Lyceum Group Cites Problems

Committee Needs Money

By Cassandra Wynn

How does an organization function on a budget that is less than one third of what it needs to work with?

This is the question that faces the Lyceum committee. According to the head of the group, Dr. Howard Pearsall, the committee's budget for the past two years has been $14,000. Pearsall says that A&T Lyceum Committee's budget needs to be about $47,000.

The purpose of the Lyceum Committee is to sponsor artistic programs that will enhance the cultural growth of the university. However, Pearsall contends that because of budget problems, the committee has had trouble fulfilling its purpose.

The budget is determined by the number of students enrolling at A&T per semester. Out of each student's tuition $10 per year is taken out for the Lyceum. Three thousand dollars a year is $14,000. The committee's budget for the past two years has been $14,000.

Almost half of the Lyceum Committee's budget is spent for the art exhibits presented in Taylor Art Gallery. The rest of the budget is spent to sponsor speakers, musicians, and other performers. All of the shows which the committee sponsors are free for the students. Pearsall said that he doesn't think that students should have to pay for what they are getting.

Pearsall said students are now crying for performers like Roberta Flack. Her present price is $14,000. The committee does not have enough money to get performers like her to this university. In Pearsall's words, "There is not enough to deal with all of his times."

So far this school term, the committee has sponsored, "The Majors", a rhythm and blues band; Author Cunningham, a Black composer; Carolyn Stanford a Black mezzo-soprano and the Newark Boys Choir.

The committee has two other programs planned for this year. They include Emme Kemp, a Black musician who is scheduled to come here April 4th and direct from Nigeria, Duru Ladipo's Yoruba Musical scheduled to come here April 5th. The group from Nigeria will dance, sing and act.

With more money, Pearsall envisions having events such as a festival of cultures which would feature information on different cultures. He sees the possibility of having more "big name" performers here.

"I can't envision a student coming from Turbina and not hearing a symphony orchestra when he comes here and not having heard one when he leaves," said Pearsall.

All of the shows which the committee sponsors are free for the students. Pearsall said that he doesn't think that students should have to pay for what they are getting.

Dwindling Federal Scholarships

Student Offers New Source For Financial Aid

When Thomas Evans became concerned about reports about dwindling federal scholarship aid for college students, he decided to do something about it.

Evans' concern has resulted in the formation of the Parkway Janitorial Service, a successful operation of several A&T students.

"We come into contact with numerous students who couldn't find a job," said Evans, himself a junior business major at A&T. "We were also concerned about the fact that the usual sources of student aid are being eliminated."

What Evans meant is that many college students fear that there will be a shift from the direct federal loans to students to President Nixon's recommendations of guaranteed loans directly from the banks.

Pearsall asked, "What do students do outside of the classroom that is significant for their total growth?"

According to Pearsall, many of the artists that he has gotten to come to A&T have been through personal friendship with them. One idea that he offered as a solution to the problem was for the Black colleges in the area to form a coalition to attract artists to the area. The coalition would be instrumental in attracting the kind of artist that would fit the needs of Black students, said Pearsall.

A&T Granted $262,000

For Business Program

A&T has been selected to participate in a $262,000 pilot program designed to structure and evaluate management education for minority businessmen.

According to Dr. A. P. Bell, coordinator of the A&T project, the university will participate in this project in a cooperative arrangement with the University of Minnesota.

The overall project will be directed by Dr. Edgar Persons, a professor of agricultural education at the University of Minnesota.

"There are more than four million small business entrepreneurs in the United States," said Persons. "They constitute 95 percent of the operating businesses, but they also have a high failure rate."

"We want to develop, demonstrate and evaluate a comprehensive management education program for small businessmen, in this case, minority businessmen," added Persons.

The A&T program will initially enroll from 12 to 20 minority businessmen, with an additional group to be added during each of the next two years.

Bell said the program will be similar to a cooperative education program, with the businessmen meeting at least once a month on the A&T campus for instruction.

A resident instructor, assigned to the program, will spend time (See Minority Page 2)
Committee Expels Social Fellowship

By Virginia W. Smith

The constant abuse of privileges and malconduct have resulted in the expulsion of Groove Phi Groove Social Fellowship, Inc. from the campus. The Committee on Student Organizations met on Feb. 19 to review flagrant activity charges resulting from actions by members of this organization. The flagrant activities were discussed which have prompted parents of the victimized pledges to visit the university administration relative to this matter.

J.E. Garfield, chairman of the advisory committee of student organizations, said, "Pillage is the biggest violation by the fraternity. We have many definite complaints of security on this matter. Also, they have had probations when they were not supposed to have been activated."

The action of the committee stipulated withdrawal and cancellation of all privileges afforded Groove Phi Groove for a period of five years, effective March 1. The organization must dismantle and remove all ground markers from the campus and, father, may reaply for campus status only after five years.

Garfield said, "University administration was concerned over the activities of the students involved."

In a letter of Feb. 28, Dr. J.E. Marshall, vice chancellor for student affairs, approved the committee's recommendations. In additional, Garfield said that there are many other areas of malconduct of the university which should be exposed to the public. Destination of property such as damage to furniture, doors and cutting of screens are only a few of the gross actions. There is a prevalent amount of theft and dope, also.

"These are criminal acts, by not exposing them, we are harboring these individuals," he said. "They should be publicized and removed from the campus." Garfield stated that problems with utensils disappearing from the dining hall continue to flourish. Since August, 600 doorknobs and knives have disappeared including a tremendous number of glasses and plates. Students still do not put their trays away after eating.

"I think it's a criminal act," committed by a student is an embarrassment to the university," Garfield ended.

Appointee For Attorney General

Still Awaits Vote By Legislature

By Bennie L. Glover

With the resignation of Clarence Jones, attorney general, effective December 1973, A&T's student body has been without an attorney general or an acting attorney general now for a period of roughly three months. During this time the question of whether a student attorney general can be legally prosecuted in campus courts in the absence of an attorney general has been on the minds of many students. In a recent interview Marilyn Marshall, Student Government Association president, responded to questions pertaining to the position of the attorney general.

Marilyn stated that at this time an attorney general has not been appointed by her, but has not yet been approved by the Student Legislature which meets again Wednesday night. Marilyn's appointment of attorney general went to Joseph Lindsay, a senior political science major. Lindsay has not yet been approved by the Legislature, although it has met three times since the appointment at the time of this article. But each time a quorum has not been present on the appointee.

The Constitution states in Article V, Section 2e, that the President has the power "to appoint an Attorney General subject to the approval of the Student Legislature," and Article VI, Section 1 states "all appointments to Executive and Judicial offices made by the President of the student body shall be ratified by a majority of the legislators voting except where otherwise designated." When asked if the absence of an attorney general could hinder the operation of the courts on campus, mainly the University Tribunal, the SGA President responded, "No, at present, she said, "I am holding the seat on the court that was held by the Attorney General and have his vote." She went on to say that this seat originally belonged to the SGA President, but was held in abeyance the last time an attorney general was appointed by the SGA President usually appoints the attorney general to have this seat on the University Tribunal.

The fact that, at present, Dr. Waverly N. Rice, chairman of the University Tribunal is serving the summons on students charged, and not the attorney general, does not constitute grounds for a mistrial, Marilyn stated. To explain this further, she stated that a student that is to appear before the University Tribunal should actually receive two summons, one from Dr. Rice and one from the attorney general, and because of this, Dr. Rice cannot be considered a two-fold position as chairman of the University Tribunal.

The Constitution states in Article V, Section 2b, that the President has the power to appoint an Attorney General.
Silverware Budget’s Exhausted

By Floyd Weatherpoon

Director of Food Services, Lawrence C. Munson, has expressed concern over the shortage of silverware, and what he terms as petty theft of other cafeteria supplies and the destruction of campus facilities in general.

At present, students are mainly supplied with only spoons and knives, as eating utensils. Munson stated that "400 dozen forks were purchased for the school year and at present there are hardly 100 forks left."

Munson stated that he was informed by students that "one man" had as many as 12 dozen water goblets and a dozen forks in his room and this was the case of other individuals."

It was necessary for the staff to be spent for operation of the cafeteria, and Food Services allowed another $4000 and Munson said the total amount had been exhausted for just the purchase of silverware.

Munson went on to say: "Students in the dormitories are breaking windows, knocking holes in walls, marking on classroom walls, all for more maintenance and repairs. They don't realize the cost comes out of their pockets or their parent's pockets as tuition continues to jump. Let's get this straight."

"To help raise funds to purchase silverware Food Service and Volunteer students, under the direction of Munson, are setting doughnuts to secure forks. Munson also expressed concern in raising the ball courts at Moore Gym lighted and properly marked. According to Munson, there are some of the problems that students don't have enough outlets to express themselves and relieve their tensions."

On the question as to when the New Cafeteria will open, Munson stated that they are still hoping for December. The New Cafeteria can accommodate 950 students and will have everything new from chairs to garbage disposals. A conveyor belt will take the trays from the dining table to a lower level for cleaning."

"The New Cafeteria will change the physical atmosphere but, unless we have more discipline on campus, we will be right back where we started," stated Munson. Munson also stated that if he inclined more discipline in the new cafeterias, it wouldn't work unless there is more discipline in the dorms and in the classroom, not just for students but for faculty also.

A Grant Available for students with at least a C average. Applicants may be from Greensboro, Bridgewater, or Sanford. For additional information contact the Office of Alumni Affairs or phone 379-7533. Sponsored by Khalif Temple No. 144 of Greensboro.

Dormitories Close for Spring Break at 12 midnight Saturday.

President-Elect Of ALA Recruits Students For Graduate School

By Cynthia Shipley

Dr. Edward G. Holley, president-elect of the American Library Association and Dean of the School of Library Science, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill visited Bluford Library Tuesday. Holley came on a recruiting drive for graduate students to join Masters Degrees at UNC-CH. Holley said, "We have an interest in increasing the enrollment of minority students in our library science graduate school."

His intent is to visit the 16 college institutions of the North Carolina system, and thus far A&T has been the tenth campus. "Librarianship is exciting and challenging. We have the right kind of job. We have students to do, and then we have to work with them."

"As one of the oldest and largest professional organizations, the American Library Association has a long and proud history. The New Cafeteria will open, Munson stated that they are still hoping for December. The New Cafeteria can accommodate 950 students and will have everything new from chairs to garbage disposals. A conveyor belt will take the trays from the dining table to a lower level for cleaning."

Junior Nursing Major Selected As Outstanding Student Nurse

By Phyllis Broome

A junior nursing major has won student nurse of the year for her district and will compete in a state contest the last of March. Janice Williams was selected for the district award over contestants from Guilford Technical Institute and the University of North Carolina Greensboro.

The state contest will be held in Greensboro at the Hilltop Inn. The purpose of the contest is to select a person who has proven to be an outstanding student nurse and can serve as a model for other student nurses, along with serving as a representative of them to the general public.

Qualifications for entering the contest stipulate that a contestant must be a rising senior, present letters of recommendation, submit an essay and be active in nursing organization and other extracurricular activities.

Application For Campus Housing To Be Accepted Beginning April 1

By Phyllis Broome

It's that time of the year again. What time? It's time for every student who desires to live in a residence hall to fill out an application for on-campus housing.

In order to live in a residence hall, the student must pay an advance $15 fee and make application for on-campus housing.

Applications will be accepted from Tuesday, April 1, 1974, through Wednesday, April 3, during the hours of 9 a.m. - 12 noon and 6 p.m. - 12 midnight.

After that time, applications will be accepted in the Dudley Building Room Number one.

Women students may select any one of the six female dormitories. Men students may select one of the three male dormitories.

Specific dorm choices may be honored; however, specific room choices will not be honored.

Complete information about the advance fee can be secured in the Cather's Office.

Bye Y'all

Have An Enjoyable Spring Break
The Money Crunch

A possible solution to the federal money crunch was presented to the University by Ted Mangum in Tuesday's edition of The Register. Thomas Evans and Mangum, along with others, have been working on a project we think will work, if you, the student body, help.

No matter how far we go in elaboration, we can always add something else to the worries students have had as they waited during the summer to hear from financial aid, or as they waited cross-fingered during the spring hoping that the federal government would not cut aid higher education.

The project calls for students to be hired by the local business community. A&T will get input into the community and the community can take an active role toward the university.

An example is the pilot program of Parkway Janitorial Services in which businesses contract the agency to clean; and, in turn, students employed by Parkway can earn money to pay college expenses.

We should be able to see both the logic in the project and we definitely need the know for such a project which would serve as a resource for funds.

What the co-ordinators of the project need now is your support and moral backing for the venture.

True, it involves some work, but that hasn't scared us before. And no matter what is said, there is nothing degrading or "Uncle Toms" about working for an agency like Parkway to help pay your college expenses.

Facing What's To Come

By Rosie A. Stevens

Midterms are nearly over, and everyone is ready to go home, to visit relatives and friends, or simply to go somewhere to spend the spring break.

The exams are then behind, but there are many things facing us when we return to campus.

For the seniors, this means preparing for final exams during the following month.

For various organizations, elections are coming up, and everyone, from the prospective treasurer or the sophomore class to the prospective president of the SGA, will be trying to get the issues together.

The issues are very important this year, but they are not quite what we would think. They go beyond the name-calling of some of the campus has indulged in, such suppositions issues as female chauvinism, lack of dances sponsored, best organization award, etc. These are only surface issues, issues which do not get to the real problems we face.

What are those "real" issues? Well, we might begin with that concept called communication among students, and faculty and administration.

Students go to class, talk about make-up exams, talk about how many pages and footnotes should be in a paper, etc., but there is no real communication.

Another problem on the campus is the need for students to be able to have certain needs met, services performed, and responsibilities fulfilled without being given a great deal of hassle by those who are formally charged with these responsibilities.

Still another group of related problems involve the rights of students on the campus. The student courts are supposed to have dealt with this, but have not. The SGA president has had problems in dealing with this.

These are a few of the problems faced and which should be meaningfully dealt with.

A Commentary

Scott: Appearance Or Safety

By Michael Hailey

As of now, Scott Hall has been the victim of two menacing fires, one occurring in November and the other in February. This may bring one to conclude that maybe the dormitory building is fire-prone.

In case of a fire, fire alarms are located in the halls, most of which have been used and, as of this writing, have not been replaced.

During the November fire, Greensboro Fire Chief E.B. Smith stated, "The State can build a dorm back in almost no time."

A new male dorm would be nice to have now to replace Scott Hall, or money could be obtained to renovate the building so that fire hazards could be done away with.

Since money was recently spent to add lobby to the structure, it is not likely that a few more dollars will be spent to help prevent fires.

One may wonder which is more important, the looks of the building or the safety of its inhabitants.
Problems May Not All Lie With SGA

Editor of The Register:

Harambee—More Power thru Unity-Dignity and Pride, was the ambitious theme from Homecoming '73. The advent of a new administration brought about a hope—a hope for a more active Student Body. The student government have found a complete and total apathy among the student body. There are many—the prevalence of apathy among the student body is complicated. The lack of student body participation is symptomatic of the problem. Let's take a look at our prison population. Over 75 percent of the prison population in the United States is Black. Does this mean that over 75 percent of the crimes committed in this country are committed by Blacks? Does this mean we have the freedom of being indiscriminate targets by crime before being found guilty?

The A&T Register
Students Look At High Position Employment

By Carlene Blackwell

Today, as in previous years, Blacks are being overlooked in "high-position" employment.

For this reason, academic preparation has become most important within our Black colleges and universities. Today, even students are wondering if they are receiving an adequate amount of training.

Because of the fact that A&T graduates will face the same problems, students here on campus, were asked to give their opinion on whether or not A&T should become more academic.

Fenice Boyd, a freshman music major, stated, "I feel that A&T should become more academic in other major fields, excluding engineering. The University is a good one; but to party, which has nothing to do with academics. If some of the students were more socially involved, maybe this would help the school as a whole."

Philip Artelberry, a freshman biology major, continued by saying, "Of course A&T should become more academic, but what is most important is that students take advantage of what is being offered. However, whatever changes are made in the amount of curriculum should also be made in the quality and relevance."

Sandra J. Cooper, a sophomore psychology major, said, "I think that A&T should become more academic because students graduating would have a better opportunity for employment.""}

Marva Coward, a junior English major, added, "I think A&T should become more academic by giving students more in depth preparation in their major fields. This could be accomplished by dividing up major courses which cannot be adequately covered one semester. This would enable the A&T graduate to compete with other graduates when going to graduate school and competing in the job market."

Erna Smith, a senior nursing major, agreed with the following comment: "A&T is academic, but some of the students' attitudes toward academics suggest that pleasure and simply getting over, takes precedence. Higher standards in the grading scale might give one the incentive to work harder and not just enough to get over."

SPORTS NOTEBOOK

By Blannie E. Bowen

It's been a long time coming, too long in fact, but a Black college has finally made it to a post-season tournament that is full of national prestige and money. Maryland-Eastern Shore's selection to appear in the National Invitational Tournament should be regarded as highly as the integration of the South's high schools. Black players have played for white universities for years and, yet, no Black school with Black players of equal ability has ever competed in the prestigious tournaments.

Some Blacks will argue that the NAIA is just as important, but how many times has an NAIA tournament been on television. For that matter, I could make a safe bet that nine of any 10 persons asked could not tell you that Guilford College won last year's NAIA tournament.

In compiling a 26-1 record, the Hawks have played some great basketball and should do well in Madison Square Garden. Black colleges have long been noted as pure run-and-gun type of teams and it is time for those labels to be erased.

UMES has been criticized as just running and shooting, but Saturday night's win over Morgan State should cool the critics for a while. The Hawks played pattern ball and the result is now history.

While this may be regarded as a crucial stage for the Black colleges, schools such as A&T and many others must somehow find a way to schedule and beat the bigger and more established schools. But Saturday night's win over Morgan State should cool the critics for a while.

OFC OF A MORE ENCOURAGING NOTE, the A&T wrestling team won the NAIA District 26 title and Coach Mel Pinckney was chosen as the top coach. This is a very commendable feat since most of the competition was of a lighter color and supposedly better prepared.

A collegiate wrestling star himself, Pinckney is just beginning to organize what could become the wrestling dynasty of North Carolina.

RON JOHNSON IS A basketball " hustler", "thief" and also a member of the MEAC all-tournament team. In basketball language, Johnson is just a super ballplayer who is getting better with each day.

Even with an elbow that every team in the MEAC knew was hurting him, Johnson hustled, stole the ball and made the all-tournament team. Johnson is destined to be a pro player, but right now he has courage and desire that all Black men should possess.

A&T won 16 games and lost only 10 this season. But, for the third consecutive year, the Aggies received no post-season tournament berth.

A good reason for A&T's not getting a berth is that the Aggies are competing in the NCAA Division I, and they have not posted records that were impressive enough to be considered for the NCAA.

Also contributing to the non-existence of post-season tournament play for the Aggies is that A&T has not tried to compete in the NCAA tournament which is composed of the smaller schools and is not as prestigious.

A&T's cumulative statistics for 1973-74 show that the Aggies were behind the opposition in every statistical category except for the number of shots attempted.

The Aggies attempted 2,010 field goals and hit on only 825 for a 41.0 per cent. A&T's opponents made 826 shots and attempted only 1,870 field goals for a 44.1 per cent.

Rebounding was another problem area for the Aggies as they averaged only 33.1 per game as compared to the opposition's 44.1.

As a unit, the Aggies made 61.6 percent of their free throws while the competition hit 66.3 percent. A&T made 2,024 total points for 77.8 per game average and the opposition totalled 2,105 points or 78.6 points a game.

James Outlaw, who finished in the NCAA's top 10 scorers, led A&T in points per game average, 24.7; total points, field goal attempts, 163; and free throw attempts, 165.

Outlaw made 41.9 percent of his fieldgoal attempts and 70.9 percent of his free throws. Willie Daniels averaged 11.3 points a game and 9.8 rebounds, while he hit 37.2 percent of his field goals.

Allen Sprrall came on strong toward the end of the season to average 11.0 points, 71.6 free throw percentage and 33.6 field goal percentage. Bobby Goodwin was hurt and was only 47.6 percent from the field.

The top defensive player, Stanley Parham, hit 47.1 percent of his shots while scoring five points a game. Deonce Boone scored 1.0 points, rebounded at 8 and hit half of his shots.

Though he only shot five times, Calvin Norman made three of his attempts for a team leading 60.0 percent field goal accuracy.

U.S.大纲 College had trouble hitting the shots as he hit only 4.5 per cent of his shots while going two for 27 on the year. Raymond Perry averaged 3.7 points a game, hitting exactly one-third of his shots.

But they were outmanned and far behind at halftime.

The third period was as fast and exciting as the first two. The Tigers got a balanced attack with seven of their nine players scoring. The Aggies were as cold as Siberia because they only managed four points in the third period to the Tigers' 18. The Tigers poured on the coal and had a sizable lead of 53-18.

In the final eight minutes, each team was burning the nets. The Tigers controlled both boards and literally ran the Aggies off the court.

In the second quarter, Willie Jones and Ray Pettiford took the lead as they scored six points each and increased the total to 20 points, 35-15. The Aggies opened and scored 11 for a 43-33 lead at the end of the second period.

By Robert Brooks

In the only game of the Intramural Basketball tournament, the Aggies whalloped the Tigers 77-33.

In the first quarter the Tiger of Tigers, whose team is mainly composed of football players, raced to a 18-4 lead behind the hot hands of John Hampton and Jerald Holland. Hampton hit 10 and Holland hit the nets for six points over the smaller Laker team. The Tigers controlled both boards and literally ran the Lakers off the court.

In the second quarter, Willie Jones and Ray Pettiford took the lead as they scored six points each and increased the total to 20 points, 35-15. The Aggies opened and scored 11 for a 43-33 lead at the end of the second period.

The Lakers attempted 2,010 field goals and hit on only 825 for 41.0 per cent. A&T's opponents made 826 shots and attempted only 1,870 field goals for a 44.1 per cent.
Handicap No Problem

Johnson Scores In MEAC

Not many people thought Ron Johnson would be around to help A&T in the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference Tournament held last weekend in Baltimore. Md.

But the brave 6-8 sophomore forward, ailing from a fractured elbow sustained during the Aggies' final regular season contest at North Carolina Central University, sat restlessly through A&T's opening round victory over the same team.

In the second round, the all-stater from Chester, Pa., put on his uniform and nearly led the Aggies to an upset heavily favored Morgan State College.

The homestanding Bears won 65-63, but Johnson proved he could play with pain as he gradually lifted his arm for shots and rebounds. With the Aggies trailing by seven, Johnson's entrance into the game prompted the Carolinians to give Morgan fits.

"He really was tough, the kind of player I like," said Coach Warren Reynolds. "I didn't know whether I should allow him to go in realizing that he might further damage the arm. But Ron told me he just had to play."

"He's the type of youngster who can lead and inspire a ball club."

The wrestling team placed first in the NAIA District 26, instead of fourth as was reported.

Johnson goes to the net for two.

Let's just say we’re talent scouts.

We're looking for talent to fly Navy. Men who are leaders, like LTJG Joe Mason of Champaign, Illinois. He's a Naval Flight Officer and he's- got what it takes. The drive, the ability and the determination.

The Navy's Aviation Program is a solid opportunity for a college graduate to launch a career in aviation as either a Naval Aviator or Naval Flight Officer. Both are rugged and demanding, but worth it.

As a Naval Flight Officer (NFO), you and the pilot are a team in the aircraft. You'll be trained in navigation, aviation electronics, and meteorology...just to name a few.

As a Naval Aviator, you are the pilot. This also requires vigorous military training, academic and physical conditioning. Your energies will be channeled towards flying jets, multi-engine aircraft or helicopters. In either case, your function is vital to the management of men and aircraft. That's for real. So is the pay, the great lifestyle and the travel.

Mail this coupon for details on our aviation programs. Or see your local recruiter.

The opportunity is for real...and so are we. NAVY
