Reported Incidents Show Fewer Crimes

By Floyd Weatherpoon

Associate Director of Physical plant Marvin B. Graeber, stated there has been a slight decline in reported crimes on campus as compared to the same time period last year. Less than $600 has been reported stolen since period last year. Less than $600 there has been a slight decline in security officers.

Graeber said students are also security-mindedness of students.

"Things are quiet; we are grateful security force tries to stress the idea that persons seeing a crime want to know why no one saw them to an agency for rehabilitation.

Graeber stated that the security force tries to stress the idea that persons seeing a crime will be the guest speaker at the annual Honors Day Convocation, Feb. 13th in Moore Gym. She is director of the Division of Social Services of the State Department of Human Resources.

More than 200 students will be cited for their achievements by the deans of the various schools. The purpose of the honors day is to recognize those students who have achieved academic excellence.

Awards this year will be presented to the students who have been listed in the 1974 edition of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities and those who have made the Dean's List for the previous semester.

Students will also receive awards for achieving four-point academic averages for the fall semester and being top students in their departments. These awards will be given from the various honor societies.

The occasion will be sponsored by Alpha Kappa Mu Honor Society in conjunction with a special committee chaired by Dr. Jesse E. Marshall, vice chancellor for Student Affairs.

Music and vocals will be provided by the University Concert Band, the University Choir, and the Fellowship Gospel Choir.

Foreign Students To Present Cultures Of Native Lands

By Mary Coward

The international students will present a festival with the theme "It's One World. We'd Like to Get to Know You Better," Feb. 23.

The 102 students now studying at A&T present a broadening resource from which the entire student body can draw. The thrust behind their extracurriculars is to get to know the A&T students better and to become an integral part of the University family.

The gala affair will include all nationalities represented on campus, exhibit fashions, art, dance, music, and dance showing the various cultures and customs of their native land.

The event will take place in Moore Gymnasium and the foreign students are extending an invitation to the student body, faculty and community.

Mrs. Annette O. Greer, advisor to International Students, said the international students feel that they are "company" no longer to the campus and they desire to do their part in contributing to all phases of the University family.
MEAC And CIAA Occur On Simultaneous Dates

By Linda Dalton

The Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference and the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association will both be held Feb. 28 through Mar. 2 in the past two years, these two events have been on separate dates allowing people to attend both.

This year may cause a conflict, for some people will want to attend the MEAC and the CIAA. The MEAC will be held in the Greensboro Coliseum and the CIAA will be held in the Baltimore Civic Center, Baltimore, Md.

The MEAC has been held in Durham for the past two years. Although the MEAC will be farther away this year, there are some that will still attend. Also, students will not be going because of financial reasons or means of transportation.

So a lot of people may settle for the CIAA as an alternative. Will this eliminate some of the Apple report that has been given for the past two years?

Students were asked whether they would attend the MEAC and the results were as follows:

Fay Manian Bennett, a sophomore Industrial and Management Technology major from Mississippi, stated that he would not be able to attend the MEAC because he is saving funds so he can go home for the spring break.

Michael Page, a sophomore, has stated that he has a lack of interest.

Lynd Woods, a senior music major, said that he will not be going to the MEAC and he is not certain whether he will go to the CIAA.

Addicts Are Hard To Reach

Administrators Probe Issue Of Drug Abuse

Why people abuse drugs, legally or illegally is unknown according to some drug studies. It has been suggested that people abuse drugs because of the psychological problems they have been imposed upon them due to worry or seemingly, insurmountable problems in their families. Others propose that some persons abuse drugs to alleviate actual pain and discomfort. Americans consume around a ton of “pain pills” per day, according to recent reports.

“If every drug abuser sat home and reports his illness, he can get help. They also can get a letter of immunity and will not be dismissed.”

Editor’s Note: The following article is the second article in a three-part series on drug abuse.

By Michael Bray

The latest development in the drug abuse problem at A&T is the presenting of plans of the gym to Dr. Moore, the next step is for the builders, thus starting the gym on its way.

The station also plans to cut licenses (broadcast licenses).

WANT, radio station is still blasting off with top sounds, fast talking DJ’s, and the latest happenings around campus.

The latest development in the program is a change in the Sunday’s music format. On Sundays, jazz hits will be played from 12 a.m. to 5 p.m., easy listening music from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m., and gospel music and programs from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m.

The station also plans to cut back on the number of commercials and the talking done by the announcers.

Ruthie Williams, program director of WANT, said one of their future plans for the program is to have interaction with students or personnel who are drug users or drug addicted persons should report their illness to the Infirmary at once.

She also said that she will be in Greensboro for the CIAA. She said that she will be in Greensboro for the CIAA.

“Nothing can be done without the cooperation of everyone in the Aggie Community to make some steps toward finding solutions for drug abuse,” read the original statement.

Possible solutions might be given next week, when Yvonne Reemly, newly appointed chairman of the Drug Action Committee talks to the press.

Campus Police Arrest Man For Carrying Illegal Drugs

A non-student was arrested and charged with illegal possession of narcotics and illegal sale of narcotics.

The suspect, Robert Allen Smith, 305 Moody Street, who is listed as "Matlock," was apprehended Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. on the north side of Boineau Road.

“The arresting officer, Sgt. W. H. Horton, an A&T campus officer, reported finding in the suspect’s possession, four sticks of marijuana.”

According to the police report, the arrest stems from the new law which requires the campus police to stop and check out all unregistered vehicles on campus.

With the new gym yet to begin, many students are wondering if the structure will ever be built. Though Moore Gym is the main sports center on campus, it is too small to accommodate the spectators that turn out to view the events.

The gym is “hoped to be completed by 1974,” according to Dr. Roy Moore, chairman of the Physical Education Department and chairman of the committee to build the gym. He also stated that the committee meets according to the needs of the building schedule and that it is doing the best it can with the money that is available to them.

Although the state has allotted $3.4 million to A&T, the prices of building materials are nevertheless rising and action should take place shortly.

Now that the architects have presented the plans of the gym to Dr. Moore, the next step is for someone to announce the bid to the builders, thus starting the gym on its way.

A&T Seeks Engineering Students

permit up to 100 high school students. We will actually begin work-study programs, such as the one at the Naval Weapons Laboratory in Dahlgren, Va. Students there receive valuable related training and earn school fees, while preparing at a nearby educational approach, also. There has not been any case in which A&T, one of three nationally accredited engineering schools in the state and currently enrolls more than 325 students, has gotten a chance to enter the Naval program, "said Amory. A&T will also continue its work-study projects, such as the one at the Naval Weapons Laboratory in Dahlgren, Va. Students there receive valuable related training and earn school fees, while preparing at a nearby junior college to enter A&T's engineering school. Amory said that many of these students would never have gotten a chance to enter the more traditional engineering programs. A&T is one of three nationally accredited engineering schools in the state and currently enrolls more than 325 students in the undergraduate program and 35 students in the master's program. "We would like to increase these enrollments to 600 undergraduates and 100 graduates," he said.

The Sloan Foundation, established in 1934, has interests in science and technology, economics and management, and problems of society open to scientific, technological and educational approaches, many of which have not been single divorces in my family for over 100 years," he added.

In Choosing Suitable Bride

By Virginia South

The idea of marrying a foreigner, even one from a Western family, is totally out of the ordinary to people of the Western world. It is something that one does not see or hear about in an old movie or novel. Consequently, when A&T, one of the nation's leading engineering institutions, enrolls more than 325 students, it is not surprising that the enrollment rate is up to 100 high school students. Students interested in engineering will also establish relationships with companies in the field, strengthening their backgrounds in mathematics and programming. In the spring, students will be able to see the work of professionals in their field.

To Dr. and Mrs. Anwar Khan, the circumstances of their marriage is unusual but not rare. Dr. Khan's parents, brothers and sisters have all married in the Rajput tribe. But his parents believed that Shahnaz was the right choice. Consequently, he had only two hours to debate whether the arrangement would be satisfactory to him. Since he was returning to the United States on August 1, there was a mass of legal paperwork to undergo, and it was already the last of June. They were engaged on July 6, 1973, and married on July 22. Neither saw the other until after the marriage ceremony according to custom.

"If I had not followed our customary tradition of marriage, it would have affected my future generation of children," Dr. Khan stated. "Then it would have been difficult for them to find a bride or bring up children in the Rajput tribe."

"There are no unhappy marriages or divorces in our tribe. My three brothers and five sisters have married in this manner, also. There has not been a single divorce in my family for over 100 years," he added.

The Aggie Smoke
Not Especially Good Days

Within the past year, there has been a trumpeting call for nostalgia, a looking back to the thirties and forties for what has been termed as the "good ole days."

But we cannot as students and we cannot as Blacks find contentment in oppression of these earlier periods. As Blacks, it is not to our advantage to ally ourselves to fond memories of times filled with blatant racism and segregation.

During this time our men were called boys; white and colored signs flooded public buildings; and Black women were treated without respect. So, then we as Blacks must look at the past in the historical perspective.

History's major contribution is a source of information whereby we can analyze and determine future courses of action.

Next week is Negro History Week and the purpose of such a week should be to plot new alternatives through the remembrances of the past achievement of those of our heritage.

Its major purpose should not be merely to commemorate, but rather to link past achievements with ongoing achievement.

As students nostalgia offers little comfort because we can no longer at this or any other University look at administrators through in loco parentis.

With the fifties went the idea of college administrators striving to be our parents and instead came the idea of co-operative education of administrators and faculty working with students. When we came to the University, we did not come in search of parents-we left them at home and came as young adults seeking an education. And the guidance we desire is not that of making decisions for us, but of helping us as we decide.

Occasionally the idea of substituting for our parents shies its face in the form of powerful suggestions. But as we have co-operative education, the process should be more than making suggestions; it should be a working together toward the desired goals in the classroom, the undertaking of projects to fulfill those goals.

Therefore, we cannot merely accept your suggestions without your co-operation and respect for us as individuals who know the meaning of efficiency and promptness.

Thus, as Black students we can find little glamour in the "good ole days" when we were blatantly treated as inferior by whites, and as children "to be seen and not heard" by our educators.

During Black Heritage Week, it might just be the right time to reaffirm confidence in ourselves.

The Council on Curriculum Improvement should be more effective in providing an assessment of the curriculum here. This is especially needed because of the role the Alumni Consortium will play in the desegregation of higher education.

It might be considered the job of the council to provide an assessment of the courses taught so that the consortium will have a more effective voice in the decisions made.

The council was set in the fall of 1972 for the purpose of evaluating the courses taught here so that the needs of the students could be better met. The possibility of such things as minicourses, multidisciplinary courses, and remedial teaching of concepts was to be considered among the council's plans to change the course of study.

It is now the spring of 1974, and nothing has been heard by the student body form this council. We do not know whether the council has been dissolved, if it has encountered problems in functioning, or anything that has been going on. We have not seen the effects of such moves in new course offerings, etc.

Currently the student body is worried about the status of Black schools as places which provide Black students with the opportunity for education. Part of the worry is due to the wish of students to take all of their courses on a Black campus rather than a white one.

The reason is that, in many cases, it is tantamount to attending a white institution. There is little emphasis placed on the acquiring of skills by the Black students.

There is the very subtle racism which is felt, and which may inhibit the learning of skills in effective communication needed by Blacks. Perhaps one determining factor in the taking of certain courses on another campus would be the quality of the course offered. This might include such things as the emphasis of the course and the perspective from which it is taught. In order to determine how we stand in a particular subject area, an assessment would be necessary. We do not know if this has been done.

The consortium says it will have a voice in anything which is done. We hope it is an effective and adequately informed voice.
Injustices, Suffering Mar South Africa’s History

Historically, the land known today as South Africa is one of the most violent places on Earth due to hundreds of years of human conflict. Today, however, the country is under the rule of a post-apartheid government, which is attempting to heal the wounds of the past and address the injustices of the past.

The latest in a series of events is the release of a report that details the extent of the human rights abuses committed during the apartheid era. The report, which was compiled by a team of international experts, highlights the systemic nature of the abuses and the complicity of the state in perpetuating them.

The report notes that the apartheid system was characterized by a wide range of abuses, including forced labor, torture, sexual abuse, and the arbitrary denial of basic rights. The system was also characterized by the systematic discrimination against black people, who were denied access to education, healthcare, and other basic services.

The report calls for a thorough investigation into the crimes committed during the apartheid era and for the establishment of a truth and reconciliation commission to address the grievances of those affected.

The report is likely to be met with resistance from the government, which has been accused of trying to downplay the extent of the abuses committed during the apartheid era. However, the release of the report is a significant step towards accountability and justice for the victims of apartheid.

Editor’s Note: The following is a commentary on the report and the challenges in pursuing justice for the victims of apartheid.

Branded Too Long As Dirty

By Ted L. Hargrove

As black students at North Carolina A&T State University, we often wonder if we are being branded too long as dirty and ugly. We are constantly being subjected to racial slurs and other forms of discrimination.

It is time for us to stop being silent and take action. We need to speak out against this discrimination and demand a change in how we are perceived.

The university administration and faculty need to do more to address the racial issues on campus. We cannot afford to let this continue.

Competitors Take Easy Win Over Triflers

By Robert Brooks

The Esquire-Pershing Rifle game was a slow one with the Pershing Rifles holding a 15-10 halftime lead.

The second half was about even 17-14, Pershing Rifle, as they scored most of his 14 points on tap-ins as he scored high above the basket several times to score crucial points. Wallace Smith aided Roundtree with 10 points, while Feggans in the Esquire’s leading scorer with 11 points, while Rodney Halton chipped in four in the losing cause.

The final game was fast paced with the Competitors running the fast break to perfection while defeating the Triflers.

The first half was all Competitors as they raced to a 21-10 lead and padded it in each of the remaining quarters.

These scores were in double figures for the Competitors with 15 and 10 points each. Coach William Murphy said, “We were flat tonight and Shaw’s team looked entirely different from the team we played in February.”

Maurice Harper aided Lee with eight points, respectively.

The second game was won by the Competitors, 47-31, over the Triflers.

Aggiettes Turn Slugghish Start Into Hard and Quick Victory

By Robert Brooks

The Aggiettes won their ninth game of the season last night 54-35 over the Broncos of Shaw University.

The game started slowly with a lot of running up and down the court by each team with neither scoring any points. The Aggiettes seemed sluggish, but broke in front 13-10 at the end of the first quarter.

Shaw’s team appeared to have improved since the last encounter with the Aggiettes forced many fouls in the quarter which led to five of their points by Delta Elmore.

The second quarter was played almost on even terms and the Aggiettes led 27-20 at halftime.

The second half saw the Aggiettes go to their pressure defense but Shaw put pressure on them, and they only led 27-29 as Shaw still hung tough and had a good chance to win entering the final period of play.

The Aggiettes put on a 14-2 sport in the opening minutes of the final period to coast in for the win.

Coach William Murphy said, “We were flat tonight and Shaw’s team looked entirely different from the team we played in February. They have improved a great deal.”
Latest Basketball Statistics Show Aggies Slightly Below Opponents

A&T Sports Information Director Curzon Johnson has released the latest statistics for the Aggie Basketball team. As a unit, the Aggies are hitting 41.5 percent of their field goals while the opponents are connecting on 45.4 percent.

The Aggies have a 59.1 free throw percentage whereas the opposition hits 65.6 percent of its free throws. In rebounding, the foes again top A&T with a 47.2 average as compared to the Aggies' 42.4.

There have been 17 games thus far, and while winning 11 and losing six, A&T scores 80.05 points per game by opponent's point total is higher and this is the reason why the Aggies scored nearly 100 points lost more games by this standard.

If you figure that A&T would have the opposition is deceiving when points and losing six, A&T scores 80.05 47.2 average as compared to the foes 44.8 average whereas Daniels is sixth in MEAC rebounding.

Despite possessing a mere 5-6 schedule outside of the conference losses to Delaware strengthened the Aggie wrestlers. There have been 17 games thus far, and while winning 11 there is only one thing to do this weekend... Win!

Wrestlers Hold Middle Place In MEAC Race

Despite possessing a mere 5-6 overall record and a 2-0 MEAC slate, A&T is still in the middle of the MEAC race at this stage of the season. The primary reason the Aggies are still in the race is that A&T has completed most of a tough schedule outside of the conference which has strengthened the Aggie wrestlers. After being saddled with conference losers to Delaware (See Matmen, Page 7) Brooklyn naives Hugh Evans says "there's a lot of pressure in being a National Basketball Association official." One of five Blacks hired by the NBA out of 21 league officials, the A&T graduate has worked 37 games all over the country in his first season.
SPORTS NOTEBOOK
By Blanice B. Bowen

There have been some real surprises in the world of sports in 1974 and the year is just a shade over a month old. The biggest surprise of the year has been the Hawks of Maryland-Eastern Shore.

Maryland has completely dominated the MEAC basketball circles this year by compiling a 20-1 record and being ranked number one in the NCAA Division I standings. Among smaller colleges, the Hawks are number one or three, depending upon whose poll you are observing.

UMES lost its first game of the year Tuesday night to a balanced Morgan State team. This loss may be given to Maryland's Athletic Department or the person who made the Hawks' schedule. The scheduling was absolutely poor because UMES played four MEAC foes away from Princess Anne, Md., in only five days. To play four games in five days is almost unheard of, but to play that many road games in five days is simply stupid.

Maryland defeated North Carolina Central in overtime; A&T by six points; Howard by 10; and Morgan edged the Hawks by two. This action occurred between Friday and Tuesday.

Although the Hawks have an excellent and well-coordinated team, the pressure was too much for any humans to bear, especially the pressure put on the Hawks by Morgan's 10,000 fans at the Baltimore Civic Center.

ALTHOUGH MORGAN's Marvin Webster and Maryland's Tolvin Skinner played against the Russians in 1973 to gain valuable experience, this duo has been scaring to unbelievable heights this season. Skinner collects 16.4 and 13.1 rebounds per contest, even though his coach called him Saturday for "hot-dogging it" against A&T. Rated 6-6 forward hitting 24 points per game and 26.6 average.

Webster is one of the few excellent Black wrestling coaches in the land and it appears that he is not to blame. When class registration and extremely slow eligibility processing of a team leave a coach without three of his key men, a finger should be pointed to somebody other than the coach.

NOT OF THE SAME magnitude of surprise, but A&T's wrestling squad has a 5-6 over-all record to date. In that Coach Melvin Pinckney returned his entire squad from last year's 9-3 finish, it would seem that his record is not exactly up to par.

Coach Pinckney is one of the few excellent Black wrestling coaches and he is not about to be pushed off the platform of names like Brown, Williams, and others of note.

A&T will have to work extremely hard if it is to make any kind of impact in the MEAC.

A&T has a 1-5 record at one school, Hart, but the Aggies have stormed back by defeating several tough foes along the way. Elizabeth City was one of the latest victims even though the Vikings had an 8-1 record coming into A&T.

Howard University comes to Moore Gym Friday afternoon, but Morgan State will not come down as scheduled Saturday, although the Bearcats are in first place in the MEAC. A&T will automatically get the victory from Morgan because of a scheduling conflict in the Morgan Athletic Department. With a successful match against Howard, A&T will become one of the teams to beat for the MEAC crown.

"We're gonna beat 'em; we're gonna run them off the mat-if the guys decide that they want to do it," states A&T Coach Mel Pinckney about Howard University.

"Sure we can beat 'em," continues Coach Pinckney, "but we have to get together with that week's layoff, we are well rested."

Charles Simmons, Melvin Fair, Dan Coleman, and Reginald Hart are the main reasons for the recent A&T surge. Simmons owns a perfect record this season with a 9-0 over-all slate and 4-0 in MEAC.

Fair is completing another outstanding season as the junior star has lost only once. He has a 10-1 overall record and 2-1 in MEAC.

Coleman is 4-0 in the conference, but he has tasted defeat twice while posting a 9-2 record. Hart is 8-3 in all matches, but he is 3-1 in the MEAC.

After the Howard encounter, the Aggies will entertain two more opponents at Moore Gym this year. Pfeffer College comes to Aggieland on February 16, and Livingston gets a shot at A&T on the following Tuesday.

Two Cagers Battle
For Most Valuable Player Award
They both scored 33 points head-on, each is a prime candidate to become the "Most Valuable Player" in his respective league. North Carolina A&T's James Outlaw and Chapel Hill's Marvin Webster are just a few of the many names which come to mind when the topic of national college basketball is discussed. Outlaw is portraying himself as the nation's major college scorer and is the top collegiate point-man in the state with a 26.6 average.

The Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference star is firing over Elizabeth City's Glen Woolsey, a 6-6 forward hitting 24 points per game. The Aggies edged the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association team, 79-69, recently in the Greensboro Coliseum.

This year has already given several surprises, and if the trend continues around Aggieland, there will be many more surprises, but not another surprise of the caliber of A&T's MEAC Tournament win of last year.

"A Lot In Store"
Howard And A&T Meet Friday

The "human eraser," marvelous Marvin, King Kong, and Marvin Webster are just a few of the all-around stars to look forward to from Morgan State College.

A&T farm have waited all season long to see if it is really as good as everyone says it is. The former center stands 6-11 and 260 in Moore Gym. Webster has supervised his first two years in the MEAC, but he has taken his team and is the top collegiate point-man in the state with a 26.6 average.

The biggest surprise of the year has been the Hawks of Maryland-Eastern Shore.

Hollins is a bat-wielding maud and Lewis is a powerful 6-4 forward. After finishing the Aggies last year, A&T exploded on the MEAC Tournament finals.

As a matter of record, A&T is the only MEAC Tournament champions and Howard is the only team to lose to the Aggies (0-2) in the finals both years. With James Outlaw, Allen Spruill and Willie Daniels set on not bringing the first A&T loss to the championship, the Aggies appear to be ready for this week-end's shoot-out.

Outlaw is portraying himself as the nation's major college scorer and is the top collegiate point-man in the state with a 26.6 average.

The Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference star is firing over Elizabeth City's Glen Woolsey, a 6-6 forward hitting 24 points per game. The Aggies edged the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association team, 79-69, recently in the Greensboro Coliseum.

This year has already given several surprises, and if the trend continues around Aggieland, there will be many more surprises, but not another surprise of the caliber of A&T's MEAC Tournament win of last year.
Pictures talk.
Some little boys don't.

Some inner-city ghettos have special schools. For little boys who don't talk.
Not mute little boys. But children so withdrawn, so afraid of failure, they can't make the slightest attempt to do anything at which they might fail.

Some don't talk. Some don't listen. Most don't behave. And all of them don't learn.
One day someone asked us to help.

Through Kodak, cameras and film were distributed to teachers. The teachers gave the cameras to the kids and told them to take pictures.

And then the miracle. Little boys who had never said anything, looked at the pictures and began to talk. They said "This is my house." "This is my dog." "This is where I like to hide." They began to explain, to describe, to communicate.

And once the channels of communication had been opened, they began to learn.

We're helping the children of the inner-city. And we're also helping the adults. We're involved in inner-city job programs. To train unskilled people in useful jobs.

What does Kodak stand to gain from this? Well, we're showing how our products can help a teacher—and maybe creating a whole new market. And we're also cultivating young customers who will someday buy their own cameras and film. But more than that, we're cultivating alert, educated citizens who will someday be responsible for our society.

After all, our business depends on our society. So we care what happens to it.

Kodak
More than a business.
