Campus Crime On The Increase
Four Crimes Reported In Ten Days

By George Johnson

A few crimes are committed on campus, but at the same time there are many more on their fellow black students.

Commenting on the students' attitudes, Graeber feels that the students are not really security minded, as evidenced by open doors, providing ideal situations for thieves, not recording numbers for valuable items, or putting hidden identification marks on them.

Another problem facing the offices is the students' inability to identify or describe the stolen items.

Graeber attributed the rise in crime to drugs, and to the fact that criminals are becoming more desperate. For example, four crimes have been reported in the last ten days.

Security officers arrested a black student from UNC-G during mid-October for inappropriately entering a women's residence hall.

The student was charged with tampering with property. Three days later, one of the Cooper Hall residents reported an attempted rape involving the student charged with tampering.

According to the official police report, the student is now 18 years old, and is in the process of being apprehended physically.

The victim stated that she was awakened when she felt someone being choked. She then instructed not to scream.

During the struggle, the victim managed to flee to another room, and the assailant appeared as if trying to crawl through the window.

There have been other minor assaults reported by women students here, but they have been less visible to the public.

Graeber stated that the purpose of the security office is to prevent crimes, and incidents like this are to be avoided simply by having the students to lock their doors.

The police are now in a position to only become involved with minor offenses here when they are requested to do so by the school officials.

YOBU Designed To Meet Problems Of Blacks

By Alice Hobbs

A relatively new organization designed to meet the needs and interests of Black people in several aspects is the North Carolina Youth Organization for Black Unity. The N.C. Youth Organization for Black Unity (YOBU) was given its initial impetus at a meeting sponsored by the State Black Student Leadership Committee held at Duke University in July.

Black student government leaders met on the campus of Fayetteville State University in September to determine the goals of this organization as it may relate to the masses of Black people.

A steering committee was formed as a result of this meeting which consists of Maurice Carter, Fayetteville State University; Ronald Ivey, A&T; Humphrey Cummings, UNC-Charlotte; Teretha Limon, Shaw University; and Milton Lewis, North Carolina Central University.

The Black People Union Party, also an outgrowth of this meeting, was organized upon the belief that the present existing Democratic and Republican parties failed to accommodate the needs of Black people.

At the last N.C. Youth Organization for Black Unity meetings Black students have sought to build a stronger State Black Student Federation; have worked toward building a stronger National Black Student Federation; and have sought to build a stronger National Black Student Conference.

These goals have not been met, but Black people are now starting to work together to promote the well being of Black people, to establish a Save Black Schools Commission composed of students, community leaders and educators, to enhance the role of Black youth in electoral politics by the initiation of statewide voter registration and voter education projects, to help develop an independent political structure through which Black people can gain maximum benefits from their political power, to develop more positive relationships between young and old, and to offer assistance to the needy and lend support to crisis situations involving gross social injustices.

YOBU believes that Black people have a right to establish their own institutions, to have their own schools, and to have their own every aspect of Black existence, building on the progress already made and adding their own knowledge and efforts to the continuous struggle for freedom.
Crime

Marvin Graeber, Associate Director of the physical plant, has said that "too many students are not security minded." "Unlocked doors," he says, "provide an open invitation to thieves."

However, we all, even Graeber, must admit that the recent crime wave is due to only one thing: Drugs. Four crimes have been reported in the last ten days. Drug abuse in itself is illegal and one of its main characteristics is its tendency to breed crime.

Drugs have no place on a Black university campus, especially this one. A&T students are constantly in the public eye. We live in a fish bowl surrounded by a sea of hostile eyes.

A&T has enjoyed its role as a leader in the struggle for liberation for over a decade. How can we continue this role if our fellow students are "nodding out" on drugs? Who will support us in our struggle if it is felt that our student body is "spaced out" into the next century?

The actions of a few will stereotype us all. It is not enough to say "I don't use drugs"; your roommate must not use drugs, and most important you must not use drugs.

A parody on the rhyme "Power to the People" might go like this:

Power to the Aggies,
Right-on Power,
To the Right-on Aggies.

Who will survive,
The Bust in Aggie Land?
Very few users,
And no pushers at all.

The Drug Drain

Cooper Hall Victims

Editor of The Register:

I feel that you are perhaps tired of receiving complaints from the ladies in Cooper Hall, but we are being victimized!

Everyone who has been in Cooper Hall is painfully aware of the lobby conditions. The few couches are soon occupied, so those who don't get there first are forced to sit on the steps, stand up against the walls, or go outside and baby, it's getting a little cold for outside. It is horrible for the girls to try to entertain guests in that tiny space. And there is no entertainment! Every dorm on campus has stereo, television, or even both in the lobbies except Cooper. There was a television when school opened which never worked, and was finally hauled away, presumably to be repaired. Does it take two months to repair one television?

I am certain we can do without a television, but what I want to know is why the basement lobby can not be used to entertain our guests? When we ask the matrons, we are put off with remarks like, "We don't have a counselor for that lobby and there is no money to hire another one." We are capable of entertaining guests without an ever-present counselor, there is no counselor in the east lobby of High Rise! All I want is the chance; just give Cooper Hall the chance. Haven't we had to do without enough in Cooper Hall?

Iron Bandits

The vending machines on campus are constant reminders of the imperfection of mechanical and electrical engineering. These machines are in constant need of repair, and when one malfunctions, the students are the ones affected.

It is extremely frustrating when you are down to your last 35 cents, and you bounce down three floors, deposit your money and zip, yes, zip, no response; nothing comes out. So you don't look around to see if the dorm counselor is around; you just hit the machines but only after you call it a few names.

We, the students, are not allowed to destroy university property, but these iron bandits are allowed to rob us at will.

If these machines are kept in operating order, the students' frustration level would decrease, and maybe the students would be happier.

Aggies Leave To Duel
ECU Vikings Saturday

By Jacqueline Glisson
Sports Editor

This week the powerful Aggies have home to duel with another tough opponent, the Elizabeth City Vikings. Out to make a comeback, the Aggies will be seeking revenge against this team. Noted for having a very good team, Elizabeth City will be the contest with a 4-2-1 overall record in the CCAA. A&T, which has also played seven games, will come out on the field with a 3-3-1 overall record in the MEAC.

Even though both teams have had equal opportunities in competition, playing for a conference win in the CCAA last year, it will not change the fiery action on the turf. Since both teams are in different conferences now, both teams' offense and defense will be the key in the game and that is what will make the game a thriller.

A&T's outstanding defense will have their work cut out for them at Elizabeth City, A&T's superb defensive unit led by the humble, but impressive backstop, Ben Blacknall, George Suggs, and James Humphries along with the quick thinking, and agile cornerbacks, William Hargraves, will be in tough competition with the outstanding Viking linemen, Aly Khan Johnson and Isaac Oliver. It will be a battle between the defenses of both teams in determining who will stop the other team's offense. The Aggie defense is very tight as the records show because they are noted for having allowed opponents very few chances to make it to the endzone.

Elizabeth City's offense will be charged by their annointed quarterback, Lawrence Harrell, backed up by a good offense. Affirming the fight for the title, the Vikings' offense is dangerous running back Oliver Reynolds and an impressive receiver Maurice Harrod.

The Aggies' offense will be ready to meet the challenge of the Vikings. The Aggies will come on strong, since several offensive players will return to the turf after illnesses and ailments.

The threatening running backs, Al Holland, Thomas Murphy, and Johnny Davis, will be in the Aggie line-up full force to lead the scoring attack.

The other asset to the team, impressive backfield player John T. Anthony, will be back on the field, along with Paul McKibbens and Leonard Rolfeid at quarterback, backed up by flanker Charles Tuttle.

Aggies Try To Forget
Last Weeks Nightmare

By Jacqueline Glisson

It is quite amazing how three loaded, determining words can bring forth so much confusion, controversy, and upset in the game of football. These three words happen to be—"trapping the ball."

Seemingly harmless words, they proved just the opposite in A&T's most crucial conference game of the year in which the Aggies could have won by one point over Morgan State instead of vice versa. It was the well-remembered phrase which cost the Aggies not only those two precious winning points, but also the opportunity to have the MEAC lead they "desired" over their strongest opponent, the Morgan State Bears.

"Deserved" is the word, proven through the second half performance of the vigorous, driving A&T team that came up from a scoreless first half to a thrilling, brilliant 20 points. The team went to work in the second half displaying that true, determined Aggie spirit by collecting three rapid touchdowns, a two-point conversion, that had Morgan's team as well as the crowd spellbound.

Even with the Aggies playing the type of game that made all students and loyal fan proud, we still came out slightly under the heat of the Bear with a 21-20 heart-stopping win.

The Aggies are trying to put the day of October 30, 1971, a nightmare, out of their minds, as they look forward to winning the remaining games of the season. For the Aggies, last week's game was definitely a job well done. It is a pity everyone didn't see it that way.

BOSS And Chiefs Score Upsets
As Intramurals Tourney Begins

By Blonnie Bowen

The semifinals of the intramural football tournament got underway at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday in advance of the first semifinal game over the Epicureans, 14-6, while the Chiefs defeated the Sigmas, 12-7, Thursday. BOSS and the Chiefs now advance to the finals of the intramurals football tournament.

In a scoreless duel, both defenses showed awesome power in the first half. The Epicureans controlled what little offense that was generated in the first quarter. BOSS was not to be outdone, so they came right back to control the small amount of second quarter offense.

The third quarter of play was scoreless, but both teams started to demonstrate good passing on both, offense and defense.

With darkness approaching, the fourth quarter began BOSS defensive back, Bob Robertson intercepted a pass minutes remaining in the game. Quarterback Anton Thomas went in for a 10-yard pass, leading the Chiefs to the 18 yard-line. With the kickoff, Quarterback Tyrone Roland hit star-running back, Robert "Shorty" Rivers, with a pass, and he scampered 40 yards for the final score of the game. Rivers was outdone, so they came right back to control the small amount of second quarter offense.

The crowd was now starting to thump in the third quarter of play. The Epicureans controlled what little offense that was generated in the first quarter. BOSS was not to be outdone, so they came right back to control the small amount of second quarter offense.

The third quarter of play was scoreless, but both teams started to demonstrate good passing on both, offense and defense.

Should Morgan win, they will lead in the conference if by chance, Howard defeats Morgan, A&T will have a chance to tie for the lead. With this game at Elizabeth City, the Aggies will be rough and ready to bring home a victory.

Aggies Out
To Regain
Winning Ways

Madduron and receiver Willie Wright, the Viking defense will have a load on their hands.

Although the Aggies four-week winning streak was interrupted last week, they will be ready to pick up on that victory trend once again. The Aggies' hopes of capturing the MEAC Championship are slim at this point, with Morgan State being undefeated in the MEAC thus far. The Aggies now maintain a 3-1-1 conference record, with two more conference teams to play after this week.

All attention this weekend will be centered on the MEAC game in Washington, D.C. between Howard University and Morgan State. Should Morgan win, they will lead in the conference if by chance, Howard defeats Morgan, A&T will have a chance to tie for the lead. With this game at Elizabeth City, the Aggies will be rough and ready to bring home a victory.
