Greensboro Attorney Says

Vet School Issue Is Not Settled

RALEIGH AP--A Greensboro attorney insisted Friday that the location of North Carolina's first veterinary school is still far from settled.

Norman Smith said the issue of whether the school should be located at predominantly white N.C. State University or at nearly all Black A&T State University is still pending in federal court.

Smith made his comments after President William C. Friday of the University of North Carolina said he now considers the location of the veterinary school a closed issue.

Friday said this after the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare apparently withdrew its objections to locating the school at N. C. State.

Smith pointed out that a suit pending in federal court which seeks to completely integrate the 16 campuses of the University of North Carolina system asks a judgment requiring the university to locate the veterinary school at A&T.

"No indeed, the matter is in court," Smith said. "I don't see why Friday is going around saying he has got the vet school in the bag. It's not that way at all."

Friday and his staff have long held that N. C. State is the best site for the veterinary school because many of the facilities it would require are already present at N. C. State. The UNC Board of Governors followed Friday's recommendation and voted to place the school at N. C. State.

Last spring, HEW said the decision violated UNC's desegregation plan which HEW had approved. It said the school should be located at A&T or that A&T should receive a comparable facility. It threatened to take action to halt the flow of federal aid funds to the 16 university campuses which amount to $80 to $100 million a year.

After conferring with HEW officials in Washington, D. C., Thursday, Friday told newsmen the federal officials had advised him the decision to locate the veterinary school at N. C. State was "acceptable because it was based on factual information that indicated the decision was a proper one."

Peter Holmes, head of HEW's Office of Civil Rights, acted as if the issued had never existed, but he indicated that the threat of eliminating federal aid because of non-compliance with desegregation requirements lingered.

"We will continue to have a legal problem with the state if they do not make the progress," Friday has pledged, Holmes said. He said HEW would keep a close eye on UNC's program.

Friday said the concern of the HEW officials "was really the completion of the long-range plan which will protect the future of all the 16 institutions. They were particularly interested in a study we're doing of the five predominantly Black institutions."

Veterinary School Issue

Chancellor Releases Statement

By Daryl E. Smith

The recent statement from William Friday, president of the University of North Carolina, that HEW has reversed its previous commitment on the veterinary school of medicine has brought statements from a cross section of people in the community and from the administration here at A&T.

Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, chancellor, has released a statement concerning the sudden changes of events surrounding the veterinary issue.

The statement said, "If the recent newspaper accounts are correct, we are disappointed that the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare has reversed itself on a strong stand that was previously taken relative to correcting some of the inequities and injustices of the past.

"By changing this stance, HEW has missed a golden opportunity to achieve its own announced objective of assuring wider opportunities and integration for the predominantly Black colleges and universities.

"I am sure that this latest move is distressing to all people who have been looking to HEW to provide increased opportunities for the minorities in our population.

"From the beginning, the efforts of A&T State University to obtain the proposed school of veterinary medicine have been conducted on a high level, and the University has maintained only that we are qualified to operate such a program.

"We really wanted the opportunity to destroy, once and for all, the myth that a historically Black institution could not establish and maintain a highly qualified professional program.

"If HEW has reversed its stance, we shall have to await the decision of the courts to resolve this issue.

"We shall still look to Dr. Friday and the Board of Governors to provide the necessary funds to upgrade predominantly Black institutions and to provide funds for additional attractive programs."

Dr. Dowdy ended his statements by saying, "This decision will not deter us from seeking the necessary funds to upgrade attractive programs."

Former Managing Editor Advises Journalism Class

By Mary E. Cropps

A visit from an A&T graduate brought some useful and interesting information to a journalism class here Monday. Cassandra Wynn, a 1974 graduate of A&T and former managing editor of The A&T Register, gave Mrs. Loreno Marrow's journalism class some pointers on choosing a graduate school and a field of study.

Cassandra told the class that a Ph.D. or an advanced degree can be useful to Blacks. She said such degrees would make finding a job easier.

For Blacks who want to pursue advanced degrees,

Cassandra said, the money is there. Graduate schools need Blacks enrolled in order to continue to receive federal money, she explained.

Cassandra, who attends Iowa State University as a graduate student, was here for the purpose of recruiting students to attend graduate school. She told the class that there are two types of financial aid offered to graduate students-fellowships and assistantships.

Fellowships pay a student's tuition plus provide him with extra money, Cassandra explained. Assistantships provide the student with a job and offer him reduced fees.

Some of Cassandra's personal experiences included living through a blizzard and sub-zero weather. She commented on the fact that leaving A&T and going to a predominantly white institution was a "cultural shock". Of the 21,000 students at Iowa State, Cassandra said, only 350 of them are Black. But with 350 Blacks you can always find a party, Cassandra observed.

Greensboro's Leaders Should Support A&T

HEW's recent decision to change its stand on the location of the proposed school of veterinary medicine has helped to strengthen my belief that the city of Greensboro doesn't really care about A&T at all. Not one city official has spoken up in behalf of A&T on this issue.

One would think that, with elections coming up next month, the city councilmen and other city officials would be ready to jump on A&T's side, if for no reason other than to enhance their chances of getting the city's Black vote. On the other hand, maybe they think they already have the Black vote regardless of how they stand on the vet school issue. Then too, maybe they think that they don't necessarily need the Black vote in order to be elected. Either of the latter two opinions would require that the officials have extremely warped minds.

However, re-election should not be the primary concern of the city officials. They should also be concerned with A&T for the benefit of the city's economy. Research has shown that A&T generates approximately $41 million to the Greensboro community. We all know that during these inflationary times, no city can afford to lose $41 million.

Then too, the Black city officials of Greensboro should be especially concerned about the welfare of A&T. Anybody should be able to realize that, without A&T, the city of Greensboro would have no appeal to Blacks at all. And, as the percentage of Blacks in the city decreases, so does the chance of a Black being elected to a city office.

The above stated reasons should make it quite evident that A&T is a very necessary part of the Greensboro community. It would be in the best interest of the city if the citizens saw to it that those officials elected in the upcoming elections were the ones who would serve in the best interest of A&T on future issues.

HEW - To Do Or Not To Do ?

By Benjamin T. Forbes

University of North Carolina President William Friday said last Thursday that "I consider the (vet school) issue closed." However, Friday doesn't seem to understand that he isn't the only one the issue concerns. I am sure everyone here at A&T has noticed this flaw in Friday's statement.

This writer never thought such a decision by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) would come as quickly as it did, but neither did I expect to see David Mathews, who was President of the University of Alabama become secretary of HEW. Mathews just happens to be a friend of Friday's.

Along with HEW's decision on the vet school issue there was another mild shock experienced by this reporter. This shock came in the form of a statement made by the federal Office for Civil Rights Director Peter Holmes, who mentioned that the decision was not based on where the vet school should be located, but instead on the ability of Black institutions to compete with predominantly white institutions for the same programs. Earlier in the year Holmes had insisted on withholding federal funds from the UNC system.

Someone said that, with Mathews being the new secretary of HEW and coming from the South, he would be more tolerant of UNC's situation. The person that suggested this was absolutely right. The slogan that "Birds of a feather flock together," certainly applies in this case.

The decision of HEW to withdraw its opposition concerning the location of the proposed school of veterinary medicine was a slap in the face to A&T; but, before this issue is settled, that slap in the face to A&T will become a pain in the neck to those persons who thought HEW's decision was "proper". HEW's definition of "proper" must be different from that of Webster's.

HEW's decision not only affected A&T, but Black institutions in North Carolina as well. The UNC Board of Governors now has to upgrade the programs at Black colleges in the state. Some may say that the UNC Board of Governors is doing as much as it can to do this. But such a statement is false in that it took a threat from the ABA (American Bar Association) to withdraw accreditation of North Carolina Central's law school before the Board of Governors met in an emergency session to grant the needed money to save the law school. Yet, the law school still needs more money to improve its programs. Surely the board isn't doing all it can to aid Black schools.

For those persons who think the issue is closed and settled, students at A&T and the four other predominantly Black universities (North Carolina Central, Fayetteville State, Winston-Salem State, and Elizabeth City State) can strongly reply, "We have not yet begun to fight."

A&T Graduate To Perform Here

A concert by Greensboro's own Margaret Tynes, soprano with the Metropolitan Opera, will highlight the 1975-76 Lyceum and Art Series at A&T.

Miss Tynes, an A&T graduate, will climax the series with an appearance next March 1 at 8 p.m. in the Richard B. Harrison Auditorium.

The initial performance in the series will be readings by dramatic monologist, Robert Earl Jones on Monday at 8 p.m.

The series will also include a concert by Jessy Dixon and the Dixon Singers on November 10 and a concert by the internationally known Rod Rodgers Dance Company on March 22-27.

The art exhibits will include the North Carolina Art Society Annual Traveling Exhibit, November 16-December 16; Ben Shann's Afro-American Experience, January 12-31; the Amistad 11 and Chuck Davis Dance Company, February 8-March 7; and the John Biggers Exhibit, March 15-April 16.

Although born in Virginia, Miss Tynes moved to Greensboro when her father accepted the pastorate of the Providence Baptist Church. After finishing A&T, she received a master's degree from Columbia University and studied at the Juilliard School.

Miss Tynes has concertized throughout the United States and she has sung under the batons of the world's foremost conductors.

She currently makes her home in Milan, Italy, with her Czech-born husband, Hans von Klier.

Jones is the father of the notes Black actor, James Earl Jones. The elder Jones was contemporary and personal friend of the late Langston Hughes. His readings and poetry will be entitled "The Black Man's Journey to Freedom."

Jessy Dixon has been called one of the most imaginative young musicians in the field of gospel music. A noted singer, arranger and pianist and organist, Dixon formerly was accompanist for the late Mahalia Jackson and jazz singer Marion Williams.

He recently received a Grammy nomination for his song, "Hellow Sunshine," and he was named "Gospel Artist of the Year" at Madison Square Garden.

The Rod Rodgers dance troupe features abstract styles, dance drama, jazz and modern works done to the music of popular arts artists.

In addition to directing his own company, Rodgers has directed the "Black Cowboys," and choreographed several productions for national television. He is also widely known as a master teacher and lecturer.

Lightner Defeated In Primary

RALEIGH, N.C. AP-Clarence Lightner, elected Raleigh's first Black mayor two years ago, was defeated earlier this week in a bid for reelection.

Lightner trailed with 5,644 votes as former legislator Jyles Coggins led the three-man field with 10,201 votes and Councilman Oliver Williams came in second with 7,524 votes. Williams and Coggins will vie in the city's Nov. 4 general election.

Raleigh council elections are nonpartisan.

Lightner had no immediate comment on his loss. He was the first Black mayor of a major predominantly white Southern city. His chances were dimmed after three members of his family ran into legal problems during the past year. Last week his daughter, Debra, was charged with fraudulent use of a credit card, a misdemeanor.

During the summer, his son, Lawrence, was sentenced to 20 days in jail for contempt of court on a charge that he had made an obscene gesture at a judge. The young Lightner was in court to answer a charge by his wife that he had struck her, though that charge was later dropped.

In January, Lightner's wife, Marguerite, was accused of conspiring to receive and dispose of stolen goods. Mrs. Lightner was acquitted after an eight-day trial.

Campus Haps

The History Club, in conjunction with the History Department, is sponsoring a bus trip to South Carolina. The bus will depart at 1:00 a.m. on November 8 and return on November 9. Some of the points of interest will be Boone's Plantation, Old Charleston, and Oyo Tunji. There are only 30 available spaces. Persons interested in going should pay their fees in Room 318 Hodgin Hall. The cost will be $15.00 per person.

Students are reminded that the Aggie Booster Club is sponsoring a bus trip to Baltimore on Nov. 1. Cost of the trip, including transportation, room, ticket to the A&T versus Morgan game and a ticket to the Colts versus Cleveland pro game on Sunday will be $46.00 per person. The money must be paid to Richard Moore, Room 203 Dudley Building by October 18.

Students desiring only the transportation, may pay $19.00

Reverend Sampson Buie, pastor of Roberts Chapel Baptist Church in Goldston, will be the guest speaker on Sunday, October 12, at 11:00 a.m. in Harrison Auditorium. Rev. Buie is also a Community Relations Specialist at A&T.

United Negro College Bike-A-Thon: Ride in the UNCF Bike-A-Thon at $0.50, $0.75 or $1.00 per mile on the 6.1 mile course. Starting time is 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m., Sat., Oct. 11, 1975, from Merrick Hall parking lot. Contact any member of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity to participate.

An Aggie Homecoming Pleases Everyone

As all of us should know by now, Monday will be the beginning of a week of homecoming festivities for the Aggies. The week will include such a variety of activities that everyone should become involved in some aspect of the celebration. There will be activities for Aggies of all ages.

One can rest assured that there will be more than enough "styling, profiling, moving, and grooving" during the week. But, homecoming wouldn't be quite the same without this element.

However, the thing that makes an Aggie Homecoming so appealing to everyone is the spirit we put into it. Everyone seems to be psyching himself up for the week-long celebration. Even the football players gain an extra incentive to win the homecoming games.

Exactly what is it that instills this mysterious spirit within us? Maybe it is the combination of all the events (reunions, social events, religious ceremonies, and the football game). All these things help make us remember how proud we are to be Aggies.

Homecoming is always an enjoyable and extraordinary event that everyone associated with the Aggie family (members and non-members) looks forward to.

Let There Be Education For All

By Daryl E. Smith

The elimination of racial duality in the educational system in North Carolina is the major problem Black students face today. The present system of educating leaders for this society has always been lopsided and in favor of the predominantly white institutions.

The growth potential for influencing racial changes has been set back another 10 years by the unwillingness of this state and the federal authorities to proceed with dismantling the dual educational system.

The burden of eradicating this duality should not be on the victims, but on the very people who engineered this system from the beginning.

Black institutions of education have suffered from lack of sufficient capital, quality programs which would attract all people and the development of library holdings for the students to enhance their minds.

Education should be for all people and not just for selected individuals.

City Council - Speak Up

By Benjamin T. Forbes

It seems that the only time the A&T family hears anything from the city council is during elections. Many of the candidates who solicit votes from students and faculty never come on campus. They (candidates) just send someone to the campus to litter it with their "vote for me" signs and campaign brochures.

We here at A&T don't need to be bothered with such candidates. If we can't receive their support when we so desperately need it, then we shouldn't bend over backwards to give our support to them. Not once has this reporter heard the members of the city council of Greensboro speak in favor of A&T in its struggle to obtain the much-publicized school of veterinary medicine. The lack of support from the city council has led me to believe that smiling faces don't always speak the truth.

Although some to many of campaign signs are only on campus for only one day, one day is too long considering that the council probably wouldn't support A&T for that short period of time.

If A&T plays a major roll in Greensboro's economy, which it does, then the city council should be going out of their way to aid us in any type of improvements we attempt.

The city council may have supported the Aggies when A&T's basketball team won the MEAC Championship by honoring them earlier this year, but we need their support in other matters as well.

Maybe someday the time will arrive when the city council will strongly speak up in support of A&T. However, that day may be a long way off.

Harrison Players Will Do 'Porgy'

Before the Richard B. Harrison Players at A&T decided to stage the drama, "Porgy," for their first production of the year, they relied heavily on some research undertaken by the university's speech department last year. Miss Bernadette Anderson and several of her students spent several days in and around Charleston, S. C., researching the old gullah language spoken by Blacks there.

"This kind of information has been very valuable to us in preparing for 'Porgy,'" said Dr. John Kilimanjaro, who will direct the play.

The play will open a four-night stand in the Paul Robeson Little Theatre beginning on October 14.

"We have had a lot of fun getting this play together," said Kilimanjaro, "and we are certain that it will be a first class theatrefare."

Like Kilimanjaro, the student actors are also excited about the forthcoming play. "It's definitely going to be different," said Baxter Griffin, a freshman speech and theatre major from Winston-Salem. "It has elements of humor and seriousness."

Although he had no significant experience as an actor in high school, Griffin has adjusted well to acting, according to Kilimanjaro.

Another newcomer who will appear in the play will be Sandra Jones of Winterville. Her background in high school was in modern dancing, but she said she chose theatre as a major at A&T "because I have always wanted to try my hand at acting."

"This will definitely be a show persons can relate to," said Sandra. "It really shows you the inner feeling of Blacks."

The lead role of Porgy will be played by veteran actor Avery Verdell, while the role of Bess will be played by Mary Logan. Reservations for the play may be secured by calling the box office at 379-7852.

Homecoming Item Has Errors Concerning Shows

Editor of The Register:

In the October 3 edition of The A&T Register several errors were noted in the article entitled "Homecoming Will Be Exciting." First of all, there will be three video tapes which are "Jimi Hendrix Plays Berkley," "Brand X," and "Sing Sing Thanksgiving". The Homecoming Show for Saturday night will include Donald Byrd, the Magnificants, and the Majors. There will also be a movie on Friday, October 17, at 9:00 p.m. entitled "Texas Chainsaw Massacre". All of the above events are sponsored by the Student Union Advisory Board.

Roosevelt O'Neal

The Port Authority Band, with chief musician Jim Allen as band leader, is touring the nation to celebrate the Navy's Bicentennial to highlight the Navy's 200th Birthday. One year prior to the birth of the United States, the Continental Navy was established in 1775.

The members composing the group were chosen to "be someone special" in today's Navy. The members are all active duty sailors who have received training at the Navy's School of Music at Norfolk, Virginia.

Port Authority Band, which plays at most colleges and high schools, was formed in 1970, is based in Washington, D.C. The band is said to specialize in soul and rock music.

Band members besides Allen include, Don Letbetter, Trumpet-assistant leader; Rose Lewis, vocalist; Michael Beegle, tenor saxophone; David Caradine, drummer; Norman Clark, guitarist; Scoobie Reddick, electric bass; Gary Welsch, trombone; Lennie Liberman, conga drum.

Out Of The Mouths Of Black Folk

Henry Highland Garnet (1815-1882)

Although Henry Highland Garnet was born a slave in Maryland, he became a successful minister, teacher, editor, and missionary, as well as an eloquent speaker. The statement below, excerpted from his speech, "An Address to the Slaves of the United States of America", was delivered at a National Negro convention in Buffalo, and it is indicative of the militant attitude which was characteristic of Garnet.

"Brethren, arise, arise! Strike for your lives and liberties. Now is the day and the hour. Let every slave throughout the land do this, and the days of slavery are numbered. You cannot be more oppressed than you have been—You cannot suffer greater cruelties than you have already. Rather die freemen than live to be slaves. Remember that you are four millions!"

The fever that won't break: THE RISING COST OF A MEDICAL EDUCATION.

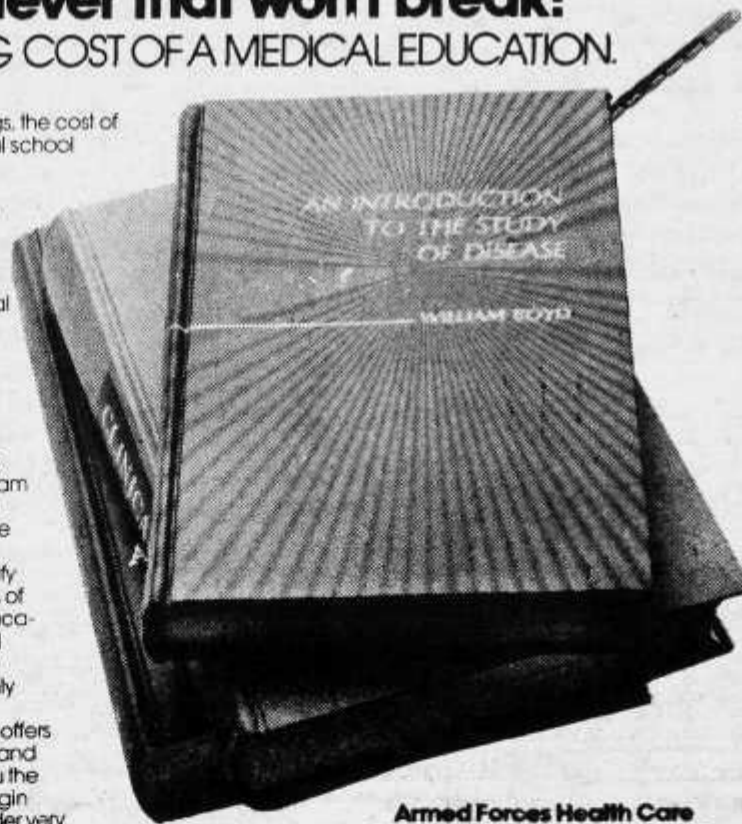

Like most things, the cost of attending medical school has risen sharply over the last decade. To many medical students that cost represents a heavy burden, a financial problem that can affect your concentration.

It needn't be that way. The Armed Forces Health Professions Scholarship Program was originated to free you from those worries. Men and women who qualify will have the costs of their medical education covered, and will also receive a substantial monthly allowance.

The program offers more than tuition and salary; it offers you the opportunity to begin your practice under very favorable conditions. As a health care officer in the military branch of your choice, you'll find yourself with responsibilities fully in keeping with your training, and with the time and opportunity to observe a full spectrum of medical specialties.

When you decide on the specialty you wish to pursue, you may find yourself taking those graduate medical studies at one of our many large and modern medical centers. If so, you can count on that training being second to none. Both the clinical and research work being done in them have made Army, Navy and Air Force hospitals a major new national medical resource.

It's a long road, but the first step is simple. Just send in the coupon. The details we send you may make the whole way a little smoother.

"WFMY-TV donated over a quarter of a million dollars worth of TV equipment but it can't be used by the students because we can't get the parts and supportive equipment that go along with it."

This statement was made by Anthony Welborne, media technician in the television studio.

Asked why the donated equipment has not been fixed, Welborne said, "Dr. Ellis will only approve a purchase order for the minimum amount for parts, but not for emergency supplies used to back up the present system."

Asked what benefits would be provided for students if the donated cameras were fixed, Welborne said, "The cameras are the same type that commercial studios utilize and students could be trained on them here in our own facilities."

"It would be another educational tool for the students."

Checking further this reporter asked Dr. Willie T. Ellis, asst. vice chancellor of academic affairs and director of the AIDP Program if he had any knowledge of the donated equipment, Ellis said, "No comment".

Homecomings Improve Annually

By Deborah Daniels

Homecoming is one of the main events students anticipate for various reasons of their own. Nevertheless, one can agree that a diversity of activities occur to keep energetic students occupied and entertained throughout the celebration.

Many fantastic and outstanding attractions in the history of A&T have been imprinted in the minds of witnesses of them. Since the theme is "A Blast from the Past", it seems appropriate to blast your mind with golden memories of the past during homecoming.

If you were here in 1973 you would have witnessed, during homecoming halftime, that the drum majors did not march on the field as they normally did.

On the contrary, they flew on the field-in a helicopter.

In the 1974 homecoming during halftime, the band had a treat in store: an Aggie Bulldog performed on the field. Naturally it was a man in a dog's outfit.

"Homecomings are better every year," Dr. Waverlyn Rice thinks. He says that in the past year, homecoming didn't have themes as they do now. Also he thinks the floats are better because they are made commercially instead of by students as they were in previous years.

"Styles are open now," a former Miss A&T, Dr. Pearl Bradley of the Speech Department commented. "Homecoming has a set pattern and it hasn't varied much. But I can remember the times when there were fireworks. But I enjoyed the reunions and games."

Miss Jean Bright of the English

Department reminisce about an incident during an A&T Homecoming in which she and other members of the Fort-Nightly Club participated. They had made a float with Anthony and Cleopatra statues on it. As it was being pulled in during halftime, they had noticed, too late, that tools, such as hammers and saws, were left at the feet of Cleopatra.

Pamela Elaine Carlson Will Present Recital

Pamela Elaine Carlson, a flutist in the A&T State University Symphony Band, will present her senior recital Sunday, Oct. 12, at 3p.m. in the Richard B. Harrison Auditorium.

Pamela is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F.

Carlson, Jr. She is also a majorette in the marching band, special service chairman of the Band Council, and secretary-treasurer of the MENC (Music Educators National Conference).

Aggies Defeat Smith's Golden Bulls 21-0

By Craig Turner

Utilizing the running of tailback George Ragsdale and the defensive prowess of end Jearold Holland, A&T coasted to a 21-0 win over Johnson C. Smith in War Memorial Stadium here in Greensboro Saturday evening.

A crowd of 8,000 fans looked on as A&T controlled the affair from the opening kickoff.

After an apparent successful series by the Aggie offense, A&T moved from its own 21 to the Golden Bull 29. There, quarterback Elsworth Turner's pass was picked off at the three-yard line by Smith cornerback Charles Buckett.

The Bulls punched out some much needed yardage to the 34. But then quarterback James Wideman was hit on the ensuing play and end Jearold Holland broke through to recover a fumble at the Bull 32.

After two running plays, Turner tried to hit Dexter Feaster across the middle. But there was a collision between Feaster and the defender as the ball popped up.

Tightend Walt Bennett alertly pulled in the deflected toss for an 18-yard gain. George Ragsdale went the final seven yards up the middle of the Smith defense for the score.

Wayne X. Walker's kick was good for the extra point as A&T led 7-0 with 6:12 to go in the first quarter.

This margin held up the rest of the half as neither club could put together an effective drive.

However, late in third quarter the stalemate ended. The A&T offense found some open seams in the Smith zone defense.

Aided by a pass interference call, Turner skillfully moved his club to the five yard line of the Golden Bulls.

During that streak Turner went 5 for 5 in passing. Ragsdale ended the 82-yard drive by circling right end untouched for the touchdown. Walker added the extra point for a 14-0 bulge with nearly 14 minutes remaining.

With a sizeable lead, A&T's defense began an awesome display of pass defense. It finally resulted in Jearold Holland's interception of a Wideman screen pass at the Smith 40 which he returned 20 yards.

From there the Aggies went to Calvin Hawkins. The freshman tailback smashed for gains of eleven, five, and finally two yards for the score.

Walker's kick was again good for a 21-0 lead and A&T was well out of danger.

It was a game of punts and mistakes after that for Smith as time ran out.

The victory raised A&T's record to 2-2 for the year. Johnson

C. Smith fell to 3-2 for its efforts.

Aggies comes Saturday against unbeaten and untied Norfolk State in Norfolk, Va.

Talk with XEROX

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 22

See your Placement Office to arrange an informative meeting with the Xerox representative on campus.

You will hear about the exciting thrust that is continuing to develop at this worldwide leader — a thrust toward creating the information-handling systems of the future. You will find out about opportunities in an era of stimulating professional challenge at Xerox. And you will find food for thought in the advantages of career mobility in a company that is providing innovative capabilities for originating, organizing, processing, storing, retrieving, reproducing, transmitting and communicating information.

We have a wide range of openings for technically strong, imaginative EE, ME, IE and ChE graduates at our large-scale facilities in and around both Rochester, New York and Dallas, Texas. Fields include R&D, product design and engineering, manufacturing engineering . . . and service and distribution operations planning and administration.

You will also find another, most emphatic fact: Xerox Corporation is an Equal Opportunity Employer in its hiring and advancement policies — and in its practices. Let's get together.

"Skill. Determination. Self-confidence. That's what it takes to wear these wings."

Navy Wings of Gold. They mean a lot to Lieutenant John Burton, from DeKalb, Mississippi. And they say a lot about him, too. Skill. Determination. Self-confidence.

After finishing college, John entered the Navy's Aviation Officer Candidate School. He worked hard, and it paid off. Now, he's a helicopter pilot facing new and different challenges every day. But, more important, John had what it takes to earn his wings and fly Navy.

If you're a college senior or graduate, the Navy offers you a program that can start you on your way to an exciting career in the field of aviation. It's called Operation Challenge. It all begins in Pensacola, Florida with the basics: the theory of flight, principles of navigation and Navy customs. From there, you'll be trained to pilot jets, multi-engined aircraft, or helicopters. You'll learn formation flying... take cross country hops...and fly at night and by instruments. The ultimate test is landing on an aircraft carrier. That means a short runway—and one that's moving. Sure it's tough, but we teach you to handle it.

There's more, too. After graduation, you'll work with a great team of professionals. Plus have a chance to travel...see the world...and have some fun. Call your Navy Operation Challenge Recruiter, Lt. George Wingfield collect at 919-872-2005, or call toll free 800-841-8000. (In Georgia, call toll free 800-342-5855.)
