HEW Withdraws Its Opposition

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. AP-The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has withdrawn its opposition to locating a new school of veterinary medicine at North Carolina State University, William Friday said Thursday.

After meeting with HEW officials in Washington, the University of North Carolina president said HEW now considers the decision "proper."

His statement was issued after meeting with Peter Holmes, head of HEW's office of Civil Rights, and other officials. Friday said he had also talked by telephone with new HEW Secretary David Matthews three times in the last 10 days.

HEW, before Matthews took over, had threatened to cut off federal aid to UNC if it did not adequately respond to allegations of footdragging on desegregating its university system.

The major complaint lodged by HEW was a decision to locate a proposed school of veterinary medicine at the predominantly white N.C. State. Predominantly Black North Carolina A&T University also asked to be considered as a site for the school.

Friday also refused to comment on whether any commitments had been made for programs at N.C. A&T to compensate for not having the vet school.

HEW's position until Thursday was that the UNC system had to give either the vet school or "a comparable facility" to N.C. A&T.

"The officials stated to me that the decision made by the university administration and (See Friday, Page 2)

Administrator Examines New Federal Position

By Benjamin T. Forbes

The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare's (HEW) decision to change its position concerning actions to withhold funds from the University of North Carolina system came as a shock to many at A&T.

Marshall Colston, vice-chancellor for development and university relations, stated that it would be incredible for HEW to betray Black institutions involved.

Continuing, Colston stated that, if HEW has made a concession with UNC President William Friday without insuring that the predominantly Black universities in the state will receive equal treatment, then the decision concerning the position taken by HEW is still a matter for the courts to decide.

Colston added that, if HEW had taken such action, that department would be in violation of Title Six of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Reemphasizing the fact that, if HEW made some kind of deal Colston explained that it would be up to the courts to rectify it.

In closing, Colston mentioned that everyone will have something to say when the complete facts are learned regarding the decision which took place in Washington, D.C., on Thursday with HEW and Friday.

Personnel Directors Give Optimistic View Of Jobs

Corporate personnel directors visiting Greensboro last Wednesday gave a cautiously optimistic picture about the possibility of jobs for next June's graduates.

"Last year this time, we had 100 positions," said Jack Smith, director of salaried employment for Burlington Industries. "The bottom fell out in September and we hired about 49 people.

This time we have around 114 firm openings."

Several thousand young people attended the day-long careers opportunity fair in Moore Gym.

Things actually do seem to be getting better. "We were really reduced because of the economy last year," said C.B. Rice, a placement counselor for salaried personnel with Dow Chemical USA in Midland, Mich. "In the coming hiring season we shall hire the 75 we hired last year plus 10 percent more."

W. I. Morris, director of placement counseling, said 64 national firms participated in the job fair.

"We are an engineering company and we must have fresh blood," said Alfred Gordon, manager of training for Singer Company in Little Falls, N.J. He said his firm anticipates hiring 18 or 20 engineers.

Besides the engineers, the firms mostly sought chemists, biologists, statisticians, industrial technologists, mathematicians, and physicists. A few firms, like Jones and Laughling Steel of Cleveland were looking at liberal arts majors.

Homecoming Will Be Exciting

By Carlese Blackwell

"This year's homecoming will be quite an event," stated Roosevelt O'Neal, president of the Student Union Advisory Board. According to O'Neal, the homecoming show will include "Donald Byrd and the Blackbirds" along with other local groups.

O'Neal explained that this would be only the beginning. Activities will be held in the Student Union immediately after the homecoming game. In addition, the SUAB will be sponsoring movies every night during homecoming week. On Friday, a special movie titled

"The Sting" will be shown at 10 p.m. in Harrison Auditorium.

On Thursday, October 16, "A&T Jazz Band" and the "Black Haze Group" of Winston-Salem will perform in Moore Gymnasium.

For the annual Homecoming Dance, which will be Saturday, October 18, from 9:00-1:00 a.m., the SUAB has planned a night of entertainment. The groups of "Funk House", the "Magnificants", and "Donald Byrd and the Black Byrds" will appear.

Queen's Court To Dress In Attire Of Four Eras

By Shirley Bullard

"A Blast From the Past: Through Aggeland," is the theme of this year's Aggie Homecoming celebration, as chosen by the reigning "Miss A&T", Christal Watson.

Christal decided to display the progress A&T has made through these four eras: 1890's, 1920's, 1950's and 1970's.

"Miss A&T's" court and other queens who will participate will select fashions depicting the eras of the 20's, 50's, and 70's. Christal's court consists of Reba Green, senior attendant; Phyllis Smith, junior attendant; Robin Dixon, sophomore attendant; and Sandra Ingram freshman attendant.

The coronation for "Miss A&T" will be held on Thursday, October 16, at 8:00p.m. Music will be furnished by the jazz band and the Gospel Choir.

Dr. Meada Shipman was one of the lecturers at the interview clinic held Wednesday.

Alpha Kappa Mu Expects Expansion Of Activities

By Lucinda Moore

The Alpha Kappa Mu Honor Society expects to cultivate a more vital and productive society, this year, by incorporating new and more extensive activities.

According to Hattie Brown, president of Alpha Kappa Mu, the society has been relatively inactive, outside of the traditional invitational processes, participation in the Award's Day Program, and attendance at the National Convention.

This year's wide range activities will commence October 24 with a Costume Dance, to be held in the Student Union. The cost is $.50 per person, and a prize will be awarded for the best costume.

On November 21, a raffle will be held to give away fruit and a turkey.

December will find the society's members clad in semiformal attire at The Alpha Kappa Mu Christmas Dance. The dance is to be held for both graduate and undergraduate members of the society.

Then, in February, the society plans to hold formal debates with other campus societies on current topics. The debates will be attended by guests and refreshments will be served.

The society plans a formal dinner for the month of April, 1976. The dinner will feature a guest speaker, to be named later. Also, the dinner will provide ample music for dancing festivities. The anticipated cost is $10.00 per ticket.

The society will continue to participate in traditional ceremonies, as well. The Thirty-Eighth National Convention of Alpha Kappa Mu Honor Society will be held in Memphis, Tennessee, in March, 1976.

"At present, initiation activities are being conducted. We have fifty persons who wish to pledge. I hope their interest will be strong enough for them to adhere to the organization's requirements," says Hattie Brown. The society hopes for a considerable increase in membership. There are but nineteen members, at present.

When asked about the personal benefits of belonging to the society, Gilbert Casterlow, society advisor, commented that the organization affords, "An opportunity for persons of high achievement to work together for a common goal. Furthermore, membership in Alpha Kappa Mu affords employment benefits too, according to Casterlow.

"A member of A.K.M. immediately gets an additional G-S rating in governmental jobs," he disclosed.

Job Clinic Informs Many Students

By Harold Carter

"Know yourselves and you will be able to sell yourselves during a job interview".

These were the words of W.I. Morris, director of the placement center, which sponsored an interview clinic for seniors and graduating students Wednesday in Merrick Auditorium.

Morris said that the purpose of the clinic was to acquaint the students with the dynamics that take place during a job interview. Approximately 300 students participated in the clinic.

Sessions were held at four different times beginning at 9:00 a.m. and ending at 4:00 p.m.

Dr. Meada Shipman, acting chairman of the Business Education Department, presided over the clinic. She explained the importance of the interview resume. Dr. Shipman also stressed the importance of first impressions that exist in the job interview.

The students were enlightened as to how they should dress during the interview by Miss Annie B. Herbin, instructor of Humanities.

"You don't have to dress like a king or queen, but you should dress appropriately. Different jobs require different modes of dress," she said.

Morris said that the clinic was sponsored primarily for seniors and graduating students; however, he welcomed all students. Morris stressed that students should not wait until their senior year to get involved in the activities of the placement center.

Friday Considers Issue Of Vet School 'Closed'

Board of Governors to locate the school of veterinary medicine on the campus of North Carolina State University was acceptable because it was based on solid factual information that indicated the decision was a proper one," Friday said.

"I now consider that issue as closed," he said.

Friday said HEW officials told him that "their principal concern was really the completion of the long range plan which will project the future of all the 16 institutions. They were particularly interested in a study we're doing of the five predominantly Black institutions."

"I would say that there has been a much better meeting of the minds as to what we're trying to do. It's quite clear they understand as we do that money isn't the way some of these problems are going to be solved," the UNC president said.

"We now have a much fuller understanding of what is required for long range planning," Friday said.

Friday said three-fourths of Thursday's three-hour meeting concerned long-range planning. He said planning discussions will continue for three to six months and that HEW officials will be periodically advised as a long range plan emerges.

Stevenson.
The issue of the meeting was class dues and other means of obtaining funds for homecoming and for activities scheduled throughout the year.

Suggestions for fund-raising activities were made such as, a Christmas dance, a splash party, movies, and a car wash.

Madeline Claggin, secretary of the sophomore class, stressed the fact that the sophomore class has to have money to make money. Only sixteen dollars from High Rise was collected for class dues. Suggestions were made for persons being appointed in the other dorms and the Union to collect class dues. Forms of notification were also discussed to make sophomores more aware of when meetings will be held.

Eleven Members Of A&T Family Compose University Tribunal

By Zavery McDougald

"In the past the relationship between faculty and student members has been exceedingly praiseworthy." This remark was made by Dr. Waverlyn Rice, chairman and presiding officer of the University Judicial Tribunal.

The Tribunal consists of six faculty members and five students, who are approved by the Chancellor. Dr. Rice explained that any change in the structure of the Tribunal has to be finally approved by the Board of Trustees.

The members of the Tribunal are Dr. Alfred Hill, professor of biology; Mrs. Nan Manuel, associate professor of mathematics; Dr. Wendell Jones, chairman of the Mathematics Department; Mrs. Carrie Walden, assistant professor of nursing; and Dr. Marion Blair of the Transportation Institute.

Student members are Ted Mangum, SGA president; Ann Brown, president of the Women's Council; David Timmons, president of the Men's Council, and Norman Smith, representative from the Men's Council.

The Tribunal meets every Wednesday to review cases sent to it from the dean of men, the dean of women, campus security, and from others making charges.

In closing, Dr. Rice said, "All members seem to have the welfare of the university at heart."

Choirs Reveal Travel Schedules

By Shirley Bullard

The University and Gospel choirs, under the direction of L. Roberson and Mrs. Yvonne Haygood Smith, respectively, have disclosed their schedules for the 1975 school year.

Tours of the Midwestern states by the University Choir will include New Orleans, Louisiana; Birmingham, Alabama; Dallas, Tyler, and Houston, Texas. It will also perform in various cities across the state.

The colleges the choir will be visiting are Texas Southern, Tyler College, Texas State, Bishop College and Augustana State College.

The Gospel choir will perform at many churches in the community and across the state. It will also participate in a competitive choir parade in Louisville, Kentucky, during the Thanksgiving holidays. Numerous Black Colleges across the country will participate.

The gospel choir won the title of the Best Black Gospel Choir in the Nation of Black Colleges last year when the Gospel Festival was held in Atlanta, Georgia.

To assist them with their tours, both choirs will appreciate any donations or fund-raising projects.

Students And Workers Dispute Over Cleanup

By Gaynessa Allen

Cigarette butts, potato chip bags, and candy wrappers are a few of the many articles that sometime find their way to the floor of the Union Building during some part of the day.

Workers in this building claim that they do their part, but students don't seem to take the initiative to simply clean up after themselves when in the Union building.

Students, on the other hand, feel that the workers are here to do a job and that is to clean the Union; therefore, if there is nothing to clean, they don't really have a job. A&T students simply seem to disagree with the workers as to whose job it is to keep the Union clean.

Workers finally comment that, if the students compromise with workers and simply discard their papers and wrappers in receptacles after use, the usual work of the cleaning staff would make for a neater and cleaner Union.

The Heating Plant Relies On Weather Conditions

By Patricia A. Owens

The dorms will get heat when it gets cold enough as stated by Merrill H. Watson, supervisor of the heating and power plant.

October 15 was usually the regular date for heat to be turned on. Because of the unpredictable changes in the weather, the heating plant has to rely on a stabilization of the weather.

The process of heating the campus begins with the opening of the heating valves. It will take a day for the valves to be opened in each building. The heat will first reach the Child Development building and girls dorms on the south side of campus. The heat will then reach the north side of campus.

However, the real decision of when the heat will be turned on all depends on the weather.

Important!!

The pictures of the homecoming queens of all campus organizations will be taken in the A&T Register's office on Tuesday, October 7 from 10:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m.; and Friday, October 10, from 11:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m.

Prisons Need Help Now

The current prison riots and uproars in several states across the nation are getting to be an everyday thing. The general public doesn't seem to know why these prisoners are beginning to fight for their rights.

There are hardly any states which aren't experiencing crowded conditions in the jails and prisons. However, what is so distressing about it is the fact that very little is being done to remedy the situations.

Some states are saying they have a money crunch and that their budgets won't permit relief at this time. These states had better find the money from somewhere or they may end up regretting it. The federal courts have moved to bring about a halt to this situation in some states. This same type of help is needed in North Carolina also.

The situation is horrible in many states. The situation is such that there is no way possible to rehabilitate the inmates under the present conditions. One would expect the prisoners to receive job training and attitude improvement assistance designed to enhance their becoming better citizens upon their release from prison. Instead, the inmates go through experiences that can't help but produce hardened criminals.

Many people have placed the blame on the state legislatures for letting the prisons deteriorate. Another reason cited for the deterioration was that most of the prison population has been Black. If this is true, it can be easily seen why there is neglect.

But, this isn't the time for pointing fingers, since what is needed is action to improve the situation. We need to get the legislators to see that no state can keep dumping these people into dungeon-type facilities and overcrowded cells, where there is no planning to give them something constructive to do.

There is a need for enlightened leadership and legislative support in all states to help the public realize that improved treatment of prisoners is a must. If this does not happen, we can only expect crime to become worse. One thing we can be sure of is that crowded prisons will not help matters.

A Salute To Famous Blacks

Dr. Lois B. Kinney, professor of Speech Communication, has requested and received permission from the Register Staff to include in the paper notes penned and or spoken by Blacks.

Captioning these notes, "Out of the Mouths of Black Folk", Dr. Kinney stated that miniature biographies of famous Black Americans, together with statements attributed to them, will be a regular feature in The Register once a week (Friday) throughout the remainder of the Bicentennial observance.

The notes will reflect the thrusts of the significant rhetorical strategies that have been utilized cyclically throughout the years by Blacks in their search of the "American Dream".

Although the official calendar of Campus Bicentennial events has not been officially released, programs and other features have been taking place, retroactively and will continue to be presented throughout the Bicentennial observance, which ends October, 1976.

A number of schools and departments have already submitted tentative dates that they intend to fill out with interesting programs and events. Other schools and departments have promised to do likewise in the coming weeks.

Dr. Lois Kinney

Out Of The Mouths Of Black Folk

While still a very young man, Charles Lenox Remond, a distinguished looking Black abolitionist, gifted with natural eloquence, became the first Black to speak publicly against slavery. Today's quote is taken from Remond's speech before the New England Anti-Slavery Convention.

"I know, Mr. Chairman, that I am not as a general thing, a peacemaker. I am irritable, excitable, quarrelsome—I confess it, Sir, and my prayer to God is, that I may never cease to be irritable, that I may never cease to be excitable, that I may never cease to be quarrelsome, until the last slave shall be made free in our country and the colored man's manhood acknowledged."

I tried everything I could to get the Vet School here

The Time Is Drawing Near

By Daryl E. Smith

The sudden reversal by HEW to withdraw its support from A&T and the veterinary school of medicine issue has left this reporter with a sickening feeling and an emotional outburst of rage.

The time is drawing near when all the lines of confrontation will be drawn and the "Aggie born, Aggie bred" spirit will have to come out in force.

The sides have already been formed with Gerald Ford, Jesse Helms, Robert Morgan, William Friday, and David Matthews all bunched together on the "Copperheads" Political team.

Yes, A&T students and faculty feel that we are more than justified and qualified for the school to be placed on our campus. William Friday may consider the issue "closed", but the supporters and students here at A&T may not consider the issue closed at all.

For those students who are striving to obtain their prospective goals here at A&T, remember a chain is no stronger than the link next to it, and A&T has a history of producing men and women who are intelligent.

The time is coming when we as students, supporters of A&T, and faculty members will have to use our intelligence to beat the "system."

Munson Elaborates On Cafeteria Meal Rates

TO OUR STUDENTS:

Boarding students are identified for admittance to the cafeteria by photo identification and a meal sticker with number, which are issued during registration.

Upon entering the cafeteria and at the check out stand, all boarding students are required to give their ID's to the doorman and the check out persons without having to be asked. This scrutinization is for your protection.

The low meal rate is based on a predicted number of students missing meals. If you were being charged for every meal it would be permissible to allow non-boarding students to use your meal stickers.

If we were to charge for every meal many of our students would not be able to attend school since an over-whelming number of students are receiving financial aid.

We know that we will have a certain "missed meal" factor and we keep the cost of the meal stickers low by rebating this savings back to the students by charging them less for their meal stickers than what would prevail if this were not considered. On the other hand, if students were to allow non-boarding students to use their meal stickers, this miss meal will not prevail and the board rate would increase, and, consequently, many of our students could not attend. We do not intend to have the board rate raised. We need to educate as many of our Black people as possible.

The personnel of the Food Service Department will do their part to maintain the lowest board rate possible and will try to furnish as many jobs as possible for our students. Upon this fact, allow me to reiterate, your meal sticker is not transferable; it can be used only by the person it was issued to. The owner will be held responsible for any attempted use by another person.

Some of our students who have visited other schools in this area make the mistake of comparing these schools generally, and specifically the Food Service Department in relation to the quantity of food offered. To make a justifiable comparison between any two subjects, one must have the qualification and the background knowledge to consider both subjects in their entirety. Bananas can not be compared with crockneck squash nor can apples be compared with oranges.

For three well balanced meals daily our students pay $1.86 which computes out at $0.62 per meal, or $13.02 per week or $222.50 per semester.

For $0.62 a meal, students may receive one serving of a choice of three entrees (meat item), two servings of starchy vegetables, two servings of green and yellow vegetables, one dessert, and unlimited quantities of sliced bread, salads (five choices) and beverages (five choices).

The other school that is similar to ours has two meal plans:

The fourteen meal plan--In this meal plan the student is only allowed fourteen meals per week in which he pays $14.42 per week or $1.03 per meal or $245.00 per semester.

The second meal plan (similar to ours)--In this meal plan the student is allowed three meals per day seven days per week for which he pays $17.41 per week or $2.49 per day or $0.83 per meal or $295.95 per semester.

Most of their students are females who are quite active and highly conscious of their appearance and physical make-up. Consequently their diet is composed of mainly toast and coffee, sandwiches, soups, salads and other light foods such as fish, vegetables and fruits. They know what to eat and how to eat because they have been exposed to more and a greater variety of food. Therefore they lend more of their time considering more important things like their academic endeavors. They pay more but it costs much less to feed them and much less to maintain their activities.

If a student at A&T loses a meal sticker, he may secure a temporary one until the Food Service Department finds the lost or stolen sticker. The cost to A&T student is nothing. If a student at the other school loses a meal card, he pays $50.00 for replacement.

Apples are grown and cultivated in a different climate than oranges.

To avoid congestion in serving areas the cafeteria is equipped with four serving lines, each with designated numbers for serving. Please read your cafeteria bulletin as you enter the building. You will find our meal schedule and the correct lines serving your number. Please follow the written material for smooth service.

All meals are served cafeteria style. Each student is required to bus his own tray to the designated tray return area.

Guests are not permitted in the dining room unless a guest ticket is purchased at the door.

Due to the possibility of foreign sharp edged items and other hazards, students are cautioned that barefeet may be unsafe in the dining room. You are required to be fully dressed in the dining room. Shirts must be worn and athletic shorts are not permitted in the cafeteria.

Seconds are available on all food items except meats and desserts. Seconds are permitted when you are in the serving line the initial time. You are only permitted in the serving line once.

In order for all boarding students to receive full benefits of food service and in order to maintain our low rates, it is necessary to have certain protective restrictions. The rate per meal is not adequate to allow containers of beverages or loaves of bread to be taken out of the cafeteria, nor is it adequate to have non-paying free-loaders to enter. We ask you to help us help you by taking only the amount of food that you can eat. Please do not take any food from the cafeteria. Only fruits, cookies or potato chips may be taken out.

Special diets requested by campus physicians are honored.

We are staffed with qualified dietitians to render service for any modified diet. All raw resources are available to us. However, diets for health reasons, religious preferences, or other reasons are not available.

Dishes, silverware, glasses, and other ware are not to be taken from the dining rooms under any circumstances.

When we speak, we tell the listener many things: our origin, our intellect, our parental teachings and the effect that slavery still has on us.

Have you ever lent thought to why we are so destructive, and why we are so hostile toward each other?

Try this. When our foreparents were subjected to slavery, they learned the traits of not the rich plantation owners, but those of the poor whites whom they had as supervisors and, as they called them, "over seers and bosses".

We have been literally taught to hate each other. We were the scape goats for the poor whites who taught us to be envious of their masters. This teaching perpetuated itself and has been passed from one generation to the other. Some of us are so possessed with it, it is even visible on our faces. Hate, envy, destructive criticism, and "I cursed him out" make up a great part of our nervous system.

Several students were interviewed by the Carolina Peacemaker several weeks ago relative to the first day back to school. Their first comments were that the dormitories were ridiculous and the food was bad. The true effect of what slavery and suppression did to our minds is out of the realms of preception.

It is a fact, however sad, we as a people have learned to look for the worse and bent on destructive criticism. To hate, to snare, to be envious, and to be unkind to each other seems to be a way of life with us.

We make available for our students and guests food and service that can enrich them physically and educationally. What is available to you and what you take advantage of can mean the difference between an "A" or an "F". Our menus are so well balanced that, when chosen and consumed correctly, they will enhance your entire life mentally, physically and emotionally. You can not receive a balanced diet anywhere for $0.62.

We understand that you have not had the opportunity to be exposed to the variety of foods that are served and we would like for you to understand that we can not cook like your parents. But we are trying. Keep in mind, you are what you choose to eat.

Eating is any ugly sight. Observe us while we are eating with our hats on, opened mouths, crouched over our food, both hands and elbows on the table. Eating can also be refined and dignified. If left alone we would grow up ignorant, but, to be refined we must be carefully taught.

I speak of etiquette not just at the dinner table, but etiquette in playing sports, traveling, meeting people, being courteous to each other, job interviews, radio and television interviews, etc. Knowing how to conduct oneself is knowledge in itself. Good etiquette is essential in all our endeavors. Without good etiquette, landing a good job is out of the question.

There is not a course set up for teaching etiquette, but we will be glad to render the service to anyone who might request it. We are here to serve you.

Stevenson Is Involved With School Politics

By Maxine McNeill

Donovan Stevenson, sophomore class president, has been involved in the political system here at A&T since his freshman year. Besides being sophomore class president this year, Donovan was also the president of his freshman class last year.

When asked what made him decide to run for president of the sophomore class, Donovan replied, "I felt that I did a good job while I was a freshman class president. I held the freshman class together good. I got the support of most of the freshman class."

Because of the lack of participation within the sophomore class, all the sophomore officers, excluding the president, were appointed. Donovan ran unopposed. He had the right to choose his officers.

Concerning the sophomores Donovan said, "We have a lot of apathy around here. The purpose of these offices is to advise the sophomore class as a whole and as one. I feel the people I elected to fill these offices will work along with me."

Donovan said he felt he accomplished a lot of things last year. The only one he mentioned, though, was that he helped the freshman class bring their thoughts and ideas together. He also wouldn't reveal how he accomplished that.

"More sophomores should get involved in the political system at A&T and pay their dues," said Donovan. "Homecoming is the sophomore class's biggest festivity. After that not much money is left in the sophomore treasury."

Donovan has a lot of activities that he would like the sophomore class to carry out. He said he would like the sophomore class to sponsor a Ball at the end of the year, a jam at the Cosmos, clean up campaign and a voter registration drive on campus.

Donovan feels that A&T has lost a lot of its true purpose of originality. That purpose, said Donovan, is to bring about unity among Blacks. "When students think of A&T all that's on their minds is partying."

The Bicentennial is a very important issue among Black America. When Donovan was asked whether he thought Blacks should join in the celebration, he replied, "The homecoming theme is directly related to the Bicentennial. A&T has nothing to lose by celebrating it because Blacks have always been cheated; but, without Blacks, this country couldn't function."

"A lot of people run for offices just for the publicity," said Donovan. "I didn't though." Donovan said he ran for the sake of his sophomore class.

Booster Club Supports Sports

A dedicated group of supporters of A&T State University is having quite an impact on the university's thriving athletic program. The 175 member Aggie Booster Club is composed of doctors, lawyers, teachers, businessmen, postmen, ministers, coaches, dentists, and other professionals and non professionals who give of their time, energies and money to assist the Aggies' sports program.

As an example of their interest, the Boosters have already pledged more than $20,000 toward a new Aggie football stadium, even before the official fundraising campaign begins.

The organization recently learned of the need for an automatic icemaker in the Athletic Department. Within two weeks, the Boosters had purchased and installed a $1,000 machine in the A&T athletic fieldhouse.

The Boosters meet regularly each Monday evening in their clubhouse beneath the Greensboro Memorial Stadium. They are generally addressed by coaches, visiting officials, and local sports dignitaries.

They also sponsor bus trips to many of the out-of-town football and basketball games.

Que Psi Phi Fraternity Takes Patients To Fair

By Michael H. Hailey

Some members of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity took the opportunity to chaperon about twenty mentally disturbed adults to the Greensboro Agricultural Fair last Thursday. The adults were residents of the McDuff Center for the Mentally Impaired. "It was an experience I'll never forget," stated Sidney Britt, a member of the fraternity.

Others who helped assist the adults were Keith Walters, Earnest Frieson, Edward Dean Thomas, Michael Bennett, and Malcolm McDuff.

At the fair, the adults toured the grounds for about an hour playing the games of chance with money they had. One adult, Billy, dunked the clown into the water, and responded as though it was his greatest achievement.

Although it had been raining and was misty, the group, nevertheless, had the time of their lives.

Ronnie's Sunoco should get the fisherman of the year award. They have just caught a 2,000 pounder.

A&T Voice Instructor Will Give Alto Solos

Judith W. Pinnix, an instructor in voice at A&T, has been selected to do the alto solos in Bruckner's !!Cte Deum!! which will be performed with the Greensboro Symphony November 25.

Ms. Pinnix received a BM degree from Eastman School of Music, Rochester, New York, and also has a performers's certificate from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. She has concertized throughout the eastern section of the United States as well as Italy and has been a performing member of the Chautauqua Opera Company in Chautauqua, New York.

SPORTS NOTEBOOK

By Craig Turner

It has been three weeks since A&T has scored a point. The string of eight scoreless quarters goes back to the season's opener when the Aggies beat Virginia Union.

The offense registered 25 points in that game but has been quieted against South Carolina State and Florida A&M the last couple of weeks.

After being manhandled by State, head coach Hornsby Howell junked the Veer and went strictly to the "I" formation to bolster the ground game against Florida.

There was some improvement last Saturday against A&T as the Aggies managed to gain some headway by way of foot. However, it is still obvious that the big offensive weapon for A&T is the pass, regardless of what you may hear or read.

Until the Aggies can come up with something on the ground besides George Ragsdale, A&T's foes may just totally disregard everything else in the Aggie backfield except Elsworth Turner.

For those of you who may not have heard, South Carolina State is standing in front of the line that is trying to grab the MEAC crown. The Bulldogs gave Howard some of the same treatment they gave A&T by blasting the Bison 27-0 in Orangeburg, S.C.

North Carolina Central had played Alcorn A&M to a near stand still the last couple of years. So it had appeared before last Saturday that Eagles stood a pretty good chance in Durham last week against the Braves, at first glance.

The final 54-7 count would indicate that Central was slightly overmatched. This goes just one step further in enhancing the power of SWAC, (Southwest Athletic Conference) over the MEAC. We cannot compete.

Coach Howell said earlier this week that A&T was "going to beat some people...big." It seems like there isn't a better time to start than right now.

A&T is long overdue for win of any kind, large or small. So, on that basis, here are this week's pick:

Mike Davis.....	A&T
Nicie Cannon.....	A&T
Blannie Bowen.....	A&T
Craig R. Turner.....	A&T

Go! Fight! Win!

James Lilly (9) heads for a hole created by the offensive line in the game against F.A.M.U.

Feaster Receives MEAC Honor

By Craig Turner

Dexter Feaster, a 6-2, 195 pound wide receiver, was named the MEAC's outstanding offensive lineman this week by the sports information directors of the conference.

Feaster was a first team all MEAC selection a year ago. The Charlotte native led the league in pass receptions and touchdown catches just a season ago.

The junior recreation major has been off to a somewhat slow start up until last weekend when he caught seven passes for 75 yards against Florida A&M.

Feaster has seen several different secondary alignments, most of which place double coverage on him.

"I'll see a lot of deep zones because I got deep on defensive backs a lot last year," Feaster said.

When faced with man-to-man coverage Feaster is confident of himself. "Defensive backs shouldn't try to cover me man-to-man. They make sure to play zone," he added.

Double coverage often leaves other receivers open for catches. Feaster explained what happens when this situation occurs.

"When they double up, that leaves James Lilly and Walter Bennett free. I've got plenty of confidence in them. Mike Henderson does a good job too," he stated.

Feaster attributed much of his success to being a defensive back his freshman year at A&T.

"I know where the help is coming from. I can read the secondary's moves," he explained.

It doesn't hurt to have speed at the receiver's slot. Feaster's sprinter's like speed was clocked at 4.5 seconds over forty yards. But the league's best pass catcher doesn't think speed is everything.

"It's mostly just being able to get open, and speed is a part of that. It makes you a double threat if you can combine the two," he added. The split end will start against Johnson C.

Smith, a private college from his hometown.

When asked if this would get a special effort from him this Saturday, Feaster said, "I always like to win. I try to put everything I've got into it so I won't let my teammates down."

Dexter also had his own personal reasons for wanting to beat Smith this week.

"I got to go home this year," he said.

Students Show Interest In School Intramurals

By Michael R. Davis

Usually after dinner there are crowds of people who gather in front of the cafeteria, Hines, and Holland Hall to watch intramural football. Just who is who in the intramurals?

Graduate student, Ernest L. Gaskin, who is pursuing a master's degree in counseling, is in charge of the intramural games here. Selected by athletic authorities, "Red" as he is nicknamed, sees to it that the games are started on time each day.

The games are every afternoon Monday thru Thursday at 4p.m. Gaskin says that the first two weeks of intramurals are preseasonal. The actual regular competition starts Monday, October 6, 1975.

Elimination will be in effect during the regular season, he added.

Among the participants are the Iotas, Kappas, Omegas, the Pershing Rifles and the Veterans. Most teams choose names like Red Devils, Bucks, Lila Bees, and so forth.

Gaskin said, "If more money were submitted for the program, it would be better."

He also made plain basketball intramurals will most likely add the one-on-one competition this coming season.

When asked if tennis and swimming would involve intramural interests, he said, "It depends on the request and interest of students because usually intramurals include team sports."

A&T Will Try To Gain Revenge

By Craig Turner

A&T will try to regain some measure of revenge this Saturday night as they will entertain the Golden Bulls of Johnson C. Smith.

The Charlotte school boasts the "Cinderella" team of the CIAA (Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association). The offense has carried the Bulls thus far in 1975.

Coach Eddie McGirt's club will feature a pro set offense which is primed for the passing game.

Quarterback James Wideman (6-1,180) emerged from the shadows of now departed Luther Carter. Wideman is the brother of former A&T tackle William Wideman.

His prime targets for arrivals will be splintered Demetrius Parker and Tightend Phil Richardson (6-3,220).

The ground gainers are Larry

Mathis, Herb Carmicheal, and fullback Jesse Butts, a 6-2,215 pounder.

Blocking has not been a problem in a 2-1 campaign so far behind guards Mel Samuels (6-4,270) and James Smith (6-4,275).

The defense is hurting for experience and some depth but a massive front line is intact.

Running will be a problem against Smith's middle with Roger Reid (6-0,289) and preseason CIAA choice Ron Corley an incredible 6-4, 315 pounds at the tackles.

Game time for the inter-league clash is 7:00 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

Band Director Expects To Project A&T's Band

band director, said, "On October 6, the marching band will be at Four Seasons Mall at 7p.m. playing for Fire Prevention Week."

He continued, "I'm trying to project the A&T band into the community stream. We have to show viable participation in the community as well as at the basketball and football game. Asked who composes the various dialogue used during the half-time shows, Williams said, "I compose the material myself."
