McCullough And Johnson Elected SGA Leaders

Vincent McCullough became the next president of the student body as of Wednesday. McCullough, a history major, won 418 votes to his second ranked opponent, Nelson Johnson, a psychology major, with 282 votes. The third candidate, Harold Cowper, polled 41 votes with Fletcher Harris, a late registrant, polling 28 votes. The total number of valid votes was 773. In the race for the SGA presidency there were 373 votes. When asked if he had any comments about the election, McCullough said, "I can see a brighter future for A&T is this will of the people be done." He will officially assume his duties on September 1.

The university's extensive program in North Carolina; and now, according to the State Department of Education, it has one of the best programs in the state. In the future the interest of the university is to broaden the scope of the program to include other fields of study.

At the present time there is an urgent need for a classroom building, for the university's social science program. Classes are being held in various buildings on campus, its recommenders said. Other buildings on campus that have been operating since the 1876-1877 season have proven to be inadequate.

One of the chronic dilemmas of oror college is the small amount of type written teaching equipment with which the college must work. There is an urgent need for a classroom building, for the university's social science program. Classes are being held in various buildings on campus, its recommenders said. Other buildings on campus that have been operating since the 1876-1877 season have proven to be inadequate.

A&T's faculty cannot exhibit the scope of the program to include a number of developments. This year the university is to boarden the student body by 282 persons, a tremendous number, said Dr. Dowdy. The normal size of the student body is 1,200, he said.

How Our Readers See It

Editor of the Register:

One of the pertinent demands released by the Student Government Association this year was whether the candidates had in fact reached the point of no return and if the elections take place now. The use of the candidate's names, however, is a matter of perspective by the students and the candidates themselves.

Prior to this similar articles have been written in the use and names of candidates. But in this instance the candidates were futile in reaching the conclusions of the students. Have you ever gone to an encyclopedia or periodical with the assurance of obtaining the information sought, only to find a section cut or turn up blank pages? Are you looking for books or books from the stacks? There are other arguments or discussion of the material in the library, but these remain separate from the students themselves.

Editor of The Register:

When students at A&T gave their support to the striking activities of last week, they thought about the attitudes of the entire student body and the black students building a relationship of collective responsibility in the hands of our new student leaders.

The leaders whom we have chosen have a great task before them as our official representatives. Every student on this university campus should not be afraid nor fail to speak up when the leaders that we have chosen to represent us fail to be concerned about the interest of the students. We should all be the students, the students should express their opinions on any matter before our leaders, led to think the student revolt is not a major issue.

Junior English Majors Told Of New Program

By TONY BRYANT

Dr. Walter G. Daniel has informed junior English majors of a new program he has launched, said Dr. Daniel, who is director of the School of Arts and Sciences at Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University. This new program is designed to give the English major a wider interest in international relations and its career development. The students are not only asked to acclimate themselves to foreign cultures, but to become involved in international organizations. Their involvement has been engaged by Mobil’s Oil Corporation to represent their schools for “A Week in the Business World.”

Mobil’s International Division has invited students to come in contact. The students will be given a tour of Mobil’s refinery and its principal research laboratory in Philipsburg, N. J. Later in the day, the group visited Mobil’s Regional Marketing office in Philadelphia. The students were interested in the company’s business development, its marketing and accounting functions in Philadelphia.

On the fourth and final day the students visited Mobil’s basic research laboratory at Princeton, N. J. During the week, the students, with J. Fredric Dew and Assistant Dean of Placement at Columbia’s Graduate School of Business, who gave a talk on “The Placement Funt,” visited companies, sites, and had to “Get a Job.”

The weekend following the students’ arrival in New York City, was reserved for the students to explore New York.”

Inorganic chemistry is important to students in many fields of study, including business. The study of inorganic chemistry is important because it enables students to understand the chemical processes that occur in industrial settings, and to develop the skills necessary to work in the field of chemistry.

One of the student plaintiffs is Quint Young, a political science major at Colorado State University. He has been a member of the Student Power movement for the past year. Young has been very active in the student power movement, and has been threatened with loss of his state scholarship for involvement in a campus protest. He is also named as a plaintiff. Talent Show Characteristic Of Scene Found At Famed Discoteque

By GEORGE ADAMS, Jr.

If you were looking for an evening of astounding music and flat-out jumping, think out of your seat to the tunes and tempo of today, and you did not go to Wednesday nights talent show, you certainly missed your opportunity.

It was like an evening at one of New York's famed discoteques except there was not the same type of widespread dancing as one might expect to see at the Cheetah or similar. The talent, the show, was more or less a very good combination of the gifted young men and women we have on campus; it is too bad that their creative abilities go unnoticed. It is sad to find blacks who can readily present themselves on stage with good showmanship. Yet, the students who try to use their present talent tend to forget that they are not professional in the least. And, therefore, cannot and more over, must not expect to find at the Cheetah or any comparable establishment there is in such a show to find blacks who can readily present themselves on stage with good showmanship.

If any of these performers wish to go into show business or at least semi-professional endeavors, well, there is a lack of attention that came from the audience with these occasions and the grade of what was supposed to be happening. The melodies that these young people were performing were not at least audible enough for the audience to comprehend. More than that, one can say for many of the notifications there were some good performances. A&T has talent. We commend it to the student body to have talented enough in audience participation so that they can truly determine the very good from the mediocre in a lady and gentleman like manner.

By GEORGE D. ADAMS

The Broadway musical, 'The King and I,' which was supposed to be presented on this campus last semester, has now been cancelled. The opera workshop will thus cease to realize any other forms of entertainment which are so popular because of the relatively small amount of time left in the semester.

It is believed that 'The King' was cancelled because of insufficiency funds that would have been needed to produce the play either laughably or economically. Frankly speaking, the black show's adviser, regretted to have to call off the show but he hopes that money will be set aside in the future (primarily next year) that will enable all of the finer art accomplishments to further their efforts to produce more and better shows.

If it is truly and truly, 'The King and I' will not be seen this year, but we hope that it can be rescheduled for the 1969-1970 season.

The Opera Workshop of the Music Department has elected students who have either been involved with past performances or are members of the O. W. S. to be the first organizers of the first choral trip. O. W. S. has had President, Vice President, and Secretary, but it will be all members of the group.

A&T Choir is currently on tour carrying their talents this far but they ever ventured before. This year among skating Philadelphia, New York, New Haven, Newark, the choir will also tour Chicago, Cleveland, and Madison, Wisconsin. It is a rather extensive tour considering that it will only entail 10 days, but it will hopefully adhere to the Music Department's attempt to spread the cultural norms of each choir member. Dr. H. T. Parker will direct.

Auditions will be held soon for an All Male band. To get fellows to 'join up' this advertisement was offered: "Travel", "New Uniforms", "Up, Up and Away." So men we hope that it can be rescheduled for the 1969-1970 season.
