Patten And Neal Cop Freshman Class Elections

By Cohen N. Greene

To the victor go the spoils! This may be true with war, but for James Patton, newly-elected freshman president, it's an altogether different story. Patton along with his right hand man, freshman vice-president Bert Neal, were among victorious candidates in elections held yesterday for the freshman class and the Student Legislature.

Yesterday's election also gave us a new Miss Freshman. Gloria Rogers, an English major from Greensboro, was chosen from among fifteen freshman beauties to reign as the first queen of the Class of '74.

From the highly competitive elections, Priscilla Keel, an office administration major form Chapel Hill, was elected secretary. A administration major from Chad- rook elected first runner-up; and Deloris McMillan, first runner-up, and Deloris McMillan, second and third runners up, respectively.

The 1970 freshman elections opened new doors for a few leaders and presented a challenge to the losers. This year's election is different in that the post opened up new horizons and paths for those willing to take the positions of leadership.

Elections for the Student Legislature were also held yesterday. Thirty legislative seats will be elected from a quota for each campus. Those elected were:

The New Control Data 3300 computer is part of the computer center, which will be temporarily housed in Merrick Hall. This computer is now in operation and will be temporarily housed in Merrick Hall. This computer is now under renovation, which will be completed in the next few weeks. The computer will be temporarily housed in Merrick Hall.

The computer facilities are located in a building on the campus. The computer has the facilities needed to operate the computer center.

Beatty said that the computer center will be a small radio station; there will be no financial support for the radio station. The station is scheduled to resume broadcasting in September, 1971. The station will be set up in a section titled Campus Queens.

The Ayantee Office is in the Student Activity Building, Room 210; the radio station operates under a section titled Campus Queens. Women living off-campus will be represented in the Student Legislature.

By George Johnson

The reason why radio station WANT isn't broadcasting this year is due to a lack of equipment, according to Stanley Hanks, Program Director and Wilbert Joyner, Chief Engineer. The station is scheduled to resume broadcasting in September, 1971. It will be located in Price Hall and the frequency will probably be 620 on a.m. station. The hours of broadcasting will be set when the station is operational again.

The new equipment that will be purchased can transmit across the entire campus. The Communications Building also has the facilities needed to operate a small radio station therefore, there is a possibility of having two radio stations on campus.

The only financial support the station receives comes from the student activity budget, based on student enrollment.

The station was established in 1966 with old equipment donated by another radio station. Stanley Hanks stated that for a station like WANT to be successful it needs a good foundation. Wilbert Joyner added that he hopes the station can get the support of the administration, because the station seemed to be going downhill from the start due to the lack of interest.
Observations this week of the large number of freshman students campaigning for various offices in the freshman class would cause any student to wonder what it was about this group of enthusiasts that differs from the students comprising the Class of 1972.

Just a few months ago, campaigning was being conducted by students interested in being leaders of the other three undergraduate academic classes of this university. Everything was going along beautifully with the campaigning, with the more progressive candidates working a little harder to win.

When election day rolled around last spring, the junior class found that there was no body in the class interested in holding any positions of leadership except for one young lady who desired to be vice-president and two fellows who wanted to be treasurer.

It was and still is for that matter, pathetic that there were so few Aggies in this class. It caused one to wonder just what was going to happen if students overwhelmingly began to hold this attitude. Many students asked themselves just what was going to become of the student governance that Aggies have fought so hard to acquire.

However, this Class of 1974 gives us a new ray of hope about our student leadership in the future. For in this class, there are many Aggies who have the aspiration of being one of these student leaders playing a key role in building the image of this great Black university. Some of the upperclassmen should follow in their footsteps instead of the opposite.

Many of the great Black leaders of today have gotten that start at A&T by taking an active and concerned role in the student governance and well-being of this institution. These men and women have left the doors of this school and continued to use and build upon the traits of leadership developed here.

It is to the Class of 1974 that all good wishes are extended. They have demonstrated that they are a concerned group of brothers and sisters. It is this type of student leadership that enables Aggies to leave A&T knowing that there is somebody here to carry on effectively.

Change In Meal Schedule Brings Criticism To Campus Food Service

Editor of the Register:

I thought the dining hall situation couldn’t get any worse than the long lines, limited space, tasteless food, and flies. Now there has even been a revision of the hours.

If the dining hall doesn’t open until eleven thirty for lunch, then what happens to the student who has a twelve o’clock class? For many of us, lunch is the first meal of the day. You usually have to stand in line for twenty minutes. By the time you find a seat a half hour has elapsed. Naturally, the sensitive thing to do would be to skip lunch. That way you would not have to gulp your food and risk getting indigestion in class.

Since returning to school last fall, I have often wondered about the new dining hall that had been planned for A&T. We could certainly use it to eliminate some of the problems in Brown and Murphy.

Help Needed For Users Of Drugs

Editor of the Register:

I feel that more emphasis should be placed on narcotics and the harm it is causing some of our sisters on this campus and throughout the community. I think we should start a campaign against drug abuse. By reminding the students of the dangers of narcotics, with posters and signs on campus and notices in the paper, we could help some of the victims of drugs.

A&T Launches Program
To Produce Black CPA's

The black certified public accountant, once as hard to find, as a snowball in Hades, is becoming more visible in business and industry.

Don't get me wrong, there is still no surplus of black CPA's, but the 150 out of a total of 100,000 accounting graduates in the United States today is a far cry from the 47black males available in 1962.

A unique program now in a project in operation at the University is seeking to guide more college youngsters into the field.

The program is a project to bring some of the black CPA's into contact with A&T students presently majoring in accounting.

"This is a tremendous program," said Dr. Herbert N. Watkins, chairman of the Department of Accounting. "It helps the University to bridge the gap between the theory we give the students and the practical knowledge the executives bring to the campus."

Watkins said the visiting lecturers (eight during a semester) are all high level people in prestigious firms, business and industry.

The executive lecturers to the advanced accounting class twice a week; then the class coordinator, an A&T faculty member, conducts a wrap-up session at the end of the week.

James Polk, a youthful black CPA from California, talked recently about his experiences in the A&T program.

"The students really enjoy this approach as shown by their enthusiasm," said Polk. "There seems to be almost a hunger desire for knowledge about opportunities in industry. They also want to know what is necessary to acquire these opportunities."

The A&T program is sponsored by the National Urban League and the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

Polk is a tax expert for the huge Levi Strauss & Company in California. His company paid for all expenses involved with his trip to A&T.

"I was glad to get this teaching opportunity," said Polk. "I feel it is one small way I can help the black student in a real way, and to let them know that success is within their grasp."

Polk recalled his own experiences trying to become a CPA. "I guess I was somewhat different," he said. "I never let the fact that the opportunities might not be there, stop me wanting to become a CPA. I thought the opportunities would break."

Polk joined Strauss & Company two years ago, after spending seven years with the U. S. Internal Revenue, a little more liberal in the hiring of black CPA's than business and industry.

The A&T accounting students have nothing but praise for the new program.

"It moves you away from the book," said Joan Bennett of Bridgeport, Conn. "You can go to ask questions from the expert and that really helps."

According to Dr. Mahesh Jain, coordinator of the A&T program, there are more than 200 students currently majoring in accounting at the University.

"The persons who graduate in this curriculum all get jobs," he said. "At least seven of our graduates last June were hired by nationally-known CPA firms at beginning salaries of $10,800 or more."

Dr. Jain said A&T offers all of the courses necessary to prepare a student for the rigid (only 10 per cent pass all parts the first time) certifying examination this month. At least seven of our graduates of last June hired by nationally-known CPA firms at beginning salaries of $10,800 or more.

So far, 100 per cent have passed the examination, and all have nothing but praise for the A&T program.

"This is a wide open field," said Polk. "All the students have to do is have desire and put forth effort."
Brothers And Sisters Of Aggieland Get Turned Out

By Jacqueline Corpening

Soul Brother No. 1 James Brown put on a show that was simply out of sight Monday, October 5, in Moore Gymnasium. He kept the attention of the Aggies throughout the entire show as he sang his all-time greatest hits: "Ain't It Funky Now," "Get On Up," "Cold Sweat," "I Got A Brand New Bag," "I Got the Feeling," "This Is A Man's World," "There Was A Time," "Bewildered," "Sex Machine," and many more; but, when he sang one of his oldies "Try Me," he just captured the hearts of the Aggies, young and old. James Brown music is a true example of dynamic soul. He sings from feelings and experiences. It's very seldom that he may compose a song without some type of meaning he's trying to convey. A good example is, "Don't Be A Drop Out." This record also won him an award that was presented to him by former Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey for inspiring young people to stay in school. James Brown’s advice to college students is "Stay in school because, without an education, you have no one to impress and this world is a jungle—untamed and uncivilized—and it's you against the world, and I realized that a long time ago."

An impressive and interesting highlight of the show was a plaque presented to James Brown from the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Mu Psi Chapter, by Wilbert Royal and Milwood Hobbs. The Omegas honored James Brown for being Soul Brother No.1—a Defender of the cause and Humanitarian. This award, according to James Brown, made him feel happier than the President of the U.S. He has received numerous awards, but he had never received one of that nature.

When asked what he thought of A&T, James Brown said, "A&T means business and that's the name of the game."

Even though James Brown was the featured attraction, Honey & the Bee and Bobby Byrd were also part of that action. Honey & the Bee sang "I Can't Get Next To You," "Love On A Two Way Street," and "When Something Is Wrong With My Baby." Another member of the James Brown Enterprise is Bobby Byrd. He sang "Baby I Love You," and "Get On Up With James Brown."

The J.B. Band has only been together two years. The members are Phelps Collins, Bootsy Collins, John Starks, Johnny Griggs, Hussan James, Frank Wadely, Sinclair, Clind Stubblefield, and Martin Cless.

Photos By And Leon
from Houston, Texas, thought, "It was a very dynamic performance. I think it was well worth all the trouble of getting in the gym and getting close enough to see him."

J. B.'s Band kept the attention of the audience with its great sounding beat which kept the Aggies moving through the entire program.

"One of the most enjoyable affairs of the year," commented Dr. Roy Moore, head of the Physical Education Department, which sponsored the show.

Several students were also complimentary about the show. Brenda Wilkins, advanced sophomore from Winston-Salem, said, "I think the show was really together. We didn't have any long periods to wait, from the moment the band started to the moment James Brown finally left the stage."

Gregory Russell, sophomore from Oriental, called the James Brown show "real bad. Even though the audience was dead, he still socked it to us. His band was very very good and they were really hip to what their instruments would let them do."

Dan Lary, senior from Columbia, described the show as "truly a black experience. The show was filled with soul and soulful people enjoyed it." Demmie Murray, freshman from Richmond, Virginia, said, "I've seen James Brown perform three times and each time I really enjoyed his shows. Brown is 'naturally together'."

Reginald Defour, senior from New York, thought "James Brown really proved he was 'Super Bad.' This was the best show I've seen at A&T in years. James Brown can make an audience do anything he wants."

J. B. Tells the brothers and sisters that "This Is A Man's World".

These sisters definitely had that feeling.

Williams Says Campus To Be Extended Soon

By Joyce C. Harris

Plans are in motion for the extension of A&T's campus in the very near future. The buildings are badly needed for classroom space.

Many students were confused by the announcement because of the fact that two classes were scheduled to be held in the same room at the same time. Dr. F. A. Williams, director of Planning and Development, said the buildings will be asked for at the meeting of the General Assembly.

Money for a new dining hall has already been appropriated and will be the next new building on campus. Its proposed location has already been appropriated. The building will be the area behind Bluford.

Projects to Head Program

McCollough, placement center director, has asked for immediate suggestions to revitalize the Placement Center. He feels that a completely effective program depends upon cooperation from all areas of the University.

Former SGA Prexy

To Head Program

For Recruitment

William H. Gamble, director of admissions, recently announced that the University is seeking students for much-needed improvements in the recruiting program from the University. Vincent McCullough, former student government association president, has been employed by the University to head this newly-innovated program.

McCullough has asked for assistance in recruiting new undergraduate students for the school deans, division directors, officers of administration, and the presidents of student organizations. He feels that a completely effective program depends upon cooperation from all sections of the University. Suggestions are requested immediately.

People Ask 'Who's No. 82?'
— Linebacker Ben Blacknall

After A&T's opening football game against Southern University, the sportswriters and fans were asking, "Who's No. 82?"

But since that time, the name and number of linebacker Ben Blacknall have become household items, at least to enemy ball carriers and coaches.

"This boy is only a junior and he is one of the best that I have seen," said one pro scout after seeing Blacknall at work against Johnson C. Smith.

"He hasn't given us a bad game yet," said coach Horsey Howell. "He really understands what we're after and he goes all out to accomplish it.

Blacknall is a candidate for all-conference honors, usually figures something like 19 or 20 tackles per game.

In the Aggies' first four games, he has done just about everything that a good linebacker is supposed to do. He has blocked a punt, intercepted a pass, forced a fumble, and shut down the field, the Aggies were again denied revenge for their 15-14 upset last year as their final drive died at midfield.

With the loss, by a 24-20 margin, A&T was off to the left. The J. C. Smith eleven took over on their 20 and played for A&T. Tight End Freddie Harris caught a Duncan pass near midfield. Then QB Elroy Duncan went to work as he hit speedy Sprinter Joe Johnson who was behind the tremendous blocking of Mel Holmes, William Smart, and DeQuincy Davis.

QB Charles Middleton who had also contributed to the drive got the call to pay dirt just short of the one yard line. RF Harold Riley got his first TD for A&T by rushing the last 8 yards in about 4.6, plays harder with the opponents' off tackle plays and sweeps. "Those are what I like best," he said. "I am working on reading centers and guards and also trying to increase my strength."

Although Smith won the game, the Aggies were on top in every other statistical area.

The Aggies won the toss and took the opening kickoff. Following Larry Bolton's return, Charles Middleton took over and down the field, the Aggies were again denied revenge for their 15-14 upset last year as their final drive died at midfield.

With the loss, by a 24-20 margin, A&T is only 1-3 going into its first home game.

"Blacknall is really our defense," said Jeffries. "He has a lot of heart and knowledge about the game. As far as his size goes, I don't think that he is handicapped, not the way he can hit."

Aggies Lose Game To J.C. Smith
But Top In Statistical Area

After beating the Golden Bulls of J. C. Smith who are defending CIAA champion, up and down the field, the Aggies were again denied revenge for their 15-14 upset last year as their final drive died at midfield. With the loss, by a 24-20 margin, A&T is only 1-3 going into its first home game.

Although Smith won the game, the Aggies were on top in every other statistical area.

The Aggies won the toss and took the opening kickoff. Following Larry Bolton's return, Charlie Middleton took over for the Bulls and returned it out of the endzone 22 yards. Smith then got rolling as Elroy Duncan proved himself really "the magician".

First hit Joe Johnson for a first down. Tim Beamer found running room and gained 10 yards, the longest Smith run all night but was a first down in A&T territory. Highlighting the drive was the "bomb" to 9.4 sprinter Joe Johnson who was ahead of his intended defender by ten steps. Defending on the play was William Harragves and Maurice Williams, who countered the play by blocking out Johnson and sverting a TD.

Just the same for A&T, interference was called and the Bulls had the ball on the 10 yardline. A superb defensive line held for three plays, then Smith hit Johnson for both a TD and a two-point conversion. The score was 11-7 and Smith leading.

Again the Aggies got the ball at their 20 and played desperately to catch up. Playing ball control, A&T kept the pickin' on the ground. RB Henry Walker gained 28 yards on several plays before Middleton broke away for runs of 18 and 23 yards. Several plays later Harold Riley got his first TD for A&T by rushing the last 8 yards to pay dirt. This time Gay's placement was off, but A&T had 14-14 at the half.

When the second half started, Smith got the kickoff but couldn't.

Game With Norfolk State
To Be Real Cliffhanger

By Paul Jones
Sports Editor

When the Spartans of Norfolk State invade the A&T home turf Saturday night, the contest promises to be a real cliffhanger.

The last time the visitors from the Tidewater were down, they got swamped 61-14 before a capacity crowd. That time A&T was undefeated going into the game, but this time the Aggies have only a 24-23 victory in the win column.

But matters will still be highly spirited as the Aggies will be trying to prove they not only can play well, but win while Norfolk will be attempting to reverse a 20-14 loss last year.

not move the ball on downs. A&T took over at its own 45 and soon fumbled the football away. From there the Bulls drove for the TD on a James Mather one-yard dive. The PAT failed, but the score was 13-7 and Smith leading.

Trailing, going into the final quarter, the Aggies returned the kickoff to midfield. Henry Walker and Harold Riley again initiated the comeback as A&T, behind a strong backing of followers, drove downfield. A screen pass to Lorenzo Pearson went for 24 yards and set the stage for Harold Riley's second TD run. Guy again added the PAT and A&T took a 20-17 victory. The real heartbreaker of the game came only moments later as a series of bad officiating calls and defensive errors doomed the Aggies.

A 29-yard pass interference call on the A&T defensive secondary was the absolute end as Smith struggled to score. What was the game-winning points came later as Duncan floated over his line for the winning TD. The kick by Coleman was good, A&T was again losing 24-20.

When A&T got the ball, they drove it downfield where the drive died. Through prying the Aggies held the ball to the end as freshmen QB Willie Curry went for a 70-yard bomb which barely fell incomplete in the endzone.

A whistle and it was all over as the Aggies fought another gallant but losing game with the Spartans of Norfolk State to follow.
