Anniversary Plans Complete As Date Nears

Summer School Offers Plan Three New Structures Will Be Named For Early Registrations

Summer school will offer regular academic year students the opportunity to reserve class space for the summer during the period of April 17-May 16. The procedure will be similar to that used in previous years, but with some modifications.

The materials to be distributed include the reservation forms and the information sheets for students. The reservation forms will provide space for each student who will attend summer school to record his schedule for the summer, his request for housing accommodation, if desired, and, request for desired courses.

Fee Requirements

When the reservation schedule is completed, in consultation with adviser or department chairman, the student will pay a fee of $5.00 to the College Cashier, have his reservation forms stamped and deposit the form in that office. The fees collected will be credited toward the charges for attendance at summer school, but under no conditions will the fees be refundable.

A&T College will observe its 75th Diamond Anniversary during the week beginning on Monday, April 24, and culminating with a Convocation on Saturday afternoon, April 29, at 2:30 P.M.

The Convocation, to feature the dedication and naming of three new buildings, will draw a long list of prominent leaders in education, business and the State and Federal Governments.

The three-structures, recently completed at a total cost in excess of $3,500,000, include: The Student Union, The Biology Building and a dormitory for women.

A highlight in the observance is the appearance of Miss Margaret Tynes, noted opera soprano, alumna of the College and Greensboro native, now a resident of Milano, Italy. She is to be presented in recital on Friday evening, April 28.

Other events scheduled for the week, all evening programs, include: Monday, April 24 — concert by the A&T College Symphony Band; Tuesday, April 25 — recital by Geoffrey Holder, dancer, painter, author, choreographer and singer; Wednesday, April 26 — "Guys and Dolls", a musical drama by the A&T College Department of Music; Thursday, April 27 — "God's Trombones", a dramatic presentation by the Richard B. Harrison Players.

Programs scheduled for Saturday morning, all of special interest to visiting alumni, call for a meeting of the Mideast Region of the A&T College General Alumni Association at 9:00 A.M.; the annual Alumni Lecture Series with Dr. Darwin T. Turner, professor of English and dean of the A&T College Graduate School, and the Awards Luncheon, at which A&T alumni who have made outstanding records in the field of education are to be honored.

A review by the ROTC Cadet Corps is scheduled for 1:15 P.M. on the front campus lawn.

An art exhibit, featuring productions by A&T students and professionals will be held during the entire week at the Taylor Art Gallery.

SG Hears Students' Complaints About Food

By LEANDER FORBES

WHEN AGGIES JOIN HANDS

Whether it be in a downtown department store in Greensboro or in a meeting in a small classroom, whenever a group of Aggies assemble for a common cause, you can be sure of some results. This is exactly what happened Wednesday night, April 5, in Campbell Hall at a regular Student Government Association meeting.

Senior Adviser Asks '67 Class To Do Better

By LEE A. HOUSE, JR.

This was the cry of Dr. Alexander Gardner, senior class adviser — "Seniors, wake up." He was only to be re-enforced by Dr. J. E. Marshall, dean of Student Affairs. The Senior Class of 1967 was assailed as one of the "sorriest" classes in the history of the college. Whether this was used as a stimulant to arouse the seniors or an indictment of truth, it should have been received with shame and determination to do better.

"You have six weeks", reminded Dr. Gardner, "to erase your apathetic slate and endeavor to be remembered well by the college." Dr. Gardner intimated that he was the only faculty member, he knew, who had ever volunteered to be adviser to the senior class — "and look what I got."

The occasion was the annual senior banquet sponsored by the General Alumni Association. Of the 130 or more seniors who signed up for plates, only about 100 showed up. Mr. J. C. McLaughlin, former instructor and dean here at the college, related the message of the evening. He admonished the seniors with regard to their lives: "The Verdict Is Yours."

The banquet turned into a dinner-class meeting. This was no doubt a golden opportunity for President Bobby Palmer who usually nets anywhere from 5-25 seniors for his meetings. There was mention of a Jubilee Week-end sponsored by the senior class which didn't exactly engender mass enthusiasm or support.

Dr. Gardner stated that still yet, he is an optimist and knows that the seniors will rally to the cause of "greatness" for themselves and A&T College these last six weeks of their tenure here and even after their graduation. A few juniors were invited by protocol who are now determined to make the class of '68 much better.

Approximately 40 dedicated and determined Aggies, with John Richardson serving as spokesman, impressed the SGA as they demanded a much needed change in the food services here on campus. This newly-organized group, known as SAT (Students for A&T) presented the following complaints, and requests:

1. The quality of the food is not conducive to good health.
2. Left overs are served too regularly.
3. Sanitation is not of the highest quality.
4. Paper and plastic utensils should be used only when absolutely necessary.
5. Meat should be served daily at breakfast.
6. More food should be served at each meal.
7. Food should be sent to the infirmary according to the needs of the students there.
8. Salt and pepper should be placed on every table.
9. Milk should be available at all times.
10. Eating utensils should be cleaner.
11. A pay-as-you-eat system should be established.
12. Bad lettuce and tomatoes should not be used for salads.
13. The food should be hot, not cold, when served.
14. Breakfast hours should be extended.

SAT, after having shown such an interest in the students of A&T concluded its petition for aid from the SGA by stating in the words of Richardson, "Mr. President, I would like you to know that you have the entire support of our organization whenever you may need to call upon us." SAT is also spearheaded by another well known Aggie, basketball player Carl Hubbard. SAT, like many of us, are tired of begging and pleading for much needed changes; they are now demanding and determined.

Other interesting and important issues were also presented at the meeting from the various committees. The State Legislature committee attended the annual convention of College SGA's and returned with an Aggie serving on the State Scholarship Fund Committee. The Committeeman is none other than the chairman of the State Student Legislature Committee, Richard Womack.

From the entertainment committees, Ray English reported on the progress of the Movie Committee which will seek to elevate the entertainment of the general audience by devising methods for the interruption of movies by unnecessary announcements to be eradicated. Also ushers will attempt to make it possible for as many students as possible to have seats and be comfortable. The Social Affairs Committee whose chief function was with the Student Union Association terminated their planning for this school year and are now peacefully awaiting the opening of the Union Building. (Students are reminded that the Union Building is in the process of being inspected and students should refrain from visiting the million-dollar Union until it is open to the entire student body. The Social Affairs Committee is under the leadership of James Rhodes.

Leander Forbes, chairman of the campus beautification committee, reported that funds have already begun coming in supporting the committee's project of improving the physical appearance of the campus. Because of what Forbes termed "neglect", of his duties, he resigned his position. However, the president refused to accept the

National Library Week Celebration To Feature Two Noted Authors

Two successful authors will be featured in the Library Week Celebration, April 16-22, at A&T College.

This annual event with its usual emphasis — Read! Read! Read! — will include two contemporary writers who have made contributions in the fields of Chinese culture and Negro history.

Miss Josephine Huang Hung, a visiting lecturer in drama at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, will present a lecture, part of which will be illustrated, on the Chinese Theater. Miss Huang Hung's lecture will be Monday evening, April 17.

Born in Tientsin, North China, Miss Huang Hung received her M. A. from Columbia University. She has enjoyed considerable success teaching Chinese drama at several universities and colleges, including Grinnell College where she was a visiting Fulbright professor in 1963-64.

In an attempt to introduce drama to the West, Josephine Huang Hung has written several articles and books in this field. Her publications in English include A Treasure of Western Drama (1958), Children of the Pear Garden (1961), The Tea Picker Girl (a play), and Chinese Drama, Yesterday and Today (1961).

Dr. Earl E. Thorpe, the second author of the week, will be featured in a lecture Thursday evening, April 19, at 7:30 P.M. in the Taylor Art Gallery of the Bluford Library. Dr. Thorpe is a well-known author and scholar in the field of history and a professor at North Carolina College in Durham.

AT ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Virginia Educator Stresses Quality And Involvement For Education

The second Annual Student Teaching Conference was held last Saturday in Bluford Library. Activities included two general sessions, six group discussions, and a special luncheon.

The highlight of the conference was the main address delivered by Dr. James T. Guines, administrative assistant of the Richmond Public Schools. Using the conference theme "Innovations in Teaching Methods and Their Applications to the Learning Process", Dr. Guines told the audience that education has not taken over its full advantages.

Dr. Guines began his message by drawing several conclusions. These conclusions state, in effect, that (1) we are living in a society which is being blasted by technical revolution; (2) we are experiencing the effects of an accelerated change; and (3) education is the key to needed adjustment for a productive and happy life.

The speaker expressed the need for a strong faith in our educational power. Alluding to the Biblical story of David and Goliath, Dr. Guines stated that "faith is the first attitudinal commitment" of the educator. "We must have faith in the powers of education to meet the challenge of change."

Dr. Guines emphasized the need for quality of and equality in education. He informed the group that this could be accomplished through the application of technological practices and action research. At this point, he discussed some of the practices of technology as they have affected industry and other areas. His point was to inform educators that they, too, "must get involved" in their own research problems.

Dr. Guines enumerated the student, the teacher, the objectives, the instructional methods, and evaluation as the elements in the education process. These elements have the following implications for the educator: (1) effective grouping of pupils for instructional purposes, (2) better utilization of teacher personnel, (3) broad objectives, (4) concrete experiences, and (5) changed behavior in student activities.

The group discussions were primarily concerned with student teacher-cooperating teacher relationships, new innovations in teaching methods, and a better student teacher program.

The participants for the day included student teachers, cooperating teachers, supervising teachers, and other educators. Dr. S. O. Jones, coordinator of Student Teachers, presided over the meeting.

Miss Margaret Tynes, noted opera singer, a 1941 graduate of A&T College, and Greensboro native, now a resident of Milano, Italy, will highlight the Diamond Anniversary observance at A&T College with a recital on Friday evening, April 28. The observance begins on Monday, April 24, and concludes with a convocation on Saturday afternoon, April 29.

Spring Demonstrations

It's spring again, the weather is warm, and it is likely to become warmer. Though it may seem strange, warm weather has a decided effect on college students. In other words, the atmosphere and weather are just right for riots and mass demonstrations. Many students feel that a riot is brewing over the Slater Food Services, and this may very well be true; however, it may be good for this interested group of students to know that they are not the first to complain about the food, and they certainly won't be the last. It's like one of those things that one can count on to come to the surface at least once a year and usually during the spring of the year.

The University of Pittsburgh had its little "riots" at the very beginning of this month which lasted for two consecutive nights. According to The Pitt News, the students were basically without leaders or any particular persons in mind as an object of their distress. Many, who engaged in the eruptions on the Pittsburgh campus, termed the actions as the "academic rites of spring."

In the many articles presented in the April 5 issue of the Pitt News, the most popular reason given for the unrest was "the warm weather."

Perhaps students here do have grievances that need to be voiced. It may even be that these grievances need some constructive actions in order to receive satisfaction.

Although group demonstrations are means of getting results, they are certainly not the only means or the most desirable ones. It seems that, when an emotional group of students get together, judgment and common sense are thrown out the window and are replaced by a loss of control and spontaneous action.

One other thing to be careful about in these mass get togethers is certain students who are not normal and get satisfaction out of anti-social actions. These students join groups merely for the 'fun' or to deliberately cause trouble.

In light of these things and the usual mess that accompanies such actions, it would be almost a relief to simply forego "spring demonstrations" this year. If they do occur, it is hoped that they will not be the result of a group of restless students, a group of deranged students, or the warm weather.

A Step Forward

The second annual student teaching conference represents a step toward the advancement of the teacher education program here at A&T College. An interest in the program was shown by the number of persons attending. In addition to student teachers and co-operating teachers, several high school teachers, who are not involved in this year's student teacher program, attended because they are interested in our prospective teachers.

Both teachers and prospective teachers openly discussed new innovations in teaching methods. In addition, they voiced their grievances with the present program. All were accepted in a manner indicative of positive changes in evaluative methods of the co-operating teacher.

A suggestion which may prove very beneficial to both the students and the co-operating teacher is that of allowing each school department to set up its own criteria for evaluation of the student teacher. Since most of the school departments offer a teacher education program, it seems likely that each should have a general idea of what the prospective teachers in his department are capable of performing.

While it may be true that a long drawn out lesson plan may be effective in general education courses, such as English, etc., it does not hold true for a course in which some manual skill is practiced. For this reason, it appears that each department should be capable of determining the basic guides for its students.

In conjunction with this suggestion, it may be profitable for co-operating teachers and student teaching personnel to sponsor a meeting prior to the student teacher's actual teaching experience. This would provide a better means of ascertaining the student teacher's role. It would also decrease what some cooperating teachers feel to be unnecessary paper work.

Class Positions Available

The elections committee of the Student Government announces a shortage of applicants for certain class positions for the 1967-68 school year.

Any or all eligible students may submit petitions to any member of the elections committee no later than Monday, April 17.

Positions available are sophomore class — student government representatives, vice president, secretary, treasurer, Miss Sophomore; junior class — student government representatives; senior class — student government representatives, secretary, and treasurer.

Elections — What's Up

By LEE HOUSE

Having taken a lesson on screening the candidates ("Screening the Candidates," THE REGISTER, April 7), let's now take a candid look at just what's up in the primary stage of this year's elections.

Student government elections are now scheduled for May 4-5. Postponements have been deleted this year. The Diamond Anniversary of the college will be celebrated April 24-29. For these two reasons, says president Roy White, the constitution is being side-stepped (It provides for elections the last week in April). Evidently amendments are either out of order, style or mind.

Since petitions were due April 10 and remain to be publicized, the grapevine suffices the slates of candidates. The venerable position of student government president now harks to the bellows of three potential candidates. The grapevine does not afford name references. It might be taken in stride, however, that the three-man slate runs the gamut for personalities, qualifications, and statures. Take it from there — to the victor belong the spoils. The prized position of Miss A&T has already seen its first "clique" run-off. The winner therefrom finds two other "rumored" candidates vying for the "talked about" crown. The other positions are as slow as the men who usually fill them. Maybe this year's seekers live more abundantly. There will probably be one-man slates for at least two such offices. No contest!

Campus blues has it that the battle is on. The Greeks have come home to "roost", but there are those "nun phi nuns" who speak of no shelter in this "house". At least two organizations are already being tabbed as political capitalists. The grapevine registers, however, that they appear to be the only vigorously interested groups in the camp. Be that as it may, let us be reminded that the individual commits himself to public service and this is how he should be elected — as a qualified individual; not a group representative.

Aggies, let's redeem our record of apathy and ignorance in the political arena. It is here that we get the deeper meaning of the three R's; it is also here that we may begin to understand politics. One Aggie — one vote. Support your candidate — elect him.

Election Notes

Elections for officers of the student government, Miss A&T, and officers of the various class levels will be held on May 4-5. Petitions have been distributed to interested students already. If, by chance, you are interested in running for an office and you have not received a petition yet, contact one of the following persons for one:

Richard Womack
313 Cooper Hall

Roy White
116 Cooper Hall

Rufus White
112 Cooper Hall

Gloria Diggs
New Dorm

These petitions were to be turned in on Monday, April 10, at 7.00 P.M. in Hodgin Hall auditorium at the next meeting. Late petitions, however, may be appealed to Roy White, student government president and/or the elections committee.

The schedule of this year's election season includes such activities as having a speaker of national prominence at the convention, a Miss A&T pageant, a campus parade of candidates, and an "Election Ball."

It is strongly urged that all interested students who are qualified contact the above mentioned persons immediately and secure a petition for official candidacy in preparation for launching a campaign and the election itself.

Phi Beta Lambda Takes Honors At State Confab

Four Members of Theta Pi Chapter of Phi Beta Lambda Business Fraternity represented The Agricultural and Technical College at the Thirteenth annual state convention of Future Business Leaders of America and Phi Beta Lambda. This Convention was held at the Jack Tar Hotel in Durham on March 31 and April 1. The Convention Theme was "On the Go for Scholarships, Leadership and Citizenship."

Yvette Holmes received honors for outstanding scholarship. She won second place in the Extemporaneous Speaking Contest. She also received an award and gift for her abilities.

Other local members attending were Nannie Kearney who was state chapter secretary and the only Negro to ever hold a state office. Jesse M. Lanier, local chapter president. Anthony Demps, chapter delegate, and Mrs. Katie Dorsett, chapter sponsor. Theta Pi Chapter members acted as a welcoming Committee at the registration desk in conjunction with the East Carolina Chapter.

The Convention proved to be a rewarding experience for all the delegates. All attended group discussion periods for which proposals of future plans were made. The Convention ended with the annual awards banquet.

HONOR STUDENT'S Letter To Editor

Editor of the REGISTER:
The 1967-68 honorees of A&T College take no small delight in saluting with honor and gratitude all those persons, students and faculty, for their contribution in making the day set aside for us one to be recalled with fond memories. We toast a toast of special appreciation to the Honors Committee chaired by Dr. Alexander Gardner for its time, efforts, and accomplishments on our behalf.

We were challenged by Dr. Miller at the Honors Convocation to be "ready" since "They Are Out to Get..." us. The film forum, the inter-institutional discussion were interesting and quite beneficial. We were especially entertained as we dined in glamour and style at the Showboat Dinner Theatre and rolled in the comedy smash of "Oh Dad, Poor Dad." We are grateful to our fellow students who afforded us this day of recognition.

We believe that success, especially in scholarship, is an individual undertaking, but certainly encouraged, stimulated and promoted by such genuine concern and encouragement as you have given us. Thank you, one and all.

On behalf of my fellow honorees,
Lee A. House, Jr.

All summer schedules should be planned carefully after examination of your projected schedule for the fall semester 1967-68. The opportunities for course changes is very limited in the summer school program.

Mass. Students Visit And Exchange Ideas

Four young men from Harvard and M. I. T. gave up their spring vacation in order to meet and talk with college students in North Carolina.

They were on the campus of A&T College on April 4th and 5th and were guest speakers in classes Tuesday evening and through Wednesday. A public meeting was held Wednesday, April 5th, 8 P.M., in the Bluford Library. The quartet included Gregory Dahl, a sophomore studying engineering at Harvard. He is vitally interested in electronics.

Chris Filstrup is a graduate student in Arabic and Islamic Studies at the Center for the Study of World Religions, Harvard University. Chris spent the summer of 1966 in Egypt studying Arabic.

The pitcher winds up, coach and officials set the records straight, and an out-fielder makes a spectacular catch as the baseball squad goes into another season of intercollegiate play. After losing one to Hampton Institute, the team retaliated by overpowering Norfolk State and Howard University. The next home games are against Fayetteville State April 19 and Delaware State April 22.

Aggies Off To Good Start In CIAA Baseball

By EARNEST FULTON

A&T's baseball team got off to a fine start last week by winning two of their first three conference games. Aggies lost the seasonal opener to Hampton but came back to take two straight from Norfolk State and Howard University. All of the games were played in Greensboro.

Aggies have been and still are one of the finest teams in the CIAA. They have won eight championships in the past 12 years and have finished second the other times with the exception of last year when they came in at the number three spot. This year they are out for first place.

Chief competition should come from Maryland State, the defending champs, and from Shaw.

The Aggie team is built around a strong combination of outstanding veterans. The one that stands out most is Lloyd Lightfoot, the team captain. Light is outstanding and consistent at bat and in the field. He plays the all important shortstop position and forms an excellent keystone combination with Henry Fleming.

Royall Mack, the first baseman, is the power hitter of the team. He is capable of cleaning the bases with just one blow from his mighty bat.

Other returning veterans are Hillis Haygood, the catcher, and Lewis Cummings, the third baseman.

James Jones and John Quick are the leading hurlers on a staff that is mostly composed of rookies.

resignation and asked Forbes to reconsider.

The election committee has made gigantic steps in assuring students that they will no longer have to continue with voting for names instead of people for leaders. This year the Election Committee is providing a convention in order that the candidates may present their platforms to the students. The convention is scheduled for the latter part of this month. There will also be a Candidates Parade, a Pageant for Miss A&T candidates, and a special program with a nationally known speaker presiding at the occasion. Rufus White is chairman of this committee.

Dean of Student Affairs, Dr. J. E. Marshall, also present at the meeting, stated that several committees have been formed to inspire students and faculty-staff members to unite and solve any existing problems under the newly organized Self-Analysis Program. Some of the Committees under this program are Purposes and Objectives of the College, Organization and Administration, Educational Programs, Faculty, Library, Student Personnel, Physical Plant, and Graduate Program.

Additional information pertaining to this Program may be obtained from Dr. Marshall.

Merl Code, an interested student attendant at the meeting, asked the SGA to consider making a proposal to the administration concerning the shortening of semester break and lengthening of the Easter holidays. Code said, "Easter holidays are the only official holidays between Christmas and the end of the semester. The Easter holidays, for most of us, consist only of Saturday and Sunday, since Friday and Monday are used for traveling". The president said the matter would be sure to get immediate attention.

After, Willie Drake, Chairman of the Student Affairs Committee, introduced a matter of the student rank according to grade point averages, the president ordered Drake's committee to perform an investigation of the fact that there are GPAs as low as 0.35, 0.85, and 0.60 in senior, junior and sophomore classes, respectively. The inquiry will be conducted immediately.

Miss Barbara Dodd, SGA adviser informed us that Operation Crossroads is looking forward to another Aggie this year. (Miss Dodd participated in Operation Crossroads last summer in Africa. This will not necessarily be a homecoming for one of our fellow Aggies, who will be journeying to our native continent of Africa this summer, but she is waiting in great anticipation for the close of this school year. Clarise Cummings, physical education major from Portsmouth, Virginia, has been chosen as a GOODWILL AMBASSADOR to parts of Africa from A&T College.

WILD NEW SOUND!

Ma Bell And The Computers

A far-out group of Bell Telephone Labs scientists have come up with a great new sound—a singing computer!

It began several years ago by singing "Daisy, Daisy." Hardly a folk-rock smash, but lately its voice has been improving. And even though you may not care for the sound, it's big in the scientific field.

Simply put, our scientists study speech and express the way we speak words by means of numbers, then make a computer process the numbers. The final result is a tape of music you could play on your tape recorder.

Giving voice to a computer may mean a lot in providing better communications services. The more we know about voices and tones of all sorts, the better we can make your telephone and other communications services.

And our curiosity may find uses for computer speech that nobody's thought of yet. That's the way it is with a lot of basic research; it can lead to some far-out ideas that end up way in

At Bell Labs, and throughout the Bell System, we find it pays to be curious about everything.
