President DOWDY And FAMILY Wish The Entire Aggie Family A Merry Christmas

Students Faculty To Start Talking

By Patrice Dunn

"I feel that there is more a closeness (between faculty and students) now and I hope that this will grow to the point where it will produce a much more productive environment," were the words of L. C. Dowdy, University President, concerning student faculty unity.

Dowdy indicated that the academic environment was "not bad but there is always room for improvement."

In an effort to improve this situation, Dowdy stated that plans have been made so that faculty members will be eating in the dining halls, and talking to them in the dorms. The president also plans to entertain small groups of students at his home.

The discussion sessions in dorms and dining halls are to include such subjects as economics, society, and any other area which the students feel like giving their views on. This effort of communication is an attempt to bring students from all majors together along with faculty members to share their experiences and knowledge.

Dowdy feels that one topic which should draw great student interest and participation should be that of students being able to vote in the state in which they attend school. The president believes that since "a student pays for a service and he must work for that service or else not get it," then he should be treated as any individual who works in an area for four years.

When the faculty and students working in small informal groups express their feelings on such ideas, Dowdy feels convinced that faculty-student cooperation and unity will improve and in doing so will improve the academic atmosphere here.

190 Prospective Graduates To Know Fate By Christmas Vacation

By Janice Smith

The Office of Registration and Records announced that there are approximately 190 prospective graduating seniors for the mid-year. This number is considerably larger than the 98 graduates at the end of the fall semester last year. All prospective graduates will be notified as to whether they have completed all university requirements before they leave for the Christmas vacation.

Concerning registration for the spring semester, Dr. Rudolph

D. Artis, Director of Registration and Records, stated that the office is attempting to have instructional sheets available to the courses they need before returning after New Year's.

Spring registration begins on January 6, but Dr. Artis noted that I.D. card processing will begin on the fifth and extend throughout the period of registration. Students will not be able to enter the gym to pick up schedule cards unless they show their I.D. and charge slip. He also encourages students to be more careful in filling out their cards in hopes that the number of errors will be reduced.

At the end of this semester, Aggies will notice that the entire grade form has been changed. A new ready-mailer type will be used, straight from the computer; this will save time by omitting the need for grade slips to be put in envelopes.

The form also differs from past slips by having an additional sheet which will be sent to the Office of Financial Aid so as to reduce delays for students in receiving financial assistance. If plans go as scheduled, grades will be sent home during the Christmas vacation.

Scott Surrounded

Student Sought By G-boro Police

By George Johnson

An alleged A&T student is being sought by the Greensboro Police Department in conjunction with the armed robbery and rape of Miss Jacquelyn Patricia Rhodes at UNC-G.

The crimes occurred in a room at Holiday Inn North that was registered to John Martin Gomery of Hampton, Va. Miss Rhodes has indicated that she was visiting Gomery at the time of the incident.

According to Wednesday morning's edition of the Greensboro Daily News, "She told detectives the two men forced their way into the room by pointing a rifle then took about $44 from her and Gomery."

Two of the men that are

Greensboro residents have already been arrested. They are Kevin Boyd Frazier, 18, of 319 Cumberland Street. He is held without bond and charged with rape and armed robbery and also Nathaniel Nash, 24, of 1407 Wayside Drive. He was held Tuesday in lieu of $20,000 bond on robbery charge.

Early Monday morning the occupants of Scott Hall were awakened only to find their dorm had been surrounded by approximately 50 police cars. The reason is that one of the three suspects (the alleged A&T student) had fled into Scott Hall while his two accomplices were apprehended in a car that was parked in the vicinity of Scott Hall. These are the two men that were mentioned earlier in the article. As of Tuesday evening according to M.B.

Graeber, Director of A&T Physical Plant, the third suspect had not been apprehended. The Greensboro police detectives have indicated that they are anticipating another arrest.

Graeber also indicated that it was discussed by students in Tuesday's University Senate meeting that Black males on this campus seem to show more respect to white females downtown than they do to their own Aggie sisters. A few isolated incidents are opening doors and the removal of hats. To this statement Graeber seriously added, "Lack of respect isn't a value to any action."

He also continues to urge law abiding students to become more vocal and not to become victimized by the crowd because "Education is a process of self-discipline."

Spring Improvements On The Drawing Board

By Betty Miller

John Zeigler, Business Manager, stated that the following capital improvements would be started during the 1971-73 biennium, physical education and health, physical plant warehouse, maintenance building, and heating plant improvements.

The improvements to be undertaken fall into two phases: phase one, the installation of underground cable, which has already been completed, and phase two which includes the operation of an underground primary electrical distribution system. Plans for complete renovation lay in store for Noble Hall in addition to the installation of air conditioning in

(See IMPROVEMENTS, Page 8)

For Students Only!

Due to the limited seating capacity in Moore Gym, officials at the University have announced that only A&T students will be granted admission to basketball games played there.

The announcement issued through the office of Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, president of A&T, stated: "In view of the limited seating capacity of the Moore Gymnasium, the Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics, a student-faculty group, has recommended that admission to all basketball games in the gym be restricted to A&T students.

The only non-students admitted to the games will be representatives of the dean of student's staff and personnel necessary for the conduct of the game."

"We sincerely regret having to exclude the general public and members of the Aggie family from our games," said Cal Irvin, athletic director; "but in the interest of safety, we had to make this move." The A&T gymnasium seats only about 2,500 persons. The current student enrollment is 4,400.

Irvin said two additional games (January 11 and January 19) are scheduled to be played in the Coliseum. Negotiations are underway for an additional game against Elizabeth City State.

Closer Together

Dr. Dowdy has announced that plans are being made to bring the faculty and students closer together. Such an endeavor has been sorely needed at this institution for a long time.

The Assembly of Organizational Presidents tried with its 'five-and-ten forums' to stimulate interaction between students and faculty, but failed. Students did not come to hear faculty members speak, and faculty members were reluctant to talk to the walls.

The idea of having faculty members eat in the dining halls is a stroke of genius. Students and faculty will never lack a topic of conversation. They can always complain about the food.

It is hoped that faculty and students will not sit side by side in the cafeteria and gobble down their food with polite grunts and groans. Students should challenge faculty and faculty should challenge students. Next semester it should not be surprising to see faculty members and students meeting every day just to talk.

When and if Dr. Dowdy's plan becomes a reality, A&T will stop being a 'knowledge factory' and truly become a University.

Black Christmas

*Ding dong
Bells chime
Ringing out
Christmas time
Bright lights
Holiday cheer
Joyous time
Now is here*

*In the Ghetto
Dark and rank
Where is the joy
Of Christmas cheer?
For What do they give thanks?*

Christmas is the season of joy, worship and good cheer. It is a time of ultimate giving and rejoicing with love for all mankind. Christmas is the time one takes to seek to express all of the things he has felt during the year.

Take time during your festivities and merrymaking to reflect, as Black people, on our brothers and sisters to whom Christmas is merely another day in the year. Don't push these unfortunates out of your picture-perfect season. Make it a point to find a family or just a child that the man in red has forgotten. Nothing is so fulfilling as the joy one receives by doing a kind deed for his fellow man, particularly during the yuletide when so many have so much to give.

Leave Pass System Started To Change This!!

Leave-Pass System In Murphy

By Janet Jones
News Editor

On December 8, the students who ate in Murphy Hall encountered a new pass system of leaving the dining hall.

Not only is a sticker required to enter Murphy Hall, but also to leave.

This new system was established by L. S. Munsen, director of food service.

Munsen stated, "The reason for this sudden application was because of the many complaints by students." Students complained that they had to step over trays on the floor, they had no place to sit, and that there was a lack of available and clean silverware.

Having tried many other approaches to this problem, such as pleading with the students for their cooperation, Munsen and the cafeteria staff decided to try the leave-pass system.

As each student brings his tray to the window, he is given a pass which permits him to leave the dining hall.

This system, though just initiated a couple days ago, is working very well.

Thus far, this process is only taking place in Murphy Hall; but, if it becomes necessary, the leave-pass system will be established in Brown Hall.

Dr. Stevenson Hosts New Black Program

By Ora Horton

"Blacks on Black," a black version of the Dick Calvert show is being emceed by our own Dr. John Marshall Stevenson. It is a new program geared to serve as a source of information and communication of ideas which emanate from the Black community, designed to reach all levels of people. The program is sponsored by WFMY television station, once a month on Sunday nights at 10:00.

Dr. Stevenson was asked to do this show by the management of the television station. The main purpose of establishing the program was an effort on the part of WFMY's part to conform to the standards of the Federal Communications Commission. Dr. Stevenson stated The reason the show is only being produced once a month now is due to the fact that Dr. Stevenson is too busy to devote any more time to the show at the present time.

The show will try to reflect programs of interest to all levels of people: the farmer, businessman, student and ordinary laborer. Some of the proposed programs will include an interview with some Black millionaires in North Carolina, a discussion of issues and problems of colleges today with four Black college presidents, representatives of Malcolm X University and SOBU to raise questions about their programs, and a possible interview with college students to let them give their ideas and views of some of today's situations. Dr. Stevenson stated that the main objective of the program, "Blacks on Black" is to try to determine "where we are going as a people and what we will do when we get there."

Black Leaders Speak On Black Leadership

By Rosie Stevens
and Janice Smith

William (Bill) J. Pickins, Vice President of Greensboro National Bank, and Kenneth Lee, President of American Federal Savings and Loan, were guest speakers Tuesday at the North Carolina Fellows Seminar held in the Student Union. Pickins spoke on how Black leaders differ from whites in social origin, education, career patterns, social status, and philosophy of leadership.

In relating this question to bankers, Pickins pointed out that the total background of Black bankers is poor because they do not have the connections or exposure that bankers need in order to measure up to par.

Pickins also added that banking is a "tight" field; out of the total number of 14,000 banks in this country, only 35 are Black majority owned.

On the role of women in banking, Pickins said that the larger corporate banks were training women for executive positions. If a woman wanted such a position, the opportunities would be greater in larger cities.

Lee chose to speak on the "Changing Patterns of Leadership". He stated that you can tell any community that has a Black commercial institution.

According to Lee, Black controlled banks also create pressure on white commercial associations to render more efficient service to the community. Two things, hard work and ability, were emphasized as prerequisites for a successful career in finance and banking.

Lee is a graduate of A & T, majoring in Electrical Engineering. He later attended the University of Hawaii for an advanced degree. He returned here to teach in the Department of Engineering for three years.

After working a number of years at Delwatts Electronics in Winston-Salem, he left to go to law school at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He has practiced law here in Greensboro since 1952. For twelve years, Lee has served as President of American Federal Savings and Loan.

A native of New York, Pickins received his undergraduate degree in History from State University of New York in Albany. He obtained his graduate degree from the American Institute of Banking and has completed additional Training through the ten-week Dunn and Bradstreet Credit and Finance Analysis Course. Prior to accepting the vice-presidency of Greensboro National Bank, he worked for 2½ years at Freedom National Bank in New York.

New Parking Lots Help Out But Parking Still A 'Bad Trip'

By Raeford Wideman

One of the most pressing problems for the campus police and the building and grounds department this semester has been the over-flow of cars seeking parking space on campus.

Buildings and grounds officials have attempted to solve this problem by enlarging and paving the lot behind Merrick and Crosby Halls. This attempt has greatly improved the appearance of this north campus area, but has done little to reduce the skin-tight parking experienced on main campus.

Another attempt to slacken the parking problem was the completion of a new parking area behind High Rise dormitory. This lot is adequate in size but attracts few main campus motorists.

Campus police chief Roosevelt Raines indicates that the areas of needed relief are the lots located at Holland Hall and behind Cherry Hall. These lots are constantly crowded by double-parked cars and cars in no parking zones. Chief Raines noted that "lots on Laurel Street and behind High Rise are seldom used, while others are jammed tight." He also stated that commuter students tend to create jams in lots because they drive to each class daily.

A solution planned for the future will give each student an assigned parking space in a certain lot. During class time, the student's car must be parked in this assigned lot, if it is on campus.

Chief Raines perhaps summed up the situation with the best solution, "We all need more exercise anyway, so why not park and walk."

NAIT Chapter Gets National Charter

By Bruce Hargrove, Jr.

The A&T Chapter of the National Association of Industrial Technology received its charter at a national meeting at Bradley University in Peoria, Illinois, recently.

A&T thus became the sixth school in the nation to have a nationally recognized chapter. Other chapters are at Texas A&M, Kansas State, Tuskegee, Memphis State, and Bradley.

NAIA was established on A&T's campus in 1969 with 15 members to continue to help in developing broad technically-educated persons. The organization further developed because of the increasing emphasis on mechanization or automation in industrial plants, marketing functions, space exploration, transportation, communication fields, and defense.

NAIT is presently sponsoring a car-repair workshop Friday afternoons from 2:00 to 5:00 for minor repair work, group social activities, and educational field trips. It is also in the process of establishing an Industrial Technology library for research and career references and of launching a membership drive.

Officers of the local chapter are Calvin Stevens, president; Edgar Murphy, vice president; Bruce Hargrove, Jr., secretary; Gay Dolberry, treasurer; and Joseph Williams, senate representative.

Many Things To Many People

By Rosie A. Stevens

Christmas is many things to many people. To some people this holiday holds special significance as the birth of Christ. To others, the day has no meaning except as another day of the year.

Some of us say that the commercialization of Christmas has robbed it of any real meaning it might have had.

We think of how we felt about this time, as children, and saw Santa Claus and toys under a Christmas tree covered with angel hair.

When we compare this picture with the one we have today of chambers of commerce who put up Christmas decorations before Thanksgiving, the view is very cheap. We are completely revolted by merchants who advertise this or that gift for only seven dollars. Christmas has no meaning.

Others say that Christmas has no meaning for them because it is the white man's creation throughout. As Black people, they cannot relate to this.

Regardless of the validity of their views, we have to take into consideration that Christmas is the only holiday with a built-in bonus of nearly three weeks of free time.

Having this amount of time on our hands sounds like a great deal of fun.

Different people will do different things with this time. Some of us will be caught up in a round of shopping, and many of us will party.

At the end of the holidays we will return to school, not really ready to begin work again, but also having done nothing that is really meaningful.

We dislike having merchants take advantage of us, but we are giving our full consent to this exploitation by participating in this.

We cannot sit back and howl about merchants who make money from our dollars at Christmas. What is more commercial than our giving those dollars?

We have to be able to sort out the cheapness and to really appreciate this holiday for what it really is.

If we think, of course, that what this holiday really is does not relate to us as Black people, we may still appreciate it.

If Christmas is the white man's holiday, consider what we will do with this time. If our time is to be profitable and to have some meaning, it is up to us to supply that meaning.

Whatever our feelings toward Christmas, may all of us have a more meaningful, less commercialized Black holiday season.

13-College Curriculum Expanded To 27 Southern Colleges

By Drusilla Dunn

In the early part of 1967, A&T State University was invited by the Institute for Services to Education to join a consortium of 12 other Black colleges and universities in a Curriculum Development Program. This consortium has now expanded to include a total of 27 Black colleges and universities located in the South.

At the time, the intent of this program was to develop a curriculum that would bring the involved college students to a point where they could complete successfully and show a readiness for work normally required at the junior level. Students were selected at random from the incoming freshman class.

The areas emphasized are ideas and their expression (English); Quantitative and Analytical Thinking (Mathematics); Social Institutions: Their Nature and Change (History); Physical Science; Biological Science; Man and His Creative Awareness (Humanities); and Philosophy.

Faculty members selected by the colleges involved in the programs, developed the materials and methods in cooperation with the Curriculum Resource Group of ISE.

At the various colleges the faculty members were involved in constant assessment and revision of the curriculum. This assessment was during the 1967-68 academic year. These same faculties were also involved in the preparation of new materials for the second academic year.

The 13-College Curriculum Program aims at inducing the student to integrate and profitably use his present knowledge as he continues to increase it in a stimulating academic atmosphere. It seeks to make him a full participant in all his class work to allow him to become responsible for his education. It endeavors to transform him from one who responds passively to learning into one who questions, analyzes, initiates, and creates. All of these things, hopefully, will heighten both the student's self-image and his career chances.

Nationally Known Prof. Joins Ag. Ed. Faculty

Dr. Henry S. Brunner, a nationally prominent teacher in the field of agricultural education, has been added to the staff here.

Brunner's appointment as visiting professor was announced Tuesday by Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, president of A&T.

Brunner formerly served as chairman of the Department of Agricultural Education at the Pennsylvania State University. He was also a program specialist with the U.S. Office of Education.

Since his retirement from Penn State, Brunner has been serving as a special consultant to a number of colleges and universities throughout the nation. He has written widely in the field of program planning for the field of agricultural education.

Dowdy said Brunner's appointment will greatly keep in the improvement of A&T's agricultural education offerings. "We are particularly interested in preparing our students to understand the many new trends and developments in this important area of specialization," said Dowdy.

While at Penn State, Brunner taught a number of students who have become leaders in agricultural education. His former students included DR. A.P. Bell, chairman of the department at A&T, and Dr. Glenn F. Rankin, dean of academic affairs.

Whites Meet To Determine Fate Of Africans

By Winston Berry

United States—Once again, as it is done in 1884 in Berlin, a group of white men, representing the interests of European capital, have met to determine the conditions under which a group of Africans should live out their lives. Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the British Foreign Secretary, and a group of his aides, in a meeting with Ian Smith, the rebel leader of the illegal white supremacy regime that rules Rhodesia (Zimbabwe), agreed last week on the conditions under which 5.5 million Africans could achieve political parity with the 240,000 white settlers.

Britain, with surprising haste, rushed to present what it called a "package" to the United Nations Security Council for approval. The reason for urging a Security Council meeting on Thanksgiving Day was because of the United Nations' embargo against Rhodesia first instituted by the Council in 1965 and strengthened a year later.

Sir Colin Crowe, the British ambassador here, unfolded before the Council the complicated plan agreed to by which, if accepted by "Rhodesians as a whole", he said, would gradually increase the number of African voters. It would also result in the release from detention of some Africans now imprisoned or held under house arrest, and would confer legal independence upon the white minority regime. In effect, Sir Colin was pleading for his government that Africans and the United Nations accept the continuation of the partial slavery that exists now in Rhodesia in exchange for a promise that freedom and majority rule might, repeat MIGHT, come within 64 years.

We are indebted to Dr. Claire Palley of Queens University, Belfast, Ireland, for the most trenchant exposé of the British freedom "package". Under the conditions agreed to an African would have to meet certain requirements to qualify for enrollment as a voter: secondary education and $1,800 annual income, or have an income of $2,700 or property (immovable) worth $400. There are presently qualified, according to Dr. Palley, 15,000 African voters in Zimbabwe compared to 88,000 white voters. There are 50 white representatives in the House of Assembly to 16 Africans. In order reach the first stage of advancement as laid down in the Smith-Home agreement, the heads would still have power in their hands. The 240,000 settlers would retain their parity in land distribution with 44,000,000 going to them and the same amount of land going to the 5.5 million Africans. Smith's gang would have the power of life and death over the African majority. They would be sovereign and the Africans would be wards of the state.

With Smith and his clique clothed with such power, Ambassador Salim A. Salim of Tanzania and Ambassador Abdulrahim A. Farah of Somalia asked Sir Colin: "Who is going to guarantee those guarantees", meaning the "guarantees" of African rule which the British said were contained in the settlement agreement. For Britain has insisted — and still — that it was possible for her to intervene against the outlaw regime. How will it be possible for her to do so against a regime it has legalized?

As this was being written the U.S. had not taken part in the debate. But it is safe to predict that the U.S. will support the British position in the name of "peace" and peaceful development. But there is no peace in prospect if Britain goes through with its scheme. At best it represents a last ditch try to perpetuate white rule over African majorities below the Zambezi River. The United Nations cannot buy the plan and African fighters will not hold their fire for 64 years to test it.

Kappas Plan Party For Handicapped

By Deoborah McRae

The Alpha Nu Chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity will give the children of McIver Day Care Center a Christmas party. The Kappas plan the event for December 13 at the center.

The McIver School is a public school which has been operating for the past three years on West Lee Street. The school is operated for the trainable handicapped children.

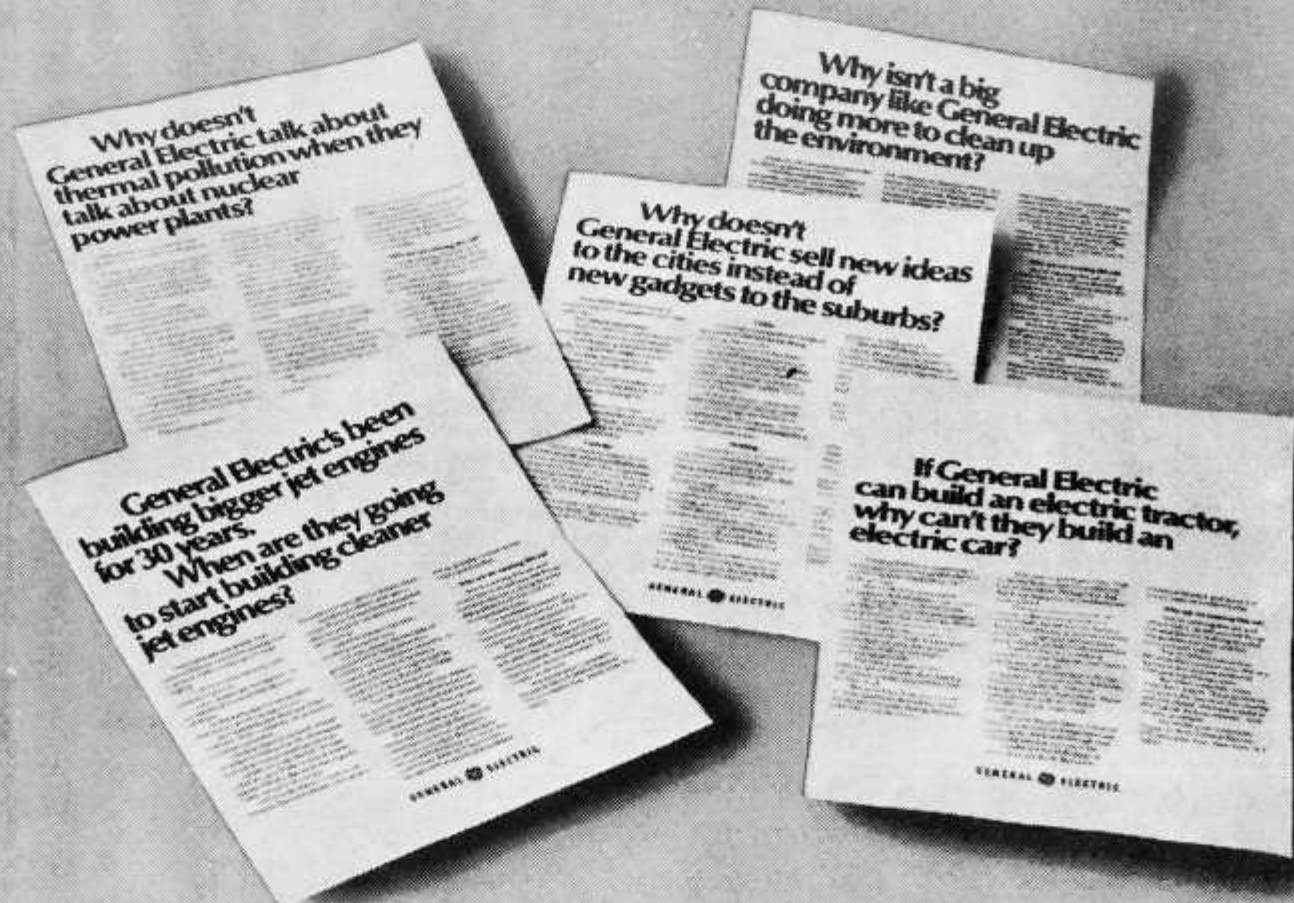

One of the "jolly" Kappas will play the role of Santa for the children. They will also distribute gifts and toys to help make the holiday season for the children a little brighter.

Richard Olds, a senior recreation major from Darlington, South Carolina, states, "Because the children had limited recreational activities, we decided to give the children a Christmas party." Olds is a member of the staff at the McIver School.

McIver is a part of the Greensboro Recreation Program for the Ill and Handicapped, directed by Bonnie Caswell.

Remember these ads?

We ran them in a lot of college newspapers last year. Their purpose was to answer some of the critical questions students were asking about our company.

Maybe you saw them. A lot of students did. And a lot wrote to us about them. In many cases the ads triggered additional questions, questions so provocative that we've decided to expand our communications with college students.

We're doing it in several ways. We've already started to have conferences of student opinion leaders and GE people at our various plant locations. These conferences permit deep probing of sticky questions. They help us to understand the concerns of students. But they involve relatively few students and GE people.

So we're going to share some of the questions and answers (like the ones above) with you by continuing our ads in college newspapers.

And we'll make sure our people see your questions, too—through company magazines and plant newspapers.

We think your concerns are important. And we think you should know how seriously we take them.

Home Economics Students Bring Christmas Closer With Party

By Ruth James

To bring the spirit of Christmas closer to home, the Home Economics students of A&T showed the holiday cheer and beauty of decorating their own tree in their annual Tree Trimming Party Thursday night in Benbow Hall.

The holiday spirit was high as the home economics students sang Christmas carols while they began decorating and putting the finishing touches to make themselves proud of their lovely Christmas tree. The girls, their guests, and the Home Economics faculty enjoyed Christmas cookies and punch prepared by the members of the Home Economics Club. The decorations placed on the tree were made by the Home Economics students.

Another project which is a part of spreading Christmas cheer and spirit is a Christmas party for the children of the White Oak community. This will be the beginning of a year-round project with the children of that community. The party will be Saturday in Benbow Hall.

The officers of the Home Economics club are Betty Dudley, president; Cassandra McCrae, vice-president; Susie Legree, secretary; Joyce Clark, historian; Minnie Liles, treasurer; Effie Stanford, parliamentarian; and Virginia Cofield, reporter.

Fashion Shows

By Doreen Green

Two, very exciting fashion shows were presented on A&T's campus this week. "Fashions Unlimited" was given December 7, 1971, in Merrick Auditorium by the Secretarial Procedures Class of the Business Department. Male and female fashions were modeled to the tunes of "Shaft". Apparel suitable for a day at the office was presented. Beautiful pant suits, skirt outfits, and very chic suits were presented for men.

Late evening fashions for that after hour affair were also modeled. Sister Sandra Hall presented a creative dance and and Sister Vermelle Brockington demonstrated the art of gale wrapping. The entire program was really together and enjoyed by all. (Go ahead Business Department!)

"It's A Fashion Affair" was sponsored by clothing and textile majors of the Home Economics Department. The Student Ballroom became the setting for a fashion extravaganza. Fashions in the areas of sportswear, late evening, coat apparel and capes were among the fashions featured. All of these fabulous fashions were sewn and created by the clothing and textile majors. These girls really sewed up a storm. Right-on to both the Business and Home Economics departments. "Fashions Unlimited" and "It's A Fashion Affair" were both out-of-sight!

A&T's New Varsity Wrestling Joins Aggie Sports Program

By Jacqueline Glisson

Soon to become an everyday word in the realm of sports at A&T, is wrestling. Loaded with talent and ready to show what they can do on the mat is the 1971-72 Aggie Wrestling team. This marks the first year the wrestling team performs in the MEAC Conference with a varsity standing.

"Considering the potentials the team has, I think A&T could have a very fine team in a year, but there is not enough experience at this time," commented wrestling coach Melvin Pinckney. The young wrestling team is dominated by freshmen, except for four upperclassmen members.

The team is comprised of 20 members who all have practically achieved high school honors in wrestling. These promising members are sectioned off into the various weight classes.

In the 118 pounder class is Joe Windley, a freshman. He placed first place and sectional champ at his high school. Ricky Smith, a 126 pounder, not only was a team captain, but also was named Most Valuable Wrestler at Dudley High.

Competing for the 142 lb. class are Bernard Herring and Sylvester Wilkins. Herring, a co-captain of the Aggie team, achieved the city champ title at his high school in Wilmington, Delaware. Wilkins made high school regional champ.

The team's captain, Melvin Fair, was named state wrestling champ while attending High Point Andrews High. He also made regional and district champ for three consecutive years.

Darnell Glover, Harvey Bush, and Ricky Campbell are challenging each other for the 158 pound spot on the team. Glover placed second in the state and received district and regional championships.

Greg Davis, who attended High Point Andrews, was a district and sectional champ and a state wrestling qualifier. He is a 167 pounder. Filling in the 177 lb. position is Louis Terrell, a native of Baltimore, Maryland. He placed second in the state and acquired district and regional champ status, in high school.

Noted as the most improved wrestler for this season is 190 pounder George Harris. He made district champ in high school. In the heavyweight rank is sophomore Daniel Coleman in Baltimore, Maryland, he was a state champ in high school. Completing the wrestling team roster are Mike Shaw, Donald Fleming, Marvin Lide, and Donald Jenkins.

Among these team members, Coach Pinckney instills the importance of attitude. He stresses that 75-80% of a wrestler is attitude. Thus far, the team has exemplified this spirit.

The wrestling team has already hit the mat in heated competition, since they have returned from a two-day wrestling tournament in Chapel Hill. Twenty-two colleges from across the state were represented there. Remarking on the team's performance, Coach Pinckney stated:

"The team did quite well wrestling against teams of better quality. They gave me 100% participation, although they didn't score well."

Ahead of the Aggie Matmen are eleven matches, with their first match against Livingstone College in Moore Gym. The wrestling team has a bright future ahead of them. How well they jell and use their potential will determine how much of a reality an impressive MEAC wrestling record can be achieved this year.

'Disappointed' Harris Leads Aggies Over EC

Last Saturday against Norfolk State College, A&T's William Harris was quite disappointed in himself after opening the season with only eight points on 3 of 17 shots from the floor and 2 free throws.

Against Elizabeth City State University Tuesday night, "June", as he is commonly known, led an Aggie offensive and defensive attack that gave A&T a 103-92 victory over the Vikings.

Termed a "penetrating guard" by Coach Cal Irvin, Harris constantly slid through the Vikings' zones and man-to-man defenses in accumulating 25 points.

Half of his shots were 20 feet or longer and amazed the hostile crowd into Elizabeth City's gym like a pack of vienna sausage.

"After my showing against Norfolk, I figured people might talk," Harris said after the game. "My shooting percentage was terrible."

According to Coach Irvin, Harris "came to play and got psyched up for the game."

From the tip-off it was all Harris. June, drove the lane, drove the base lines, shot the long jumpers and set up successful fast breaks.

Nobody could control the Durham native as he repeatedly took the ball away from the Vikings' star guard, Leonard Carmichael.

It was a team victory however, as Irvin utilized 10 of his 14 players. The first half was evenly matched as Harris had the range for A&T and 5-11 guard Holland Moore could not miss for Elizabeth City.

After the 52-49 halftime intermission lead, the Aggies almost showed the "killer instinct" Coach Irvin has been seeking in his team.

Elmer Austin played only 9 minutes of the first half and accounted for merely two points. But in the second half the former Dudley star slipped away from the tiring Vikings and threw in 21 markers for a game total of 23.

But still Elizabeth City wiped out A&T's 18-point second-half lead and got within eight, 94-86 with a little over two minutes left on the clock.

"By changing the fast tempo of the game to a controlled offense we were able to cut off their late rally," Aggie Coach Irvin related.

Ball Control - Superb Shooting Highlight Al Carter Benefit Game

By Blannie Bowen

The Al Carter Benefit Basketball Game was played Wednesday at Moore Gym between Malcolm X-SOBU and the SGA. The SGA came out victorious in this exciting game.

The game was sponsored by the SGA for Al Carter, a star guard on our basketball team. Last week Al's home was burned and two relatives died in the flames. The game was played without any admission being charged but donations were picked up. There was a good crowd on hand to witness some adept ball handling and superb shooting. The cohesiveness of the SGA team helped them capture a 55-51 victory.

The SGA led at the half by a mere 2 points at 22-20. During the first half, there were numerous long fly passes that resulted in SGA lay-ups. SGA was extremely poised in setting up the ball for the "good shot," but they would have just as soon played run and gun with Malcolm X. The game was tied several times during the first half, but the SGA maintained a slight lead throughout the second half.

With the start of the second half, the crowd rose to its feet as SGA president and vice-president, Ron Ivey and James Hill, came on the court. They did not let the crowd down as they put on a great "razzle-dazzle" show. Tyrone Bolden and Bernard Chambers made many super cool plays to help Ivey and Hill out.

Malcolm X deserves a great amount of credit for its outstanding game but the SGA simply poured it on them. They had the ability to battle back from deficits of 10 points or more, but the SGA had come to "play".

Spring Improvements On The Drawing Board

Sebastian Infirmary and Frazier Hall.

Zeigler commented that certain modifications and renovations will be made to Cooper Hall. He added that, if in the future more dorms are constructed, they will be built in such a way as to accommodate either men or women with no distinction in facilities.

In reference to a new cafeteria, it was stated that plans for construction are definite and those people who are concerned with construction are waiting for a final review from Property Control. The location of the new cafeteria will be east of the maintenance building and north of the library (space in front of Curtis Hall). There will be no division of classes concerning which dining hall to be used; the new one will take care of all students. No plans have been formulated in reference to what will become of Brown and Murphy Halls.

Coach Irvin Talks To His Saturday Night's Star

Team Effort Destroys Powerful EC State

The Vikings have a notorious pressing defense, but the Aggies were ready with precision passing and shot selections.

"It has to be one of our better games in their gym," said Irvin, "because very few teams come up here and win."

Behind Harris and Austin came James Outlaw, a substitute who killed his adversaries with 17 points and numerous assists.

"Outlaw should also be given a lot of credit," Irvin injected, not wanting his flashy sophomore guard to go unrecognized.

But Elizabeth City truly recognized all of the Aggies as 10 players went in and 10 players got the job done.

The nationally-ranked Aggies opened their season last Saturday by downing tough Norfolk State, 93-89 as part of a doubleheader played in the Greensboro Coliseum. A&T was led by Little All-America candidate Elmer Austin, who poured in 30 points.
