Arts And Sciences School Adds Another Department

By Benjamin Forbes

A change has been made in the Department of Psychology and Guidance, which is due to the transfer of the Department of Psychology from the School of Education to the School of Arts and Sciences.

According to Dr. Emory Sadler, chairman of the Department of Psychology, the Department of Educational Psychology and Guidance has split with the Department of Psychology.

The Department of Educational Psychology and Guidance, which is a department for graduate students, will be headed by Dr. William W. Lawrence who will be the acting chairman. This department will remain in the School of Education.

The undergraduate Department of Psychology will remain unchanged in the School of Arts and Sciences.

The new department has a department number 220 while the old department will maintain its department number of 320.

Sadler added that the departments will remain in Hodgkin Hall until the new building of social sciences is built.

"COMPLETE AWARENESS FOR COMPLETE COMMITMENT"

VOLUME XLVII NUMBER 9 A&T State University, Greensboro September 23, 1975

New Chairperson Sought

Dr. White Plans Improvements

By Francis Gilliard

"Plans are underway for the improvement of the Speech Department including the selection of a new chairperson," said Dr. Frank White, Dean of the School of Arts & Sciences. "However plans for selecting the new chairperson are not complete because, first of all, the educational process is fully operative in the Speech Department," Dean White explained.

"All classes began as scheduled and enrollment in the Speech Department is higher than in any previous semester. Also, two more classes are being taught this year than in the past."

"In order for the educational process to be responsive to the future, and the needs for change, new procedures, planning and decision making must be conserved. In order to move in the future, these procedures and decisions must be based on institutional goals and objectives," he stated.

Dean White also pointed out that the proper allocation of human and other resources also had to be a part of the planning.

Dean White stated that the Speech Department is committed to a new emphasis. "We plan to continue to develop a new interdisciplinary program in mass communication," he said. "In this connection we have received financial support as a result of successful negotiations. We have received funds from the (AIDP) Advanced Institutional Development Program."

"We are, for the present, organizing the department to enable it to perform the duties and responsibilities of the department," Dean White stated.

He also added, "The members of the faculty are responsible for such duties as providing students with information regarding the department, statement of standing and so forth. The guidance of students in the pursuit of learning, traditionally and automatically, is the life blood of the university professor."

Dean White explained that one faculty person will coordinate the activities, academic and administrative, in the department.

According to Dean White a new faculty member will join the staff November first this year.

In conclusion the dean stated that it is the goal of the new Speech Department to develop its students to move into middle management in radio, television, or newswriting.

HUD Selects A&T For Grant

A&T has been selected by the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development to train regional personnel from across the nation on how to monitor various aspects of the new Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

The $49,000 grant will call for the university to develop a curriculum and methods for training HUD personnel in monitoring and rendering technical assistance to cities and communities who have received funds under the housing act.

An initial training session for officials from the 10 regions will continue through Friday in the Memorial Union.

Joseph A. Bennett, director of the A&T project, said at A&T the regional officials will receive training especially in monitoring the equal employment and fair housing aspects of the Housing and Community Development Act.

After their training session here, the regional officers will be qualified to conduct their training sessions in their own regions.

National housing officials who are participating in the workshop include James H. Blair, assistant secretary of fair housing and equal opportunity for HUD; Thomas O. Jenkins, deputy assistant secretary; and Robert H. Carter, director of the office of management and field coordination for HUD.

Women Residents Vote In Favor Of Visitation

By Mary E. Cropps

Voting on co-ed visitation was held Thursday in the women's residence halls. According to the office of the dean of women, all of the women's dormitories voted to participate in co-ed visitation this semester. Visitation will go into effect Thursday of this week.

The hours that the visitation policy will be in effect are Thursday from 6.00 p.m. until 11.00 p.m. On Fridays visitors will be allowed in the dormitories from 6.00 p.m. until midnight. The hours on Saturday are from 3.00 p.m. until midnight. On Sundays co-ed visitation will be allowed from 3.00 a.m. until 11.00 p.m.

First semester freshmen will not be allowed to participate in co-ed visitation unless they are veterans, are married or are twenty-one years of age or older.

Each residence hall will use a "card" system for signing guests in and out of the residence halls. Visitors will have to present some identification. The cards will show the name of the guest and the host or hostess.

Basically, the rules regarding co-ed visitation will be the same as they were last year. Some of the features included the requirement that doors to the rooms remain unlocked and lights remain on at all times. Also monitors had to be appointed. These same regulations apply this year also.

The men's residence halls will vote on the co-ed visitation policy on Wednesday.

Students To Attend Workshop

By Rosa Smith

Fourteen student teachers have been chosen to attend the Human Relations Workshop at the Betsy-Jeff Penn Center in Chinqua-Penn.

A&T students will be among others who were chosen from various schools in North Carolina. The workshop is sponsored by the N.C. Lutheran Synod and is coordinated by Rev. Richard Ryan, vice president of the center.

Dr. S. Joseph Shaw, dean of the School of Education, states that the expressed purpose of the workshop is to prepare student teachers to become more effective in in-service education.

Woman Shoots At Ford

A second attempt on President Gerald Ford's life occurred Monday evening in San Francisco. The would-be assassin was identified as Ms. Sara Moore, age 45, of Los Angeles.

The President was not injured. The woman was arrested by Secret Service agents.

The student teachers will be involved in person-to-person dialogue with students, faculty, and school administrators with emphasis on human relations.

Dean Shaw said, "It is amazing to know how many people can not communicate with one another. Student teachers need to know where to look for techniques and skills needed in coping with certain types of problems."

Also the student teachers will be told what to expect in integrated situations. Dean Shaw emphasized the point that integration is a multi-way street with give and take on both sides.

The A&T student delegation includes Paulette Brooks, Brenda Cheek, Marilyn Costin, Juanita Kornegay, and Brenda McDonald. In addition are Verleen Murray, Gwendolyn Raleigh, Nellie Rountree, Rhonda Williams, Charles Brockington, Doris Price, and Edward Thomas.

The Wrong Song

A couple of weeks ago, the United States launched a second Viking spaceship. Its purpose was to chase its mate, Viking I, 505 million miles through space in a year-long search for life on Mars.

Viking II was 4.8 million miles behind the lead Viking, which was launched August 20. They are programmed to land at Chryse, Mars on July 4, 1976, to kick-off the United States' Bicentennial celebration.

This will undoubtedly be a great kick-off for the celebration; however, it accomplishes absolutely nothing. It simply demonstrates further the misplacement of values in this country. The American government places higher value on the space ventures than on the physical and mental survival of this country.

It is very sad to see how drastically Ford has cut funds in areas that caused layoffs and unemployment. Yet we can afford to send a space vehicle into orbit for no sensible reason at all. Space explorations can be partially understood. One can halfway assume that by exploring the heavens, we may find another possible habitat for man or another source of energy. But why send two spaceships? Wouldn't one ship be sufficient?

The president has also violated his philosophy on energy conservation. If there is an energy shortage, how could he allow NASA to launch the spaceship for such a waste? Coupled with the Apollo-Soyuz handshake last July, it has been made quite obvious to everyone that America values this type of space junk more than it values the survival of its people.

The government has wasted millions of dollars in this project while millions of people in this country are starving and dying from incurable diseases. Coca Cola says, "Look up America! See what we've got. We've got the song the world is singing." Believe me, we are truly singing the wrong song.

Is It Justice Or "Just Us" ?

By Benjamin Forbes

Many people in America have come to know the system of justice as "JUST US." Such a "just us" policy can be seen in two lights.

First of all, as it appears to Blacks, justice or just us mean only we get the short end of the stick. When a Black man receives true justice in this country, you can believe he went through a fight to obtain it.

The second policy of "just us" is advantageous to whites in that for many years, white has been termed as being right. Even in situations where evidence is totally against the white victim, if he has power and money, you can bet your last dollar he will be acquitted.

Two cases which will test the "just us" theory are the cases of Patricia Hearst, the recently captured SLA (Symbionese Liberation Army) terrorist; and the case in Cordele, Georgia, in which a young Black man is on trial for the murder of two police officers.

As we all know, the Hearst family is "filthy rich" and that they carry a lot of weight in California. Money can buy a lot, especially if you have a lot of it to throw around. In this case, it may buy Patty Hearst a lesser sentence even though the judge in Patty's case has said she is a bail bond risk.

In the case in Cordele, it was reported by the defendant's mother that one of the officers cursed her and then kicked her and her son. Also a witness in the case said that the particular officer in question was drunk the day of his said murder. Even though the defender, Roy Patterson, is charged with murder; everyone knows that, when you insult a Black man's mother, you are asking for trouble. It is highly probable that this man will receive some type of stiff sentence if convicted.

If the two cases mentioned above do not turn out the way this writer has predicted then it may be that the policy known as "just us" may have finally become justice.

S.C. State Defeats A&T 7-0

By Craig Turner

Chancellor Lewis C. Dowdy said in a Wednesday convocation last week that "some dudes were going to try to take away the manhood of the A&T football team."

Dr. Dowdy also made reference to the fact that an A&T victory over South Carolina State last Saturday would enable him to go back home to his native state.

Well, it looks as if Dr. Dowdy will spend this year in Greensboro as "those dudes" from South Carolina took away A&T's manhood 7-0 in Orangeburg, S.C.

The Aggies were dominated from the start as the game statistics will bear out. The A&T quarterbacks, Elsworth Turner and Steve Ryan, combined for 120 yards in passing. The completion rate was a respectable 11 out of 26 attempts.

But the "killer" came in the rushing totals. The Bulldogs threw A&T backs for a minus 118 yards in losses for an MEAC and even possibly an NCAA record.

So, if simple addition has not changed since Friday, A&T could muster only a meager two yards total offense.

State coach Willie Jefferies has, in two short years, created a defensive work of art. The basis for this unit is built around the front wall.

All-America end Harry Carson either made or assisted nearly every tackle during his stay on the field. Tackles Robert Sims and Larry James cut off the run completely.

With the ground game totally shut down, A&T had no choice but to go to the air nearly every play of the second half.

Play action, rollouts, even deep drops of 20 yards could not slow the state rush. The offensive line for A&T was outmanned and outmuscled. When this became clear to the Bulldog defense, it was only a matter of time before the end came.

Quarterback Elsworth Turner, when supplied with ample protection, created the Bulldog secondary regularly for short gains through the air. But, when a quarterback is forced to throw every down, there is no element of surprise.

Defense kept A&T in the contest to the end and shut off South Carolina throughout the contest. Much of the same punishment State dealt out was received on the other end also.

It is almost impossible for a defense to give that kind of performance with the kind of field position that offenses relish and have nothing to show for it. A&T is the exception to the rule.

Since the A&T coaching staff did not see fit to mix its plays to throw off the extreme defensive pressure, the Bulldogs bore down completely against the pass.

The coaching staff continued its game plan despite what was transpiring on the field. Only Coach Hornsby Howell knows what really took place in Orangeburg Saturday.
