Fee Increases

Marshall Alerts Students

By Rosie A. Stevens

Students are being alerted to the possibility of an increase in fees because of economic conditions necessitating such increases. These alerts are being sent out by Dr. Jesse E. Marshall, vice chancellor for Student Affairs.

According to Marshall, "signals in the economy" make an increase "inevitable, but not impossible." He stated that fees would not be increased to a point that students would not be able to meet them.

On the matter of how much the increase would be, Marshall could not give a definite figure. What the figure will be and when it will occur were undecided at the time of this interview. Marshall predicted that student reaction would be one of "concern" because of current problems experienced by students in registering.

He advised students to apply immediately for financial aid and to supply all necessary information for the processing of this application.

Stressing this point, he went on to note that students have a primary responsibility in applying for aid to "literally follow instructions."

Financial aid and fee increases were among matters discussed in informal "chats" with students in residence halls by the vice chancellor this week.

Marshall stated, in discussing these chats, that it was his desire to learn the "pressing concerns of students," and to communicate his concerns to the student body.

He expressed concern about a "breakdown in communications", later rephrasing his statement as concern to "improve communications" between his office and students. "I'd like to do this once a month, but certainly again before the end of the semester."

High Rise Hall, along with other residence halls, received Marshall as a guest, along with Mrs. Lucille Piggott, dean of students for organizations.

idea about what to do to get a job, especially at the level of a bachelor's degree;

Elaborating further, Bennett said that career education mixes the academic program with career information. A student would be supplied with certain facts concerning jobs in his field.

If such a program were to be established at A&T, a center for career education would also be established. This would be a three-part arrangement which would include a teaching-orientation program, a continuing series of seminars with upper class students organized according to career information needed by declared majors and a center containing career education materials and information.

Natural Gas Shortage Will Get Worse Soon.

AP-Officials of the Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Corporation told the South Carolina Public Service Commission today that natural gas supplies may be reduced further in the near future.

"It's going to get worse before it gets better," said Francis J. Quinn, Transco's senior vice president of rates and marketing.

Quinn said the company's supplies began to fall off in 1972 because natural gas could be bought only on short-term contracts. He projected that supplies will reach the high levels of 1970 by 1980.

"It's going to take a lot of patience on your part and it's going to cost a lot of dollars," Quinn said. "We are not holding back any gas supplies."

Lawrence H. Gall, vice president and general counsel for Transco, said the company is having difficulty buying supplies from foreign suppliers because of the lengthy hearings and other requirements of the Federal Power Commission.

In addition to public hearings, Gall said, environmental impact statements also cause problems because of the time required to prepare them.

Another Transco official said all of the company's customers are getting a 10 per cent restoration of the amount of natural gas that originally was announced would be curtailed as of Dec. 22.

"This is not just in North Carolina" as had been reported by some news media "but in all states" served by Transco, said C. H. Mullendore, vice president of marketing.

He named the cities of Laurens and Greenwood in South Carolina as among those which would get the 10 per cent benefit.

Physical Science Building To Go Under Construction

By Robert 3x

"A&T University can expect a new physical science building to be constructed where the old tennis courts were," said Gerard E. Gray, the physical plant director.

A building to house the programs of the departments of Physics, Physical Science, and Mathematics will be constructed. This stated Gray would complete the quadrangle formed by the Memorial Student Union, Crosby Hall, Merrick Hall, and Barnes Hall.

The parking areas immediately east of Cooper and Price halls will be retained. The remainder of the area will be further developed as landscaped open space, he stated.

Gray further stated the plans for the physical science building are being completed by the architect and construction is expected to begin later this year.

Black Is Named Outstanding Man

Richard E. Barber was recently named One of the Ten Outstanding Young Men of America for 1975 by the United States Jaycees; this is a high and coveted award. Some past recipients include the late John F. Kennedy, Carl Rowan, Nelson Rockefeller, Dr. Leon Sullivan, Reverend Jesse Jackson, and Chancellor Wesley Pasvar of the University of Pittsburgh.

The Pittsburgh Jaycees Board of Directors, after a local screening and selection process throughout the Pittsburgh Metropolitan area, nominated

Barber for the national competition last August. In 1970, the Pittsburgh Jaycees honored him as the Outstanding Young Man for Pittsburgh for his outstanding abilities, accomplishments, contributions, and tireless efforts to civic and community activities.

Gary Rosensteel of the Pittsburgh Jaycees, in completing the nomination forms for the national competition wrote that, "Richard Earl Barber is living proof that the "American Dream" can still become a viable reality for those with the intestinal fortitude to pursue it.

If the racial prejudices still lingering in our country are to be eradicated, and we are to be a nation of one people rather than a silent majority and vocal, militant minorities, it will be accomplished through people such as Dick Barber. He has risen from the humblest of beginning to become not just a leader of the Black community, but an important and influential leader of the entire community.

"Dick is a well respected community leader not because he is a swift wide-receiver or a home-run slugger, but because he is intelligent, articulate, and has a driving ambition to succeed in whatever he undertakes. He is a shining example to all minorities that success is possible in all fields for all people. Through his example and work, the myth of sports and entertainment being the only avenues of betterment for minorities is actively being dispelled.

"I speak not only for myself and the Pittsburgh Jaycees, but for a large and diverse segment of our community in saying, 'Dick Barber is an exceptional individual, whom we are honored to know and justifiably proud that he has chosen to bestow his talent and ability on the Pittsburgh area. Dick is truly an outstanding young man of this, or any other year."

Barber, a native of Trenton, relocated to Pittsburgh in June, 1967. He is a graduate of A&T State University with a Bachelor of Science degree in Physics, a Master's degree in Management from the University of Southern California, and has done additional graduate work at the University of Pittsburgh in Business Administration and Public and International Affairs. He is President of Urban Talent Development Corporation and Chairman of the Board of New World National Bank, which will open in downtown Pittsburgh in the near future.

In spite of a busy and demanding schedule, he still finds time to be a devoted husband to his wife Betty, and a father to his children, Victoria Lynette, 10, and Richard, Jr., 5. His wife Betty is an assistant professor of nursing at the University of Pittsburgh. Barber's parents are Mr. & Mrs. John Barter of Trenton, North Carolina.

Alcohol Abuse Is A Problem

By Benjamin Forbes

The use and abuse of alcohol are one of the most serious problems facing old as well as young people today.

The subject of the abuse of alcohol was brought up at the Annual Associated Collegiate Press Conference in Hollywood, Florida. At that conference, it was announced that a college journalism writing competition on the uses and abuses of alcohol would be held.

Students and faculty advisers attending the conference said that alcohol was the number one drug problem on college campuses today. They felt that this was a problem worth writing about.

To get students interested in writing articles on alcohol and its abuse, the National Council on Alcoholism will give three $500 awards and six expense-paid trips to Washington, D.C., to the student writing the best essay. The six best entries will receive achievement award plaques with each winner's newspaper adviser and school newspaper receiving certificates of recognition.

The contest is also co-sponsored by the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism. These two organizations are trying to promote campus dialogue on the issue of alcohol and its abuse.

Any student wishing to participate in the essay competition is asked to come to the A & T Register Office and pick up entry forms and background material. Students may also pick up reference material from the local libraries or write to: National Clearinghouse on Alcohol Information, Dept. I-CM2, Box 2345 Rockville, Md. 20852.

Students are urged to write.

Skilled Nursing Facilities Will Meet New Standards

HEW secretary Caspar W. Weinberger recently approved final regulations under which skilled nursing facilities will have to meet additional federal standards, including a "Patient's Bill of Rights," to participate in Medicaid and Medicare.

The added conditions of participation, which become effective 60 days following their publication in today's Federal Register, also stipulate that the skilled nursing facility must have a medical director, registered nurse service 7 days a week, and a discharge planning program. Other provisions clarify or expand upon existing conditions of participation which were approved on January 17, 1974, the secretary said.

The new regulations require skilled nursing facilities to establish policies to ensure that certain rights are afforded to patients. "This requirement gives implicit recognition to the fact that the patient's health and responsiveness to treatment are frequently linked to the right to be treated with dignity, to be involved in making decisions about himself, and maintain contact with the community," the Secretary said. Among the patient's rights specified in the final regulations is that a married patient is insured privacy for visits by a spouse to the nursing facility. If both are patients, they are permitted to share a room unless this is contraindicated by a physician. The regulations also require that a facility's procedures regarding patient's rights are to be made known to the public as well as to patients and guardians, Secretary Weinberger said.

To participate in Medicare and Medicaid a skilled nursing facility would have to employ a medical director to coordinate medical care given to patients and to monitor the health status of the facility's employees. The regulations also permit medical direction to be provided through a group of physicians, a local medical society, or other similar arrangements. In areas with a shortage of physicians, this condition of participation could be waived, subject to reevaluation at each survey. The facility will have 12 full months after the first survey under this new requirement in which to comply.

An approved nursing home must employ a registered nurse at least on the day tour of duty 7 days a week. This requirement can be waived for facilities in rural areas where there is a shortage of skilled nursing facility services.

A skilled nursing facility will be required to furnish a coordinated discharge planning program to ensure that each patient has the care he needs on a continuing basis during his stay, and referral for treatment after his discharge from the facility.

Richard Blakeley

Richard H. Blakeley, one of the nation's top landscape architects, will join the staff of A&T for a series of four new courses in environmental planning and natural resources management.

The courses to be offered by the Department of Agriculture and the Continuing Education Center are environmental perception and design determinants qualitative analysis in landscape planning, land-use planning and management, and factors of physical design.

A native of Ridley Park, Pa., Blakeley holds degrees from Louisiana State University and the Harvard University School of Design. He is currently serving as an associate professor of landscape architecture for the Department of Landscape Architecture at the University of Wisconsin.

He has taught at the University of Texas, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Oregon State University and the University of Georgia.

Blakeley is widely known for his assistance in designing the gigantic domed stadium complex built by the city of New Orleans and for the proposed New Orleans airport complex and the Louisiana Capitol complex to be completed by the year 2000.

He also assisted in the planning of the Montego Bay Hospital in Jamaica, the Boston Children's Hospital and the University of Baghdad.

Blakeley has published a number of publications in the field of urban design and he is a member of the American Society of Landscape Architects.

Seize The Time For Financial Aid

Now is the time to apply for student aid programs so that you may be one of the first to receive aid and not one of the many who will not receive any aid.

This is the information that was given you two weeks ago and not one person has tried to apply.

The Black student at this point in time, is in a most frustrating state. The nations economic forecast is not good and the job market is poor. We also have cut back in student aid programs.

And now the student body must face a tuition and fee increase. This is a must; it has been five years since the universities have had a major increase in tuition. The money is now needed in order that the university may meet the needs of all the students. But what we, the students, must understand is that this money is needed by the university; and, if tuition doesn't increase this year, it will come in one lump increase within the next two or three years.

Now is the time for the student body and the administration to "develop communication."

The faculty also should find out 'what's going on', because, if there are no students, there is no need for the faculty; if there are no faculty and students, there is no need for this university.

Colston Sets The Record Straight

Editor's Note: The following letter was submitted to the Fayetteville Observer.

Dear Mr. Clay:

We here at A&T State University are completely dismayed and baffled at the substance and conclusions of your editorial of Saturday, December 21, 1974, titled, "A&T Court Maneuver Could Harm System".

Since the premise upon which you based the editorial is completely wrong, then it would follow that your conclusions are wrong.

But let me take this opportunity to set the record and the Fayetteville Observer straight.

1. A&T State University is not a party to and is no way involved in the current suit in the Federal Courts as it relates to the desegregation of higher education in North Carolina, and as it has been amended to include an injunction against placing the School of Veterinary Medicine at North Carolina State University in Raleigh. The complainants and parties in this suit have no official connection with A&T State University whatsoever. The suit is independent of A&T State University and it includes all of the public universities in the state.

2. The assumption that North Carolina State University at Raleigh would automatically be a better site for the facility in question is fallacious, and is based on the legacy of separate but equal. The educational programs here at North Carolina A&T have the same regional and national accreditation as those at State in Raleigh. While State has certainly received the lions' share of state appropriations over the years to develop its program, our alternative here at A&T State University has been to go to the private foundations and the corporate community with a view to moving our programs from mediocrity to the excellence which we enjoy today. Forty of the largest corporations in the world are involved with us in a formal "Cluster" from which we receive thousands of dollars in equipment, grants, and visiting professors. This support and generosity have enabled us not only to maintain a high level of quality, but to have all of our programs nationally accredited with the exception of the School of Business and Economics. We have a restricted grant of a $195,000 from a large philanthropic foundation for the purpose of gaining the national accreditation of our School of Business and Economics. This means that we have quietly, effectively and expeditiously raised our educational program to national competitiveness with very minimal state support. The consultants' report measured the breadth of the programs available at the two schools rather than comparing the quality of their programs.

3. There have been very few changes in our budget in terms of academic development under the umbrella of the state/university system. The amounts of change are public record. The figures can be had through the offices of the Board of Governors and the legislature. The A&T University Foundation, Inc. has been the major single factor in the development of this University from mediocrity to excellence. The Foundation channels money, equipment, and personnel into the University's academic programs.

4. It is dangerous and presumptuous to speculate about what the court will do. However, if past experience means anything, if the Civil Rights Act of 1964 means anything, and if the 1954 Supreme Court decision means anything, then there is a probability that the State of North Carolina, in regard to its attitude and treatment of predominantly Black public universities, will be weighed in the balance and found wanting. There is simply no evidence to document your assertion that reasonable and practical steps have been taken through a catch-up program of spending to begin righting the wrong.

5. The issue here is really not the School of Veterinary Medicine and where it should be. The issue is whether or not the State of North Carolina will continue an elitist philosophy of placing prestigious programs on one or two campuses or whether or not they will in fact develop a state wide system of higher education for which all citizens of North Carolina can be proud. The challenge to the system is not A&T State University and its quest for programs which would serve the North Carolina community and the country at large, but rather whether the Board of Governors and the state legislature will become creative and aggressive in eliminating the continuing disparities in the system. It seems unlikely that the federal courts will order the State of North Carolina to do anything except that, if tax money is being spent, it be spent with equity and parity.

I am attaching a copy of a letter that I sent to prominent businessmen, public officials, friends, and supporters of A&T State University at the time the School of Veterinary Medicine became an issue with regard to

More Problems Arise

By Rosie A. Stevens

A careful examination of fee increases do not reveal those increases as timely at all. Fees should have increased earlier, and more gradually, to allow the student body time to adjust to the increasing cost. Given the periodic fluctuations in the economy, along with the pressing need for such increases earlier, it seems poor fiscal policy to enact a grin-and-bear-it necessity in the middle of a severe recession. At the same time, it must be remembered that it is a grin-and-bear-it necessity. The cost of repairing Scott Hall is more now, with recessionary inflation but will go even higher, with more prosperous years and the plentiful supply of money these years will bring. So will the cost of furniture for High Rise and Senior Halls, those buildings, which with a thirteen percent increase in the cost of furniture, should have been furnished long ago with a cost that would now be partially liquidated.

One may be tempted to ask why such needs went so long neglected. What monstrous madness munched the minds of mortal men to blind them? At the same time, one looks at the grim realities confronting us and shifts the gears. It is terrible to think of the deprivation existing in the past due to "lack of"-physical conditions, psychological comfort, communications, etc. However, it is a blessed relief to note that some things, at least, are beginning to improve. As others rephrase, it is a matter of changing from "lack of" to "improving" communications, physical conditions, etc.

It is blessed indeed to note that these improvements represent the beginnings of the expanded awareness of some administrators, and increased sensitivities on their part to the problems faced by students as they move from day to day.

Now that awareness is expanded, the problem remains to do some thing positive to improve the situation, make a firm decision to raise fees so that the student body will benefit.

where it should be located. In addition, I am sending to you our student paper which carries a reprint of an article of an interview by Bob Burchette of the Greensboro Daily News which took place in my office. It will be my hope that this information would go a little way towards enlightening you and the members of the staff of the Fayetteville Observer.

I sincerely regret that only two white dailys in the State of North Carolina have bothered to contact us for information on not only this question, but other vital questions pertaining to problems and prospects in higher education. In the final analysis, the record will show that either school, A&T or N.C. State at Raleigh, could have implemented and facilitated to the satisfaction of the people of North Carolina the fine School of Veterinary Medicine. But the record will also show that the manner in which this situation was handled by the Board of Governors and subsequently by much of the white press of the State of North Carolina that the blame for this confused and deplorable situation will rest squarely where it belongs.

The predominantly Black institutions were segregated by law, not by choice. What has almost become a reality in North Carolina and many other southern states is that the victims of segregation are being punished for the crimes and transgressions perpetrated by others.

A unitary system of higher education is a mockery unless it insures that predominantly Black universities become equal partners and nothing less with the others in the system. I believe, Sir, that you owe us an apology and I believe that you will be gracious enough to do so.

Sincerely,

Marshall H. Colston, Vice Chancellor for Development and University Relations

Many Don't Like Idea Of Eating The Same Food

By Robert 3X

Last semester and this semester a new weekend eating policy has been instituted at the dining hall, whereby two meals can be eaten between the hours of 12:00 and 5:00.

In order to find out how the students felt about the change, this reporter conducted a survey.

Roosevelt O'Neal, a junior, said, "I like the present system because it's much more flexible than the past system. The only thing I don't like is that they don't change the menu."

Sandy Garrett thought that the new hours were inconvenient. Also she did not like the idea of the same meal being served twice.

Kenny Rogers said, "It's all right. It doesn't conflict because you don't have any classes."

Regina Austin, a freshman, felt that the hours should be the same as they are during the week. "You have to eat the same thing twice," she said.

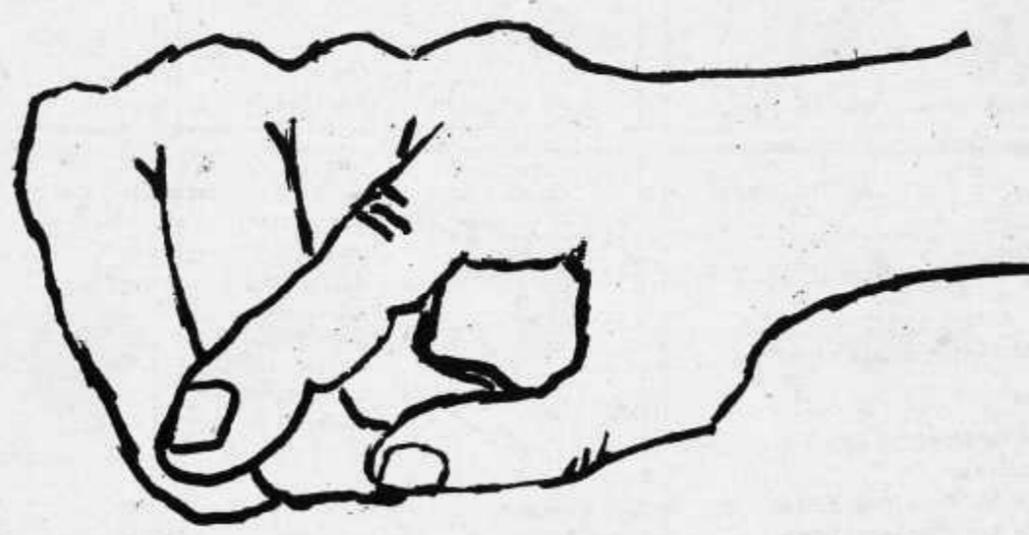

Vida Gillespie, a freshman, was of the opinion that the dining hall should be open later than 5:00.

Michael Harrington felt that the regular schedule is more convenient than the new one.

WEAL Radio Gil Harris Covers A&T Sports

By Blannie E. Bowen

How often have you heard, "This is Gil Harris, WEAL Sports," or "Ron Pinckney is next with Mutual Black Network Sports?"

If you are an Aggie sports fan, these lines are heard daily when you listen to sports programs over radio station WEAL.

Gil Harris is sports director for WEAL and he says no other station "will do what we do for A&T's athletes and coaches."

By this statement, Harris explained that WEAL tries to cover all of A&T's sports from football to wrestling. He says no other Greensboro station caters to the Black schools.

The Winston-Salem State University graduate said A&T needs to improve its coverage through radio as well as television. He is working through both of these media for A&T.

Harris joins Spencer Gwynn and Mel Swann each Saturday in the fall to broadcast Aggie football games over WEAL. He is doing Aggie basketball play-by-play analysis over cable television with Jim Wright this spring.

Despite his highly-successful career, the Lynchburg, Va., native says he has not achieved his greatest thrill in broadcast-journalism.

"I want to join a network to do analysis similar to what Ron Pinckney does for Mutual. I would also like to establish a network of Black radio stations to cover A&T sports," Harris remarked while gazing over dials and buttons in the WEAL studio. "The A&T radio station (WANT) needs to be improved so it may become a vital factor in the City of Greensboro," Harris explained.

Although not a superstar in any sport by his own admission, Harris did find time to play intramural sports in high school. He claims he is "athletically inclined."

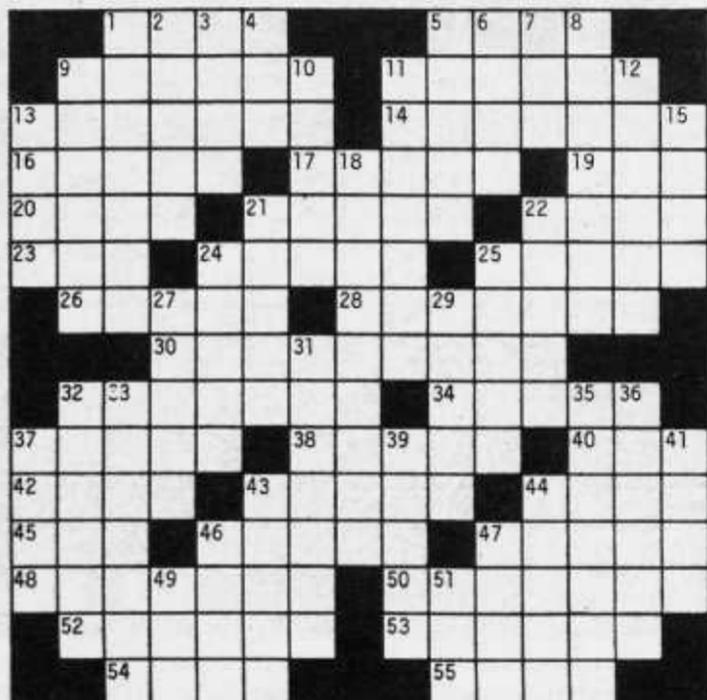

Harris's broadcasting career goes back to his 10th grade in high school. His work has taken him to Washington, D.C., Virginia and both of the Carolinas.

"Broadcasting is not too difficult, but it does require much work. You have to be cautious of your diction and not split any verbs," Harris commented.

SPORTS NOTEBOOK

By Blannie E. Bowen

Spring is an extremely busy time of the year around A&T. No less than seven sports are in operation simultaneously. Accompanying the spring sports are some good times.

As a sportswriter, I can tell what sport is just starting its practice sessions because of the persons who accidentally run into me and who speak on every occasion.

These athletes are just trying to make it big, to see their names in black and white, or otherwise, written in newsprint.

There is nothing wrong with it because every person wants a certain amount of immediate gratification and to feel self-esteem.

Now that I've gotten the preliminaries out of the way, a few sound statements are appropriate. What team won the NCAA basketball title? N.C. State, right? What about football? Southern California, right?

What about soccer? Howard University, wrong or right? Maybe you are not sure, but certainly not a Black school such as Howard.

Yes, Howard is correct. Before I get bombarded with answers, such as soccer powers Clemson or St. Louis, forget it. The Bison won the title.

The reason everyone cannot be sure is the amount of exposure the Bison got. Black schools just don't get exposed in the media.

Let me re-phrase that statement a bit. Black schools never get exposed for doing well. Now, we are together again.

I am grateful, proud, happy and all the other adjectives as well, when I see guys around here try to get exposed for doing well. Wheeler Brown and Nolan Jones, two football players, come to mind on this issue.

Brown and Jones are first-year players and they were seeking pictures from the sports information director this week. They want to be all - Americans.

It takes exposure to do this. Some will call it getting over, buddy-buddy or simply, eating cheese. I call it exposure. Statistics don't make all - Americans some of the time.

Right, Al Holland and Morris McKie?

KARATE IS BEGINNING A revolution around the country and around A&T as well. Television and movies can be attributed to for the upsurge of interest.

Many students have the opportunity to take advantage of the karate program on campus. It has become so popular that a class is being conducted on the subject. Registration is the same as it is for any other class.

Gilbert Casterlow and Charles Creech are sponsors of most karate activity. They will be glad to get more students who want to get physical training, mental preparation and self-defense. Casterlow is in Merrick Hall.

IN MY FOUR YEARS here, only three players have become folk heroes on the basketball courts. June Harris, Allen Spruill and James 'Scooby- DO' Wilkins are the legends.

Scooby Do has played less than five minutes, has scored four points, and has had the largest ovation from the fans this year. Some things Scooby can do some he has yet to do.

Aggies Rout Broncos By 33

By Craig Turner

The Broncos of Fayetteville State University entered the Greensboro Coliseum Wednesday night with dreams of becoming a giant killer. Instead, they became the "killee" as A&T romped to an impressive 104-71 rout before 6,000 fans.

Both teams got off to a "run and gun" start in the early going. After a timeout, Fayetteville employed a 2-1-2 zone that seemed to befuddle the Aggies. The see-saw affair lasted for the rest of the half which saw A&T leading 38-33 at the mid-point mark.

The second stanza almost began the same way until Coach Warren Reynolds enforced the zone press against State's smaller and slower backcourt.

A&T turned up steal after steal behind the guard play of Stanley Parham, Ray Perry, and Allen Spruill. In a three-minute span midway in the half, A&T had scored 14 consecutive points to break the contest open.

Coach Reynolds was pleased with his team's performance. "The fellows were unselfish and played the type of team ball we've been trying to initiate," said Reynolds.

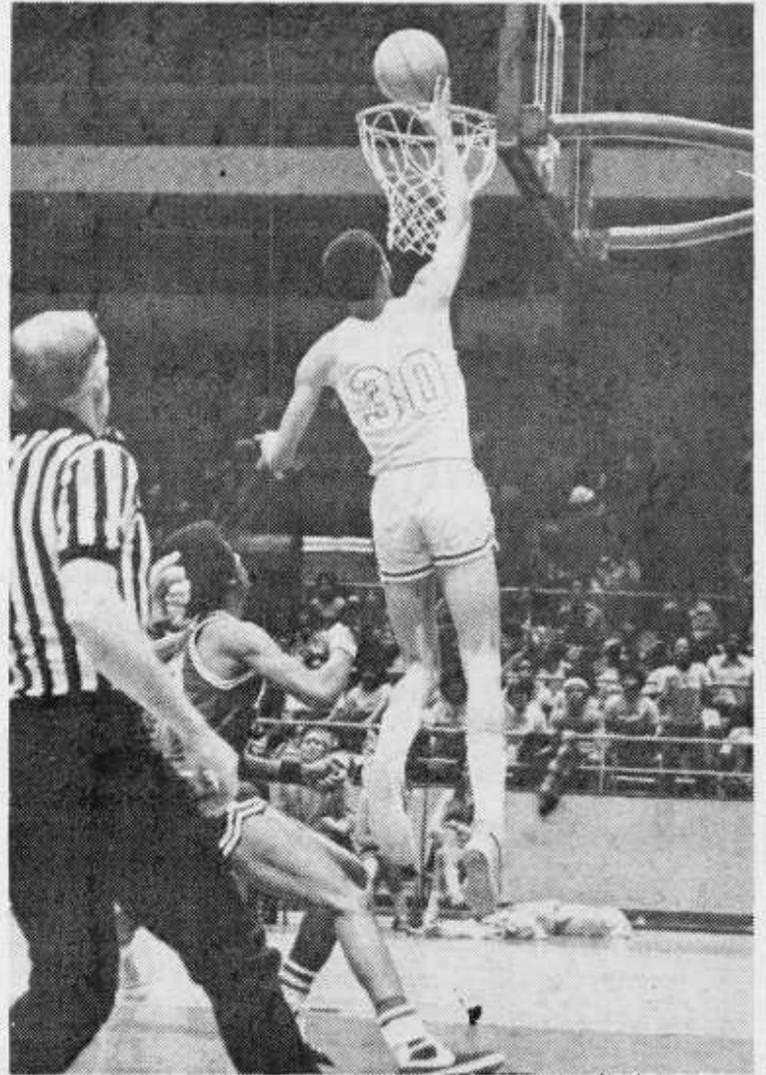

When questioned about A&T's now famous zone press, Reynolds stated, "We simply wore them down physically, used our big lineup of Sinclair Colbert, Lon Smith, and Ron Johnson, and forced the running game."

Ron Johnson led the way with 25 points for the winners as Lon Smith contributed 17 points and 13 rebounds.

The Aggies now 8-5, take their winning streak to Winston-

Salem, N.C. to face the Rams of Winston-Salem State in a prestigious nonconference event. Game time for this tilt is set for 8 p.m. at the Coliseum.

Aggiettes Suffer 55-50 Loss

After Wednesday night's 55-50 loss to Fayetteville State University, A&T Aggiette women's basketball coach James Pridgen said his team is a young club.

Coach Pridgen believes his team will get better as he optimistically remarked, "we are going to get better later in the year. Inexperience is definitely showing its face as well."

Pridgen and assistant coach James Means have reasons to be optimistic, considering last season's success story. The Aggiettes went 13-3 last year. The team is currently 1-2 going into tomorrow's game at 6 p.m. against Winston-Salem.

One area which is of concern to Pridgen and Means is team stamina. "Our players appear to be sluggish and tired on some occasions. We have to work this area out too," Pridgen said.

Both losses have come at the Greensboro Coliseum, and sources close to the Women's Basketball Program feel playing in the 16,000-seat arena might have affected the team's performance.

Only two games, Catawba and Bennett, are scheduled to be played on campus in Moore Gymnasium.

Two persons on the Aggiette squad have not been bothered one bit by playing in the Coliseum. Joyce Spruill and Pauline Callahan have paced the Aggiette attack as the team captains.

Optimism Is Expressed For Upcoming Workouts

Head coach Hornsby Howell expressed optimism while discussing the upcoming spring football workouts to be conducted in mid-March.

According to Howell, the Aggies will be basically a junior and sophomore laden club. Although it appears to be an experienced team on paper,

Howell stated, "we're going to be young and make some early mistakes that we'll have to live with."

The offensive lineup will return all of its starters except one running back. However, the defensive secondary and the interior lines have to be rebuilt.

Bowling Team Is In A Strange Position

Following losses to the University of Virginia as well as the University of Maryland, A&T's bowling team finds itself in a strange situation.

Last year the team won its divisional title and then finished second in the Southern Intercollegiate Bowling Conference. The team has a 1-2 record thus far this season.

According to Coach Roger McKee, "we started off with a new team except for David Miller and Clay Cowan. I suspect we will do fairly well, but I am really looking to next season."

In addition to his coaching chores, McKee serves as the team's advisor. As an indication of Miller's and Cowan's leadership, they were selected captains for the men's team.

Debbi McNair and Diane Glover are the women's captains. Henti Bard, William Barksdale, William Copeland, Lennie Frye, Pat Malone, Richard Stringfield, Veronica Woodard, and Robin Wright are the other members of the A&T team.

Aggies Defeat Catawba In 40-3 Rout Thursday

By Nicie Cannon

The Aggie Wrestling team took on Catawba College in Moore Gym last night and came away with a 40-3 rout.

The Catawba wrestlers could not handle the Aggies, much to the delight of the screaming Aggie fans.

Charles Simmons started the action by promptly pinning his opponent, and keeping his undefeated record in tact. Likewise, Melvin Fair, Roosevelt Hilton, and Eric Harris wasted no time in pinning the opposition.

Rodney James, Darnell Glover, Anthony Fox, Steve Garney and Arthur Boone won by decision. In what proved to be the most exciting match of the night, Boone waited until the last two seconds of the match to out wrestle his opponent and gain the victory.

The win boosted the Aggies' record to 7-1 overall, while they are 2-1 in conference competition. The Aggie matmen will see their next action Tuesday at 4:00 P.M. when they take on Winston-Salem State in Winston-Salem.

The Aggie matmen are on their annual binge. Catawba College found themselves with three points at the end of the match.

Coach Howell Stresses Education For Athletes

"we'll just have to get bigger and quicker than the people we'll face," said Howell.

It seems that the A&T coaching staff will be looking towards a potentially outstanding freshman crew to add depth in some shallow spots up front in the lines.

"We'll be working on our inside running game and out total defensive situation," outlined Howell. "We were second in the conference on offense, but ranked next to last in defense. You just don't win like that," he continued.

Howell turned to the academic quality of his players as well as their physical attributes. He made it clear that the education of athletes at A&T is far more important than perhaps winning championships.

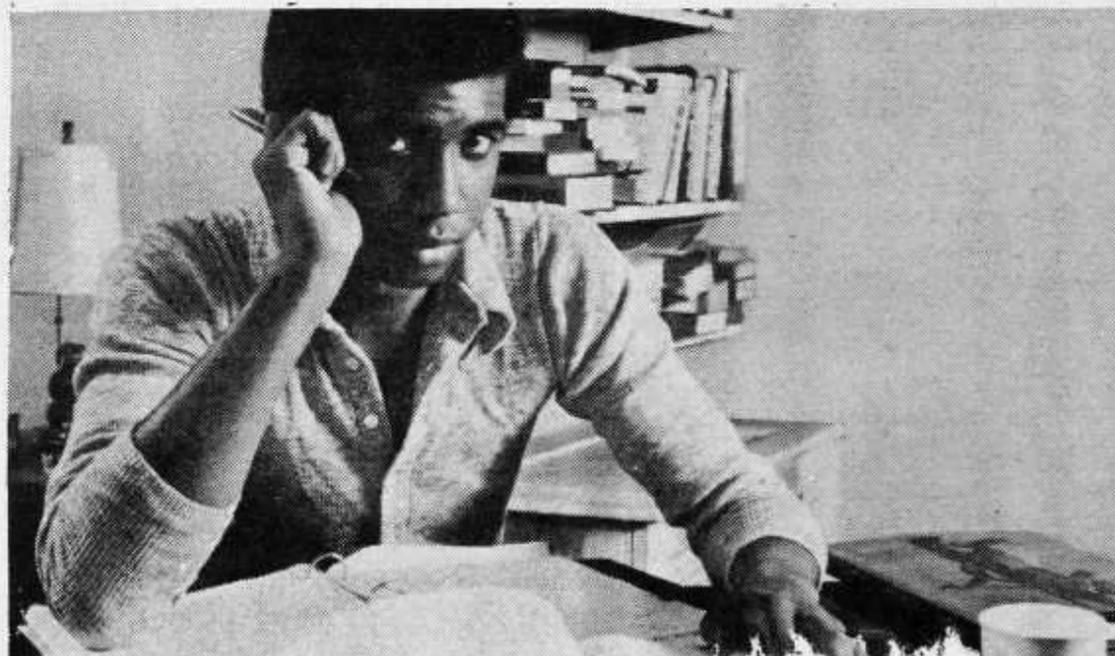

"If a kid is being recruited by us, he will have to have an average or he just can't stay at A&T too long," Howell said. He expressed his opinion on the illegal recruitment of star prep athletes.

"It's ashame when an entire athletic program is jeopardized by dirty tactics," he said. "When it gets like that, I'll quit."

Bob Jones Confirms Work Is Hard

Bob Jones, another WEAL announcer, confirmed the preceding remarks.

"We do have to work hard. That is certainly true around here."

Before leaving to prepare for "Sounder", another of his highly successful programs, Harris stated, "I send sports material to M B N but they don't use it all. I just keep working at it."
