Shaw President Urges Full Participation In Today's Society

The president of Shaw University Sunday urged that blacks fully participate in the larger society, but said they should not imitate that society. "Blacks must inject a different kind of perspective," said Dr. J. Archie Hargraves in the annual alumni sermon here.

"If there is a genuine black perspective," said Hargraves, a native of Greensboro, "it is to be creative, not imitative." He said any black contributions to society should not be based on scorn or hate.

"Contributions to society should not be based on scorn or hate," Dr. Henry Redmond Hargraves in the annual alumni sermon here.

"The new society," said Hargraves, "must not replace the white-over-black idea with black-over-white. We must make a new way."

"We must first remember where we have been, then forge a history," he said. "But it is not enough to just go back. We must look ahead to where we are going."

Hargraves said the very contours of the world are changing, economically, politically, and socially. "We've come a long way," he said again, "but we must begin to own, run, control and manage."

School Of Agriculture Wins 1st Place Float

By Blanion Bowon

"The Need, The Will and Success" was the theme of this year's first-place A&T Homecoming Float which was sponsored by the School of Agriculture.

Blue and gold were the basic colors which predominated in the color scheme. Connie Baggett, senior Agriculture Education major and president of the Agriculture Education Association, designed the complete pattern and color scheme.

The queen, Joyce Clark, and her attendants, Cassandra McCree and Millicent Bruster, sat on the front of the float. A green velvet cloth representing the colors which predominated in the color scheme. Connie Baggett, senior Agriculture Education major and president of the Agriculture Education Association, designed the complete pattern and color scheme.

A revolving globe was above a forest green. Freedom, peace and unity were on three sides of the float. A green vest of growing crops was provided for the attendants to sit upon. Blue and gold were the colors of the queen's seat.

The system in which students are to be judged by their peers is undergoing total reorganization, according to Robert Rivers, student body's top general attorney. "Due to inefficiencies which occurred last year between the attorney general and students in regard to infractions, the student Court is in the process of total reorganization," Rivers pointed out that these inefficiencies included "ambiguity and a lack of communication about penalties involving infractions of university rules."

Rivers also made note of the problem that he called "some minute cases that reach the courts that should not be there."

He feels that "there should be other means of settling such cases. Once the case hits the courts, it's on the record," Rivers stated.

In response to whether or not there existed a power conflict between the University Tribunal, Rivers replied, "If there is a conflict, the conflict is centered around the area of jurisdiction - who has say so on what."

Rivers is a student who has more power, according to the SGA constitution, than his predecessor and he is hoping that the president of the SGA with the approval of two thirds of the student legislature, he serves in the chief prosecutor for all alleged infractions of dormitory rules and alleged violations of general campus rules. The attorney general has access to information pertaining to these infractions. Form the Board of Student Affairs, the Dean of Men and Women and the residence hall directors. He has power to make formal charges against the accused at every level of the student court system. He or his agents acts as chief prosecutor in all cases in the student court. Upon receipt of information, the Attorney General has the power to make the ultimate decision as to whether or not the case should proceed into the student court system more viable because it's on the records," Rivers cautiously replied, "If there is a conflict, the conflict is centered around the area of jurisdiction - who has say so on what."

Rivers foresees that the student court system will become "a functioning and viable organization in the very near future. He added, "I hope this year students will take a workable part in making the court system more viable because if they don't, in some cases they will be the victim of consequences."
Unity

Unity - a forgotten word. It seems that way if one walks and observes the student body in and during the daily course of events.

But, what is it that so many Aggies seem to have lost, and others never had? Well, first of all, remember the days when people cheered at the football game, not because it was a big play, but because you were there. Remember the rolls of tissue paper that flew through the stands as the band played ‘I’m So Glad,’ and people sang.

What does that have to do with unity? Well, Cal Irvin said last Sunday night that the athletic program was the only aspect of student life where all students, faculty and staff could pull for a common cause. If you can’t get it together at the game for two hours, then how can ‘unity’ stand a chance?

Many explanations have been offered as to why ‘unity’ is on its death bed at ‘T.’ ‘Everybody is into his own thing, drugs, society is changing,’ ‘T’ watchers say.

The answer lies in one simple fact: A&T has not seen a crisis in the past three years. There has been no change or even a sincere effort to change. It all goes back to that saying about ‘struggle and progress,’ and you can’t have one without the other.

Without a struggle, the student body will continue to drift its aimless way; and, when the challenge comes, no one will know what to do. to meet it. But then ‘unity’ will arise from its coma, alive and most of all ‘kickin.’

Halloween Spirits
Revisit Holland Bowl

By Patricia Everett

I watched the tiny figures, who clutched paper bags, dart joyously across Holland Bowl. Each was dressed in some goblin costume, which was obviously collected from their parent’s discarded clothes. Within a flick of an instance, the old Halloween feeling had struck me, and my own memories slowly began to form in my mind.

I could almost hear the popcorn, hear it crackling in the air. My sister was slapping and reaching into the candy bowl, making sure she would get her fair share of the treats. My brothers were scraping the inside of the oil heater; then they would turn away, turn around and I could see them, the three stooges, hurrying to the candy bowl as fast as they could.

I could remember being sent through my mother’s old clothes until I found an old silver party dress; then when I put the dress on, it hung hopelessly on my small body. But, in my childhood mind, I was the queen around which every other trick or treat would revolve. I was, for that night, the Queen of Halloween.

My brothers and sister were non-stop, calling impatiently for me to hurry and join them, ready to begin the night of mystical mystery and sister was afraid that the candy in the neighborhood might be given out before she could get there.

Quickly I slipped into my mother’s high-heeled shoes; my heart was beating rapidly. I dashed out into the night, which was filled with ghosts, skeletons and witches...

The little figures were now moving joyously from door to door, each unknowingly celebrating one of the most beautiful aspects of their childhood. As they moved down the street, I watched them enviously until they were no longer in sight. Then I turned, shrugged my shoulders, and grudgingly headed for the library.

Boss Webster:

An Institution

Located at 1330 East Market Street, the newsstand and sandwich shop is constantly loud. In the background sounds will be heard from the transistor radio, huge t.v., poolhall dammit, man, whotha warning for, gimme ya order! Who is the speaker in this conversation? The one and only Boss Webster, the owner of the Triangle Newsstand located on the campus block. Always dressed in a Cheeringom hipodip hat and a white overall apron, Boss is deeply engrossed in his work. With his face turned to the girls, he will call over his shoulder in a loud and harsh voice, “Next!” Though Boss’ voice is rough, none is offended. Those that know him will know his bark is worse than his bite.

He is a kindhearted person if one would take time to notice Boss is constantly busy but if anyone starts up a conversation with him he will gladly converse with them. A crank and outspoken person, he does understand that at one time or another everyone needs a helping hand and, when asked, he will offer his.

Delta’s To Enhance Prison Library

By Betty Holman

Upon completion of a very humane project by Alpha Mu Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Incorporated, the lives of the inmates of Sandy Ridge Advancement Center will be supplemented. This project now concerns the library at the advancement center.

This idea was a brainstorm of Vickie Burke, a Social Service representative of the student body, and as representatives of the student body, has expressed or shown little desire to initiate any effective programs to put into actual practice the self-promises of a political campaign. Maybe we, as students, have failed in supporting these programs but how can one support something that is non-existent. Maybe we, as students, have failed to contribute ideas of our own to improve our SGA that seems to be devoid of ideas, but then one who is creative enough to be charged with transgressing and compilation can surely create some interest among the student body. Maybe we, as students, are only suffering from the take picture projected by our own Nixon-Agnew-Kissinger student government, or maybe we just aren’t aware of what actually taken place in our SGA office.

We are just ignorant students, complacently accepting “half-assed” leadership when, in actuality, we should be the vanguard of black intellectuals training for a role in shaping the future, or have we forgotten this important factor, and accepted a pre-designed future handed to us by a society which does not recognize our humanity?

We do not need a figurehead or administration puppet for President of our SGA and neither do we need any intellectuals out of touch with the student body; what we do need is effective, willing, and capable leadership to assist us in building a better SGA and respond to that cry. Maybe it is time we demand action from our SGA and not just how Nixon-Agnew-Mitchell-Kissinger respond to the pleas of a “fed-up”, disillusioned student body.

Presently, this project is short lived. However, if successful, another project may be undertaken.

At the moment, there is a need for male help at the center. Any fraternity or male interested and interested in this type of service should contact Vickie Burke, Apartment #8 Steadman Street. This particular program is called Community Volunteers. It allows people to sponsor an inmate or take him on excursions to church, to movies, to the city or to some other type activity.

There are approximately one-hundred inmates as Sandy Ridge Advancement Center which is located off Interstate 40 in High Point. There is a fifty-fifty ratio of blacks to whites. The inmates here are transferred from other institutions on the basis of improved behavior. Sandy Ridge is the type of center in which the individual is given more privileges.

The Delta Sigma Theta Sorority has also donated money to help get a book published for the inmates. The book will serve to enlighten them on the do’s and don’ts of Sandy Ridge Prison. From this book, they will understand better the proper channels that they should take their grievances.

Eastern's Leisure Class.
Sometimes it's Coach. Sometimes it's First Class. Sometimes it's Free.

If Coach is full and First Class isn't, you get First Class.
You'll get a seat in First Class. Drink First Class drinks and enjoy First Class service.
And you still enjoy the Youth Fare.
11% of all the people who bought a Leisure Class ticket last year got a First Class seat.

If the plane is full, you spend time waiting but no money flying.
You get a seat in the lobby. Then we refund your money and send you off on our next flight with an available seat. Free.
We invented Leisure Class to solve the age-old airline problem of "no shows" (people who make reservations, but don't show up for the flight). Since Leisure Class saves us the money we would lose on "no shows," we don't mind letting Leisure Class passengers save their money when everybody does show up.
Last year, 95% of the people who bought a Leisure Class ticket got on the plane they wanted. The rest (over 12,000 people) got a free ride.
To qualify, just make a Leisure Class reservation as you would a reservation for First or Coach. Then, be at the boarding gate with your Leisure Class ticket 20 minutes before flight time.
If you have to wait for a flight with an available seat, it might be anywhere from several minutes to several hours. Of course, the number of Leisure Class reservations is limited per flight and not available on all our flights to all destinations or on all fares. Nor when the plane itself is grounded due to equipment, substitutions or failures or weather conditions.
So call Eastern Airlines at 299-3221. Or call your travel agent. They're the only ones who can tell you about Leisure Class.

Usually you pay Youth Fare and you get a seat in Coach.
After you buy a Leisure Class ticket at the regular Youth Fare, any of three things can happen.
Since Leisure Class is a Conditional Reservation, it's possible you won't get on the flight you made a reservation for. But, if you do, you'll usually get a seat in Coach.

EASTERN The Wings of Man.
Board Names Mrs. McKee Assistant To Chancellor

"I don't have any titles or honorary degrees behind my name, just hard work."

That's the way Mrs. Roger McKee summed up her life, shortly after she was named Thursday as assistant to Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, chancellor at A&T.

Mrs. McKee, who really began her career as a student assistant at the university in 1945, has been secretary to an A&T president or chancellor for 23 years.

She served four presidents and Dr. Dowdy had nothing but praise for one of his right arms. "Mrs. McKee really deserves this promotion because of her highly efficient work over a period of years," said Dowdy. "She has served four presidents and she is quite knowledgeable about the field of higher education.

In her new position, Dowdy said Mrs. McKee will handle special reports and supervise the entire operation of chancellor's office and secretaries."

Well known to hundreds of A&T students who have visited her office over the years, Mrs. McKee said there are only a few rules for getting along on a job like hers.

"You've got to be open minded," she said; "and you've got to know something about accepted business practices."

"My job has always been challenging," added Mrs. McKee. "Each of the four presidents I have worked for has had a different personality and different philosophy. But the work has always been interesting."

Mrs. McKee, the former Virginia Durham, is a native of Coldstream, and a 1949 graduate of A&T. "I graduated and went to work the next day," she said.

She is the wife of Roger McKee, assistant director of the Memorial Student Union at A&T.

Uhuru Displays Works Of Greensboro Artists

By Janice Smith

Early next month, the Uhuru Bookstore will feature an art exhibit displaying the blooming talent of local artists. This will be the first cultural activity of the season, but Mrs. Gloria Robinson, manager of the bookstore, indicated that other programs will be scheduled.

Located on East Market Street, the bookstore is the first project of the Uhuru Corporation, which was formed in June 1970. The purpose of the corporation, which consists of a 12 member board of directors, is to organize projects to benefit the black community; Joseph Johnson is chairman of the board of directors.

When entering the small and sparsely supplied store, one immediately notices the paintings on exhibit along the upper walls. The velvet pictures were painted by an artist from New York; the others came from local Greensboro artists and may be purchased. Color is a very important element in the pictures, and lures the individual's eye from one to the other.

Various other items are sold in the store, ranging from books to earrings. Many of the books deal with black literature and must be received from publishers across the country. However, a few of the books do come from Africa, as well as do certain artifacts.

Recently the bookstore has sought patronage from colleges and universities across the country; the manager stated that she had mailed letters early this fall to the colleges, soliciting instructors to order supplementary texts from the store.

Greeting cards for all occasions are found in the store. These may be aptly described as "soul" cards, for they carry pictures of blacks; not only this, but they are also designed and distributed by Black greeting card companies.

Equipped with a versatile staff, the store operation makes as well as sells. In the past, employees have sewn dashikas and knitted hats.

GAPP (Greensboro Association of Poor People) has aided the efforts of Uhuru by donating time and sometimes furnishing clothes.

Women Find Fashions In Men's Department

By Doreen Green

Perhaps the only time women go into the men's section of a department store is when they are buying something for a man. For an experiment, why not see what the men's section may have for you! You may be in for a real surprise when you see the beautiful selection of sweaters, pants and shirts you can find.

Perhaps you are thinking to yourself that men's clothes may be unfeminine or not very flattering. Manufacturers today are simply making clothes to be sold. They are out for the money. Clothes today are made to be worn by either sex (in a few exceptions of course.) Men's fashions often follow trends that are primarily started by the female area of fashion.

So, girls, don't be hesitant. You may find some very smart looking clothes that we females can get away with wearing. The important thing is to watch for what size you buy. Don't be fooled into thinking that because you are buying men's clothing, you must buy a size that is smaller than your normal size.

Be smart! Know your exact waist size, pants length and arm length. Be sure the article you are buying fits, pants that are not too short, length. Be sure the article you are buying fits, pants that are not too short, length. Be sure the article you are buying fits, pants that are not too short, length. Be sure the article you are buying fits, pants that are not too short, length. Be sure the article you are buying fits, pants that are not too short, length. Be sure the article you are buying fits, pants that are not too short, length.

Women Find Fashions In Men's Department

In further elaborating on the work of the bookstore, Mrs. Robinson noted that staff members frequently attend Black conferences and bazaars to attract support and patronage. Staff members have also acted as consultants for African weddings. At present, the store is distributing the African Peoples Cookbook.

She pointed out that most of the business comes from college students. During the first weeks of operation, beginning early last February, the store started out sponsoring poetry of the locale who gave readings on Saturdays.

Essay: Homecoming

THE BARKAYS

GEORGE FAISON, the Dancer
Aggies Beat Morgan Bears 16-13

To Move into First Place in MEAC

A test minute eight-yard touchdown run by Al Hollandpropelled the Aggies into first place in the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference as A&T sank Morgan State College 16-13 Saturday.

Starting out with a bang, A&T struck paydirt early in the first quarter with substitute quarterback Al Holland calling signals following a John Hampton interception of a Greg Pettiford pass. McKibbins lost two, ReUford dropped for 25-yards. A&T put up the first threat of the season's game formats. New Holland ran for the Aggies' 16-13 Homecoming victory Saturday over Morgan State College.

Coach Reynolds Conducts Drills

To Select 1972-73 Basketball Squad

By Bannnie Bowen

Basketball drills have begun and 18 players are trying-out for the Aggie nine. Two plays later Morgan forced punt from their 34, a high snap sailed into the endzone and A&T chalked up two more points. But it was all Morgan in the second quarter as quarterback Jenkins led his team from their 37 to score in 14 plays. The drive was highlighted by a screen pass for 25-yards.

A&T put up the first threat after receiving the kickoff by moving to Morgan's 16. Jack-of-all-trade quarterback Al Holland again led the attack running six plays for 22-yards himself until another crippled quarterback, Paul McKibbins, made his home debut and threw the ball into the hands of Morgan's Anderson Powell.

Starting at their 40 with only three minutes left in the half, Coach Reynolds explained, "It is too early to tell anything yet, but I am confident that we can have a good year if the players get their attitudes right."

The Aggies play the usual MEAC and CIAA opponents, but several larger schools have been added to their schedule. Pittsburgh, Marshall, Virginia Commonwealth, and a trip to the ECAC Holiday Festival in Madison Square Garden are also scheduled.

The Aggies won the MEAC last year and nothing else. They have the personnel to win it again and some prestige also, if they get their "attitudes" right. The Aggies beat Morgan Bears 16-13.

Athlete Of The Week

Sophomore running back-pinter Al Holland is this week's star athlete. Holland quarterbacked and powered the Aggies to a 16-13 Homecoming victory Saturday over Morgan State College.

Holland ran for the Aggies' first touchdown, and set up the second one when he plunged the Bears to their own 10-yard line. His mother is Mrs. Sylvia Waid of Roanoke, Virginia.
William Wideman, A&T's big 6-4, 270 lb. defensive tackle, is bullish on the line.

And if the pros are wise they'll take stock in this massive 'piece of the rock' who has been cashing dividends for Coach Homerby Howell over four years.

Having one of his best seasons ever, averaging nine unassisted tackles per game, Wideman doesn't consider himself a star at a time when fans expect several players to stand out as extraordinary.

"I consider myself a senior with experience, and the fact that I'm getting a look by scouts doesn't go to my head," he said incoff vows last week.

"We have a pretty good team. Our units work together like a machine and there really isn't a first and second string, everybody plays," he said.

And even though Wideman and the rest of the so-called "Over the Hill Crew" get more rest this year than last when the "Flip Side Bunch" comes in, he has still had to rack up his share of tackles.

Perhaps his best game came against Florida A&M University where he refused to yield ground during an afternoon of double-team mix-ups. In the process the senior from Brewer High School in Greenwood, S.C. had A&M's coach Jim Williams shouting his praises.

"Playing defensive end is tough for one man," Wideman explained. "Almost always you have to have two men, plus keep on a pass rush and be prepared to stop a quick pitch."

William's best time in the 40-yard dash was 5-1/2, not bad at all for someone reaching giant proportions. But on those quick pitches and the pass rush his quickness is immeasurable.

"He sure gets off the ball mighty quick," noted several scouts in the Aggies' game against Norfolk State College.

With eight of them surveying A&T's talent, Wideman stood out as a man with great promise.

And please don't take the man out of a ball game.

"I love to play and every Saturday my desire is just built up to a fever pitch."

"If I even get a minor injury I probably won't say anything."

"Game" is the key word in sports to Wideman. He doesn't take his frustrations out on a opponent with the intent to do bodily harm.

"When guys get dirty it's usually a personal thing. Very seldom is the whole team involved. I've never been thrown out of a game because I can play clean and rough too."

This past summer Wideman remained in Greenwood where he served as a security policeman at Cone Hospital. He also took time from the summer school work while squeezing in time to do some running, lifting weights and studying.

He feels that his sophomore year was better than his junior, but his opposition knows one year after another if "fire and brimstone" when Wideman is there.

And sports is a family affair. William's brother, James, is only a freshman at Johnson C. Smith University but came on to lead his team to two very good sophomore quarters and he felt he might not play.

"And Wideman, in the midst of his timidity as a star, says "if the honors come I'll be more than glad to accept them."

He loves football and would like a shot at continuing the sport. With all his attributes William Wideman couldn't miss as A&T's 1972 Little All-American Candidate.

Senior Dorm Residents Disagree On Policy for Coed Visitation

By Roosevelt Perkins

At the beginning of the fall semester of this year, coed visitation began in Senior Dorm on an experimental basis. When asked how the coed visitation program was coming along, Dean James White replied by stating that "The time has not yet come to reveal the results," but that he would know after the Homecoming weekend.

Joe Becton, a senior Business Administration major, stated that, "The rules are silly because they leave no room for privacy." Becton said that, "By refusing to allow for privacy the administration shows how little it trusts the students."

Richard Allen, a senior political science major, comments on coed visitation by stating that, "It is not a complete success and that the administration is using the restrictions to attempt to prove to the students that coed visitation is not for A&T." Allen further stated that, "The students should be allowed more privacy."

Another student Bertram Wals, a senior Biology major related that, "Coed visitation as outlined by the university is going according to plans." Wals raises the question, "Is this what the students want or are they accepting the trial period to appease the administration?"

The majority of the students interviewed living in Senior Dorm feel that coed visitation is what A&T needs but that more privacy should be included in the bargain.
