Save And Change Black Schools Emphasis Week Dec. 3-7

Assembly Will Kick-Off SCBS Emphasis Week

By Janice Smith

Next week has been designated as Save and Change Black Schools (SCBS) Emphasis Week at A&T. Highlighting the week's activities are an assembly in Harrison Auditorium Monday at 10 a.m. and a rally in Holland Bowl Friday at 4 p.m., with guest speakers whose names at this time have not been released.

Activities were planned and organized by the campus Save and Change Black Schools Project Advancement Workers, acting secretary for the local committee, said past discussion sessions have been well attended by students, but that initial contact in trying to get the faculty invited will come through emphasis week. She explained, "Well attracted more students to mean that approximately 30 to 50 students showed up at the different sessions.

Also topping the emphasis week agenda will be a panel discussion Thursday night at 7 p.m. in the Union Ballroom. Panelists will be Mr. Maurice Marshall, president of the SCA, Advancement Workers, local committee for SCBS; Rev. Greene, community; the Rev. William Turner, faculty; and Donald Jones, national Student Affairs attorney general.

The statement read: "Save and change Black Schools Emphasis Week. They are not necessário to classrooms. More than 35 colleges were represented at the conference and over 500 delegates and A&T students attended the opening session.

Chairman of the local committee is Tony McNair.

Fire Guts Room In Scott Hall

Damage To Section C Estimated At $5000

By Blannie E. Bowen

A fire gutted Room 149 in C section of Scott Hall Thursday afternoon and left the room in complete ruins. Bobby Williams and Joseph White were the freshman occupants of the room and they were in class at the time of the fire.

Damage to the building was estimated to be in excess of $5,000 by the Dean of Men, Lt. Col. Williams. Williams and White lost an estimated $150 each worth of clothing, school supplies, and personal items.

No persons were injured in the blaze. While neighboring rooms suffered severe smoke damage, none was damaged by water. The hallway and one bathroom door were severely burned by the flames as they rushed out of the entrance to the destroyed room, burning away at the ceiling and paint on the walls of the hallway.

Several reports as to the cause of the blaze have been issued, but no clear cause has been identified as of press time. Greensboro Fire Chief W.E.B. Smith and W.L. Watson implied that the fire started in the closet.

Chiefs Stuart and Wilson said that one of the students had been smoking before he went to class, but they said that the student had taken the cigarette with him when he left the dorm.

The fire chief suggested that maybe there was an electrically shorted circuit that ignited the blaze after the most intense heat was coming from the closet.

Severe damage to the entire residence hall was arrested by the quick response of the four units that answered the call at approximately 2:50 p.m.

Items ranging from stereo records to trucks could be seen on both sides of the dorm as the students made a quick evacuation of the entire wing.

When these students were safely out of the smoke-filled dorm, they proceeded to ask Chief Smith what could be done about some damage to their items.

A somewhat upset Smith replied, "The State can build a dorm back in almost no time, and you guys should be thankful that you only have smoke damage. What about the students who lost everything, and there is no insurance to cover personal losses?"

Marshall said it would be preferred that students share their plight with a friend or with members of the student personnel staff. Rather than take that unilateral action in going to stores and taking without payment such articles that can result in high interest rates and future opportunities to get jobs or positions usually paying top salaries.

Without mentioning figures, Dr. Marshall said that there is usually an increase in the number of cases of A&T students reported shoplifting during the (See Students, Page 3)

Half of cases of A&T students apprehended during the past three years were on or off-campus.

He continued, "We are aware of the great needs and financial strain to which many students find themselves."

Forensic Society Gets New Birth

By Cassandra Wynn

The Kappa Phi Kappa Forensic Society which began in 1902 had an official rebirth Tuesday night when the A&T State University Forensic Association had its induction ceremonies. According to Floyd Weatherpoon, the president of the association, the group will be sponsoring intercollegiate debates and "rap" sessions that center around the needs of the university.

The featured speaker was Dr. Jose Marshall, vice-chancellor for student affairs. Marshall pointed out that such an organization "affords the opportunity to acquire leadership in public address, skills in relating ideas orally and doing research." He challenged the members of the group to acquire skills in drawing and defending proposals. He also told them how to learn from their mistakes and the form of the society and how to participate in the democratic process.

Marshall pointed out that due to showmanship and skills in public address which not the late John Kennedy displayed in the Kennedy-Nixon debate in the early 60's, the results of the presidential elections came out in Kennedy's favor.

The students were encouraged by Marshall to make a "serious attempt to select, survey and study problems on campus."

One of these problems is that of drug abuse and such was the material of an address given by Dr. Dorothy Prince, Dr. Marshall, Moses Whaley, and Robin Bradley, Safety and Driver's Education Department; Dr. Isaac Barnett, Speech Communications and Theatre Arts Department; Dr. John Crawford, and Mrs. Linda Martin, advisors to the group.

Education Majors Seek New Drug Education

By Rita Manley

In preparing the prospective teacher to enter his profession, the Department of Education, here, has established courses in Education which train students in the proper methods of teaching. Much of the course work is intended to install here a workable democratic process.

As a result of this, the students majoring in educational fields may soon look forward to a different method of drug education being included in one or more of their required courses in the near future. Such exposure (to this course) will attempt to redefine the drug problem in social terms, that is, in terms of living and growing in a complex society in contrast to relating to drugs as mere physical being.

Couple To Dance On 'Soul Train'

By Gladys Outlaw

An A&T student, Dessa Pearson, and her dancing partner Roy Quick of High Point will be leaving Sunday to spend a week in Hollywood, Calif. to perform on Soul Train. The Black oriented show, weekly televised series featuring top-scale entertainers, personalities, and dancers is independently syndicated throughout the nation.

The couple won the all-expense paid trip, as a result of winning the Soul Train Dance Contest. The contest was held on Aug. 26 in Greensboro Coliseum with 50 contestants.

While in Hollywood, the couple will meet outstanding personalities and have an opportunity for a permanent position as dancers. They both said the contest was one of the most thrilling and enjoyable experiences they have had.

Dessa said, "I have always wanted to be a dancer, but I never thought that I would have the opportunity to participate in an experience that would offer such benefits. While attending A&T, I participated in several talent shows that inspired me to enter the contest."

"I would encourage everyone with talent to exhibit it in some manner, so it will be recognized," she added.

The board also discussed the possibility of abolishing the cultural affairs programs. They said they felt it was a "duplication of the Lyceum Committee."

The board is planning a couple of events for the remainder of the semester. December 4, the board will sponsor a free Christmas party and dance in the Union Ballroom. December 9, the exact time of the dance will be disclosed at a later date.

Free Movie, "Super Fly TNT" will be shown at 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. Tuesday in Harrison Auditorium. Sponsored by the Union Advisory Board, I.D.'s must be shown.

Teloca Club will meet Monday at 6:30 p.m. in Noble Hall.

A representative from the Campus Post Office has asked that students remember to give their complete return address to friends or relatives when sending mail. The complete address should consist of individual's name, box number if he has one, dormitory, A&T University, the city and zip code. The spokesman said that the post office receives mail for students which has only their name sent to the University. To prevent delay and loss of mail, the above suggestions should be followed.

Program To Deal With Drug Problem

Instead this program has the goal of preparing the prospective teacher to humanistically cope with drug and drug related problems and to help them deal with during his teaching career. Such training can enhance the general effectiveness of the prospective teachers being trained, but not to the end of making them drug specialists, but rather to help them better relate to drug and other social problems in school communities.

The purpose of this program, when finalized is to help these schools and communities assess problems and respond to their drug abuse problems by becoming aware of the nature of the problem and developing strategies aimed at its causes rather than merely

How Is It Done?

How do we change and save Black schools is the unanswered question in the Save and Change the Black Schools Project. Next week has been designated as emphasis week for the project: classroom discussions, panel sessions and a rally with guest speakers have been scheduled for the week's activities.

The national project was officially organized in January of 1973 and culminated in a conference held on A&T's campus the second weekend in April. From that conference, a strategy was devised which briefly included National Save the Schools Week, summer work research committee, training team, organizing the Black community behind saving and changing Black schools, and mobilizing the people to express their will.

During the fall, the local committee has scheduled several meetings and planned emphasis week. It seems that most students are in accord they want to see Black schools saved and changed. At this point, assuming that the level of consciousness for preserving our schools has been raised to a satisfactory level—what then is the next step?

Questions have been put to individuals locally and nationally about the guidelines for not only saving, but changing Black schools as well, and these questions have been met with generalities and rhetoric.

And, while discussion is going on about the relevance of Black schools and how much we need them, and what should be changed, the University of North Carolina system is working on a desegregation plan that will be accepted by HEW.

It is possible that there is not greater active support for preserving schools from the student body simply because individuals do not see specific goals outlined. This can bring on confusion and disorientation.

So, not only do we need a strategy, we need united and specific procedures for implementing it. Not only do we need to know what should be changed, but we need to know what should be substituted in its place.

How should the guidelines for saving Black private schools differ from that in changing predominately Black state schools? Although, these questions may be shunted off to an individual's lack of participation, the reason could be that the students are looking for guidance in selecting a course of action. And it is hoped that Save and Change Black Schools Emphasis Week could become more than an emphasis week metamorphosing into a session for setting up guidelines for positive procedure.

The Hot Potato Syndrome

By Rosie A. Stevens

Traditionally, Black schools have played the role of parents, in loco parentis. Black administrators and faculty have been the parents, and Black students have been the children. The college was one big, happy family, sharing and cooperating the way families do. The children did not get out of line, and the faculty and administration never had any problem with the brood.

Today, this sounds a bit unrealistic, though it is still held that a big, extended family exists. The main features are supposed to be intact, with parents and children. However, the response of this family is quite interesting to observe when crisis occurs, when the children go astray, or when something else occurs, when it is invaded by some strange outside mystery.

With the increasingly larger size of Black colleges and universities, and with the changing nature of the external society, it is highly doubtful that the response of the institution will be positive, immediate, anyway. This might possible be because the administrators are so far removed from the students, in most cases physically as well as otherwise, that real knowledge does not exist about day-to-day concerns of students. It takes crisis to cause people to take notice.

But what happens when conditions are noticed? When situations become plain and obvious to those concerned and to those who take action in such situations? Is the appropriate action taken with due respect for all concerned? Or is the matter passed around like a hot potato, never coming to rest until the potato, unfortunately, becomes stone cold?

If an administration is afflicted with the hot potato syndrome, or is organized so that the potato can easily be passed or if the potato passes its own volition, what then? And why? Most importantly, why? Is it because the parents are sick, because they don't care anymore, or because there is no longer a place for the role of parent at a university?

It has been pointed out that sometimes parents are so ill that they fail to see the ills of their children. Another possibility is that the role is actually outdated, and that what is needed is not a parent, but someone who is capable of taking the appropriate action for the benefit of those concerned.
SGA Vice-President Introduces Two Bills

By Betty Holman

In a regularly scheduled meeting of the student legislature this past Wednesday night, Lloyd Inman, vice-president of the Student Government Association, introduced two bills designed to clarify the constitution.

According to Inman, in the present constitution Section IV, duties of the Secretary should be clarified.

Inman said that the revision would, if enacted, designate the secretary of the student body to maintain all records, activities and transactions and files of the student body and executive members and would call for permanent preservation of those archives for future references.

The bill introduced by Inman would, if enacted, seek to revise qualifications for officers.

In order for an individual to be eligible for the position of vice-president of the Student Government Association, he must, at the time of his election, be at least a rising junior. He shall have a scholastic average of 2.0 or better and must have been in attendance at the university no less than one year. He must reside on the campus during his term of office and be enrolled as a full-time student.

Graduate School Offers Degrees In 23 Areas

By Phyllis Saad

Born in the midst of immense tragedies and internecine strife in the society, our Graduate School began its operations in 1939 according to Dr. Albert Spoonli, dean of Graduate School.

Dr. Spoonli said we offer advanced study for qualified individuals who wish to improve their competence for careers in professions related to agriculture, humanities, education, social science and technology. "We provide a foundation of knowledge and techniques for those who wish to continue their education in doctoral programs at other institutions. We encourage scholarly research and investigation among faculty members," he said.

There are 23 areas of study offered in the Graduate School. The most important emphasis in the teacher education categories. Dr. Spoonli said that we offer non-teaching majors in chemistry, engineering and food in the instruction of elementary and secondary education in the area of the principal, and the school counselor's certificate.

For these proposals to become effective, stated Inman, a two-thirds quorum must be present to vote on the proposed amendment.

A question was raised from the floor by Anita Cavanagh concerning the type of form required to submit a bill to the Student Legislature for passage.

Inman answered her by saying that bills are referred to the Rules and Ways and Means committee.

William Scott raised another question relating to why there had been no student body meeting this year.

Inman said that he was not authorized to call a meeting of the student body; that this would fall under the powers of the president of the SGA.

Also in his comments, Inman said that the dorm rap sessions were very well and that he plans to live in what is supposed to be one of the best women dorms on campus. If one wants privacy this has been in the past, the place to live in order to have it. Yet just this week the privacy I had enjoyed has been virtually destroyed, without my consent and the consent of my fellow suite mates, by a water fountain.

The installation of this fountain will mean the invasion of our suite by literally half the dorm. This was a unfortunate but inevitable consequence of the administration on the campus creation of children, or paws on a chaise longue to move to the window or move to move, to say and to what is to happen to us!

The fountain was needed. But the consent of the people involved should have been sought and received before the fountain was installed.

I have lived with a dietary will which grows more difficult and a room without heat throughout this semester. Now I have one other "small" inconvenience to look forward to.

SGA Information Chart

This chart would contain the emergency phone numbers, such as campus security, the infirmary, the fire department, L. Richardson hospital and others.

Inman, in reply to another question raised from the floor concerning the missing page from the constitution, said that it was left to the Pan-Hellenic Council to send it to the Senate, and that those copies were to be brought to the Senate meeting which is next Wednesday night at 7 p.m.

Other business of the next meeting will include election of a parliamentarian, the voting upon the extension of the planning of a tentative activity.

Impish 11-Year Old To Appear In Play

Quiet as it's kept, one of the veteran actors appearing in the Richard B. Harrison Players' forthcoming play, "A Raisin in the Sun," is 11-year-old Mark Pinckney.

This is Mark's third performance for the A&T drama group, and Director Dr. John M. Stevenson is really sold on the bright, impish young star.

"He really brings a great deal of enthusiasm to his performances," said Stevenson, "and he seems to have acting flavor.

On a recent rehearsal night for the play, which runs Wednesday through Saturday in the Paul Robeson Theatre, Mark worked on his school homework (doing fractions) and talked about his interest in acting.

"I like being in plays," he said. "It's just so much fun." He recalled that he was being asked by Stevenson to appear in the "The King and I." After being in that first play, he said with a smile, "I kept asking him when would he have another play with children in it.

Mark's second role was in "Green Pastures," which he also enjoyed. A sixth grader at Greensboro's Caldwell School, Mark said the night rehearsals used to make him sleepy in school the next day.

"But I'm used to it now and I am thinking about being a movie star," he said.

Mark is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Pinckney on Drexmore Avenue.

"A Raisin in the Sun," is the Broadway hit written by the late Lorraine Hansberry.

Mark will play the role of the son of a black family living in a cramped flat on the Southside of Chicago.

Duplicating the starring roles popularized in the original by Sidney Poitier and Claudia McNeil, will be Junious Leake and Shirl Grossom. The boy's grandmother will be played by Mrs. Eula Hudgens, an A&T faculty member.

Other members of the cast will be Bill Penix, James McMillan, David Staples, W. T. Brown, Marce Garrett and Avery Verolde.

Aggie Basketball Season's Opener, Battle Of Champs

By Blannie E. Bowen

"If Fayetteville State starts an average size team, we will go with Stanley Penick, James Outlaw, Allen Spauld, Willie Daniels and Artis Jackson. If they start a big team, then our line-up will look like this: Outlaw, Spauld, Daniels, Jackson, and Ron Johnson," stated Coach Warren Reynolds about his opening game of 1973.

"We will not have a set line-up and the situation will dictate who will start at various stages of the season," continued Coach Reynolds.

The Aggies and the Broncos of Fayetteville State meet in what is the battle of conference champions. Fayetteville swamped Winston-Salem and Norfolk State in the CIAA Tournament at the Greensboro Coliseum last February to win the first crown ever for the Broncos while compiling a respectable 14-14 season.

The Aggies also had 11 losses (See Quarterback, Page 7)
SPORTS NOTEBOOK

By Blinnie E. Bowen

College football 1973 is over for A&T, but the season is not exactly over for other teams and individual players. The Heisman Trophy winner will soon be announced as well as the All-American teams.

Most of the names on the running for the Heisman will make All-American very easily. To make All-American or win the Heisman, a player must attend a big football power school, have a clever sports publicist, and get himself known via a fine performance on national television.

Black colleges may have the clever sports publicist and the national recognition, but only Grambling appears on National television. The Black players at the Black Colleges just do not receive their deserved recognition.

To illustrate this point, would you cast your Heisman ballot for USC’s Anthony Davis or State’s Archie Griffin? Both of these players are great, but look at Walter Payton of Jackson State and Randy “Sweetback” Walker of Bethune-Cookman. Payton and Walker both have better credentials but not the names.

Is wide receiver Lynn Swann of Southern California better than Howard’s Eddie Richardson or Grambling’s Sammy White? Are the Selmon Brothers of Oklahoma and of Bethune-Cookman. Payton and Walker both have better credentials but not the names.

There are no Black quarterbacks in the NFL and the closest person to becoming one is Joe Gilliam of Tennessee State who plays for the Pittsburgh Steelers. Gilliam got his chance by playing this season when Terry Bradshaw and Terry Hanratty got injured. Gilliam came on to lead his team to victory over Washington, and he came within 15 yards of doing it Sunday in Cleveland. It is very interesting to see the sports ancients say that he has the arm, the intelligence, the football knowledge; but what they really do not say is that we can’t use a Black quarterback right now.

In referring to Black players on the nation-wide football telecasts, try listening for these phrases and words: “He is a good one”; “We need more of them”; “Good boy, Willie”; “Thim”; “That one”; and “Which one of them made the tackle?”

The MEAC BASKETBALL RACE gets underway this weekend, and there is plenty of talent to go around this season. Calvin Skinner and Rubin Collins are back to lead Maryland-Eastern Shore; therefore, the Hawks should have another year while ending-up in first.

Marvin Webster is back at Morgan State, and he is even better this year. Teams will have to score by more than seven points out of a 150 pounder and with his jump shot. He is a high point scorer in the MEAC. Howard is back with his conservative style of play and should get fourth, while an improved Delaware State is fifth. Sam Jones and North Carolina Central should challenge, but South Carolina State’s team transferred Tommy Boswell and the Bulldogs will be in the cellar.

The Aggies should handle Rubin Ruffin, James Tyus, Alton Cordell and my Homeboy, Otis Newkirk, this weekend in the battle of the MEAC-CIAA champions in Fayetteville.

Aggies Romp Over Barber-Scotia Behind Strong Offensive Thrust

By Robert Brooks

The Aggies won their opening game of the season Tuesday night 48-29 behind the offensive thrust of Sylvia Deloatch and Eva Patterson in the second half, and an overall team defensive effort to defeat Barber-Scotia.

The Aggies started quite slowly with the Suberbetties holding a 3-0 lead after the first four minutes of the game. The Aggies fumbled the range and one was blown down by one, 11-10 at the end of the first period.

The second half was all Aggies. The full court press produced many steals by Sylvia and Joyce Payton of Jackson State and Randy "Sweetback" Walker of Bethune-Cookman. Payton and Walker both have better credentials but not the names.

The best wrestlers from all of the colleges in North Carolina will be competing against each other this Friday and Saturday in Chapel Hill at the North Carolina Wrestling Meet on the campus of the University of North Carolina.

East Carolina University is the eventual hard last season and the Pirates figure to be the team to beat again this year, with teams from Catawba College, Chapel Hill and A&T being the closest and best competition that will be in line for the bragging rights for wrestling in North Carolina for another year.

Full wrestling will be in the 150 pound class and with his experience at the Nationals at Sioux Falls, Iowa, last year, his coach Mel Pinckney feels that team will be in line for his best season ever.

The Aggie grapplers will be led by the dynamic twosome of Marvin Fair and the freshman sensation of a year ago, an undefeated Roosevelt Hilton. Fair will wrestle at the 150 pound class and with his experience at the Nationals at Sioux Falls, Iowa, last year, his coach Mel Pinckney feels that team will be in line for his best season ever.

TED MOODY IS LEARNING HOW TO FLY

"He's a classy guy. Always went all-out."
These are the words of one of the Dartmouth football coaching staff about Ted Moody, a former star linebacker. Ted graduated from Dartmouth College in '72 with a degree in Economics and a mission in mind... to be a pilot... A Naval Aviator.
Now Ted Moody is going all out again. This time in Pensacola, Florida as a Naval Aviation Officer Candidate. He is finding out what it takes to be a Naval Aviator. He's finding it takes a lot of classroom work and long hours studying. It takes a lot of work on PT fields and obstacle courses. It takes special training like the parachute slide and the land survival mission in which you must hunt your own food and erect your own shelter. It takes a lot of time in a cockpit and even some old fashioned close order drill. And it takes a lot more. But, most of all, it takes the right kind of man.

No, you don't have to play football to be a Naval Aviator, but you do have to have a college degree and a lot of drive. And, when the time comes for you to wear your "Navy Wings of Gold" you will know what it takes. It takes your best!
For more information on what it takes to become a Naval Aviation Officer Candidate, call, toll free: 800-841-8000. (In Georgia, call 800-342-5895) or mail in the attached coupon. Be someone special.
