Accusations And Denials Characterize Hearing

By Vernice Wright

The North Carolina State Commission on Civil Rights opened a hearing here Friday to investigate the May disorders at Dudley High School, according to its chairman, Marvin Graeber, director of Buildings and Grounds, who plans to use the trip as a "teaching" experience in what he termed a "teach-in" to the students. Graeber said that he had already talked to the students about their role in maintaining order and said he would not tolerate any student who thought they were above the law.

The hearing included the testimony of several witnesses, including a representative of the North Carolina State College of Education, who cited the school's history of discipline problems and the need for increased police presence.

The faculty and administration of Dudley reportedly threatened to suspend the students for the rest of the year if the students continued to march. Graeber said that he would not tolerate any student who thought they were above the law.

B&G Director Plans Campus Beautification

By Diane Bell

Martin Graeber, director of Buildings and Grounds, often plans for campus beautification. There are plans for landscaping around the dormitories and Merrick Hall. Also there are plans to plant shrubbery on campus.

Graeber says, "There are just enough funds to carry on an effectively the duties of this office. I'm afraid we will have to substitute those plans, which require little or no money, for plans that require little or no money are a campaign for North Carolina and students keeping off the grass.

Concerning campus beautification Graeber had this to say, "I'm afraid we will have to substitute those plans, which require little or no money, for plans that require little or no money are a campaign for North Carolina and students keeping off the grass."

Howard Fuller Addresses Black Student Conference

By David L. Brown

Howard Fuller, a student at Howard University, addressed the fall conference of Black Students at A & T. Howard Fuller, HHC, Malcolm X Liberation University, stated, "We here at the conference should get the feeling that seemingly exists at A & T, Students here not only want to change the system. They want to change the system."

Anyone who will sit and let an organization set up a black studies program in this country, or will sit and let an organization set up a black studies program in this country, will have four years of active duty in the military," Fuller added.

"By the nature of our blackness, we are in a compromising position. We will be forced to go to an organization that is not willing to set up a black studies program. They will have four years of active duty in the military," Fuller added.

Black History Month is the time to awaken the Dudley administration, a time to start thinking about the black people-I am black, Fuller emphasized the fact that "Black History Month is the time to awaken the Dudley administration, a time to start thinking about the black people-I am black," Fuller added.

"I see the grass grow green every spring," Fuller said, "I see the grass grow green every spring."
What Is Relevant?

By Frankie Paulding

I personally do not question the election by popular vote of the editor-in-chief or his subordinates, if need be, this is done for A&T. I do question the action of many members of the public who have no such right to participate in the selection of a campus newspaper's editor-in-chief. It is not their business to question the actions of the editor-in-chief. They are not a part of the editorial board. The editor-in-chief has decided who is accepted. What I do question is the REGISTER's supposed irrelevance to the entire A&T family, not just a group within that family. Is the REGISTER not, operating under present conditions, functioning as well or better than any university newspaper, under these same circumstances? Compare the REGISTER with other Black university newspapers. Come to 169 Carver Hall and see letters from the editors of other Black institutions wanting to know more about our newspaper and its make up, because it is admired.

Why is the REGISTER's layout and make up is discussed and complimented at places like the University of Minnesota School of Journalism as well as Elizabeth City State University? Is it NOT good for the REGISTER to be complimented by AUTHORITIES and other schools as well as being relevant to the A & T student? Will the election of the editor-in-chief by popular vote make the REGISTER, if relevant if its relevance is questioned now?

Editors-in-chief of a number of schools are paid salaries ranging from $500 to $8000 per year for larger universities. The editor-in-chief of the REGISTER does not receive anything. The constant work that lead to put a newspaper together does require dedicated work and trying hours spent in 169 Carver Hall appear to mean nothing. Why does the REGISTER receive constant criticism from Vince McCollough, President of SGA and Nelson Johnson along with a few other select members of SGA? Why not praise once in awhile, or better still, constructive criticism along the line of formal letters of suggestions or formal reports of irrelevancy?

Newspapers are criticized this is true, but what happened to the unkind and unity that has been stressed continuously by Johnson? Why can't the REGISTER receive just a little kindness from him? Why can't the REGISTER be held in high esteem by the students?

Exactly what would the REGISTER have to do to be considered-relevant to the entire student body- be censored by Johnson? How can the REGISTER work editorially, in the form of letters to the editor, be solicited?

In an executive meeting of the Student Government Association, Nelson Johnson was criticized by Nelson Johnson, Vice-President, as not being a relevant or fair reflection of the total student aspiration at A & T. Johnson said he thought the editor-in-chief of the campus newspaper staff should be elected by popular vote. He explained that the REGISTER was not read by him. He explained that the REGISTER is not read by the REGISTER from the Associate Collegiate Press, (comprised of both Black and non-Black newspaper in the United States) did not necessarily make the REGISTER relevant or fair reflection of student aspirations at A & T.

Racism/Disorder's Cause

The testimony given at the open hearing on last May's disorder are the most sensational of all the actual local holding "responsible" positions of leadership within this entire family. Charges and accusations are again made by leaders of the black community regarding the senseless brutality and inflammatory actions exhibited by Greensboro police, National Guard, Troops, A&T, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and other Black and white businesses and organizations.

These charges and accusations are also denied by an apparently anti-black city and state government. Demonstrations by both sides are still being held at the hearing regarding the treatment of Blacks last May, these so-called representatives and protectors of the people explaining that they are representatives and protectors of white people. After such incidents as the May Disorders occur, these racist individuals have a responsibility to ask, "What were the real causes of the disorder?" Such questions may be intended to make you think. But it is difficult to say lack the common knowledge to realize that the threat of violence to those who perpetuate racism, are the root causes of the May Disorders. It is not fair to blame the blacks by choice, for what they did not do.

These root causes of the May Disorders and all other disorders will have to be eradicated or disorders will continue with more bloodshed.

Peace In New York City

By DICK GREGORY

My lecture and writing commitments led me to New York City one day last week. My Editor at Harper & Row happens to live there. We met at the Four Seasons Restaurant to talk about my book, The Plague of the East River. After leaving her apartment and returning to the East River area, I took a taxi off to a distant administrator and got off the boat at the Staten Island Ferry. I happened to pass hordes of UN delegates from various nations who had just finished their day's deliberations at the United Nations. As I stepped off the boat, South Africans, Indians and others I could not help musing about the tremendous separation between world events and the lives of the individuals. A day or two before the delegates left, the day of the year they are engaged in making small talk about peace while those struggling for freedom continue to look down the river toward the UN.

Though separated physically by only a few blocks, The Peace Ship and the United Nations are worlds apart operationally. The Peace Ship represents a "people's" or human rights' or black people's approach to bringing Arab and Jew together. His dream was to give the East River an entirely new meaning. A floating "Voice of Peace." Nathan's Peace Ship would broadcast messages of peace to all people in the area in an effort to ease tensions. Messages would be broadcast in Hebrew, Arabic, French, and English, featuring continuous music and news as well as the reading of peace messages from the people of the Bible and the Koran.

Abie Nathan, a veteran at financing life. Last year he raised $1.5 million for starving Biafrans. Not all of Abie Nathan's fund-raising efforts in the United States have been successful. The Peace Ship Fund was relatively successful. Nathan's fund-raising efforts in the United States have been that successful. He recently tried to enlist foundation support for the Peace Ship. The funds needed to get the ship up and running were not raised. Nathan spent $150,000 in his fund-raising effort, contacting about 200 individuals, foundations and corporations.

When Nathan set sail for New York in his Peace Ship, other ships in the Dutch harbor tipped their flags in salute. It was an exciting sight. And Eggsland's Dairy, of New York, agreed to auction off a $5000 cow to help raises money. The Peace Ship Fund. On Thursday evening, October 9, at 8 P.M., a fund-raising auction was held at the Roosevelt Hotel in New York. A $50 Abie Nathan was auctioned off and other sympathetic artists and collectors were invited and urged to donate paintings to the cause. That night the Peace Ship Fund auction was held at the Roosevelt Hotel in New York. The Peace Ship has been a killing drain on energy and money, where the bodies of victims of numerous gangland murders have been dropped into the water wearing cement boots. The Peace Ship could give the East River millions of dollars worth of a running river image, making it the receptacle of generous funds of life.
Israel's Lesson For America

By Whitney Young

The people of Israel come from nations of every corner of the globe, and a short walk in the streets of Tel Aviv brings the visitor into contact with people of all colors. Blue-eyed blondes and dark-skinned people mix freely without the hysterical color-consciousness we find among too many Americans.

Their common bond is, of course, that they are all Jews. But we are all Americans, and we would do well to emulate the Israelis in removing color as a barrier among people.

Tolerance toward Arabs also aroused me. One would think that a nation surrounded by hostile Arab states whose guerrillas infest daily commutes on trains and civilians would develop deep hatred for the enemy.

But it is not so, generally. A top Army general explained it to me, "I don't want my children to hate," he said. "If you teach a child to hate Arabs, you are teaching him to fear them, for they are linked, and I don't want my children to learn fear." Think of the energies and lives that are wasted on such fear and hatred here in America!

The subject came up again when I met Israel's brilliant and charming Prime Minister, Mrs. Golda Meir. An American suggested to her that Arabs were lazy and incapable of learning modern techniques--the same lies that many people assert about Negroes.

Mrs. Meir was visibly annoyed, but she answered in a very ladylike way that no, you can't say a people are lazy. It's a matter of opportunity and education, she said, and told of the efforts Israel is making to eradicate its Arab population and open new opportunities for them. In her own quiet way, she exploded the myths and generalizations that are part and parcel of racist thought.

Israel also has some concrete lessons for us. Its agricultural cooperatives might be used as example for solving the problems of the rural South.

I visited a MOYSHEV, a cooperative agricultural community. The government gave each member a house and land. The cooperative buys equipment for use by the private farmers and markets their goods. All have an equal voice in the government of the community.

As mechanization makes more and more farm laborers jobless in our rural areas, it might make sense to consider a similar development here. Federal land grants, coupled with cooperative organization, could keep people out of big city slums, leading productive lives on their own land.

Israel is also dotted with new cities. Planners carefully arranged for the settlement of new immigrants in new towns. I visited one, Kiryat Gat, on the edge of the Negev. It's a bustling community, specially designed to integrate newcomers into Israeli life.

If a small country can do this, why can't we, with our vast open spaces, plan for new towns to absorb our growing population? We have more money, more planners, more industry than Israel has. But they are experimenting, while we are stuck in the rut.

Perhaps the answer lies in the planning spirit, the building spirit of adventure that was once so strong in America, but now seems extinguished by indifference and social diatribe. If Israel has anything to teach us, it may be that this spirit must be recaptured, and that our resources must be used to develop our own human potentials to create an equal society.

On Wednesday night October 1, the A & T Chapter of the American Home Economics Association (AHEA) sponsored a "Bow In The Ben," a social hour for the prospective freshman home economics majors.

The overall purpose of this occasion was to introduce one chapter of the AHEA the faculty, and the upperclassmen to the incoming freshmen here at A & T," explained Opheila Boone, president of the University home economics majors.

Approximately sixty persons attended the affair and each received a bow and a booklet as souvenirs. The theme for the evening, "Bow in the Ben," derived its unique significance from the name of the home economics building. Beallow Hall.

The refreshments and social were bestowed by members of the social committee who are Brenda Sadow, chairman, Donna Warren, Joyce Fox, and Barbara Wechs.

The officers of the A & T Chapter of the AHEA include the following students: Opheila Boone, president; Lizzie Miles, vice-president; Rosine Whitfield, secretary; Romonia Whitfield, assistant secretary; Patricia Russell, treasurer; Stellene Tipp, historian, and Flora Aldridge, reporter. Presently, two home economics education majors are exchange students at Madison, Wisconsin, Mildred Thornhill and Linda Hariston.

Rebirth Of The Scarf In Today's Fashion World
By Sharon Gribes

At one time in the fashion world the scarf was basically used to cover ones head and protect the hair against the weather.

Today the scarf has been turned into fashion with few limits to its wear or function. The scarf can now be found in any length or shape. Not to mention there is no discretion in whether the man or the woman sports the scarf.

The trend this season is using the scarf as an Indian head band, an avoc, a kerchief or whichever way the wearer desires. The man in the fashion world prefers wearing it as an avoc while the young ladies prefer the headband or around the neck.

Experimentation is the sum of how to wear your scarf. They come in all shapes, designs, and colors. Whatever you choose to do this year, the scarf is the right way because fashion is an individual thing for you to break into since the mood of everybody is to do just his own thing.

The next entry to the Marching Aggies is Hollis Pippins, a feature I will talk about next week. Hollis is a transfer student from Jackson State College, Jackson, Mississippi. He is majoring in Theater Arts with a minor in Dance here at A & T. Hollis took up twirling in the eighth grade under Mrs. Joyce Holly. He has been in marching bands since this time. He is a 1968 graduate of Brinkley High School in Brinkley, Arkansas.

Hollis has acquired the title of "Marching Aggies" as they carry out their half-time entertainment providing the best in entertainment perhaps bringing back the famed "Funk Marching."

Future Teachers Eligible For Danforth Fellowships

Inquiries concerning the Danforth Graduate Fellowships, to be awarded in March, 1970, are invited, according to Dr. J. E. Marshall, Team of Student Affairs, the local campus representative.

The Fellowships, offered by the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Missouri, are open to men and women, college graduates or recent graduates of accredited colleges in the United States, who have serious interest in teaching as a career and who have studied for a B.A. or B.S. degree in the liberal arts or sciences.

Application materials must be submitted by November 1, 1969. Final selections will be made by early January, 1970.

The Fellowship Program has been set up by the Edward R. Murrow Fellowship Committee of the Danforth Foundation in cooperation with the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University, Massachusetts. Several prestigious institutions of higher learning, including the Fletcher School, will be sponsors of the program.

The Fellowship Program will provide annual grants totaling $5,000 to graduate students in the fields of national and international communications and journalism. Fellows will be selected on the basis of academic achievement, character, and qualifications for the field of study.

The Aggies Upset By J.C. Smith 15-14

By William Hubbard

The A & T Aggies dropped their first and hopefully last game of the year by a score of 15-14 in a battlefield battle between a strong and fast J.C. Smith team in the home opener by a 2-0 margin, with the final score of 15-14 tied up and down the field all night. The Aggies were unable to control the ball and thus failed to make up the difference. Coach George Morrison, who led the Aggies to victory, was pleased with their performance and looked forward to their next game against the powerful St. Johns University, who will be visiting the Aggies in their next contest.

Honor Student Merle Code Plays Like All-American

A & T's Merle Code has a low average going with the game of football.

"I don't think that you can play football and not love it," he said. "It's not that type of game. You have to get involved and the biggest value, it is personal sacrifice."

As the Aggies' cornerback, Code has established himself as one of the prime players in the nation's small college and two-year college system.

Code was an All-CIAA selection last season when he led A & T with five interceptions. In A & T's opening game against C. S. State the next Saturday, he picked off his first pass of the season and otherwise played a vital role in the defensive game.

With his speed and size, Code is not the typical football player. He is a middle-class man and a junior student at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

"I don't think that you can play football and not love it," he said. "It's not that type of game. You have to get involved and the biggest value, it is personal sacrifice."
Sciences Predict Alien Invasion

By Mark Campbell

In the world of today when many of today's actual historical occurrences are what were considered fiction and fantasy only a generation ago, it is interesting to note that the Holy Bible, the book that exists for nearly two thousand years, has foretold events up to our present twentieth century. The space-age has been the epitome of fiction, an invasion of the earth by aliens of another world. However, only a general knowledge of the doctrines of the Christian religion and the writings of the Holy Bible are enough to convince a person that this occurrence will eventually come to pass.

There are reports in the Bible of many occurrences of what would today be called flying saucers with aliens who pilot them being angels sent from heaven by God. Anyone with the slightest belief in God whatsoever should know that the angels who watch over heaven, and heaven could be considered another planet somewhere in the universe, are infinitely superior to man. It should also be assumed that Almighty God in his infinite knowledge and wisdom has already built spaceships in the form of flying saucers which are much more advanced than the moonships and booster rockets that earth scientists have built.

Today one of the most interesting human phenomena that have occurred has been the concept of extra-sensory perception or the ability to predict the future, which some people claim to have. But there is nothing new about what is today called ESP. The Biblical Old Testament prophets had this ability and it is rather remarkable how accurate they were in their predictions. The Prophet Isaiah predicted, about four hundred years before Cyrus the Great, King of Persia, was born, what Cyrus's name would be and how he would conquer the whole world. Isaiah has received the sign of its impending end. But how will this end take place? Again Isaiah prophesies that the end of time will come with an invasion from outer space. He states, "Enter into the rock and hide thee in the dust for fear of the Lord and for the glory of his majesty. For the day of the Lord of hosts shall be upon every one that is proud and lofty, and upon every one that is lifted up; and he shall be abased, and the Lord alone shall be exalted in that day." And the idols he shall utterly abolish. And they shall go into the holes of the rocks, and into the caves of the earth, of the fear of the Lord, and for the glory of his majesty when he shall set his face to shake terribly the earth. In that day a man shall cast his idols of silver, and his idols of gold, which they made each one for himself to worship, to the moles and to the bats; To go into the holes of the rocks, and into the tops of ragged rocks, for fear of the Lord and for the glory of his majesty, when he shall set his face to shake terribly the earth. It is this writer's sincere opinion that the Lord Jesus Christ will return to earth in a giant space ship with a powerful laser beam to destroy anything that it is aimed at and accompanied by thousands of angels in similar spacecraft, thus fulfilling the prophecy made by Isaiah concerning man, God, and the end of time.

USDA Sponsors Food Test For Sixteen Schools

Sixteen schools in the greater Washington, D. C., metropolitan area began testing October 1 a new method of planning school lunches served through the National School Lunch Program to increase the more nutritious meal, the U. S. Department of Agriculture announced today.

These schools will use a new concept for selecting some of the foods for school lunches throughout a three-month period from October 1 through December. The menu planning will serve as a basis for establishing new guides for planning lunches for use throughout the school year in the National School Lunch Program, which is administered nationally by the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service.

The 16 area schools will utilize a new concept in planning Type A lunches by putting more emphasis on the selection of certain key foods that will supply certain nutrients such as vitamins, iron, vitamin B6 and magnesium, that are sometimes short in lunches. One concept behind the menu planning test is to use foods that are important sources of these nutrients and that will enhance other foods in the lunch to help meet the nutritional goal.

The technology of moving things

That's right! Grumman's real business is the technology of moving things...men and machines in purposeful patterns within a great diversity of origins, destinations and industrial situations. Speed is often, but not always, the answer. Performance reliability—in spite of many limitations—is the thing.

In close-in combat "dog fights"...an aircraft with speed, maneuverability and armaments...the F-14 Air Superiority Fighter...the EW-3C Aardvark.In lunar exploration...The Lunar Module which successfully landed the astronauts on the moon.

In areas of enemy activity...an aircraft with track and search radar that can locate, identify and lock on to the target, even in zero visibility...the AEA Intruder, and advanced versions.

In early warning emergency...an aircraft that can extend the eyes and ears of a Navy task force at sea through radar and computers that alert interceptor aircraft to impending enemy attacks...the E2A "Hawkeye," and corresponding versions.

Far above the earth...a satellite that can discover more about the evolution of the universe...the Orbiting Astronomical Observatory.

Add Deep-Submersible manned submersible, High-speed Ground Transportation systems, Corporate aircraft and Lunar Surface vehicles, and you get some idea of how Grumman is extending the parameters of the technology of moving things. At Grumman the opportunity for moving is presented in abundance to Candidates for AAS in Drafting, ET, MT or BS in EE, ME, Math, Physics or IE determined to find the right vehicle for their careers. anything like that happens in the future, I assure you we will not have that type of demonstration as a pretext if it was a pretext, because of the deep concern for our people.

In Brown's denial of student charges concerning rules for dress, he made comments to try certain types of dress and he and the administration also "suggest" that they not wear the "bushe.

In answer to the students' charge of no-off-campus lunch privileges, Brown stated, "We felt justified in keeping them on," he declared, "but not in making the rules of reason that this justification. Upon answering the administration's final question Brown left the witness stand.

Lewis, now Director of Public Information for the Greensboro Public School, was sent by U. S. House, superintendent to Dudley to collaborate as part of Brown's testimony. Lewis said that he had visited the campus and signed the requests for the picking guardsmen that had been involved in the controversy, these students, though peacefully marching in the picketing, their constitutional rights, were being denied by the administration's operation. So, within the scope of freedom of speech and assembly and not that the law, he declared the picketing of the A&T Campus being done in the demonstration three times they were going to be arrested. Then he ordered the arresting officers to continue their duties to press their desire.

After having heard the above testimony through its intense cross-examination from the State Advisory Committee, the committee then asked where students to his knowledge were not charged with a crime. How many guardsmen was in trouble for the amount of damages, Dowdy asked, and that if he had received could have been charged.

Dowdy also explained that more than one was having an incident loaded into buses and had to submit to fingerprinting. Ask them about the guards, declared them, in "protective custody", students to his knowledge were not charged with a crime. Dowdy also explained that that if he had received could have been charged.

Surveys Reveals Increase In Tuition By Colleges

Annual surveys of student charges at public and private universities and colleges have revealed increasing tuition charges in recent years. The surveys suggest that tuition is rising at a faster rate than inflation, reflecting rising costs of education and the desire of institutions to maintain or increase their revenue from tuition charges.

The surveys also indicate that tuition charges are more burdensome for students from low-income families, as they may face additional costs for room, board, and transportation. As a result, the cost of education is becoming increasingly out of reach for many students, particularly those from disadvantaged backgrounds.
