Student Body President LARRY HINTON Listens To Coed In Wednesday Rap Session In Holland Hall

Rap Sessions Cover Many Topics

By Rita Manley

The Student Government Association held several rap sessions in dormitories this past week. Representing the SGA were Larry Hinton, president; Robert Rivers, attorney general; Bennie McMorris, vice-president; and Avon Morgan, treasurer.

The agenda for discussion included the following topics: (1) Co-ed visitation, (2) Curfew hour extension, (3) Campus security, (4) Food service, (5) Student Court System and other organizations, (6) A general rap session.

At the Holland Hall session Wednesday night, Larry Hinton first introduced the topic of co-ed visitation - which has been one of the chief concerns of the Student body this year. As of now co-ed visitation exists in Senior Dorm only. According to Hinton, even if campuswide co-ed visitation has not been finalized yet, the co-ed visitation committee has been working on guidelines and concepts for co-ed visitation since August. Also, the dormitory councils, Women's Council and other organizations have been suggesting rules and regulations which could be followed if co-ed visitation is granted.

Hinton encouraged each dormitory to "decide on your own regulations for co-ed visitation." He explained that the personality of Holland Hall may be different from that of High Rise, and as long as their respective rules fall within the restrictions of the state committee, they will be accepted through ranging from dormitory to dormitory." He also commented that the Women's council is now deciding this for all women's dormitories.

The SGA representatives explained the rules for co-ed visitation as set up by the state committee. These rules provide limitations for any regulations decided upon by the campus committee. A few of those state regulations mentioned are as follows: (1) Co-ed visitation time limits are from noon to 12 midnight on Sunday through Thursday and from noon until 2 a.m. from Friday to Saturday. (2) Three guests will be allowed for each roommate at any one time. (3) The guests must sign in and out, visiting one room only, and be escorted to the room by the person he is visiting. (4) The individual room doors may be closed at these times, but not locked.

"Thursday night," stated Hinton, "The Women's Council passed a decision that for all women's dormitories, the time limitations for visitation in the rooms are from Saturday to Thursday, 6 p.m. - 11 p.m. and on Sunday from 11 p.m. - 11 p.m." He added that these were just their suggestions and definitely not finalized decisions for the co-ed visitation committee. When asked about the deadline for making final decisions concerning visitation, Hinton replied, "It would probably be after Christmas before any final decision is made - although we're trying very hard to have co-ed visitation by next semester."

On the extension of curfew hours, the women in Holland Hall voiced a majority opinion for self-limiting hours (no curfew). "By getting rid of a curfew, some problems with campus cops could be eliminated," implied a student. This led to the discussion of Campus Security. Various complaints were heard in regard to the policemen entering the dorms uninvited by a dorm counselor and their lack of courtesy to young women.

Concerning Food services, Hinton pointed out that "nothing can be done about changing this system as long as it is under the present contract." Furthermore, Hinton implied that a meal ticket should be transferable in view of the fact that some student has paid for it, and could lend it to a friend if he wishes.

Concerning the Student Court System, Hinton explained the rules for co-ed visitation as set up by the state and that some problems with campus cops could be eliminated," implied a student. This led to the discussion of Campus Security. Various complaints were heard in regard to the policemen entering the dorms uninvited by a dorm counselor and their lack of courtesy to young women.

Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, chancellor here, has been named president-elect of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges (NASULGC). He will be the first black to head a major higher education association.

Dowdy's election Tuesday at the association's 68th annual convention meeting here at the Nashville Hilton Hotel, means that he will assume the presidency when the group meets in Denver, Colo., next year.

Dowdy succeeds Dr. W. Robert Parks, the president of Iowa State University, as NASULGC's president-elect. Parks will serve as president for a year.

The National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges is the nation's oldest higher education association, having begun meeting in 1871.

The association is comprised of 188 major state universities and land-grant colleges, which enroll nearly 31 percent of all of the college students. The organization functions with nine councils, representing the major areas of university life and services.

Dowdy, who has headed A&T since 1964, in 1969 became the first black to serve as chairman of NASULGC's Council of Presidents. He is a member of the board of directors of the Association of American Colleges and a member of the national advisory group to the U.S. Marine Corp.

Dr. Parks, who has been president of Iowa State since 1965, has also served as professor of government, dean of instruction and vice president for academic affairs at Iowa State. He was also a member of NASULGC's Council of Presidents and was a national exhibits committee member for the American Agriculture Extension Center for Advanced Study at the University of Wisconsin.

Dr. Parks in a past president of the Mid-American State Universities Association and has been a member and executive committee of NASULGC since 1969. He also served as chairman of a national committee sponsored jointly by NASULGC and the Cooperative Extension Service.

He received the B.A. degree from Berea College in Kentucky, the M.A. degree from the University of Kentucky and the Ph. D. from the University of Wisconsin. All degrees were awarded in political science with a minor in economics.
Scott Renovation Finally Underway

By Joan Boykin

The renovation of Scott hall has begun. J. M. Martenea said that J. D. Summers Construction Company has been hired to begin work on the mid section of the dorm immediately. Complete renovation will be done in two phases. The first phase is the renovation of the mid section. The second phase will entail the renovation of the two wing sections.

According to Martenea, the structural improvements will change the building into three separate dorms with stairways dividing the mid section from the wings.

He noted that there will be a lounge, lobby and study area in each section. There will also be provisions for conversion living quarters in each section. Each section will house approximately 330 students. There will also be a trash chute on each floor in each

Center Serves As Referral

By Dora Russell

The Counseling and Testing Center, located in the basement of Dudley Building, is one of the many services rendered to the students of A&T.

Some of the functions of the center is to render services to the Administration, faculty, students, and others.

The counseling and testing helps with their needs. Many students come in contact.

Counseling and testing helps with social, emotional, academic and financial problems. The center serves as a referral agency to refer students to other agencies when they can't help with their needs. Many students use the center however, the majority of these students are freshmen and seniors.

Mrs. Ruth M. Gore, director of the Counseling and Testing Center asks that all senior interested in taking the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) on December 9, January 23, and February 28th, to come by her office to fill out an application for fee waiver.

Mrs. Gore later stated, "I would like to see students get scholarships and fellowships without any strings attached to them, rather than borrowing money and having to pay it back when they finish college."

The present condition of our counseling and testing is to render services to the students of A&T.

SGA Holds Rap Sessions

and participation are needed in the Student Court System of which he is serving as Attorney General.

In the brief rap session which followed, the termination of student loans was discussed, also the budget of the SGA was explained along with the previous expenditures this year. Hinton also revealed his plans to fight any upcoming increase in in-state and out of state tuition.

Concerning all of the topics, Rivers emphasized the point that "co-ed visitation is nice, but we must think beyond that. The things is that Black schools won't have a physical plant in which to have co-ed visitation after the whites take over. Too, we should think of building a new library so we can get new books. The present condition of our chemistry, psychology, and political science departments are important too, just as co-ed visitation."

Political Science Majors Attend Confab

By Linda King

Seven political science majors and Dr. Armitj Singh, acting chairman of the department of Political Science, attended the 44th Annual Southern Political Association Convention, November 2-4 in Atlanta, Georgia. Students attending were John W. Maye, Kenneth Poston, Stephen Blake, Susan Waters, Charles, Ellissa White, and Florence Ingram.

The convention served a two-fold purpose. Its main objective was to familiarize students with professionals in the field and existing programs of study and with opportunities to make contact with the students of the professions in the field who might be instrumental in helping students attain fellowships and other forms of aid.

A&T students were also able to interview potential instructors for the Political Science Department here.

During the three-day convention participants attended forums which convened at 9 a.m. to noon and from 2:30 to 5. At these forums, noted political scientists presented papers on relevant topics. After these papers were read, other forums, noted political scientists presented papers on relevant topics. For the Political Science Department here...

One most promising gain was the many services rendered to the students of A&T. Some of the functions of the center is to render services to the Administration, faculty, students, and others.

Thanksgiving—Changing or Losing

By Nancy Chadwick

Thanksgiving, is it losing its original meaning or has it just changed to meet the trend of society?

In the United States and Canada, a day is set aside each year as Thanksgiving Day. On this day people give thanks, with feasting and prayer for the blessings they may have received during the year. The first Thanksgiving Days were harvest festivals, or days for thanking God for plentiful crops. For this reason the first Thanksgiving was held in the fall, after the crops are gathered.

Today the United States, Thanksgiving is usually a family day, celebrated with big dinners and joyous reunions. On Nov. 26, 1789 President George Washington issued a general proclamation for a day of thanks.

The very mention of Thanksgiving often calls up memories of kitchen and pantries crowded with good things to eat. Thanksgiving is also a time for serious religious thinking, church services and prayer.

By making small talk about food, I often remember those days of joyful celebrations. I can still smell the delightful aroma of turkey roasting in the oven, of dressing filling the room and house with an intoxicating smell of goodness in store. I still remember how I always tried to steal a piece of potato pie when all of a sudden my grandma catches me in the act of a eating crime. Those were my days of youthful growing up and many hours of good eats! How do many Americans commemorate this holiday? Some don’t. Many celebrate this day obviously the Auditor’s office has been delayed in finding a sure method in the reimbursement of the loan. The SGA office is expecting an answer in the very near future.

When the office is notified of the auditor’s plans, the students will be made aware of them and they will be told whether or not they will be able to make anymore loans.

Stack Up Knit Caps

By Delores Mitchell

Assistant Fashion Editor

This fall, girls, why not stock up on a good supply of little knit caps. You’ll never know when the ‘Greensboro Hawk’ will declare war on the co-eds in Aggieland, so the wise thing to do is start a supply now, before the weather gets too cold.

The girls will be wearing all types of knit caps this fall. They can be easily matched with knit sweater sets or stack suits for a very casual and mod look. They come in wool, which lends warmth, besides a handsome match with the various type coats in style this season.

The caps can be turned back to reveal more of the hair style, or they can be made to cover all of the hair. They come in various colors, some even with a flower on either side. Others have a more boyish look with the bib. Most of these stylish little caps can be knitted and made right in the dorm during your spare time. Even if you buy them, they are still quite economical. For more economy, they can be easily washed with wootie. Soak them for just three minutes in wootie and follow the directions on the label.

MASSACRE

It is fact that two Black students are dead. How they got that way is the question. The police, governor of Louisiana and the federal government will make an investigation and come up with the same "no answer" answers that usually come about when a trigger happy red neck with a gun kills somebody on a college campus.

But all that is over; the students have had their protest-school is closed, the cops have killed two "trouble makers" and the national news media has a good story. But what does it mean here at A&T?

Well, for one thing it means that students should be aware that they are running around getting into whatever it is they are into that the man is still out there with his, and not afraid to use it.

And then it also means that Black schools still have a fight on their hands. The national news media has been very careful over the last two weeks in covering the events at Southern. Never has there been any clear explanation of whatever it was they were protesting, they felt strongly enough about it to close the place down. And contrast to popular belief they do want to graduate.

But still what does it mean for A&T. Well, it means that this student body had better start coming together for the funerals.

Do you think there is any relation to the fact that they were killed in the first week after the election?

BLACK MOVIES

By Rosie A. Stevens

Recent years have seen the coming of movies with Black heroes. We have seen Shaft and Sweetback, and now Superfly. These movies all have one thing in common: the superhuman Black man who overcomes all odds.

These movies have come under attack in recent years from various quarters. Some have said that these movies portray a bad image of the Black man. They feel that movies should not show dope pushers, pimps, and other degenerates in a glorified light.

Others have argued that the movie industry is exploiting Black people for its own ends. When the profits are added up, the actors are on the short end, and the production company takes in the gains. Still others are critical because the cinema does not portray political consciousness. The heroes do not come across as politically aware Black people who are a part of the total struggle.

Those who defend the productions offer the argument that these movies satisfy a need to escape from the ghetto. They hold that the people of the ghetto want to see movies to which they can relate. And yet, they want their heroes to get a better deal than is actually received daily in the struggle to survive. Though Sweetback literally goes through a daily grind, the audience wants to see him get an even break.

However, through all the criticism and defense, one question has yet to be asked. This question concerns literary merit. When we pose the question of literary merit in relation to Sweetback and the others, we find that there is none. The acting is mediocre, the script is rotten, and about the only thing that is supplied is a study of kinetics. There is plenty of motion.

On the other side, we must admit that some escape is provided, and that some jobs are provided for Black actors and actresses, irrespective of talent. If people want to see movies of this nature though, of course the NAACP should not think of anything that even approaches censorship.

Perhaps the solution to the problem, if it is a problem, is not to censor, but to provide balance. We can think of other movies that have had some value, such as Cotton Comes to Harlem. We can also think of literary works by Black authors such as James Baldwin or Claude Brown, which provide ample thematic material for a movie ample thematic material for a movie or a play based on homosexuality between the liberal white boy and the Black in the Promised Land would be an excellent, statement on drug addiction if done rough the medium of cinema. We can think of many other examples worthy of consideration.

We must realize that the only way to correct bad images, generate Black awareness, and end, to a degree and only to a degree, the exploitation Blacks through the movie-making industry is to produce good art. Censorship will not do it, nor will the continued production of mediocrity.
Pictures talk.
Some little boys don't.

Some inner-city ghettos have special schools. For little boys who don't talk.

Not mute little boys. But children so withdrawn, so afraid of failure, they cannot make the slightest attempt to do anything at which they might fail.

Some don't talk. Some don't listen. Most don't behave. And all of them don't learn.

One day someone asked us to help.

Through Kodak, cameras and film were distributed to teachers. The teachers gave the cameras to the kids and told them to take pictures.

And then the miracle. Little boys who had never said anything, looked at the pictures and began to talk. They said "This is my house." "This is my dog." "This is where I like to hide." They began to explain, to describe, to communicate. And once the channels of communication had been opened, they began to learn.

We're helping the children of the inner-city. And we're also helping the adults. We're involved in inner-city job programs. To train unskilled people in useful jobs.

What does Kodak stand to gain from this? Well, we're showing how our products can help a teacher—and maybe creating a whole new market. And we're also cultivating young customers who will someday buy their own cameras and film. But more than that, we're cultivating a new, educated citizens who will someday be responsible for our society.

After all, our business depends on our society. So we care what happens to it.
Two touchdowns in the second quarter were enough to propel Delaware, State College last Saturday, 13-7.

But there was no denying the Aggies as Coach Hornsby Howell said, "I believe they were looking a little ahead to North Carolina Central.

In the first quarter alone, A&T was assessed 53-yards in penalties and finished the night with 100. One scoring pass was called back for clipping and a fumble on Delaware's two killed another opportunity.

"Our whole defensive line was tremendous, especially DeQuincey Davis," said defensive line coach Wylie Harris. "This crew has appropriately been nicknamed "Lightning's Raiders" after Harris.

Our offense and defense will have to play a very outstanding game."

The Aggies will invade Duke's Wallace - Wade Stadium to head the operation of "dipping the Eagles' Wings" in the annual Thanksgiving Classic. "We're up for this game, because this is the grand finale. We would like to end on a winning note," said Coach Hornsby Howell.

At stake is the MEAC football Championship and a trip to New Orleans to participate in the Pelican Bowl. With such passion enticement dangling before these teams' eyes, the contest will be a three hour duration of sounds of clashing helmets, impact of colliding flesh and bones, and the fervid pressure of victory raking their minds.

The name of the game is "the less mistakes" of each team. Playing leading roles in this department are Herman Gravett, Ron McNeal, and Charles "Bubba" Smith.

Back on the attack, A&T's powerful eighth - ranked NAIA rushing defense will illustrate in the game how the well deserved mask bank. Playing leading roles in this department are All - American candidates, Oscar Hicks and William Wideman. Defensive tackle (See Championship, Page 7)
Intramural Championship Slated For Monday

By Robert Brooks

Only two games were played in intramural competition this week. One decided the victor of Division II of the organizations and the other the organization champion for 1972. In the opening game BOSS met Omega Psi Phi to decide the divisional championship. The action was fast and exciting. The Ques received the opening kick-off and started to move the ball on the ground. On third and three, Bernard Graham intercepted Robert Bullock's initial pass of the game and ran 35 yards for the touchdown to give BOSS a 6-0 lead. After receiving a Ques punt, BOSS mounted its initial drive of 65 yards for a touchdown with Richard Stringfield connecting 28 yards to Paul Williams. The conversion attempt failed and BOSS led 12-0 ending the first quarter.

Romie Brimer replaced Robert Bullock as quarterback in the second quarter for Omega Psi Phi. He lead them to their first touchdown by brilliantly mixing his passing and running plays. The score came on a 12 yard pass to Cartez Corbett ending the first half as BOSS led 12-0.

The "Purple Gang" received the second half kick-off at their 30 yard line. On third and ten from the 30, Brimer faked twice in the back-field and used the boot-leg as if running the quarterback option. At the last moment, he pitched back to his trailing wingback, Donald Mann, who raced 70 yards untouched for the game tying touchdown. BOSS started to mount a drive, but a Stringfield pass was picked off by Benny McMorris and Run back to the 40. From there, Brimer moved the Ques in for the tie breaking score on another 12 yard pass to Cartez Corbett. Brimer fooled everyone on the option and scored the extra point to lead 19-12.

The Organizational Championship - Played between Omega Psi Phi and Air Force ROTC. This game was played in extremely cold chilly weather. Both teams played poorly except on defense. Mistakes very costly and really important in deciding the champion. The AFROTC came out ahead 6-0 to win the game and the championship of the organizations. The Championship game, AFROTC versus Tyrone Bolden's No star, is scheduled for Monday, November 20 in Holland Bowl at 4:00 p.m. Be there so you won't miss out on the action.

Championship Riding on Game

(Continued From Page 6) Reggie Strickland will substitute for injured Ben Tatum, while Carl Collins will take his place in the field. Starters in the T-Men's offense will be Len Reliford and running backs, Johnny Davis and Thomas Murphy. Sensational Aggie back, Al Holland, will return to the scene after a previous injury and will punt for the team. Outstanding lineman include Arthur Brown and Mel Rose.

The Eagles have hopes of taking it all in '72 this weekend, but the Aggies have been known to kill many an opponents' hopes of claiming the victory. If the T-Men really put it all together and utilize their best potentials, the Eagles will wind up as they did last year, second in the conference. The Aggies will win by a tight 3 points.
Be someone special in the New Navy

When Dr. Louis A. Ivey graduated with his Naval ROTC at Penn State, he was someone special. As a commissioned officer, he served with distinction aboard the U.S.S. New Jersey in the Korean action. Then, for two years, he was Commanding Officer of the Schriever unit of the Rhine River Patrol.

Dr. Ivey now specializes in cardiovascular and thoracic surgery at Howard University Hospital. He's someone special—in the Navy or out of it—because he's found, as so many others have, that you can be black and Navy too.

The New Navy puts its money where its mouth is because they need new leadership—Black leadership. To do it, the Navy offers two NROTC Programs to qualified applicants.

We're not just saying it, we're doing it.
