Mahaffey Hears Gripes
On Campus Problems

By Floyd Weatherpoon

Dr. Theodore Mahaffey, administrative assistant to the Chancellor, toured the campus last week meeting with the students and faculty in each building to get a first-hand view of the problems of the buildings and grounds.

Crosby Hall and the Paul Robeson Little Theater were some of the first buildings to be toured. Dr. Mahaffey met with a group of 95. Criticism and complaints from this group ranged from clocks not operating, to the heating and cooling system, and windows needing repairs.

When the subject of Security came up, the audience responded with many critical statements. One student stated, "There is a complete let down in the campus police operation." She went on to say, "The campus policemen hangout in the Woodmere Park area of Greensboro more than on campus." A member of the faculty in Crosby Hall said he "could verify that many times he saw campus policemen looking at T.V. at night in room 105 Crosby.

When asked who was responsible for the upkeep of the East campus, Dr. Mahaffey stated he was unable to answer that question but he was going to find out.

Many questions were asked about the shrubbery planted earlier around Crosby and Merrick Halls. It was stated that it had not been properly taken care of. Dr. Mahaffey stated that "no provisions were made for that up keep when they were originally planted, but this will be worked out.

A question was raised about the floodlights that are not in use in Crosby Hall. Dr. Frank White, Dean of Arts and Sciences, stated (See Dean, Page 3)

Committee Modifies Homecoming Theme

In its second meeting, Monday, the Homecoming Committee amended the 1973 theme from the one adopted by the committee, two weeks prior.

The original theme of "Power Through Unity, Purity and Pride" was modified to read "More Power Through Unity, Purity and Struggle! Harbombe." Delores Mitchell, Miss A&T, who presented the modified theme to the committee, said the original theme presented by Lloyd Inman, vice-president of the SGA, at the first meeting was the more desired effect. Revolutions seek to bring about change, she said. "It is apparent that in life, all things change; change is both permanent and constant."

"Black people are in search of total liberation. As a people we must understand ideology as it relates to the struggle. Ideology represents the fundamental principles of society," she stated. "Ideology relates to the very nature of man. It is concerned with his reaching his desired goals."

"We must know how to channel our energies in the community and how to direct them toward total society improvement," he stated.

The committee adopted the modified theme and explained that they and Miss A&T would present at the first meeting because they had received their letter of notification the day after the meeting.

In a brief interview following the meeting, Delores said the original theme was not the theme that the SGA wanted and added that she felt the theme they got as a group should be used.

In other business of the committee, Maj. Robert Irving, parade marshall, said the expected over-100 unit parade would be available in the Union. He noted that applications for the expected over-600 unit parade should be turned in by Oct. 5.

STOKELY CARMICHAEL, Sunday Night In Moore Gym

Pan-Africanism Explained

Stokely Carmichael Teaches

By Betty Holeman

Stokely Carmichael, potent activist in the all Africa People's Revolutionary Party spoke Sunday, in Moore Gym to an enthusiastic group of students on ideology, goals, change, incorrect interpretation of history, Pan-Africanism and other elements in the struggle to build a new order of values. Dr. Carmichael said he was unable to answer the question but he was going to find out.

"Black people are in search of total liberation. As a people we must understand ideology as it relates to the struggle. Ideology represents the fundamental principles of society," he stated. "Ideology relates to the very nature of man. It is concerned with his reaching his desired goals."

"We must know how to channel our energies in the community and how to direct them toward total society improvement," he stated.

"Pan-Africanism is a "bridge over troubled waters." It is the means to bring together many segments of society." he said. "It is apparent that, in life, all things change; change is both permanent and constant."

"Change gives us an inward identity to the group," stated Carmichael. "It is quite simple; until we know who we are, we can't reach our goal. There are Jewish people in the United States and, when trouble erupts in Israel, they rally together to raise funds to substantiate their recovery."

Carmichael went on to say that, when Italy is in trouble, her sons and daughters in America, rally to her. Africa has been in trouble and will remain so unless we rally to support her.

We Must Understand

It seems as if it is time for those who teach us or decide what we are to learn to become students again. A good student has a love for knowledge and takes any opportunity he can to learn.

If there were a course on becoming sophisticated on the different ideologies that Black people feel will lead them to total liberation not only the students, but also the administration and faculty would flunk the course.

It is evident that those of us here in this academic setting are not taking a serious struggle seriously because we do not care enough to come to the understanding of what it is all about. When Stokely spoke here Sunday, there were not many if any administrators to hear him. We all must understand that the struggle for liberation has not died out. If anything, it has become more sophisticated. That is why it is especially necessary in an academic setting to take opportunity to keep abreast of just what is going on or else one day we will find ourselves in the midst of confusion.

We must deal with the ideologies we may encounter. To some, the struggle for liberation means "Black capitalism" - the bringing together of resources of those few who have some in order to have some type of control on what is produced and sold in a society and of course receiving whatever profit made from these ventures. This belief in capitalism is for anyone who desires to help perpetuate the system.

There are the separatists who believe that Blacks can get back to Africa. An important point that Carmichael made was that it would take an "undying love for our people" to implement the theory of Pan-Africanism. To develop this undying love, he said, would involve educating the people with correct interpretation of history.

It is necessary for those in every discipline of education to become politically sophisticated. They must understand capitalism and its impact upon their lives. They must understand the language of the Pan-Africanist and what a correct interpretation of history entails.

Whether a student here has made a decision to become a doctor, lawyer, teacher, he will inevitably be affected by a different ideology. Those who teach us and decide what we are to be taught should have their non-compulsory attendance to hear such speakers as Carmichael taken away. They should care enough to want to hear about the doctrines that Blacks must deal with.

No Rabble Rouser

By Rosie A. Stevens

Stokely Carmichael has been called a militant by the white establishment. We recall that, in the late 1960's, many of the riots which occurred were blamed on Stokely. We recall too that the anti-riot and conspiracy laws passed by the Congress were aimed primarily at Stokely and at H. Rap Brown, another press-labeled militant. The sixties were a very stormy period, climaxing with two assassinations, the election of a low-and-order Republican ticket, and riots on college campuses across the nation, including the riot occurring here. It is extremely ironic that such riots could have been blamed on the Carmichael who spoke here Sunday night.

The Stokely Carmichael who was here at that time was very different from the person I had expected to see. From images presented by the press, I had expected a rhetorician who stirred people to action. I was impressed by the Stokely with whom I talked and whose speech I heard. This person was no rabble rouser, possibly because there was no rabble to rouse. This person was, for the most part, calm and cool except at one point in his speech, near the end. What was said here was not rhetoric; however, it was a statement of fact.

He does not appear to be an Owsasu-Sadakai declaring that he will peddle drugs to the children of the white man. He did not make passionate statements about the extremes to which he would go for his goal. He did indicate, however, that he would "kill for peace." Stated quietly, this came from him during the speech.

In talking with him after the speech, I received a distinct impression that he did not take me seriously. We debated his theory of revolution with his taking a condescending attitude that he could convince me of his point of view. I do not think that I can convinced that this is the case at all. At the same time, I received the impression that what he saw as serious opposition would not be tolerated. Having a serious goal in mind, he seemed dedicated to reaching that goal or of setting into motion the events which would ensure that the goal was reached. It was no nonsense behind the West Indian grin of his which flashed when he made a point. The no-nonsense Stokely came across behind the grin.
of apathy on this campus has been misleadingly incorrect.

First, we must understand what apathy is and why it's not done. Our first analysis was incorrect basically because we made the incorrect assumption that the SGA had unlimited powers to implement its programs. Truth is, even with the student body support given, the SGA has only limited power to do what it wants. In other words, that the SGA has limited power and must, in many cases, conform to or comply with the ADMINISTRATION. For example, if the SGA with student support meant policy making power, then the buildings on A&T's campus would at least bear the names of our people, past and present, who made this university possible. The program student support meant policy compromise with the student body support given, with their power to implement its programs. The SGA had unlimited powers to do what they wanted to do, yet the last three years of that total, yet the last three years of the SGA last three years ago, voted on about 30% of the student body and supported by 70% of that total, yet the last thing anyone can recall is that they last heard of it after it got

Thus the weak link in our analysis is that we have been examining the wrong components of the problem. We were restricting our factors to include only the student, faculty, and SGA officials, and thus we neglected to focus on the irrational factor as how all these things function-the ADMINISTRATION.

One concept of political science is that to people in authority, the administration, apathy is not necessarily a bad thing because everybody can do a good job or a bad job. So the next time you get the "Dudley Building Scuffle" and Dr. X sends you to see Dr. Y and Lastly, I know that some of the out-of-state students would love to see our administration right back were we started;" Dr. D. White stated.

It is not to imply that the students that but it's not always because they have nothing else to do. Also, with that many Drs. in that many openings one would think that maybe once a while the students would be the beneficiary of a more responsive ADMINISTRATION.

All this is not to imply that the SGA is omnipotent or intentionally implemented or produced apathetic conditions, but rather their policies and programs, definitely contribute to the retention and longevity of apathy.

I say that all this is not done intentionally because the majority of communication (understanding) between the students and the administration.

Dr. Dowdy, it's nice of you to go out the front door to fund-raising events, planning sessions, and recruitment

Dean Says Requests Have Been Ignored

They were off because of the energy problem," Dr. D. Craig, dean of the School of Business and Economics, informed Dr. Mahaffey that he had requested at least five times more faculty be hired to meet the needs made by the faculty in Merrick Hall but they were totally ignored.

Dr. Craig went on to say that if he (Dr. Mahaffey) was planning to turn the requests made by the students and faculty over to the Building and Grounds and not take it to a higher administrative level 'we would be right back where we started.'

Dr. Craig stated that the office janitor in Merrick had to be shared with Crosby Hall. Dr. John J. Stevenson, professor of speech communication and theater, stated that "There was a shortage of time spent on the job by the janitors because of a lack of supervision.

Senior dorm was also toured. The students' complaints were very much similar to those mentioned in other buildings. The janitor in Merrick didn't appear to be doing a proper job, and the janitor in Crosby Hall was often seen just walking around. The janitor in the dorm said he had never been there before. The janitor in the dorm also said he didn't know what he was doing there.

"I think we need a better janitor," said one student.

Aggies Break FAMU Jinx

By Blannie E. Bowen

Florida A&M University had never lost to A&T two in a row until Saturday night and the Rattlers gave the Aggies all they could supply before going down to a 21-14 defeat.

FAMU spotted A&T eight points at 6:14 until the Aggies engineered a 15-point drive in the final three minutes of the Hall of Fame Game and the home opening for the Aggies.

With the score tied at 14 apiece and 1:06 remaining in the game, FAMU punter David Smith faked a punt and was dropped at his own 45-yard line short of the first down.

Leo Relford came in to quarterback the Aggies with 55 seconds remaining; and, on the first play from scrimmage, he found Wilton Price and all alone in the right corner of the end-zone for a touchdown from 45 yards out. With the Dwight Nettles, PAT, A&T had won 21-14.

Stanfield caught the touchdown with no Rattler within 30 yards; and, with similar heroics last year, "Stan the Man" was almost singularly responsible for A&T's gaining its first two consecutive victories over FAMU.

The Aggies were behind by eight until the fierce Aggie defense provided the offense with one of its numerous scoring opportunities.

With 3:04 remaining in the game, Rolleford passed to Walter Bennett for 20 yards, he scrambled for four more yards, and George Ragdale took it home for the TD. The Rattlers still led by two points, but Paul McKibbins rolled-out and tucked the ball under his arm for the conversion and a 14-14 tie.

The Aggies fans went wild and, with the game-winning play that followed, Memorial Stadium was "the" place to be if you were an Aggie fan.

A&T was the first team to score when a poor snap from center resulted in Stewart's not getting his punt off and A&T getting the ball on the FAMU 11 yard line.

Al Holland scampered for two yards, Ragdale ran for no yards, and, from the nine-yard line, McKibbins rolled-out and tucked the ball under his arm for the touchdown. The PAT was not good, but A&T led 6-0. The 6-0 lead was good enough for the Aggies until Rolleford had a sideline pass picked-off by Felix Williams who straddled the sideline for a 60-yard touchdown. FAMU led 7-6 with 3:04 remaining.

The A&T defense limited the Rattlers to two completed passes by Holt. James Rackley was limited to only 38 yards rushing.

This was the first game A&T has been penalized under 100 yards in collecting only 60 for the night while running its record to 2-0-1.

Smith And Murrell Lead Competitioners To Win

By Robert Brooks

Only one game was played Monday in flag football competition. The Competitioners plastered the Trifl ers 32-6 behind Kenny Smith and James Murrell.

The Competitioners scored on the fifth play of the drive on a 38-yard pass from Smith to Murrell. Smith ran for the conversion to lead 8-0.

The Competitioners threatened to score again, but Brookley Falcon intercepted a Smith pass at the 5-yard line. From there the Triflers drove 95 yards to score as Lee Dunn teamed with Lionel Williams 59 yards on a pass and ran for the score. The try for two points failed and the Competitioners led 8-6 at the half.

The second half belonged to the Competitioners as they rolled up 24 points on the score board.

First Murrell ran 28 yards with a fumble for the touchdown. Smith then passed to Murrell for the extra points to lead 16-6.

The Triflers mounted another drive, but Lee Hilliard intercepted the Dunn pass and streaked 48 yards to score. Smith scored the point conversion.

The final score of the game came in the final quarter when Smith passed again for the touchdown to Maurice Harper covering 32 yards as the Competitioners remained undefeated.

Smith and Murrell were the leaders as they continued to come up with the big play as the Triflers could not seem to get untracked as a result of 4 interceptions and 2 fumble losses.

GHA Sponsors Pageant For Scholarship Funds

By Yvonne McDonald

The residents of the six housing projects in the Greensboro district sponsored a beauty pageant Sunday in the Union ballroom. This was the third annual project sponsored by the Greensboro Housing Authority.

Money from the pageant will be used for college scholarships to be divided according to first, second, third place winners and the queen.

Contestants were Wanda Pennix, Claremont Courts, and George Ragsdale took it for 20 yards; he scored the 2-point conversion.
