Psychology Gets Acting Chairman

By Cassandra Wynn

A chairman for the Psychology Department has not yet been selected. Dr. A. Vishnu Sharma is serving as acting Chairman until a permanent chairman is chosen.

Two reasons were given by Dr. Glenn F. Rankin, vice chancellor of academic affairs, for the Psychology Department having to function a year and a half without a chairman. The first reason that was given was a lack of money. Rankin pointed out that last year's allotment of full-time equivalent instructors was 232.7. For last year, the North Carolina Legislature allowed one full-time equivalent instructor for every 15.7 full time students. For this school term the legislature allows one full-time equivalent instructor for every 16 full-time students. A full-time student is one who takes 12 hours or more. Because the allotment of students per instructor increased, this year the university has one less full-time equivalent instructor.

Rankin stated that Chancellor Dowdy is now seeking funds to alleviate problems such as those of the Psychology Department. Nineteen new full-time positions are expected to be acquired next fall.

Rankin gave the second reason for the department operating the past year and a half without a chairman as being the inability to locate a person with suitable qualifications, that is, one with administrative experience in a school like A&T and academic qualifications. An available person who has had experience in working at a Black institution and is interested in coming to A&T and working with the students is hard to find.

Rankin revealed that although other names are expected to be submitted, one name is now being considered for the chairmanship. If a chairman is selected in the near future, the selection would not be made final until the Board of Trustees meets in the spring. However it is possible for the Chancellor to make an interim appointment before the meeting of the board in the spring with the understanding that the position would only be temporary until the board gives its stamp of approval.

The department which has 206 students and serves six to eight hundred students from other departments has operated the past year and a half without a chairman, only two full-time instructors, only a part-time secretary and without enough equipment for laboratories in experimental psychology. Rankin feels that the complaints from the students are legitimate. He stated, "I think the students have done an effective job of pointing up major problem areas and I am committed to improving them as rapidly as possible."

School Of Engineering Receives Two Grants

The School of Engineering at A&T has received grants totalling $27,700 for three research projects.

Dr. B. M. Botros, a professor of the Department of Mechanical Engineering, has been awarded $12,000 by the Union Carbide Corporation to continue a study of the corrosion of metal uranium. He has received $51,000 in research funds from the firm since 1970.

Dr. Charles L. Thompson, Jr., an associate professor of mechanical engineering, has received $14,400 from the National Science Foundation and A&T to purchase equipment for the heat transfer laboratory.

Thompson and Dr. Suresh Chandra, chairman of the Department of Mechanical Engineering, are directing an $8,700 research project for the Ford Motor Company.

The project is concerned with the development of an unconventional gas turbine combustor to minimize the emission of nitrogen oxides, one of the most serious remaining obstacles to the use of turbine power in automobiles.

Voter Registration Project Sets Goal

By Ronald Topping
Editor-in-Chief

Ten thousand new Black voters in Guilford County in 30 days was the goal set by the Southeast Greensboro Voter Educational Project at its kickoff rally Sunday on the campus of A&T State University.

The rally, which featured black Georgia state legislator Julian Bond and John Lewis, director of Voter Education Project, Inc. of Atlanta Ga., drew a large crowd of students at whom the rally was aimed.

John Lewis, a veteran of the civils rights movement and a former director of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, compared himself with a washing machine in explaining his purpose for being on the A&T campus. "If you look in a washing machine," he said, "you will see a big black thing; that thing is the agitator. That's the thing that gets the dirt and filth out."

Lewis called "for an open society and predicted that if people are not allowed to turn the country around in '72, they will be forced to turn it spside down in '73.

A picture was circulated through the crowd showing Lewis being trampled by an Alabama state trooper during the "Bloody Sunday" march in Selma in 1965 and although nothing was said, it set the mood for the rally as speakers called on the students not to let the efforts

Poll Finds Coeds Undecided On Voting

By Daphne Williams

Since the age limit for voting has been lowered to include the 18 to 21 year olds, many are undecided as to whether they will register and/or vote in the upcoming national elections.

Upon interviewing students here on campus, this reporter discovered some interesting trends. First, of the female students interviewed, 71% reported they had registered. However, only 60% of those registered said that they were going to exercise their right to vote.

Of the male students who were interviewed, 100% replied that they had registered. Also, 100% stated that they were planning to vote in the upcoming elections.

Some students stated that they simply could not take the Nixon administration any longer; and, therefore, they were going to do what they thought would prevent Nixon's re-election—vote for some other candidate. However, other students (most of whom are females) reported that they really didn't see any use in registering or in voting in the November elections. They feel that the candidates who are running will not represent them as Black students.

Mildred Washington, a junior history major from Charleston, S.C., felt this way: "No, I have not registered. I feel that if I were a registered voter, I would not be heard if I voted. I also feel that, if there were someone worthy of my vote, I would by all means register and vote."

Kaye Chadwick, advanced freshman art design major from Cove City, stated, "Yes, I have registered. I really don't know whether I will vote, but I probably won't. Why? Well, all the candidates are trying to fool each other as well as the people and it doesn't make sense."

Phyllis Richmond, sophomore business education major from Mebane, replied this way: "I am not registered. I just haven't had the time."

Michael Mitchell, sophomore accounting major of Winston-Salem, said, "Yes, I have registered and I have every intention of voting."

Roosevelt Perkins, junior English education major from High Point, says, "Yes, I felt that it was my duty to register and I will be voting in November."

Dora Russell, junior home economics education major from Warrenton, expressed her feeling very strongly: "Yes, I am registered to vote, but I won't vote in the November elections. I feel that none of the candidates really support the Black institutions and programs for the benefit of Blacks. Democrat or Republican, the Black man stands to lose.

Election Time

It's election time at A&T, again; the smiles, the boos, the promises, the cat calls, all a part of the curious animal known as the Aggie election.

It seems that the elections themselves have grown into an institution repeating itself every year only changing the names to protect the non-involved.

There seems to be little attention paid to the candidates, only the election. The speeches for example never fail to draw a crowd, but how many people who attend come to listen. Very few, for many come to speak along with even the candidates and others come to listen to them, not speakers on stage.

It's a sorry state of affairs, but until the concept of what the election, and the offices sought, change in the minds of students, the process will continue to be something to be laughed at and scorned.

ELECTION TIME IS HERE AGAIN, SO I GOT MY DIME READY - HEADS THEY WIN, TAILS THEY LOSE.

SUDDENLY, MY MORALS GOT THE BEST OF ME, AND I REALIZED I WAS SELLING THE CANDIDATES CHEAP.

SO I PUT MY DIME AWAY AND RESEARCHED EACH CANDIDATE - SPEECHES, NEWSPAPER CLIPPINGS, THE WORKS.

THEN I FLIPPED A QUARTER.

Political

Virgins

input...

By Ted L. Mangum

Political virginity is a term that relates almost 100% to black people. It is a term used to describe those unable to see, unwilling to find out; and uninterested in knowing how and why economic, social and religious circumstances and conditions, both domestically and internationally affect, determine, and actually govern their lives. Ironically it is precisely because we are political virgins, that we are always getting (Four Letter Word, Past tense).

During the short time that I've been a student at A&T, I've been accused of being a person who tries to make a show of the little knowledge he has, and a person who makes irrelevant contributions to the class. Some brothers and sisters have said that speaking on politics in English class and speaking on an international level while in Political Science class isn't necessary and neither is it relevant. But it is precisely because we, as black people, are political virgins that these blacks see the necessity to attack me. I consider it of the utmost importance to speak and act out against a system that only considers us important when we become necessary to keep that system functional (in times of war, after riots, during elections, or when they need scientific guinea pigs for their experiments, as in Ala.) It is because we, as a people, are political virgins, that we attack personalities ideologies or programs. We don't attack programs because we don't know enough about their political relationship to us to attack them and we're too lazy to bother to find out. But personalities come a dime a dozen and I don't need to defend mine, because the fact that I'm human renders that I'm not perfect and that I, therefore will make mistakes. We say, "I can't deal with Pan-Africanism because Stokely . . . or "I like the Panther's program, but Huey, he . . .". So if you wish to continue dealing on that level then don't stop with politics. Let it be known that you can't sit in judgment over people. Instead, you should become political enough to be able, if necessary, to attack the programs of Stokely, Huey, etc. If you can't deal with constructive changes necessary for the implementation of the program, then maybe you should listen so that in the future you can.

The U.S. government fails to recognize the fact that they are not dealing with a revolutionary political leader in North Vietnam; instead they are dealing with a revolutionary political people. The white government of the U.S. of A. thought that when Ho Chi Minh died, the will of the North Vietnamese people to fight would diminish. But the Vietnamese people, being a politically aware people, required only an organizer and not a leader. The U.S. government cannot deal with the politically aware people of the world as they deal with their non-political black domestic puppets. It takes Rap, Stokely and a crisis before we even realize that we have a common enemy. Take away these elements, send in some credit cards, and forget about those happy niggers for a while. Even now that Ho Chi Minh is dead, the North Vietnamese people did not hesitate to continue fighting because they are political enough to need only an organizer and not a start-from-scratch leader.

of those who "struggled" in the '60s be lost in '70s.

Along with Lewis and Bond, Guilford County's black officials also spoke to the gathering. Greensboro City Councilmen Vance Chavis and Jimmie Barber, Rep. Henry Frye and Mrs. Zoe Barbee, a candidate for county commissioner, urged the students to work not only for voter registration in Guilford County but in their home counties as well.

Mrs. Barbee, making a definite campaign appeal to the students for support, called on them to mobilize for change as she said that there is not a member of the county commissioners who lives east of Elm Street. Mrs. Barbee also made an appeal for the students to work for improving medical services and housing and the environment by voting for candidates responsive to those issues.

Lewis challenged the students to change the "tea and cookies" race relations of many southern cities. The movement of the '60s, Lewis said, was a bridge over troubled waters. "You need a militant, aggressive movement to take you through the '70s," he said.

However it was Julian Bond everyone came to hear, and he opened his non-partisan appeal with a small shot at the President. "I wouldn't ask you to vote for McGovern," he said. "And I wouldn't have the nerve to ask you to vote for Nixon."

Bond uttered a familiar phrase to the students when he described politics as "non-compulsory. "If you want the same people who have run your business for the past 352 years to continue running it," he said, "they don't mind running it; all you have to do is nothing."

All the speakers however, did admit that registering to vote was not a cure-all, but they did urge the students to use it as a weapon. "Having something to say about your lives," Bond said, "is the question."

In closing, Bond cautioned the students not to put much faith in the two traveling speakers who came here to save them. Bond told the students to look into a mirror and see "the only person interested in saving you."

Candidates Listed For Fall Elections

By Ethel W. Evans

As you enter the various campus buildings, the first thing that catches your eye is a bulletin board plastered with signs reading "Vote for me." Yes, it is campaign week.

The following candidates are now qualified to run.

Seeking the position of Miss A & T are Annie Jackson, Patricia Bruton, Belinda Allen, Arlene Bell, Patricia Hariston, Louise Ferguson, Pearlitta Graves, Glenda Ward (Gigi), and Louise Murrill.

Candidates for the Senior class include Jennifer Byrd, Secretary; Ethel Morrison, Secretary; and Kenneth Poston, Vice-President.

Junior class candidates include Gregory Pridgen, Vice-President; Frederick Quick,

$4 Million Drive Launched Tonight

The president of the Dow Chemical U.S.A., one of the nation's leading industries, will spearhead a campaign to raise $4½ million for the A&T University Foundation.

Dr. Earle B. Barnes, also a member of Dow's board of directors and executives committee, will be the keynote speaker tonight at a dinner officially launching the drive.

The A&T Foundation, a non-profit organization re-activated in 1966, has been a principal means of outside support for the university, according to Marshall H. Colston, secretary of the foundation.

Dr. Alvin Blount is chairman of the foundation, which has distributed nearly $500,000 in student and faculty scholarships.

Why this project, the most ambitious in A&T's history?

"It's because we are now at the crest," said Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, chancellor. "Just a little push would make this institution one of the finest in the Southeast and one of the finest investments for the state."

Dowdy cited the need for more funds for student scholarship aid as pressing. "Approximately 73 per cent of our students, because of their parents' low incomes, can qualify for financial aid," he said. "And we don't get sufficient aid from the federal government to cover all of this."

"It is also significant that disadvantaged students don't always have disadvantaged minds," said Dowdy. "Many of our best students have been discovered in small high schools in small towns. As college graduates, these students are able to compete favorably in the nation's finest graduate and professional schools."

Another direct benefactor of any funds which are realized through the fundraising campaign will be the university's faculty development program, according to Dowdy.

"The university and the corporate community must work together to find the kind of expertise to sustain this great nation," said Dowdy. "We have used the funds we have gotten from these sources well in the past." The question is what would we have done if we had not received these funds.

A&T's fund raising campaign will be directed by Barnes and Marshall Colston, its vice chancellor for planning and development.

Colston said A&T hopes to solicit 40 per cent of its goal from corporations, 40 per cent from foundations and the other 15 per cent from the university's alumni.

"We are very optimistic in this major effort," concluded Dowdy. "A&T is now serving the entire citizenry of North Carolina, regardless of race, creed or origin and we have some excellent programs. We also think our offerings are unique enough to survive."

Enrollment Totals 4495

By Drusilla Dunn

Presently the enrollment at A&T State University totals at 4495. In comparison with the enrollment of 1971 which was 4445, there is an increase of fifty people.

As far as the freshman class is concerned, the 1972 enrollment is 1018 students. In 1971, the enrollment was 1286 students. This is a decrease of 268 students.

There are 378 graduate students enrolled. Last year there were 353 students. This year's enrollment is an increase of 25 students.

All other undergraduates, total at 3099. Last year's was 2806. This is an increase of 293 students.

The total of in-state students increased from 3565 to 3730. This is an addition of 165 students.

Coeds Refute Charges Of Reverse Racism

By Janice Smith

Last Friday night, WFMY-TV broadcast a report on the late news in which a white co-ed who had withdrawn from the university indicated that she was a victim of "reverse racism." In response to this report, two white co-ed exchange students from the University of Wisconsin were asked if they have encountered any incidents of harassment during their first weeks at A&T.

"I feel that the television program was totally wrong and left the viewer with the impression that a white student at A&T is constantly harassed, insulted, and generally finds life miserable. My own experiences have proven exactly the opposite and I have found the people open, friendly, and willing to share," elaborated Tina Macaluso, a sophomore psychology major.

In answering the same question, Linda Swenson noted, "I have had no problems whatsoever. It has been no different from transferring to any new school."

Both young ladies considered themselves to be under no strain as a result of being in a minority group on campus. They remarked that people on campus accept them for who they are. "Jokes about race don't bother me at all," asserted Tina.

Linda, who grew up in a small town near Milwaukee, Wisconsin, made reference to the fact that no Black people lived in her hometown. However, she has begun to feel that she is a part of the campus, and her suite mates have made her welcome by including her in their social activities.

In admitting that she felt a "little funny" the first day she came to A&T, Linda commented that this is only natural in a new setting.

The major adjustments Tina has found are the transfer from a school with an enrollment of over 32,000 to one of approximately 4500, and from a dormitory with co-ed visitation to one with no co-ed visitation.

"Some people" reflected Linda, "look for problems and therefore they find them. I have had no problems; maybe I am just naive about black-white relationships."

Tina, a native of Washington, D. C., explained that more than anything else she hopes to gain an exchange of ideas this semester at A&T. "I don't feel that today one can have a degree in psychology without understanding the different parts of American society."

Linda, in discussing her desire to become an exchange student, mentioned that she became interested through a friend who had been at A&T for a semester in the North-South Exchange Program.

Winston-Salem Native First To Receive Masters In AV

By Delores Mitchell

Mrs. Eula S. Hudgens, a native of Winston Salem, is the first person to receive the Master of Science degree in Audio-Visual Education at A&T. She obtained the B.A. degree from A&T in 1949 and the M.A. degree in 1972. She is also the first person to graduate summa cum laude in Audio Visual Education here.

Mrs. Hudgens has been the film librarian for five years. She previously worked in the reserve department, the browsing room, and the film area. She comments, "I have worked practically all over the library."

When asked what inspired her to enter the audio-visual field, she said, "It is an area that keeps you alert, it is being accepted more, and it is never tiring. You also meet new people and work with new technology." Her dislike of routine and monotony is another reason she likes the area. Much progress and many changes are constantly being made in audio-visual education.

While an undergraduate at A&T, Mrs. Hudgens was selected to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. She was also a member of the Kappa Phi Kappa Forsenic Debating Society, the Choral Society, and a member of the AKA Sorority. Mrs. Hudgens now serves as the graduate advisor to the Alpha Phi Chapter of the AKA Sorority.

She was recently appointed to the Mayor's Committee on the Status of Women. She also serves on the steering committee that proposed a commission on the status of women. Mrs. Hudgens is the vice-president to the Greensboro PTA Council, serving as its program and membership chairman; chairman of the Council of Public Relations Committee; a member of the Community Unity Division of the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce serving on the steering committee; a member of the Advisory Board of the C.C.S. - Concerned Citizens for Schools, which is sponsored by the Unity Division of the Chamber of Commerce, the chairman of the School Action Council at Grimsley High School, and she has served in various offices of the PTA within the city.

In addition to these positions, Mrs. Hudgens has served as consultant on the uses and selections of audio-visual materials in the public schools, churches, and social organizations throughout the Greensboro area. Besides showing films and co-ordinating programs, she is also a group leader in Human Relations workshops sponsored by the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce and the Greensboro Police Community Relations Divisions. She is a member of the N.A.A.C.P., and attends the Grace Lutheran Church, where she is a choir member.

The unique characteristic that Mrs. Hudgens likes about A&T is the friendly, family-type of atmosphere. She feels that any person at A&T who sufficiently applies himself, is well qualified for any job upon graduation.

Many members of the Aggie family gave the Pearl

Williams-Jones Soul Trio a warm reception on its extraordinary concert performance Monday night in Harrison Auditorium. This program was the first of and Sing," and "We'll Never Turn Back" which expressed the struggle for freedom and the people who fought and died in the struggle for liberation. Pearl Williams-Jones exhibited her gift of voice to the fullest as she sang "You've Got a Friend," and "If We Only Have Love." Gospel songs were "It Took a Miracle", and "Precious Lord Take My Hand" which were the highlight songs of the evening.

Her piano and vocal expertise is the result of years of classical training with distinguished American pianist, Donald Mosley and Richard Easley's talents on the string and percussion blended into harmony and were well received by the audience.

Half of A&T's campus security officers are now in law enforcement school in cooperation with UNC-G and GTI, according to Marvin B. Graeber, associate director of the physical plant.

One of the officers, Willie Horton, is in advanced Law Enforcement school at GTI. He will have finished 320 hours of training when his course is completed October 6.

The remaining eight will finish their courses at UNC-G November 16. At that time, each will have completed 90 hours of training. These officers are Willie Kendall, Billy Brooks, Roosevelt Raines, Wayland Mitchell, Paul E. Nichols, Joseph Daughtry, Sherwood McMillan, and Giles Evans.

Graeber stated that previously campus security officers qualified by scoring 85 or above on an exam based on the book, Laws of Arrest, Search, and Investigation (written by Douglas R. Gill.) Now, however, the objective is to have all security officers complete 320 hours of formal training in order to tighten the security of A&T's campus.

Aggies Face First Conference Test Sat.

By Jacqueline Glisson
Sports Editor

This Saturday, Memorial Stadium will be the site of the "the battle of the Carolinas" when the A&T Aggies clash with the South Carolina State Bulldogs in a bid of the first conference win.

At 7:30 p.m., the two aggressive teams will hit the gridiron with full force, since neither team gives the other an easy time. Both teams neutralized each other's attack on the gridiron last year to yield a 0-0 game at the stadium in Orangeburg, S.C.

Both teams will do their best, to capture the victory to compensate for last year's scoreless battle. A&T had three consecutive victories over South Carolina State before the tie game, and will be anxious to return to the winning streak. The Bulldogs are on the warpath of revenge to clinch a conference victory Saturday, which they have long sought from the T-Men.

From all indications thus far, the Aggies will have to face a strong Bulldog offensive and defensive line. This year, South Carolina will be under the reign of "Ben" Chavous, the small college All-American defensive end. He will be well-supported by more returning veteran players in both the offense and defense.

The Aggies' defense will have to remain "stonewall" firm, to smother this Blue and Garnet team rated as one of the top three teams in the MEAC. Another asset to the Bulldogs' team is the interior line of college transfers, one will be quarterbacking.

The team has been practicing diligently to be ready on the field to handle the Bulldogs which are sized-up as being much taller and quicker in their personnel. Since South Carolina plays both a running and passing game, the team must be ready for whichever strategy they emphasize.

Leading the "Aggies" rugged attack will be sophomore quarterback Leonard Reliford. At punting will be Al Holland, while John Guy will perform as the place kicker. Running back Thomas Murphy will start in place of Al Holland. The Bulldogs defense will be quite busy trying to maintain the power of the running backs of A&T.

In Saturday's game, the Aggies will have their hands excessively filled, since they are facing two opponents in comparison to South Carolina only facing one opponent. Several of the players of the team have colds of varying severity. Among these players are John Hampton, John Guy, Ray Pettiford, Patrick Matthews, and William Wideman. Ervin Manigault will not be able to play, since he is suffering from a cold and an ear infection.

This will weaken the Aggies defense to some degree, but will strengthen their determination to (See Aggies, Page 7)

A&T Thumps ECSU In Opener

A&T began the season on a defensive note, thumping Elizabeth City State University 13-0 last Saturday night.

Coach Tom Caldwell's 1971 CIAA Champions put up a sound defense but were denied scoring opportunities as the Aggies stout defensive men, who were nationally ranked in that category last season, stood immovable.

The first half became a see-saw affair as the Vikings' quarterback, Michael Sims, found the going rough, as he dropped 39 yards behind the line of scrimmage.

A&T managed to penetrate to the visitor's six, where penalties thwarted their drive.

The third elapsed in much the same manner until the Aggies' George Ragsdale cut loose on a 20-yard scamper to the Vikings' 30. Later, quarterback Leonard Reliford spotted split end Raymond Pettiford for a 17-yard pass to the five. From there Al Holland drove in for the score and the Aggies led 7-0.

A&T fumbled on its 21 early in the final quarter and ECSU seemed ready to take the ball in, but Carl Collins, a 6-4, 240 lb. defensive end, cracked Sims on a fourth down passing play for minus 20 yards and the Vikings never came close.

To add a bit of insurance, A&T's Reliford began another drive at the end of the game by running seven markings and lateraling to halfback William Medley for another five. At the Viking 29, Reliford utilized the hard nosed rushing of back Artis Stanfield iced the game, 13-0. A&T and ECSU gained equally in passing yardage, netting 116 each; but the Aggies had a whopping 130 to 18 yardage advantage on their visitors.

Add to this 274 yards worth of penalties and the game proved to be a long one for the officials.

A&T's Coach Hornsby Howell was worried about his defense during the summer practices; but Collins made this doubt negligible by blocking a field goal attempt, coming up with an interception and repeatedly throwing the Viking quarterback for large losses.

A&T's offense, tied up in knots during the first half, showed its ability to move the ball in the air with Reliford doing most of the damage. The Aggie offense has definitely opened up over the 1971 season; and, when some young freshmen blockers get more experience, Howell should have a potent attack.

South Carolina State College, one of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference's best teams, will get the next chance to test the Aggie's potency in Greensboro tomorrow night.

'Growling Grapplers' Back On Campus

By Blannie Bowen

The "growling grapplers" are coming back to campus. Education is their chosen profession, but wrestling is their game.

The Aggie Wrestling team has much to live up to this season because of the manner in which they pinned defeats upon their opponents last season.

They competed on the varsity level for the first time last year and compiled an exceptional 8-2 record. Coach Mel Pinckney hopes that his team is not a classic example of a team with "beginner's luck".

Their success story of last season may seem fictitious but a quick glance at the caliber of the returning wrestlers will reveal a truly different story. Only one wrestler is missing from last season's team, but he will be back on the mat for the Aggies in January.

Heading the list of returning grapplers is co-captain Ricky Smith, the most responsible person on the team.

Ricky has an army of help from the likes of Craig Davis, Mel Fair, Dan Coleman, and Darnell Glover. Each of these wrestlers has been predicted to win his MEAC weight division championship for this season by Coach Pinckney.

Wrestling interest was high among the students last year because of the efforts put forth minimize mistakes and improve their game performance to accomplish the ultimate goal - to win the game. The Aggies' defensive line will be inforced with the return of seasoned linebacker, James "Brad" Humphrey. It is possible that Donald Barnes might be able to return to the game also.

Both A&T and South Carolina State have captured the sweet taste of victory by defeating rival teams last week. Much excitement, enthusiasm, and suspense will compose the atmosphere surrounding the stadium, when both mighty MEAC teams battle for that "precious first conference win." This game definitely promise not to be a scoreless one, as the Aggies will show the Bulldogs the power of the "Blue and Gold."

Flag Football Deadline Extended

By Jacqueline Glisson

Intramurals flag football is in the process of starting off on a new season, but is nine teams short of the expected 24 teams to sign the roster. The deadline has been extended for the opportunity of interested organizations and teams to sign up.

The flag football roster is divided into two divisions, namely 12 independent teams. The organizational teams include fraternities and interested clubs.

The organizational teams on the official roster are the Epicureans, Alpha Phi Omega, BOSS, Pershing Rifles, Kappa Alpha Psi, the Veterans, the ASME, the Air Force ROTC Iota Phi Theta, and Omega Psi Phi. Two more organizational teams are needed to complete this list.

The independent teams on the official roster are the Chiefs, the Nomats, the Wild Bunch, the Freshman Aces, and the T. Bolden All-Stars. Seven more independent teams are needed to complete this list.

Last night, a meeting of the flag football team captains was held in the Intramural Office. The highlight of the meeting was a discussion on the set-up of the teams' divisions, the games scheduling, and the member rosters.

All interested teams should take this golden opportunity to claim campus-wide fame. The winner of the flag football league will receive a beautiful championship trophy.

The intramural program will begin the fall season with recreational basketball and swimming for students. Recreational basketball will be in Moore Gym on Mondays-Thursdays from 7-10:30. For interested "water lovers" swimming will be held in the gym on Mondays-Thursdays from 7-9:00.

The Intramural Department is also seeking the participation of interested, qualified students in the areas of table, tennis, billiards, bowling, bridge, and chess. At a later date, a campus-wide tournament will be held in these five areas to select players to compete in the Association of College Unions International. A & T belongs to Region 5 of the ACUI.

The program is in the process of "rolling off" for the bowling team. Members will be selected to the team on the basis of bowling six games. The first ten students with the highest score will be selected. Interested students should contact Roger McKee in Room 103 of the Student Union.

Sister Jackie.

Jackie Hill is two unusually talented people.

First, there's Kodak scientist Jackie. B.S., Tennessee State. M.S., University of Michigan. She's now one of a team of research chemists trying to develop new compounds that can be used to record images on film. Silver is widely used for that purpose now. But Jackie is determined to find something better. And less expensive.

But besides her work, she's a concerned citizen, too. And that's where Sister Jackie comes in. Along with other Kodak employees, and wives of employees, she has organized the "Sisters for a Better Black Community." Their purpose is to counsel kids from broken homes and possibly arrange scholarships to further their education.

Which makes Sister Jackie as important to us as scientist Jackie. Of course, as a scientist, she helps us make a profit. Which is the main goal of any good company. But outside the laboratory, individual efforts by people like Jackie, and other inner-city programs sponsored by Kodak, are helping many people get ahead. And their advancement can only help advance our society at the same time.

Which, by the way, is very important to us. After all, our business depends on society. So we care what happens to it.

Kodak
More than a business.
