddy printed and bordered quite a substantial which always measures precisely 63 inches."

In the United States, a 83-year-old priest, Fr. Dr. J. M. K. Katanga, the "most expert" in the cutting of the Katanga, now resides in Kansas. Of her designs Katanga says "I have always said how to work with this because it is not made from silk dollars dependent on the amount of work and the number of Katangas made to use the outfit."

It is the Katanga, believes that the African fabrics are not limited to Negroes but are for everyone.

Homecoming

In Mohair

As most of you young ladies know, mohair is the new "in thing." For young ladies that are still pondering as to what you should wear, maybe these few hints will help you in your decision.

Pictured is a two-piece gold colored suit with various colors of mohair. The jacket has three quarter length sleeves. Cloth-covered buttons are used to accent the Mohair suit which is used to complement the general outfit. The suit is a blouse or sweater. The skirt is "A" line and has a zipper at the back. Rubber, black leather gloves, bag and shoes.

RELIGION

For Whom The Bell Tolls

By Ida V. Bollers

Since when did worshiping God become the "matter of time" decision to be "decided" by the church? A "boring" task? You've heard more than a million times that the spiritual development of your life is just as important if not more important than the physical, emotional, physical, and moral development of your life. You have been made a woman and man become successful, no matter what you may have set foot in a church or not gone to any indication as to ever having played any devotional to the human being. You've witnessed their achievements to which their own skills and knowledge, and that is this "now" they are going to develop and grow? Did they come about through practice and study? Yes, this is a hobby. But perhaps not wholly.

Some may wish to go from Monday to Sunday, and often through the week, that "prayer and fasting" are the stepping stones to securing spiritual desires. According to them, going to church is the only way to achieve and gain. They say that most, if not all, problems will be solved if you only "attend church" regularly. Perhaps that can be a "conviction" or a "call to prayer"! As we read more, the church and all that stands for it is of no avail unless the individual makes and gains personal and inner satisfaction from his church. College, today, still need to strive in every way to develop their students intellectually, socially, physically, morally, and spiritually. Thus this institution feels that man's life is balanced completely by offering positive use in these areas! Are gymnastics, animal exhibitions, the agricultural exhibits, the K.K.K. Building included in the curriculum? The college needs to be a "students-only" school designed merely to occupy the students' time. The "school" must "offer the students" everything they want! Are recreation rooms, swimming pools, tennis courts, baseball diamonds, and other facilities available for the students' use? Are the college dean and faculty well equipped and to do their part in making the institution a success?

Students Spend A Day At Fair

By A. P. Bell and Mr. C. E. Dean

Miss Emery spent last Wednesday at the North Carolina State Fair. The group had an opportunity to observe as well as receive valuable information on the latest home and farm equipment.

The group itself is an interesting mixture of breeders and breeders of cattle, swine, sheep, and rabbits. They were healthily groomed and exhibited. The exhibit building had greatly expanded in recent years, according to the agricultural students. In addition to the equipment and animal exhibits, the agricultural exhibits that are on display are as follows in the state in the state are increasing rapidly.

Two interesting observations made by the group were the craft building exhibits and the K.K.K. Booth. The craft exhibit had greatly expanded. There were perusal on hand finishing stairs and painting the finished articles. The Agricultural Education Managers of the booth covered the K.K.K. and received some of their literature. The group also purchased several records so that a study can be made of the organization's program.

The trip to the fair represented the fifth time that the group has taken part to the Blue Grass.

The Would-Be-Individualist

By Evelyn Louise Parker

He speaks not what he believes but what he tells to speak.

He goes not where he wants to go but where he is told to go.

He acts not like himself but how others look at himself.

He is the would-be-individualist inhibited in every way and so inflexibly he can change nothing but his name.

He does not what he thinks, for he conforms with the crowd.

He has no philosophy other than what he has been taught.

He is the would-be-individualist inhibited in every way and so inflexibly he can change nothing but his name.

Dr. W. T. Gibbs Writes Book About History Of A&T College

On October 19, 1966, the college bookstore received a large shipment of books entitled The History of the North Carolina Agricultural and Technical College by President Emeritus Warmoth T. Gibbs. The text is to be used mainly for college reference purposes and by freshmen orientation classes in their study of A&T's heritage.

Dr. Gibbs has done a detailed study of the college in this two-hundred-and-nine-page work and covers A&T from its meager beginnings as an annex to Shaw University to its present standing in the educational world and its promise for the future. There are many persons, events, and buildings mentioned; but Dr. Gibbs pays special attention to the presidents of the college and teachers, students, and alumni that have helped to mold A&T into its present form.

There are eight pages of campus buildings and plant construction. Also included are presidential portraits and a group-shot of the present board of trustees. William C. Brown Publishing Company of Dubuque, Iowa was entrusted with the final editing and publication. As this is the most inclusive and factual history of A&T that has been attempted and completed, all interested persons associated with the college should read and become acquainted with the facts and illustrations that the Agricultural and Mechanical College for the Colored Race had to endure in the days of outright racial prejudice and injustices. In order to receive its grant as allotted by the second Morrill Act passed by the United States Congress, North Carolina had to provide a separate BUT equal institution for the colored race, one that was equivalent to the Agricultural and Mechanical College for the White race (Now the North Carolina State University at Raleigh), and thereby began what is now North Carolina A&T.

Thursday, October 20, Dr. Gibbs, in fulfilling President L. C. Dowdy's request, passed out autographed copies of the book to the Board of Trustees at their monthly meeting. Copies of the history are now on sale in the college bookstore.

Darlis Douthit
To Reign As
Miss Homecoming 1966-67

Darlis Douthit of Winston-Salem has been named Miss Homecoming 1966-67 by the campus' Letterman Club.

Miss Douthit is from Winston-Salem. A graduate of J. W. Peck High School, she is now a junior at A&T majoring in sociology. The attractive Miss Douthit stands 5' 3" at 20 years of age. Her hobbies are bowling, playing cards and listening to all forms of music.

Responsibility for the selection of Miss Homecoming are the campus Lettermans consisting of the sports stars of Aggieland. The Lettermans narrowed their scope of choices down to seven finalist from which Miss Douthit evolved as queen.

Today Campbell, president of the club and star Aggie basketball man, revealed that Miss Homecoming is selected on the basis of her character, charm, and physical attractiveness.

Darlis participated in the coronation of Miss A&T will sparkle Homecoming activities and take her unique place among the campus queens for 1966-67.

Winston-Salem Rams 56-0

Johnson Leads With 4 TD's As Defense Holds Opponents

By E. F. CORBETT

Mike Johnson, first halfback with the Aggies, scored 2 touchdowns on the first five times he got the ball to lead his team to a convincing 56-0 win over Winston-Salem State in a CIAA game on Saturday.

Johnson carried the ball twice for 66 yards, including a 27-yard sprint of 66 yards. He gained three passes for 12 yards, all of them coming in play, in the A&T offense.

Second only to Johnson's performance was the play of the Aggie defensive unit which stopped the Winston club in both efforts.

In TVA Project

Dr. Howard F. Robinson, chairman of the Agriculture Economics, has completed arrangements whereby students majoring in Agricultural Economics will be able to participate in the Tennova Valley Cooperative Training Program.

Under this program, the Department is privileged to place one student with TVA each semester.Each a student is offered the opportunity of working under the direct supervision of professional agricultural economists. This gives the student an opportunity to participate in some of the work currently being done in the field of agricultural economics. Undoubtedly, the student also learns to appreciate the importance of good personal relationship while working with other cooperative students from various sections of the country.

A cooperative student in Agricultural Economics is paid a salary at the rate of four thousand dollars per year. The Department of Agricultural Economics is endeavoring to expand this program to enable more agricultural economics majors to participate each semester.

This is Russ Kennedy of Balboa Island, California, on an in-port field trip as a student aboard Chapman College's floating campus.

The note he paused to make as fellow students went ahead to inspect Hatshepsut's Tomb in the Valley of the Kings near Luxor, he used to complete an assignment for his Comparative World Cultures professor.

Russ transferred the 12 units earned during the study-travel semester at sea to his record at Chapman.

As you read this, 450 other students have begun the fall semester voyage of discovery with Chapman aboard the U.S. RTYA AM, for which Holland-America Lines acts as a principal sponsor.

In February still another 450 will embark from Los Angeles for the spring 1967 semester, I City.
