Barber Pledges To Keep Helping The University

By Nepolia M. Smith

In an exclusive interview over the telephone, this reporter asked Jimmie Barber what his plans were concerning A&T if re-elected to the Greensboro City Council. Barber said that he had already done much to aid A&T such as getting the stadium repaired, renovating the television booth, and getting North Dudley Street routed by the stadium. Barber stated that he plans on continuing his efforts for A&T.

When asked if his teaching and political life ever collided with each other, Barber said that they did not cause too much friction. He said nothing that would not be encountered in one's everyday life.

Barber stated that he had the full support of his family in his political endeavors.

In closing Barber stated that in his thoughts and action it was "A&T first, last and always!" Anything that can be done for the betterment of A&T and its students is Barber's mission.

Mistake Causes Much Confusion

By Daryl E. Smith

According to an article published in the September 26 edition of The Register, freshmen can participate in co-ed visitation. However, a mistake has been made.

Freshman students at this point are not allowed co-ed visitation privileges for this semester. The faculty has not voted upon the issue as of yet and the chancellor has not acted upon it as yet.

Dr. Jesse Marshall, vice-chancellor for student affairs, said, "The article that appeared in The Register did not represent the facts as related to the office of vice-chancellor for student affairs."

He continued, "The report is erroneous in that no petition has been submitted to the office nor has a committee met with the vice-chancellor. It is the considered judgment of this office that there has been a gross misunderstanding as to how policy is made or changed."

"I support an orderly presentation and movement for any policy changes to be made according to the established procedures and involvement of all concerned."

Dr. Marshall ended his statement by saying, "I hope that matters will be carefully checked with all persons involved to determine the facts before publication is made."

Felton Bess, freshman class president, said "A correction should be made about the statement that a petition was submitted to Dr. Marshall's office. This is not true."

Bess continued, "I, along with the vice-president of the freshman class, met with the University Council. In this meeting, procedures and the matter of exemption of freshmen from first semester co-ed visitation were discussed. As a result, Mrs. Lucille Piggott, dean of women students, made a motion that freshmen should be able to participate in first semester co-ed visitation because the present restriction is not enforceable since all four classifications live in all of the buildings.

Bess ended his statement by saying, "As president of the freshman class I will continue to act in the interest of the students and to represent them in matters which will benefit them. By supporting each other, we will help change the pace of actions at A&T State University."

A&T Will Host Meeting Friday

An address by Dr. Craig Phillips, state superintendent of public instruction, and Prof. Jesse Jackson, nationally prominent author and specialist in children's literature, will highlight the annual meeting of the North Carolina Association of Colleges for Teacher Education at A&T State University on Friday, Oct. 3.

Organized in 1972, the association acts as a voice for teacher education institutions in North Carolina with respect to strengthening and developing education and teacher preparation in North Carolina. The association is the state organization of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education.

This year's officers are Dr. Dorothy Prince, A&T State University, president; Dr. Joseph Logan, Appalachian State University, vice president; and Dr. Willa C. Bryant, Livingstone College, treasurer. Dr. David Reilly, University of North Carolina at Greensboro, is the ACTE liaison representative.

Phillips will be the luncheon speaker at 12:30 p. m. in the F. A. Williams Dining Hall.

At 11 a. m. in Merrick Hall Auditorium, Jackson of Appalachian State University will speak on "A Comparison of Children's Literature in the North and the South".

Jackson already has etched out his place in the history of children's literature.

His first book, "Call Me Charley", and published by Harper & Row was the first children's book with a Black as its central character. The book has sold over a million copies, including editions by the National Council of Churches and the Wisconsin State Education Department.

His book, "Anchor Man", was singled out for commendation by the Council of Christians and Jews. His other books include "Charley Starts from Scratch", "Tessie", "Room for Randy", "The Sickest Don't Always Die the Quickest", and "The Fourteenth Cadillac".

Jackson's two latest books are "Black in America, A Fight for Freedom" and "Make a Joyful Noise unto the Lord, The Life of Mahalia Jackson".

The 65-year-old Jackson is an Ohio native and attended Ohio State University.

For Homecoming

Visitors Will Come From All Over

From Detroit they will be coming by a chartered plane, and from New York City and other places along the Eastern Seaboard, they will travel by buses.

At any rate, their destination will be the week-long Homecoming celebration at A&T State University Oct. 13-19.

More than 20,000 visitors are expected to pour into Greensboro for the festivities planned for students, alumni and friends of A&T.

In keeping with the university's celebration of the American bicentennial, the theme of this year's Homecoming will be "A Blast From the Past: Through Aggeland."

"We are going all out to make this an outstanding and memorable occasion," said James Garfield, chairman of the general

Homecoming committee. "We expect significantly more participation from the students and from the alumni chapters throughout the nation."

Garfield, commenting on out of town participation, stated that "The Greensboro and surrounding motels and hotels are cooperating and advance reservations are far ahead of last year."

The student activities will include the traditional bonfire and Aggie feast, the coronation of "Miss A&T State University", a campus-wide dormitory and plot decoration contest, and several dances and social affairs.

A special highlight of the alumni activities will be the annual A&T Sports Hall of Fame induction ceremony on Friday, Oct. 17 at 8 p.m. in the Cosmos I Club. Four former outstanding A&T athletes and a coach will be inducted this year.

The alumni will also hold their annual ball Saturday, Oct. 18, at 9 p.m. in the Royal Villa and their annual worship service on Sunday, Oct. 19, at 11 a.m. in the Richard B. Harrison Auditorium.

Another special feature of the week will be the nightly presentation of "Porgy" by the Richard B. Harrison Players.

A mile-long parade in East Greensboro on Saturday will precede the annual Homecoming football game between A&T and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore. The game will get underway in Memorial Stadium at 1:30 p.m.

Coordinating the student activities are Ted Mangum, president of the Student Government Association, and Chris Watson, "Miss A&T".

Plan Strategy Now

Now is the appropriate time for Blacks to make themselves active participants in political affairs. The political campaign kettle is beginning to boil now. While former California governor Reagan seems to be, at the present moment, the only Republican who is sharpening his knife for President Ford, the Democrats have a host of contenders for next year's presidential nomination.

It would be very wise for Black politicians, Black organizations, and Blacks in general to begin formulating the demands they will make of candidates of both major parties who will be seeking their support.

Blacks may get several worthwhile commitments if they can stand together on fundamental issues that affect the diverse interests of the race, such as employment, judicial posts, and federal appointments where power is wielded. Yet, if they go seeking individual slices of the pie, only a few pieces will be handed out to them. The old-time, behind closed doors concessions have never yielded much of consequence to the struggling masses of Black people and it is past time that we discontinue the use of such tactics.

It is the vote of these struggling masses of Blacks that both Black and white politicians use to get where they want to be. Once they get what they want, they use empty rhetoric instead of positive actions on behalf of the people. The year 1976 is almost upon us. We don't have the time to be baying at the moon. Now is the time for us to prepare our game plan if we are going to get anywhere in the game of power. Our success or failure depends on the strategy we use and how soon we plan it. If we wait until the game has been in progress too long, no type of strategy will help us.

Munson Explains 'Misconceptions'

To Our Students:

Recently there have been various comments about the Food Service Department both verbally and in writing. I would like to take this space to try to explain some of the misconceptions about this Department. However, allow me to welcome our returning students and all our newly registered students.

The Food Service Department is made up of F.A. Williams Hall, Brown Hall, Blue Mezzanine, Red Carpet and the Union Snack Bar. F.A. Williams was Dean of the Graduate School and later became Director of Planning and Development and Executive Secretary of A&T University Foundation. The F.A. Williams Hall is our main dining facility. The Blue Mezzanine is the third level in F. A. Williams Hall. We render service on the Mezzanine to anyone who chooses to subsist on a cash basis.

Brown Hall is our secondary eating facility that is set aside for our great athletes. It also alleviates the pressure on F.A. Williams Hall. The Red Carpet Room is attached to Brown Hall for service similar to that of the Blue Mezzanine.

The Snack Bar (now being operated by a private caterer) and Pantry, located in the Memorial Student Union Building, are also parts of the Food Service Department. We host most of our special event services in this area.

Our main dining facility, F.A. Williams Hall, with its unique shaped dining rooms, is designed to provide you with means to experience a progressive approach to dining and social interaction. We hope that in the relaxed informality of its special dining activities and other entertainment you will find a unique opportunity for spontaneity and personal growth.

The staff of the Food Service

Department is composed of a Director (Registered Dietitian), three managerial dietitians, four supervisors and many other trained persons who are responsible for the operations of the various sections that make up the Food Service Department.

The Food Service staff members were selected based on their training and experience, their interest in people and their ability to relate to other persons in an effective and meaningful manner. Staff members are on duty daily to render general assistance and assistance relative to special events such as parties and picnics. Also, we furnish information relative to procedures and picnics. Also, we furnish information relative to procedures and policies of the department as they pertain to our students.

Desperados And Bank Robbers

By Daryl E. Smith

While reading the Greensboro Record Friday, I came across an article reporting a bank robbery that occurred here in Greensboro.

The article said that the Greensboro police were looking for three men believed to be driving a car with Washington, D. C. license plates.

My objection to the article is that the article stated that the police were dispatched to A&T's campus to look for the suspects.

Why is it that the campus of A&T has got to be a haven for desperados and wanted shady characters by the police?

The answer is quite simple; the law enforcement officials in Greensboro undoubtedly feel that rings of bank robbers and candidates for assassination of political figures are quartered in the dormitories at A&T.

If the suspects had been white and driving a car with Washington, D. C. tags, then they would not have any direction to guide them. They might have investigated Greensboro College, UNC-G, but I doubt it.

Once again the stereotyped image of A&T was projected to the Greensboro community, and the bad thing about the whole incident was the suspects, two of them, were apprehended way on the other side of the city, on a highway leaving Greensboro.

Dudley Do-Right Strikes Again!

Death Row - Right Or Wrong?

By Benjamin T. Forbes

The capital punishment issue is in the news again as the Supreme Court begins its opening session. Since the issue of capital punishment is one of the first cases on the agenda, it shouldn't take long for the highest court in the nation to come up with a just decision.

The cases involving capital punishment will be watched closely by many civil rights groups and, of course, those person on death row. This issue is expected to draw close attention from many North Carolinians. North Carolina has more prisoners on death row than any other state in the nation, the majority of which are Black.

If the Supreme Court rules that capital punishment is unconstitutional, it will be only a portion of the victory for those prisoners on death row. Since there are more Blacks on death row, it would seem obvious that more Blacks would receive life sentences if the Supreme Court rules against capital punishment. Capital punishment seems to be more of a legal type of revenge rather than means to right the wrong done by the accused. To many Blacks it is a form of sick racism. This type of racism is found in the high levels of the courts, mainly the judges.

It is impossible to please all the people all of the time, and this will be the case with the Supreme Court. If it rules for or against the issue of capital punishment, many Americans will be happy to receive the court's ruling while others will violently reject or refuse to accept it.

In either way a person looks at capital punishment, one can see that no man has the right to take another man's life not even the Supreme Court.

Three Men Hold Up Branch Bank

GREENSBORO AP-The Summit Avenue branch of Northwestern Bank in Greensboro was robbed by three armed men of an undetermined amount of money late Monday afternoon, police said. Authorities said the trio fled in a pickup truck stolen from A&T State University found abandoned nearby. Some of the money was found in the truck, police said, and the three were believed to have switched to a second and possibly a third vehicle.

Police surrounded the Evergreen Nursing Home for the elderly on the belief that one of the robbers had holed up there.

One report said officers were searching for a blue 1973 Chevelle.

It was the 40th bank robbery of the year in North Carolina and the second in Greensboro in the past three days. Three men robbed a branch of First Citizens and Trust Co. on Friday of more than $40,000 police said.

Student Expresses Opinion About 'Misrepresentation'

Editor of The Register:

In your September 26 issue of The A&T Register, STUDENTS VIEW JOB POSSIBILITIES by Debra K. Daniels, I was highly misrepresented.

First of all, I am in the field of Business Education, not Business Administration.

Secondly, when asked how I felt about the interview clinic, my response was "It's giving me an opportunity to discover new companies and to find out exactly what's happening, as far as future employment possibilities within these companies."

Thank you for being so kind as to print this article for me, I really appreciate it!

Two Consecutive Losses

The Aggies Fall To Rattlers 7-0

By Craig Turner

Florida A&M used a potent ground game to hand A&T its second straight defeat, 7-0, in Greensboro Saturday night.

A crowd of about 9,000 looked on in Memorial Stadium as the Aggie offense was held in check throughout much of the defensive struggle.

Fireworks were in short demand as neither club could muster much of a drive. However A&M did find a hole in the A&T armor.

After an unsuccessful series by A&T, the Rattlers needed only four plays to drive 72 yards to paydirt. The big gainer came on a second down burst of 60 yards up the A&T middle by fullback Carlos Swain.

Swain capped the drive two plays later with a two-yard touchdown plunge. Greg Coleman's point after sealed the 7-0 win with 10.14 to go in the first quarter.

A&T could muster only two serious drives the rest of the contest. One of these came near the end of the initial period. Quarterback Elsworth Turner started quickly by hitting tightend Mike Henderson for 19 yards on a look-in pattern. George Ragsdale ran for five yards. Turner then passed to splitend Dexter Feaster for ten more. Ragsdale added 12 more yards on two carries to the one yard line.

But on the first play of the second quarter, Turner fumbled the ball while trying to dive for the touchdown, giving possession to the Rattlers.

The last A&T threat came in the final stanza. Aided by a personal foul, A&T drove to the A&M twelve. But Ragsdale was dropped for a loss on first down.

Turner's next three tosses were incomplete as the A&M secondary covered every possible

Aggie receiver.

From there on, A&M simply took control and ran out the clock to secure the win.

The loss dropped A&T's record to 1-2 and Florida upped theirs to 2-0. The Aggies will face Johnson C. Smith next week here in Greensboro.

No Team Has Defeated The Aggies With Ease

By Michael R. Davis

The Aggies have experienced the second consecutive defeat. The first and second defeats resulted with scores of 0-7.

Both games could have gone either way. South Carolina State College, defending champions in the MEAC, didn't run away with the Aggies as some persons would have thought.

Florida A&M, supposedly dynamic, could not even perform a repeat of what happened in their first game against Albany, whom they beat by a margin of forty-seven points. The "Rattlers", however, were swift and anxious to defeat the Aggies. They, at the same time, realized that the Aggie defense is nothing to play with.

A&T does have a tremendously talented defense. No team has actually beaten the Aggies with ease. The talent is there, but what has to be discovered is when to display the right talent at the right time.

Fortunately, only one conference game has been lost and that was to the Bulldogs of S.C. State. The additional conference games come consecutively starting with Maryland-E. Shore in Greensboro on October 18 (Homecoming).

Between time, there are Norfolk State on the eleventh of October and Johnson C. Smith next Saturday on the fourth.

Being in a conference where only six other teams are the most important and with as much potential as A&T has both offensively and not to mention defensively, there is no reason why the Aggies should not be the MEAC champions of 1975.

Aggies' Strong Defense Holds Florida In Check

Most of the large crowd gathered at Greensboro's War Memorial Stadium this past Saturday night came out to see a high-powered Florida A&M offensive unit.

The preceding week the Rattlers blitzed Albany State 54-7 and the word was that Florida "WAS BACK." However, the highly partisan crowd got a big treat when the A&T defense limited the Rattlers to one touchdown.

The Aggie offense was able to do just about everything it wanted against the Florida defense...except score a touchdown.

Florida scored on its first series of plays with the big gainer coming on a sensational 60-yard run by Carlos Swain and was able to sustain the narrow margin enroute to a 7-0 win.

The game's most amazing statistic was that Florida did not complete a forward pass and finished the game with zero yards in the air.

A&T, led by sophomore quarterback Elsworth Turner, had a fine evening completing 17 of 25 passes for 162 yards.

His leading receiver was

All-MEAC flanker Dexter Feaster who had his finest hour catching seven passes for 75 yards.

The Aggies threatened on numerous occasions, however, were plagued by errors whenever they got close.

The Aggies will play CIAA rival Johnson C. Smith this week in Greensboro's Memorial Stadium. The Golden Bulls have a 2-1 record, their latest win, a 21-6 decision over Hampton Institute.

A&T and Smith have played Virginia Union this season. A&T defeated the Panthers 25-21 in the season opener for both teams, while Smith bowed to its CIAA opponent 16-15 in a contest played in Charlotte.

Florida A&M will play Howard University this week in the OIC Classic in Philadelphia, Pa. The Rattlers are 2-0.

The A&T Aggies are 1-2 overall and 0-1 in Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference play.
