SGA Meeting Held To Discuss Immediate Issues

By Mary Crops

The second SGA student body meeting was held Wednesday evening in Harmon Auditorium. The turnout was light.

Bennie Glover, president of the SGA, opened the meeting by introducing the freshman class officers.

John Kerns and Ronald Penny introduced a bill to update the constitution of the university in regard to student courts. Kerns stated that there was an excessive number of courts on campus. He proposed to reduce the number of courts from seven to three.

These three courts would be the Student Judiciary Council, the University Tribunal, and the Student-Faculty Appellate Board.

Fuel Conservation Stressed

Due to pressures from environmentalists, A&T's Power Plant underwent a conversion from coal to oil last year. Merrill Watson, supervisor of the plant, stated that recently added equipment will expand its use of oil.

Watson explained that the power plant could be a major source of greenhouse warming. He argued that citizens should do their part to conserve oil and natural gas by being more efficient in their usage.

The building is a very old building which was built when there were only about three buildings on campus. "Even though Dudley's heating system has been renovated several times, this building was not designed for modern-day controls and it is very hard to quietize heat in that building."

The students were asked to be more efficient in their usage of oil and gas. Watson emphasized the importance of conserving resources for future generations.

16 Students Receive Transportation Grants

The Transportation Institute of North Carolina A&T State University announced today that grants have been awarded to sixteen students totaling $5,000.

The students are assigned as research assistants to faculty members in order to conduct research on transportation projects. The students will work a minimum of ten hours per week with faculty members in charge of the projects. In addition to the training and education the research assistants will receive, they will also be able to participate in many of the Institute's activities including field trips, seminars and conferences, as well as provide them with the background for employment opportunities with mass transit operators, transportation consultants and others in the transportation sector.

Enrollment Increases In Graduate School

Kevin Webb

One would think that the problems of increased out-of-state tuition and the energy crisis would have some effect on the enrollment in the Graduate School. But this is not the case. Of 2,069 students who enrolled, 1,030 enrolled for the spring semester, 784 for the summer semester; and 600, for the fall semester. This is a net gain of 524 students for last year.

Elaborating on the reasons for the increase, Webb said that the diversity of graduate programs continues to grow and attract more students. The Department of Home Economics has revised its food and nutrition major to include a new emphasis on dietetics.

The discussion moved on to Homecoming. Glover outlined the events of the week as follows: Monday - free movie; Tuesday and Thursday night - convocation; Wednesday - song festival; Thursday - Coronation of the Student-Faculty Appellate Board. And the words were "Bon-chance," meaning, "good luck.

Retirement Of Dean Regrettet

By Patricia Everett

After the ceremony, Arthur Headen, better known as "Country," was surrounded by "Country" and the Student Union Ballroom. The president then announced that the budget of the SGA was increased to $90,000, making the total budget $92,000.

According to Glover, this amount was still $19,000 short of the budget due to pressures from campus. The president said that his own problem was how much they enjoyed knowing him or that they really didn't want him to retire.

Like awkward little boys dressed in men's Sunday's best, they innocently watched the retiring man officially detach himself from the anchor of their Scott Hall lives. And the variously shaded brown, young bodies towered over and around "Country" with their eyes admiringly followed all of his movements.

Finally, getting a chance to ask questions, "Country" said he was retiring for reasons concerning his health. "I don't want to go back in time."

"I want to come back all the time." asked if there was anything he wanted to say to President Glover, "May God Bless America and all the A&T family. "Oh," he exclaimed, "please put those two words in for me.

The words were "Bon-chance," meaning, "good luck.

Before leaving the Ballroom, "Country" was seen with his pocket knife playfully dashing after one of his young friends.

"Ever though Dudley's heating system has been renovated several times, this building was not designed for modern-day controls and it is very hard to quietize heat in that building."

"If I do feel, at the present rate of growth and the present rate of consumption, all Americans must take definite steps toward conserving our fuel or we will have exhausted all our supplies," Watson said.

"I don't want to go back in time."

"I want to come back all the time."

"I'll be coming back all the time." asked if there was anything he wanted to say to President Glover, "May God Bless America and all the A&T family. "Oh," he exclaimed, "please put those two words in for me.

grants from the Urban Transportation Administration of the U.S. Department of Transportation. There is a national commitment to train and educate more students for careers in transportation, and we are proud that A&T has been expanding its transportation programs," said Blair. Arthur Saltzman, director of the Transportation Institute, said the institute believes in having students involved at each level of research and training. This involvement affords the students the opportunity to become familiar with the field of transportation while receiving financial aid, which motivates the students to choose a career in transportation," he said.

Graduate School Received $25,000 In Financial Aid

Economics resurrected the courses in Rural sociology.

The Graduate School has also expanded to two off-campus centers in Hamlet and Fayetteville. In terms of student financial aid last year, this school obtained $12,005 and this year, $25,000. This is a total gain of $13,095.

The Graduate School will be expanding even more in the future as students will be able to obtain a masters degree in English with an emphasis on African Literature. It will introduce in the future a six-year program which is called advanced certification in education which will help students to move toward a doctoral degree. It will also introduce this advanced certification for other majors. Other schools are holding the line because of course, accreditation for the advanced certification.

English Department Plans London Cultural Study Tour

The Humanities Section of the English Department is planning an in-depth Cultural Study Tour of London, England, from March 8-17, 1975. Much time will be spent studying the African art housed in the British National Gallery and the British Museum.

Tours will be made to the University of Oxford, the University of Oxford, and to many other points of cultural interest.

The Study Tour is open to the entire University Community, but it is especially planned for students and teachers interested in the Humanities. Please watch for further announcements regarding the cost per person.

The M.W. Kellogg Company.

The M.W. Kellogg Company is looking for out-of-the-ordinary engineers who can assume positions of responsibility fast. Kellogg is working around the clock on major energy conversion projects that are designed to head off growing shortages of fertilizer and fuel around the world. We're continuing to broaden our worldwide services to the petroleum and petrochemical industries, and this growth has created some exciting opportunities for engineers.

As one of the world's leading engineering and construction companies, Kellogg provides fully integrated design, engineering, procurement, construction and support services to our clients throughout the world. This work is complex and demanding and requires people who can apply new ideas to existing technology in the areas of petroleum refining, ammonia and fertilizer processing, petrochemical manufacturing, LNG facilities and pollution control and abatement.

The people we are seeking are definitely above average. So the people we select can expect to receive above average compensation, in terms of salary and benefits as well as the personal reward that comes from being a leader in one's chosen profession.

Campus Interviews

October 9, 1974
Alpha Phi Alpha recently became the first Black fraternity to be accepted into State's Inter Fraternity Council (IFC), and one of the first Black fraternities to be accepted into the organization nationally.

"This is the first time the IFC has accepted a Black frat into its ranks. This is also a big step in race relations at N.C. State. Alpha Phi Alpha deserves a lot of credit for taking the step to join the IFC," said Wayne Lowder, IFC president.

"I think that the primary interest of Alpha Phi Alpha was in the intramural sports program. They also expressed interest in the blood drive and the Big Brother program, with major interest in the blood drive, and inter-fraternity social life such as concerts."

Al Pannell, president of Alpha Phi Alpha, said the benefits between the IFC and Alpha Phi Alpha will be mutual. "This will be of mutual benefit for both groups," said Pannell. "It will mean a new direction for fraternity life, for this is a predominantly Black Fraternity on a predominantly white campus. We hope to exchange ideas that will transcend the IFC or the campus."

"The ideals of Alpha Phi Alpha are set in working in the community, and we hope to steer the IFC in this direction. There are also a large number of people in our frat who are involved in campus activities, such as the student government and committees, and we believe we can help the IFC in this area."

Pannell added that Alpha Phi Alpha is not interested in any specific area of the IFC, but all of it in general.

Mike Wood, vice-president of Alpha Phi Alpha, went into more detail on Alpha's interest in the IFC.

"The IFC has explored some areas we have not gotten into yet, such as the blood drive. We hope to get into these areas through the IFC. This will also be a learning experience for Alpha Phi Alpha. Before we saw everything on one side, now our view is increased, and we can see issues from all sides," Wood commented.

Stevenson Wins In Run-Off

By Robert 3a

Donovan Stevenson was elected president of the freshman class September 24 in a run-off with Curtis Askew. Askew had received 66 votes and Stevenson, 63 in an election September 12.

Stevenson said, of the election, "I was disappointed at the announcement of the run-off, but I was surprised at the victory."

Stevenson had incorrectly been announced as the freshman presidential winner because of a miscalculation by the election committee.

Stevenson said that preparation for homecoming and unification of the freshman class are his first projects. His major goal is to gain recognition for freshmen not as just new students but as major contributors to campus affairs.

A class meeting will be held, and suggestions will be accepted for projects to be done during the school year. Stevenson said, "If any student has problems whether in personal or campus affairs, my staff and I will be willing to be of assistance."

Stevenson expressed optimism and determination about the freshman class.
What Is In A Name?

Buildings should have some personality; that is, they should be named for someone who has contributed something to the development of the organization or the institution within.

Traditionally, buildings have been named for the dead. But why? The answer usually given is that the dead cannot embarrass or disgrace an institution. The living may.

Age also plays a dominant factor in the approval of a name. For example, Gibbs Hall was named for the now President Emeritus, Warmoth T. Gibbs. "New" Hall was named for Dr. W. Barnes, an alumnus and retired dentist.

Buildings on campus are to be named soon and we hope that careful thought will be given to the selections.

Our main concern, however, is the name that will be assigned to the building that houses The Register.

Staffs, over the years, have made unique contributions. For example, though The Register had been published intermittently prior to 1931, the records show that Ellis Corbett and staff in 1931 published more frequently than any in the past.

Albert Rozier and Tommy Gaddie made outstanding contributions.

Stanley Johnson gave us the first once-a-week publication.

Hillard Hines, with his high hopes, gave us the I. B. M. Composer unit which enabled Janice Smith to publish twice weekly. Out of all of these staffers, there is yet another one which has been here to advise and to guide The Register from a monthly to a twice weekly weekly. This person has personality and over the years as faculty advisor to The Register has contributed something to the development of this organization as well as this institution.

All leading editorial are written by the editor of THE A&T REGISTER. Such editorials will not necessarily carry a byline and will not reflect the opinions of the University or the entire staff.

Published twice weekly during the school year by students of A&T State University.

To receive the Register, please send $7.50 to THE A&T REGISTER, Box E-25, Greensboro, North Carolina 27411, to cover mailing and handling cost.

The Agenda of the most recent SGA meeting neglected one major matter, the omission of which is an insult to the student body. This matter is the long-range plans currently being drawn up by the university concerning the role of the university in the University of North Carolina system and its role in the education of people in the state, nation, and world.

Instead, Mr. Glover and the SGA chose to dwell upon such things as plans for homecoming, naming of buildings, introduction of freshman officers, among other trivia.

The only important matter discussed was the student courts. Why should long-range plans for the university be discussed above plans for homecoming? The obvious answer is that homecomings occur once a year and go just as often. These events do not affect us nearly as much as higher education. This should be our number one priority item because we should have a vote in the role our university plays in higher education. We should have some say because after we graduate, we will support the university as alumni.

It is granted that the administration does not seek actively to obtain student input. It is also granted that any administration that not only does not seek student input, but also cuts budgetary requests of some student representatives on the basis that some other president or representative proved to be incompetent is unfair. Granted that the SGA has to bargain for budget money, this does not relieve the SGA from bringing vital matters before the student body.

There is a kind of leader who appears to do an excellent job because nobody ever bothers to ask if there is, in fact, a job being done. There is also a kind of leader who does a sorry job and finds excuses for doing a bad job.

What kind of excuse does Mr. Glover have for failing to perform one of his duties in getting vital information before the student body?

The writer would like to see this before the student body. Mr. Glover would remedy this situation by calling a meeting to obtain some student body input. Or does he think it is much too complex for people like us to deal with?
For All You Fat Girls

By Angela Founville

I was walking across campus when all of a sudden a group of girls shouted, "What's happening FAT MAMMA!!!"

Had you heard the laughter, you would have thought the whole world was laughing. But let's be realists: most of the world was laughing at fat people. I want to know why.

Why are you laughing at the fat girl that just walked by? I'm talking to you.

Nine out of ten people can only reply by saying, "I really don't know she's just fat." Yet you really don't know, so I'm going to tell you. I'm going to try to help you overcome your fear of the fat girl you just finished laughing at. I'm going to tell you that, to several heavy but beautiful people, I found that they need losing just like anyone else does. Yet most men are too conceited or afraid to talk to a fat person because they feel their friends are going to laugh. If any of you guys are in this situation, tell your friends to HELL with laughing, it's time to go to work!!!

There are plenty of small girls on this campus and all of them are not shaped like the figure eight. If men would take time to look at the mind of an individual rather than their physical features, they probably would be in love with someone heavy today. I even heard a guy comment, "Men, the only way I would talk to a fat woman is that all of the skinny ones would start disappearing. MEN could be waiting for a man to pay some attention to her. Yet, I feel that, so, if it is proven true, I could have it patented. I am a heavy woman, so men I can't love; I want to love you with these pointers in mind:

(1) If you have decided you (2) If you can't dig a fat correct, I would love to know;
(3) So, if it is proven true, I could have it patented. I am a heavy woman, so men I can't love; I want to love you with these pointers in mind:

The Forties Look To Add Flavor To A&T Coronation

Thursday, October 3, the queen's meet with Michelle Burney, Miss A&T, to receive final instructions for coronation.

Today Michelle will submit the theme: "Once In A Life Time The Good Times" to the committee for approval. Michelle is having this theme and her coronation on the 40's look. The queens were instructed to stay away from the sun, to not wear any form of African styles. The general attire for coronation this year will be the mid or knee length 40's look dress, straight hair covered with a scarf or scarf and hat combination. Flowers will be worn in the hat or anywhere about the person. Dress for the escorts will be pin-striped suits or buggy pant suits. They will be wearing flowers in the lapel and big hats.

In order for their names to be printed in the Coronation Program, all organizational queens are asked to submit their names to the SGA Office by Monday, October 8. The Office is located in room 37F of the Student Union.
Artist Maintains His Popularity With The Fans

With the constant day-to-day surge of new talent upon O.C.'s turf, it's difficult for an established artist to maintain his popularity without a continuous flow of hit records. Without that hit, an artist may find a way to remain in the limelight while the search goes on for that magic tune.

O.C. Smith has kept his name in neon with countless television appearances throughout the United States and Europe. His fans have always kept a warm spot in their hearts for him, because he's not the type of entertainer one listens to for him, because he's not the type of entertainer one listens to for his looks, but for his music.

If you've been waiting for O.C.'s next smash, it's upon us: his single "La La Peace" has entered the charts and his fans are smiling again. The Louisiana born, Los Angeles raised, performer, first garnered national acclaim with "The Son Of Hickory Holler's Tramp," which sold close to a million copies and was later followed by the smash "Little Green Apples." His Columbia albums include "The Dynamic O.C. Smith," "Hickory Holler Revisited," and "For Once In My Life."

O.C. continues to play top night clubs such as the West Side Room at the Century Plaza in Los Angeles, the Embassy in Toronto, Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, and The Sherman House in Chicago. His popularity and place in contemporary music has never waned. Despite everything he's accomplished thus far, the best of O.C. Smith is yet to be heard.

Fashion Show Comes To Greensboro

By Warren K. Williams

The famed Ebony Fashion Show with all of its beauty and splendor will make one of its stops in its eighty-city tour in Greensboro, on Oct. 17 at War Memorial Auditorium. Called "The Big Whirl of Fashion" by Ebony, this year's all-Black Show features the soft-easy look of loose-flying capes over full-swinging coats, below-the-knee skirts cut on the bias and roomy cardigans with their own scarves for the fall and winter seasons.

The flamboyant Ebony Fashion Fair is the most prestigious social event of the season in easy communities and a virtual cornucopia for charity.

Since its beginning in 1957 Ebony has donated more than two million to Black Charities. As always, along with high fashion, the girls—some of America's most beautiful Black Women will be wearing the latest fashions from Paris.

This is a one-time experience and a must for All Fashion Conscience Argent. Student tickets are three dollars and can be obtained at the door, or through Mrs. Nan Bowling at the Cosmos Club from 12 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

A Real Thrill

Majorettes Enjoy Performing

By Coker A. Stewart

Those real fine moves in those short skirts. And the 'beau' boys in the stands and also out of their stitches, this describes the scintillating show the majorettes of A&T perform at every Aggie pigskin halftime.

Although their performance is limited, much effort and time is put into practices for a game. Captain Donna Cannon a senior from St. Petersburg, Florida, said, "We practice two to five hours six days a week and sometimes seven. As captain, it is my responsibility to see everyone is knowledgeable of the routines and discipline. I enjoy being a majorette, performing before people watching my talent." Other majorettes are Carolyn Mintz, junior, Greensboro; a former Pantherette at Dudley, who enjoys being a majorette and also enjoys sports.

Barbara Seashore a senior from New Haven, Connecticut, said, "I have been a majorette since junior high school and I like to socialize with anything involving the diligence performing." Jean Brown, senior, Rocky Mount, stated, "I like being a majorette; it provides me the opportunity to perform and entertain before people."

Gary Whiteside, senior, Greensboro, said, "Being a majorette is fun and exciting. I like travel and there's something new always to perform before 'spectators.'"

Faye Howard, senior business education, major, Henderson, stated, "I really believe I was born with a silver baton in my hand. As a Majorette there is never a dull moment, it's really exciting."

In conclusion, one must concur that the halftime show of the A&T Majorettes provides a definite thrill. Proof of this: All of the Aggie Dudes in the stands echoing one phrase when the majorettes take the field at halftime, "SKIN TIGHT!"
We challenge you to taste and compare!

Our standing challenge: taste and compare the good old-time flavor of Pabst with any other beer. Once you taste Blue Ribbon quality, you'll never go back to the beer you were drinking. Take our challenge. We know Blue Ribbon will come out the winner, every time.

Pabst. Since 1844. The quality has always come through.
