New Recruiting Trailer To Search For Students

If the prospective students don’t find A&T State University, officials of the university are going to find the students with a new $10,000 mobile recruiting trailer donated by a group of industries.

“This new mobile unit will add a new dimension to our total recruiting efforts,” said William H. Gamble, director of admissions at A&T. “It will enable us to reach prospective students in cities and hamlets throughout the state.”

The 32-foot trailer was delivered to A&T last Friday afternoon from Gem Industries, Inc., Grand Rapids, Mich., where the unit was specially modified and furnished.

According to the university’s catalogues, brochures, financial aid forms, and all of the university’s methods of drug and alcohol prevention through effective education.

Murphy Renovation To Begin

By Rosa Smith

“Fall semester student teachers will be provided with an 18-hour workshop on Drug and Alcohol Prevention through Effective Education,” according to Dr. Dorothy Prince, chairman of the Department of Education. The workshop will begin September 9 and is sponsored by the Greensboro Drug Action Council in conjunction with the Greensboro City Schools and other nearby schools systems.

When asked the purpose of the workshop, Dr. Prince replied, “The workshop will provide opportunities for prospective teachers to become familiar with methods of drug and alcohol abuse prevention through effective education.”

Concluding, Dr. Prince stated, “With the offices of the vice chancellor for student affairs, the original $422,000 awarded in 1971 for the renovation of Murphy Hall will not be enough to complete the building. An additional $200,000 will be needed before the renovation of the building can be finished.”

According to Dr. Jesse Marshall, vice chancellor for student affairs, the original $422,000 now available will only be enough to complete the first floor of Murphy Hall. Bids on the renovation of Murphy Hall will take place September 10. After the bidding takes place, plans for the revision of the first floor will get underway. The offices which will be located on the first floor are the offices of the vice chancellor for student affairs, testing and counseling, career counseling and placement, the associate dean of student affairs and the rest of the vice chancellor’s staff, which includes the dean of services. There will also be a small assembly room.

The financial aid office along with the offices of the associate dean of housing, the associate dean of organizations, and the freshman attrition will be located on the second floor.

Dr. Marshall said that the reason he wanted his office moved to the student center is that he wants to be certain that the students on A&T’s campus receive the best service.

“If, after having contacted the necessary offices, they still are not satisfied,” said Dr. Marshall. “They can report this fact to me so I will know and can take the necessary steps toward a solution to the problem or concern that may be interfering with the adjustment of the student.”

The location of the offices should save the students a lot of time and energy, Dr. Marshall said.
Cadets Attend Training Center

Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) Cadet Edward A. Moore of A&T was a recent guest at the U.S. Army Logistics Management Center (ALMC).

Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Moore, received an overall briefing on ALMC's organization and functions. This was followed by a tour of its facilities, including a visit to the ALMC's Management Center (ALMC). ALMC Commandant, welcomed the cadets. In his remarks, Colonel Don A. Wilkinson said he was sure they would find ALMC different from anything they had seen in the Army so far, but hoped their visit would prove both interesting and educational.

The cadets also received a briefing on military and civilian career opportunities in logistics, a lieutenant's role as an ALMC instructor, the role of ALMC civilians, and opportunities offered by the Center's intern training program. They also visited the ALMC Computer Center, the Logistics Library, the ALMC's School of Assets Management and the administration wing of Bunker Hall.

New Choir Director Cites Student Talent

By Daryl E. Smith

"There is an extreme amount of talent here at A&T, but students will have to utilize the resources available to them," said Leroy Robinson, the new choir director. "I've only been here about two weeks and I have a very good impression of A&T. There is an abundance of talent at A&T, but if students could realize what their potentials are, then conditions would improve."

Asked if any major changes would be initiated this year, Robinson said, "I have no major changes in mind for the choir, but this Christmas we will try something new and different."

Continuing, he said, "I would like to teach the students to become accustomed to finding their pitch with a tuning fork, instead of from a piano. This will enable them to become aware of pitch."

As Robinson composed the choir this year, he said, "We have about 40 in the choir, and the sound is very good. During the last two weeks, at certain times of the day. Then after waiting in the lines, sometimes one finds that he has only a fork to eat."

"We are still accepting students and I will extend an invitation to any student who would like to participate in the choir. By next semester I would like to form a community choir in conjunction with the university choir."

Robinson is a native of Mobile, Ala., and received his Bachelor of Music Degree from Texas Southern University. He received his Master's Degree from the University of Wisconsin, and furthered his studies at Yale and the University of Michigan.

Colonel Wilkinson said he was sure they would find ALMC different from anything they had seen in the Army so far, but hoped their visit would prove both interesting and educational.

The cadets also received a briefing on military and civilian career opportunities in logistics, a lieutenant's role as an ALMC instructor, the role of ALMC civilians, and opportunities offered by the Center's intern training program. They also visited the ALMC Computer Center, the Logistics Library, the ALMC's School of Assets Management and the administration wing of Bunker Hall.

A question and general discussion about ALMC concluded the cadet's visit and tour. Major Ronald G. Olson of ALMC's School of Assets Management was the project and escort officer.

Munson Says:

Lines Will Become Shorter

By Neopia M. Smith

Long lines have been a common sight in the cafeteria this last two weeks, at certain times of the day. Then after waiting in the lines, sometimes one finds that he has only a fork to eat. Lawrence Munson, director of food services, pointed out that the lines were no longer now than they were during any of the other semesters of school. His explanation of the lines was that the majority of the students were trying to eat at the same time.

Munson has changed the cafeteria hours in the hope of reducing some of the congestion in the cafeteria. Instead of eating lunch from 11:00AM-1:30PM, the two meals have been combined from 11:30AM-3:30PM.

Munson complained that some of the glasses, knives, forks, and spoons were being taken from the cafeteria, which is at the present time limitedly supplied. Munson also revealed that he had an order in for 500 dozen knives, forks, and spoons. For the first time in the history of A&T, the cafeteria was served dinner, especially those who are watching their weight and are not as active as the students participating in sports.

Munson has high hopes of turning the cafeteria into sort of a "Picnic" if his request for more hot dogs and food serving lines comes through. If so, he can provide an assortment of foods for the students to choose from.

Radio Station WANT Applies for FM Rating

By Shirley Bullard

Radio station WANT has been preparing for an FM station rating for three years, according to James Wright, faculty adviser of WANT. Wright continued, "The Federal Communication Commission has acknowledged receipt of WANT's application for a construction permit for a new non-commercial educational FM broadcast station in Greensboro."

The University of North Carolina at Greensboro's administration and student body have agreed to apply for another channel to broadcast their FM signal, so that A&T could have a clear channel to request.

In preparation for an FM station, important requests are being executed. Wright said, "New staff members will be trained and old members must acquire a third-class license because the function of the FM may not entail broadcasting as a fundamental interest."

Also, the renovation of Price Hall and its present facilities must be made in order for it to fit into the prescibed standards of the educational broadcasting system.

Wright continued, "Surveys will be circulated throughout the student body to supply student input."
Lipscomb Is New Professor

By Benjamin Forbes

Some changes have been made in the Department of Military Science. One such change is the appointment of Lieutenant Colonel Lawrence Lipscomb, who has succeeded Colonel E. Neal as professor of Military Science.

Before coming to A&T, Lipscomb worked in the Operations and Directorcy of National Guard Bureau at the Pentagon in Washington, D.C., for two years. Lipscomb was commissioned in May 1954 while attending Virginia State College. He entered active duty in the Basic Armor Officers Course at Fort Knox, Kentucky, in July of 1954.

Commenting on his appointment of A&T's Army ROTC program, Lipscomb stated, "I am honored to be here. I believe the ROTC is an exciting program. The ROTC has a very rich background and I'm pleased to be a part of it."

Lipscomb said that he saw the offer to come to A&T as a great opportunity. He added that he was impressed with the students that he had met. He feels that a great majority of the students have "great potential," especially those students now enrolled in the freshman ROTC program.

Lipscomb is married and has two children, Lawrence, Jr., a freshman at Virginia Union; Steven, and Lori.

In closing, Lipscomb indicated that he is looking forward to a very prosperous year. He added that he wanted to get to know more of the students and faculty. "The doors will always be open," he concluded.

Arterbury Intends Expansion

By Francis Gilliard

Philip Arterbury is the new Attorney General for the S.G.A. As an explanation of the basic duties of his office, Arterbury said that it is the Attorney General's responsibility to represent the university at student trials. Arterbury also announced that it is in his intent to extend the duties and concerns of his office.

Cluster Donates New Trailer To University

The trailer was donated to the A&T University Foundation by the university's Industry/Cluster, a group of 40 national companies which support A&T in its development program.

Marshall H. Colston, co-chairman of the Cluster, said the companies have contributed more than $700,000 in equipment, and funds for an endowed chair in urban affairs and scholarship aid. Hal G. Worley of Western Electric is industry co-chairman of the Cluster.

Arterbury cited several problems that were brought to his attention. He stated that there are certain injustices suffered by students that are brought before the trial bureau.

"Under our present system the student is presumed guilty before trial begins. According to the lawful presumption that one is innocent until proven guilty, the student is presumed innocent," he said.

There remain in the minds of most upperclassmen the bitter memories of the unfriendly and unjust searches practiced by the campus security last semester. Attorney General Arterbury was also displeased with these procedures.

Arterbury pointed out that the campus police can not come in and search rooms without a search warrant. He insists that we (A&T) are a small community that lives under the laws of the city. Since it is not legal to search the premises of residents in the city, the same law should apply to us.

As a closing remark Arterbury stressed the fact that he plans to look out for the students despite his obligations to the University.

Theatre Will Admit Aggies For Half Price

WEAL Radio and ABC Southeastern Theatre announced that all A&T students will be admitted for $3.00 Saturday night for the late show, starting at 11:15. Students should present their I.D. card when purchasing their tickets.

The late show this week is a double feature program entitled, "Sugar Hill" and "Monster Zero." WEAL's Alfred "G" will sponsor a dance contest with each prize awarded to winning couples.

Charles M. Walton, city manager for ABC and Bob Clendenen, house manager at the Carolina, plan to premier America's latest box office hit, "Beyond the Door," September 12.

"Beyond the Door" deals with a pregnant woman's dilemma of demon possession.

According to the management, "Beyond the Door" is the first of a long line of top rated entertainment in store from ABC this fall and winter.
Jobs Are Needed

It seems that unemployment is this country's major problem as it prepares for its bicentennial celebration. Unemployment is pitting groups against each other that would normally be allies. Ethnic minorities and women find themselves at odds with unions and the seniority system. Lay-off city workers and their union representatives find themselves fighting legislation the Ford Administration is designed to alleviate the suffering of long periods of unemployment.

Thus, the recently laid-off minority group workers compete against other minority group workers for the few jobs that are created by federal legislation. What it all adds up to is that the war on poverty has actually become a war among the poor.

Several congressmen have introduced bills calling for employment. These bills simply state that every willing and able-bodied American citizen should be entitled to a job as a right, not as a privilege. After all, shouldn't the right to work be seen in the same category as the other "inalienable rights" which gave birth to this country nearly 200 years ago? Passed a bill which calls for full employment certainly be seen as an appropriate part of the bicentennial celebration.

Who among us doesn't believe that every person has the right to a decent job with decent wages? This right is every bit as important as the right of free speech and the right of privacy, which are rights that have often been denied minority groups. Seen in this perspective, full employment is perhaps the most important civil rights issue at the moment. It is time for all those groups and individuals who have actively pursued the cause of civil rights in the past to combine their energies now to push for full employment.

Old Staff Delays Yearbooks

Editor of the Register:

At this time the student body of A&T deserves an explanation as to why the 1974 yearbooks are not back, and it is the responsibility of the Ayantee staff to provide that explanation. I can not give a definite date when the yearbooks will arrive. There are several reasons why they are not here 1) the past staff did not meet the deadlines made with the publishing company that would assure the right delivery date; 2) color deadlines had to be in by a certain date and they were not on time.

I am asking the student body to bear with me as editor of this year's Ayantee staff.

You can be sure that the student body will not meet the deadlines made with the publishing company that would assure the right delivery date; 3) color deadlines had to be in by a certain date and they were not on time.

I am asking the student body to bear with me as editor of this year's Ayantee staff.

If you are interested in the student body and all the students' activities, the Ayantee is always a good place to visit. It is also a good place to get a good cup of coffee and read the latest news in our area.

The staff and I are working very hard this year to produce a student body a quality yearbook that will be back before school ends in the spring. When the 1974 yearbooks return, announcements will be made to inform you. Thank you for your patience and cooperation.

Black Leaders Wanted

By Steve Allen

As our college days quickly come and go and our recollections slowly fade away it is only appropriate that we, as Black people, begin to realize figuratively speaking, "we are all in the same boat together," and that "united we stand; divided we fall."

Hopefully, it is with this sense of awareness that the member organizations of the Pan-Hellenic Council, and nonmembers, as well, will begin to address themselves to the problems of developing Black unity, bridging fraternal walls, reducing interpersonal, fraternal hostilities, and implementing pledge programs which will develop Black intellect, Black pride, Black awareness, but most of all, which will develop Black leaders.

Black America is crying out for a united front for good leaders and for its fair share of America's riches. She beckons Black National and fraternal organizations to heed her call, and lead our people forward.

Thus, now is the time for (See Now, Page 9)

"Be Prepared"

By Daryl E. Smith

The numbers have increased in the student body, and the book store has had a problem of supplying the students with enough books, simply because no one expected the massive influx of eager students to return to A&T this semester.

A&T is in the process of change, and with the different atmosphere that is enveloping this educational community, signs of growing interest towards one's self, academically instead of leisurely, are showing.

The circumstances that transpired last year have had a great effect on the attitudes of the student body this year. The continued unemployment lines at home have driven many students back to A&T, and the age old slogan "Be Prepared" has finally settled down in most students.

The underlying truth and spirit of this country is starting to emerge, and Black students have the responsibility, to themselves and the security of future generations of Black people, to expand their minds to the limit and absorb as much knowledge as possible.
Students View Bicentennial

By Maxine McNeil

Next year, something unique will take place in this country. This, of course will be the celebration of the United States 200th birthday. We at Black people have to ask ourselves whether we should celebrate or not.

Students at A & T seem to hold varying opinions on the subject. Cathy Raeford, a sophomore nursing major, said that she thinks Blacks should celebrate the U.S. Bicentennial. Malcolm Leath, a sophomore, said Blacks should celebrate the U.S. Bicentennial. Malcolm added the statement that the Black man has contributed his share in making America what it is today.

A graduate student, Allethia Campbell, said, "Blacks do have a lot to celebrate because Blacks have come a long way." She said that, "we definitely should celebrate America's 200th birthday."

Now Is The Time For Us To Practice Brotherhood

They put aside childish games which hinder the advancement of our people, and began to fulfill the need from which they were born. It was the time for all Black people to practice the true tenets of "brotherhood" and "sisterhood."

As the pledging season for campus organizations begin, I challenge the fraternities and sororities to mold their programs to meet the needs of Black America, to carry their banner of leadership, scholarship and love for all mankind proudly and honorably. I also challenge the students of our campus to question, to observe, and to demand that fraternities' actions be synonymous with their ideals. Demand that the fraternities respect our women, respect themselves, but most of all that they respect you.

The joint cooperation of all Black people will be necessary to throw off the oppressive forces which surround us and threaten to exterminate us. Remember, we are all Black, we are all Aggies; and, if we fail to unite, we all will be dead. Therefore, united we stand; divided we fall. In unity there is strength.

Aggie Spirit Descends On Shopping Center

The weather was hot, humid and the afternoon sky was bluer than usual, a perfect day for the Aggie Day spirit to descend on Friendly Shopping Center in Greensboro.

Officials, members of the band, and football team members were dressed in their blue and gold colors. People not attending A&T were out in force to support the Aggie Day and to do a little shopping.

The crowd waited in nervous anticipation for the band and the Air Force drill team to begin their performances. They were delighted with the exhibition presented by the band and the drill team.

Richie Gadsen, a sophomore history major, gave his opinion of Aggie Day. "It was nice. I think that a lot of people really enjoyed coming out here and it gave the people a chance to see their team and the football team."

Julia Peck, a senior at Greensboro community college, said, "I like the idea of Aggie Day. It gives the people in the community a feeling of closeness, even though they might not go to A&T. I enjoyed the band and drill team and a lot of people were here to support A&T State University in whatever they attempted to do."

The Guilford County Voter Registration Project has begun its extensive voter recruiting campaign throughout the Greensboro community.

The Southeastern section of Greensboro, which has the greatest concentration of Blacks within the community, has been earmarked for special recruiting attention.

Ballots are being planned on the surrounding campuses to create youth interest in the election. Most students are ineligible for voting, but it is hoped that they will volunteer their services and work closely with the community project.

A&T's response to the project is good. There are about 30 to 30 volunteers at the present time. Students who are interested in working on the project can contact Claude Barnes at 500 South B Street Road, Phone Number 273-1222, or Ted Mangum at the SGA office.

Forensic Society Plans To Expand Activities

By Zavery McDougald

The Forensic Society plans to expand its activities for this year. According to Linda Mason, adviser to the group, a committee composed of Reginaid Brown, Detra Brown, and Sidney Marable has met and formed plans to have three interest groups in the areas of debate, rap sessions, and public speaking.

In the area of debate, the society plans to concern itself with propositions that are of interest to students at A&T. They plan to have approximately one public debate a month this summer.

According to Mrs. Mason, the Forensic Society of North Carolina State University has agreed to participate in a debate which will also be open to the public.

The second interest group will try to encourage rap sessions with students on topics of interest to the campus, she stated. The sessions will be planned twice a month featuring campus personalities, guest speakers, and panel discussions. Topics may come from campus to state and national issues.

The third interest group is planned for those students interested in public speaking, oral presentations, and extemporaneous speaking. This group plans to present a program illustrating "Black Contributions to American Life." This will involve informative speeches concerning Black contributions, controversial literature from Black poets and writers which will give an opportunity to research topics of interest and practice the various fundamentals of speech.

Projects for this year are to get underway as soon as possible, Mrs. Mason emphasized. She encourages those students who are interested in public speaking, oral presentations, and extemporaneous speaking to contact her in Rm. 212 Crosby Hall.

Players Will Present Dramas

The Richard B. Harrison Players will present a Black Duet of two plays, "Slaves" by Mohammed Ibn Abdallah and "Contribution" by Ted Shime. These performances will be in the Paul Robeson Little Theater Saturday, September 6, at 2:15 p.m. and Sunday, September 7, at 8:35 p.m.

"Slaves" will be performed by Aleta Manley, Barbara DeVaures, Rita McPhail, Ester Parker, Wendell Banks, Avery Verdell, Odien Spruill, Sewing Richardson, James Leek, and Kermit Crawford. The scene of this play is an underground cell in Elmina Castle on the Gold Coast (now Ghana), during the early stages of the slave trade.

The actor in "Contributions" will be Eula Hudders, Debbie Hawkins, and James Leek. The action of the play is set in a small Southern town at the height of the Civil Rights struggle during the early 1960's.

The Harrison Players extend a warm welcome to all freshmen and to transfer students to the university. They especially invite the newcomers and anyone else who has not had the opportunity of seeing the Players in action to join us this weekend.

University Will Enforce Traffic Rules Strictly

Dr. T. Mahaffey, administrative assistant to the Chancellor, has announced strict enforcement of the University Parking and Traffic Regulations which will begin Monday, September 8. "We are soliciting the cooperation of each member of the Aggie family, administration, faculty, students and employees, in our efforts to administer equally the regulations governing traffic, parking, and the registration of motor vehicles on campus," he stated.

"The best policy is not to be in violation. If you are, you are subject to fines and penalties," he continued.

Copies of the regulations are available in the Clyde DeHuntley Service Center (Physical Plant).

BMN Names New Bureau Chief

Glen Ford has been named bureau chief of the Black Mutual Radio Network, it was announced by Thom Gatewood, executive vice president of the Black Mutual Radio Network.

Although only 25, Ford has already been involved in broadcast journalism for more than a decade. At the age of 12, Ford gave newscasts over Radio Station WOKS in Columbus, Ga.

"Ford's versatility and experience make him qualified for this position," Gatewood said. "I feel his appointment as Bureau Chief for the Black Mutual Radio Network will be a tremendous asset to our organization."

"Black Press Forum" was Ford's idea. "A program of this type which embraces prestige and professionalism was needed to serve the needs of the national Black community." Ford said. Ford is the moderator of "Black Press Forum."

Ford's inclination to cover social and political affairs is only natural. He was born on Election Day, November 4, 1949.

A&T is only a few days away from launching its 1975 football crusade against what many experts feel is the best team in the CIAA, the Virginia Union Panthers.

Last season the Aggies pretty well demolished Elizabeth City in the opener. But it will be clear to a lot of people that Virginia Union is not Elizabeth City.

This is a big, fast, and intelligent football squad, that can literally explode in the opposition's face.

The avid fan should keep his eye on a guy named Anthony Leonard who plays both safety and running back. Pro scouts claim he'll be a first round draft pick easily.

The last time an A&T squad faced Virginia Union, the Aggies won handily 40-6. As a series, A&T has dominated there too. Let's hope it stays the same Saturday.

A&T will entertain perhaps the strongest team in the Central Intercollegiate Football Conference at Virginia Union Saturday.

The Panthers are coming off an 8-2 season which placed them third in the league behind Norfolk State and Virginia State.

Although the Richmond, Va., school lost several front line stars to graduation, more than ample help returns to shore up potential trouble spots.

Marked improvement is expected on the offense which is led by quarterback Timothy Keefe (6-4, 210). Keefe has a reputation as a good runner and a strong passer.

The running back of note is Leon Bledsoe (5-10, 195), who smashed his way to over 400 yards last year.

The offensive line remains basically intact with All-CIAA tackle Donald Tate (6-4, 250). In tight end position Coach Willie Bailey relies on place-kicker Clarence White (6-0, 170).

The defensive unit finished second in league defense and returns a wealth of talent.

Anthony Leonard (6-3, 200) was All-CIAA, and a Black College All-American along with running back James Foster. Despite having the secondary back in one piece, the real strength is up front. Larry Willford (6-5, 272) and middle linebacker Calvin Young (6-4, 230) are extremely strong and fast.

The avid fan should keep his eye on a guy named Anthony Leonard who plays both safety and running back. Pro scouts claim he'll be a first round draft pick easily.

The last time an A&T squad faced Virginia Union, the Aggies won handily 40-6. As a series, A&T has dominated there too. Let's hope it stays the same Saturday.

A&T will entertain perhaps the strongest team in the Central Intercollegiate Football Conference at Virginia Union Saturday.

The Panthers are coming off an 8-2 season which placed them third in the league behind Norfolk State and Virginia State.

Although the Richmond, Va., school lost several front line stars to graduation, more than ample help returns to shore up potential trouble spots.

Last season the Aggies pretty well demolished Elizabeth City in the opener. But it will be clear to a lot of people that Virginia Union is not Elizabeth City.

This is a big, fast, and intelligent football squad, that can literally explode in the opposition's face.
