Driver Education Center To Study Young Drivers

Can young drivers, who generally cause a disproportionate number of the state's auto accidents, be motivated through their high school subjects to become better drivers?

This question will be the subject of a year-long research project funded Wednesday for the Driver's and Safety Education Center at A&T.

The $40,000 grant for the pilot study in five county and five city school systems of the state was awarded by the State Board of Education.

"What we hope to do," said Dr. Isaac Barnett, director of the A&T project and center, "is to see if we can use the courses of the high school curriculum to contribute to the vast pool of knowledge to aid the youthful driver in making better traffic decisions."

As an example, Barnett said traffic safety topics will be included in assignments in English classes; physics classes will study traffic problems such as the laws of motion and of nature and their influence on motion as they relate to car control and fuel conservation.

A similar approach will be used in social studies, mathematics and chemistry classes.

"If the students are motivated to like those other courses," said Barnett, "we feel they will be motivated to learn to become safe drivers."

Barnett has selected 30 driver education teachers in target areas to participate in the study. The areas include Rowan, Cabarrus, Stanley, Anderson and Union counties, and city systems in Albermarle, Concord, Kannapolis, Monroe and Salisbury.

He said, if successful, the project could be refunded by the state.

The teachers in the project will receive special training for a semester at A&T.

While you're looking at them, they're looking at you. These are the color cameras donated to the University's TV studio, by Channel Eight.

Channel 8 Donates Cameras

By Daryl E. Smith

The television studio in

Crosby Hall has been receiving a lot of surprises lately, and Channel 8 has given them another surprise by donating two color RCA TK-42 cameras.

In inquiring about how the cameras were acquired, members of the A.V. team replied, "Dean Frank White told us that the cameras were available plus some associated equipment that went along with the camera."

Asked what they are going to do with two new cameras, members of the A.V. team said, "What we would like to do is take the present equipment out and place it in a mobile unit and use the new equipment in our studios."

Tyrone Miller said, "It was a surprise to me. I feel that it's a shame to have gotten the equipment from a school that wanted to buy it, and the chances for the equipment to be hooked up, I feel are slim."

Anthony Welborne said, "I think the equipment is very useful, if we can get the money to hook it up. It's a chance of a life time for a university of this size to get this type of equipment, if we use it."

Dr. Frank White, dean of Arts and Sciences, could not be reached for comment.

Oil May Come From New Sources

Oil from coal and nuclear energy could become important as alternative energy sources, according to an MIT economist, who added that people don't want to pay the price of extracting and producing these sources.

"Alternative energy sources can be developed," said Dr. Everett Hagen, professor emeritus of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. "The United States has coal resources which contain as much oil as is in the Middle East, but people cite the environmental damages which the mining causes."

"We also ought to have a lot more nuclear plants," added Hagen. "They can be relatively safe, but people are afraid of radiation, and how can you guarantee that there won't be some radiation?"

Hagen, author of Economics and Social Development, addressed an assembly at A&T Tuesday.

He said that oil companies are beginning to buy up coal fields and will probably produce oil from coal if the U.S. will guarantee the price which the companies receive for the oil is as high as it is now.

Hagen said the quadrupling of oil prices by the Middle East nations, is posing extreme problems for the low-income countries. He said oil is costing these countries $8 billion more for the same amount of oil.

"Because of the drought in Russia," he said, "the cost of food also rose a great deal for those countries, which have been unable to increase their own production."

Everett Hagen speaks to students on the subject of energy.

A&T Faculty Members To Help African Nation

Two A&T faculty members have been selected to participate in an economic development project to assist the African nation of Niger.

The teachers, Dr. Basil Coley, professor of economics; and Dr. David Godfrey, sociologist with the A&T Extension Service, left Greensboro Wednesday for their initial visit, a fact-finding mission.

The project, another effort by A&T to increase its involvement in international development, is being sponsored by Africare, an independent non-profit Washington, D. C. organization, dedicated to improving the quality of life in African nations south of the Sahara.

"On this visit," said Dr. Coley, "we hope to examine all sectors of Niger economy, including its agriculture, mining, manufacturing, and construction. We then will write our report, making recommendations which might serve to enhance their economy."

Coley said that Niger, once a French colony, is in pretty dire economic straits. He said the country's per capita income is $88 per year, the literacy rate is only six percent, and the average life expectancy of the people is 37 years.

He said the African nation has few valuable exports, but is basically an agricultural country,

Little Tonya Is Watching Us

By Harold Carter

The students of A&T State University are constantly being watched, not by the CIA, but by little Miss Tonya Robinson who lives on Bluford Street across from Hines Hall.

Tonya is eight years old, in the third grade, and lives with her maternal grandmother, Mrs.

Margaret Evans.

Tonya's hobbies include feeding Robin, her teddy bear, watching T.V., and watching the Aggie band march down Bluford Street.

"My friends live across town, so we don't get to play that often," said Tonya. "When I grow-up I would like to come to A&T," she said. "The students here treat me nice. They stop and talk when they have time."

This is as far as the interview went, because the drums of the Marching Machine were heard, and Tonya was seen marching along side them.

Governor Calls National Guard

FLORENCE, S. C. AP-National Guardsmen were placed on standby alert by Gov. James B. Edwards in what was termed a precautionary move in case of renewed disturbances resulting from the fatal shooting of a Black man by a white policeman.

"Sufficient manpower, necessary to maintain the public safety of all citizens will be maintained," said Robert G. Liming, the governor's director of communications.

About 134 national guardsmen in the Florence area, including a military police company, were placed on standby alert about 6:45 a.m. In addition, a special seven-man riot control team, equipped with tear gas equipment and two armored personnel carriers, were sent in. None of the men were placed on patrol duty.

Edwards issued the alert order after conferring with Chief J.P. Strom of the State Law Enforcement Division and state Adjutant Gen. Robert McCrady.

His office announced that Larry Shannon, the governor's director of human resources, "has been in touch with the state NAACP to keep them abreast of the situation and ask their cooperation in working to insure that the safety of all citizens is maintained."

Shannon advised the NAACP that the governor's office "will cooperate in every way possible to see that calm prevails."

There have been five fatal shootings of Blacks by white police officers in South Carolina this year. Two of them have occurred in Florence in as many months.

Marvin Muldrew, 25, was killed by city policeman C.M. Snipes last Sunday. The officer said he pursued Muldrew's car because of a traffic violation and when it finally stopped Muldrew attacked him with a hammer.

The local NAACP chapter called a nonviolent protest meeting Tuesday night at the Mt. Zion African Methodist Episcopal Church, but things got out of hand.

Blacks reportedly stoned the cars of white motorists in the church and threatened newsmen. Police said a liquor store and a grocery store were looted.

Niger Has Population Of 4.2 Million People with millet (grain) and maize being the chief crops. Niger also raises some animals and rice.

"One problem," said Coley, "is that the country has been seriously affected by severe droughts from time to time."

Niger, has a population of 4.2 million people and a growth rate of 2.7 percent per year. "That is an extremely high growth rate," said Coley.

Aggies Say Homecoming Was Successful Event

By Zavery McDougald

Now that homecoming '75 is a thing of the past and almost everyone has recovered, this reporter decided to inquire as to the success of "A Blast From the Past...thru Aggieland."

Opinions vary, and are as follows: LaVerne Hall, a sophomore nursing major from Danville, Virginia, commented, "The entire homecoming week was very enjoyable because there were activities that those interested could participate in."

Joseph French, senior industrial technology major from Lumberton, stated, "Yes it was a success, but it was not as meaningful as in the past; there was a lack of enthusiasm."

Madeline Claggion, a sophomore nursing major from Atlanta, Georgia, asserted, "It was very successful, a majority of the people enjoyed it and had a good time."

Continuing, Ron "E-Man" Eldridge, a junior psychology major from Scotch Plains, New Jersey, stated "Certain parts were good, but not enough participation from student body; basically a slow start but from Wednesday until Sunday the participation mounted."

Cathleen Newsome, a junior nursing major, from Pendleton, commented, "It wasn't as interesting as last year, but it was nice and sweet."

Holshouser Asks System To Cut Out Duplication

BOONE, AP-Gov. Jim Holshouser called on the North Carolina university system Thursday night to make an "on-going effort to eliminate the waste and the duplication."

In a talk prepared for delivery to the University of North Carolina Board of Governors, Holshouser said the people want and have a right to know "that their tax dollars are being spent wisely and efficiently."

The governor said that, with the uncertain economic situation, "the flow of money that seemed to increase endlessly and that we had come to expect simply isn't there anymore." He said in this situation the people "are going to be balancing the needs of higher education against all the other needs of our state."

He called on the university to provide long-range planning for higher education in the state.

"Along with long-range planning, there is a need for a continuing study and review of the programs that exist on the various campuses," the governor added. "We have to recognize that there may be some programs that are sparsely used or that duplicate and overlap each other. This means we probably will have to face some tough questions as to whether we are putting our resources in the right place. Some painful decisions may have to be made and explained."

"In some cases, we may have to face the fact that the best course is for one institution to abandon a field of study entirely, recognizing that opportunities for such study are easily available on another campus," Holshouser added.

State Highway Patrol Is Subject Of Suit

WASHINGTON AP - The Justice Department asked the courts yesterday to force the North Carolina State Highway Patrol to add more women and Blacks to the force.

In a civil suit filed in U.S. District Court in Raleigh, the department charged that the highway patrol violates the 1964 Civil Rights Act by refusing to recruit and hire Blacks and women on an equal basis with white men.

The department said the highway patrol has about 1,159 troopers and that as of last May, no more than 30 were Black.

No woman has even been assigned as a trooper, the suit said.

The department seeks a court order prohibiting the patrol from engaging in any future employment discrimination and requiring the highway patrol to set hiring goals to add Blacks and women.

The State Ignores HEW

By Daryl E. Smith

Blacks need the proper education to adequately prepare students to develop the abilities to deal with the recognized problems of the present and the anticipated problems of the future.

The decision to locate the veterinary school at NCS(Raleigh) clearly shows the intransigence of dualism in the system. There remains between neighboring predominantly Black and white institutions extensive program duplication with the predominantly white institutions offering programs unique to the geographic regions.

Prior to 1973 none of the predominantly white institutions had Black trustees, and prior to 1972 none of the Black colleges had Black majorities on their boards.

The Governor appoints four of the thirteen members of each board of trustees.

There are only six Blacks out of a total of 500 veterinarians in the state.

The final plans accepted by HEW were merely a combination of futuristic studies, promises of planning, and a potpourri of under-funded and superficial activities.

North Carolina totally ignored HEW's demand for integration of higher education.

There is still resistance to the enhancement of traditionally Black institutions because it suggests the redistribution not only of scarce financial resources but of status. North Carolina's claim that equalization might take a decade in assessing the problem is totally unjustified.

North Carolina's department of Community Colleges had only one Black out of 76 administrative and professional staff persons on January 1, 1975. None of the 57 Community College presidents is Black.

It has been 20 years since the Supreme Court case, Brown versus Hawkins, made clear that public education, including public higher education, must be desegregated.

It has been eleven years since Congress passed the statute forbidding Federal aid whenever segregation is practiced.

HEW during those eleven years has continuously violated the statute, granting hundreds of millions of dollars to ineligible state education systems.

Out Of The Mouths Of Black Folks

Born in Lexington, Kentucky, William Wells Brown grew up in Missouri on a slave plantation from which he escaped in 1834. He was the first Black to publish a novel, a drama, a history and a travelogue. Brown was a frequent contributor to anti-slavery journals and was lauded for his assistance in aiding fugitive slaves to escape to Canada. One of his best known works is The Narrative of William W. Brown, published in 1847.

The following statement by Brown is taken from contents of a letter written to his former slavemaster, which the ex-slave proclaimed it his duty to his tongue and pen to aid in the distribution of the institution of slavery. Claiming to have "done my duty", Brown, in behalf of the slaves admonished the slavemaster, "See that you do yours"!

There is a proverb that no man can find a chain upon the limb of his neighbor without inevitable fate fastening the other end around his own body.

This has been signally verified by the slaveholders of America.

While they have been degrading the colored man, by enslaving him, they have become degraded themselves; in withholding education from the minds of their slaves, they have kept their own children in comparative ignorance. The immoralities which have been found to follow in the train of slavery in all countries and all ages, are to be seen in their worst forms in the Slave States of America.

This is attributable to the degree of ignorance which is deemed necessary to keep the enslaved in their chains.

Act Like College Students

By Benjamin T. Forbes

Over the past homecoming week, there was a certain slogan heard around campus at various activities. This catchy phrase was "Act like college students."

I'm sure that, if any of the alumni came to some of these activities where this phrase was uttered, they probably wondered if there were any college students attending that particular function. I too wondered at times if there were college students present at many of the activities.

The behavior of some of A&T's students was not up to par with that of the average college student. But, at A&T, the average college student is not the "average college student." Some of the behavior exhibited was absolutely pathetic.

There are times when we wonder why we are treated in such a childlike manner. Many times we are justified in our complaints about the ways we are being treated, but we certainly can't expect the administration to sympathize with us when we exhibit such childlike behavior.

By now I am sure many of you are quite angry with me for the above statements, but the truth always hurts. We can not demand respect from anyone until we can show respect for ourselves. There wasn't any type of respect exhibited at the movie shown earlier last week.

There are many of us to whom the above statements do not apply. But this is our school, and we should try our best to preserve a good image for A&T, even though we are not always treated as we should. The cliché that states, "Your school is what you make it," is true. It just may be that many of us don't want to make this institution anything.

Maybe someday we will become college students, and act like college students. I deeply hope for everyone's sake that that day is not too far off.

"A Book of Numbers" starring Freda Payne and Raymond St. Jacques will be shown Friday night in Harrison Auditorium starting at 6:00 p.m. The movie is being sponsored by the Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity. Admission is $0.50.

Political Science Meeting will be held Monday, October 27 at 7:00 p.m. in Room 301 of Hodgin Hall. The following topics will be discussed: dance, internships, law club, invitation to Greensboro candidates for public office to speak at the "Meet the Candidates" forum to be held in Barnes Hall Auditorium, and instructor's problems within the Political Science Department.

Due to a previous engagement at Harrison Auditorium on Sunday October 27th, Campus Church services will be relocated in the Student Union Ballroom and Sunday School class will take place in Hodgin Auditorium.

Disco Show in Moore Gym, Friday, October 24, from 9:00 until 1:00 a.m. The D.J. will be George Horton from New York. Admission is $.50 per person. Sponsored by Alpha Kappa Mu.

For $46.00 per person one can enjoy a two-day stay in Baltimore, Maryland, for the "Aggie Football Weekend," which will include bus fare to and from Greensboro; accommodations at the Baltimore Hilton; tickets for the A&T vs Morgan game, and Baltimore Colts vs Cleveland Browns game; and transportation to the games.

The bus will depart Greensboro at 12:01 a.m. at the entrance of the Dudley Building and arrive at the Baltimore Hilton at 7:30 a.m. The bus will leave the hotel for the A&T/Morgan game at 12:00 noon. The bus will return to the hotel at 5:00 p.m.

On Sunday, November 2, the bus will depart the hotel for the Colts/Browns game at 1:00 p.m. After the game, the bus will depart for Greensboro at 5:00 p.m. and arrive back in Greensboro at approximately 11:00 p.m.

For persons wishing to obtain a private room, an additional $6.00 will be charged. Those wishing only to take the bus ride will be charged only $19.00. All payments are due no later than Monday, October 27, at noon. For additional information contact Richard Moore, Room 203 Dudley Building. Phone: 379-7582.

The A&T Register will hold its regular staff meeting on Wednesday, October 29, at 7:00 p.m. in the student newspaper office.

AKM Society To Hold Dance In Gym Friday

Alpha Kappa Mu is sponsoring a disco show in Moore Gymnasium on Friday night, October 24, from 9:00 p.m. until 1:00 a.m. Admission is $.50 per person.

Doing the show for AKM is George Horton. Horton was involved in the disco business in New York for a number of years. He has done several shows in New York and the show that he will be doing Friday night will be his first appearance in the Greensboro area. The theme of the show is "The Twilight Zone Disco Machine."

Horton has opened up a record business here in Greensboro. The store has been open approximately three months. The name and location of the store are as follows:

Chances-R, Records and Things, 2900 East Market St.

Horton would like to emphasize that all students will receive a discount at the store with the proper student identification.

President Calls For Boycott

TO THE STUDENT BODY:

As President of the Student Government Association, I hereby solicit the support of all student representatives to the Judicial Tribunal in boycotting any future sessions of the Tribunal.

I also extend a warning to any member of our student body that he or she will be risking their rights to a fair trial by appearing before the Judicial Tribunal at this time. Students should use any and all other avenues available to them in order to obtain some semblance of justice; for until the Tribunal is reorganized, no student can or should expect to receive justice.

I will not allow myself nor can I ask members of my staff or the student body to suffer the results of the Tribunal's gross inadequacies. But the main reason for our position is that the effort and direction of the Tribunal have been one of trying to maintain the present system of inadequacies, not to guarantee a fair trial. Trial procedure is a formality with major emphasis being the conviction and sentencing.

We, student representatives, have tried unsuccessfully for the past month to re-organize court procedures- not to be pro-student, but to guarantee fair trials to all. Unfortunately, instead of the entire Tribunal working to guarantee fair trials, they have worked even harder to maintain their present system of "no procedure" procedure and blaming student representatives for the gross inadequacies that the Tribunal has accumulated over the years.

Court sessions should be audited by the University lawyer, Lee Andrews, and/or one administrative member to insure that our court system will equal more than punishment. Until such time as progress has been made in this direction, students are better off without "our" court system.

Students Receive Scholarships

By Daryl E. Smith

Gwen Horner, an electrical engineer major from Williamston and Sandra Archer, a mechanical engineer major from Louisiana, were recipients of $500.00 scholarships.

The scholarships were made available through the T.R.W. Foundation, New York, New York, at a banquet held in the Blue Room of the F.A. Williams dining hall.

Asked how the winners were selected, Doris Davidson, president of the Society of Women Engineers, said, "The selection for the scholarships was made through the National Chapter. The University of Illinois and A&T were being considered at the same time, and the chapter here at A&T was selected to receive the scholarships.

She continued, "The requirements set by the foundation were the candidates had to be freshmen and majoring in some area of engineering

"Their academic records were checked along with character references from their high school counselors. The last requirement was the candidates' financial condition. Scholarships of this nature make the engineering program very attractive to incoming freshmen".

In talking with the winners of the scholarships, this reporter asked how they felt about receiving their awards. Gwen Horner said, "This is the most exciting thing that ever happened to me."

Sandra Archer said, "I was very happy and I really needed it. I'm happy and my mommy is happy too."

The speaker for the occasion was Marie Fuchs, senior design electrical engineer for Electronics United Transformer Company.

She told those present that "being an engineer is rewarding and challenging. I find engineering synonymous with problem solving."

The guest speaker then thanked the society for inviting her and wished them all good luck in their future educational areas.

Remarks were made by Dr. A.V. Sharma and Dean Lucille Piggott, who said, "Among the student organizations on this campus, this is one of my favorites. When you leave A&T you become a source of real pride."

A&T Organizes Soccer Team

By Blannie E. Bowen

Which sport draws the most fans? Quickly mentioned are football, baseball and basketball. Seldom is the true king of sports, soccer, named as the world's top spectator sport.

Although soccer is a sport which is virtually unknown around Aggeland now, the director of Intramural Sports sees the soccer challenging basketball and football for popularity ratings in distant future.

"The barometer you can use in measuring future popularity is quite simple. Virtually every American high school now has soccer teams and eventually, soccer will reach the colleges," Roger McKee explained.

A&T is in the process of organizing a soccer team which will initially be under the sponsorship of the Intramural Sports Department, McKee related.

He said soccer is being accepted slowly by most Aggies because of poor exposure in this country. This poor exposure is causing yet another problem: poor funding for soccer.

McKee noted that his office has spent around $2,300 over the past three years in preparing a soccer program. Just recently, his office spent $600 purchasing uniforms, ball, shoes and other pieces of equipment for soccer.

The director says it will initially require about $4,500 to fund a successful team which would play 12 games with a minimum of travel and related expenses.

McKee also explained that the money for soccer must come from his intramural budget which currently totals a meager $7,000 or less than one-half of what is needed.

He said money for intramural activities should be allocated at the rate of three dollars per student or in A&T's case, slightly over $15,000.

But, McKee is not apprehensive because he says he is going to use what is available and not cry about it. Consequently, he has bold plans.

McKee says he plans to field a team which will challenge soccer powers Greensboro College, UNC-G, and Guilford College later this fall. Memorial Stadium will be home for the Aggies.

Tentatively though practice sessions are held on Saturdays and Sundays from 4-6 p.m. on the Aggie Athletic field. Around 30 persons are attempting to make the team of 20 players.

Any Aggie student is eligible to practice for the team, but most of the players will be foreigners, according to McKee, because of soccer's influence in most nations besides the U.S.

NCAA Adopts Rules Concerning Basketball

During its meetings over the summer, the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) adopted several new regulations governing basketball programs at its member institutions.

These new regulations are aimed to cut costs for the more than 2,000 members of the NCAA. The NCAA is also attempting to spread around more equally the quality players to increase the level of competitiveness. Institutions with powerful basketball programs are crying murder, while the other schools see these

Turner Is A Success Story

By Craig Turner

If there are any A&T followers out there who think that the Aggies are going to continue to win in the manner in which they have won the last three games, you can forget it.

The Aggies have waltzed past the perennial "CHUMPS" on their schedule by demolishing Johnson C. Smith, Norfolk State, and Maryland Eastern Shore in succession.

But it is this week that the honeymoon ends and some serious football begins. This week's opponent is not only talented but it is riding a winning streak of its own.

The Howard University Bison have pieced together an unsurprising 5-1 record. This ball club is capable of beating anyone at anytime.

They are comparable to South Carolina State in size, but lack the Bulldogs' speed.

Howard is bringing a young man to Greensboro that has captured the football minds of the D. C. area.

Mike Banks is being touted as one of the few Black quarterbacks that may be drafted by the pros for strictly that purpose.

Last year in Washington's beautiful Robert F. Kennedy Stadium, Banks was not very impressive in the least against A&T.

For that matter, Howard as a team wasn't to be held in awe as A&T outplayed its host everywhere except on the scoreboard.

But one game does not make a season and Howard went on to post a respectable 8-2-1 record. A&T's final record speaks for itself.

This could be the turning point for the Aggies, as they faced the exact same situation last year. A win could ignite A&T to that projected 9-2 mark so many fans are talking about.

But a loss could very well start the downhill slide that smothered A&T last season.

It's been a long time since A&T has won four ball games in a row. Whether that feat becomes fact will be known around 4 p.m. Saturday afternoon.

South Carolina State did very little in the way of relinquishing its MEAC leadership by punching out Morgan State 35-0 in Orangeburg, S. C.

North Carolina Central stayed unbeaten in the conference by mustering a 16-12 victory over an ever-improving Delaware State squad.

While A&T was dispatching Maryland-Eastern Shore 27-0, Howard toyed with slumping Virginia State in the Bison homecoming tilt, 35-12.

This Saturday's game between Howard and A&T is (See Sports, Page 8)

The Aggie defense ate the Hawks alive last weekend. The Howard Bison will be next for the luncheon affair.

It has been one success story after another for A&T's number one quarterback.

His high school reputation was second to none as he led his Gaithersburg, Md., football team to three successive state titles in the prep ranks.

He was one of the most sought-after quarterbacks on the Eastern Seaboard when he finished his prep career. Football powers such as Duke, North Carolina State, Penn State, and Arizona State wanted the 6-2, 190 pounder.

A&T quarterback Ellsworth Turner has indeed built himself quite a reputation on the gridiron. But, just what has transpired for the Aggie sophomore since the fall of 1974?

Turner had his choice of prospective schools which he could have attended. Then, why did such a talented and much-recruited prep star decide on A&T?

"I had been to white schools all my life and I got tired of it. I wanted the change and I wanted to get away from home," Turner explained.

After Turner arrived in Greensboro last fall, he found himself playing behind seniors Len Reliford and Paul McKibbins.

But a strange twist took place and those two quarterbacks were suspended for disciplinary reasons. Young Turner was tossed into the starter's role against powerful Florida A&M last fall in Tallahassee, Fla.

"I had a lot of first game jitters," Turner recounted. "Everyone was behind me and that meant a lot to my confidence," he said.

Trailing 28-0 at the half, Turner completed 10 of 15 passes for two touchdowns to bring the final count to 28-19.

From there the inexperienced freshman went on to finish second in passing and third in total offense while guiding A&T through most of a 5-6 rebuilding year in the MEAC.

This year has been a successful one thus far for Turner. He leads the conference in completion percentage. Most of the yardage gained by the Aggies has been through the Power I offense.

A&T abandoned the Veer after a bitter 7-0 defeat at the hands of South Carolina State earlier this year.

"It wasn't what I expected in the early games. We just couldn't move the Veer. In the I, I'm able to get the drops for passing and our offensive line is really great," Turner remarked.

A&T's two losses could be traced to the Veer in Turner's opinion. "We were rusty and just couldn't run it," he stated.

A year of experience has helped the budding young quarterback. "I have the year of experience and I'm now calling my own plays," said the

The pressure of playing quarterback hasn't affected Turner to a great extent. "It's true that quarterback is a glory position because everyone's always watching the ball. But it's our line that should be credited," he pointed out.

Turner stated that South Carolina had the toughest defense he has faced. He also feels that, if that game were replayed, the outcome might be very different.

With this Saturday's game against Howard, A&T fans will get to see another great young quarterback in Howard's Michael Banks, the conference's offensive leader.

Obviously, there will be comparison between the two standouts. Turner commented on the confrontation. "He's a good quarterback and I respect him as a quarterback. But when we hit the field it's altogether different," he stated.

Just what may happen when two of the top quarterbacks in Black college football meet Saturday, won't be evident until late that same afternoon.

Youngsters Will Get Treat At This Saturday's Game

Youngsters 12 years old and under will get a special treat this Saturday when A&T meets Howard University in a Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference game.

A&T, in an effort to become more involved with youngsters in the community, will admit all little league football players, wearing their respective teams' game uniform, free of charge.

In addition to the little league players, all boy scout, cub scout, and girl scout groups will be admitted free. Those youngsters under 12 years of age who do not participate in the above groups will be admitted free when accompanied by a paying adult.

Coaches interested in participating should report to gate 5 at Greensboro Memorial Stadium before 11:45 Saturday.

The kickoff for the A&T-Howard game is slated for 1 p.m.

A&T Faces Howard Tomorrow

By Craig Turner

A&T will face its stiffest conference challenge since early in the 1975 football season against South Carolina State.

The Bison of Howard University will invade Memorial Stadium Saturday afternoon in a crucial Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference football clash.

Howard is rated fourth in the Mutual Black Network football poll and has a record of 5-1 and 2-1 in the league. A&T is 4-2 at this point and is 1-1 in conference squabbles.

Coach Doug Porter has perhaps the top Black collegiate prospect for a professional quarterback in the nation. He has already demolished nearly every record offensively standing at Howard and the MEAC.

His name is Michael Banks, a 6-2, 212 pound junior from Detroit, Mich. Banks blistered opposing teams for over 1200 yards passing a year ago and 1400 yards in offense. He tossed 18 touchdowns during that rage.

Banks is again off to a blazing start by leading the conference in passing and total offense again for the third straight year.

There are two receivers that the heralded quarterback will try to seek out. One is splitend Kenneth Warren (5-11, 175), a senior with great moves and sure hands. The other is All-MEAC tightend Julius Gamble (6-2, 215).

Gamble caught 12 passes and six touchdowns last season and was the second leading scorer in the league. He is also an outstanding placekicker.

The blocking wall had been suspect up until last week when the Bison plastered Virginia State 35-12 in Washington, D.C. before 35,000 homecoming fans.

Keith Napier (6-2, 230) gained all-conference honors last year as a freshman guard. Dwight Sambro (6-1, 235) was named the offensive lineman of the week earlier in the campaign. The anchor of the line is senior General Rooney (6-2, 239), a bullish tackle with great quickness.

The defense will see a running back of note in the Bison backfield. Anthony Tapp (5-11, 195) played a large role in A&T's 13-9 defeat last year.

Moving to the defensive side of the ledger, the most immediate thoughts turn to the size of the front four.

Kevin Cunningham (6-8, 280) and freshman Tommy Spears (6-7, 275) are the largest tackles A&T will face all year.

The ends are team captains Glen Davis (6-3, 235) and all America Ben Harris (6-3, 255). Harris is hailed as the single most devastating force on the defensive unit.

The secondary was not very experienced a year ago and that might explain why the Washington, D. C., team failed late in the year.

Sherrill Battle (6-0, 180) is a North Carolina native with good reaction. The star of defensive backfield is hailed by pro scouts throughout the country.

Comerback Hayward Corely (6-2, 195) possesses 9.5 speed over a hundred yards and is being watched closely for the 1975 draft for the pro ranks.

Although Howard was beaten rather handily, by undefeated South Carolina State, it has regrouped to win three straight.

Gametime for this MEAC clash is set for 1:00p.m. Saturday afternoon at Memorial Stadium.

New NCAA Regulations Pose Problems

rules as a blessing long overdue.

The most striking rule involves the size of collegiate basketball teams. According to A&T Coach Warren Reynolds, this rule is going to hurt his Aggies and most other conference champions.

Reynolds said the rule allows a team to play and dress only 13 players during home contests.

"Even worse," Reynolds explained, "you cannot dress and play more than 10 players on the road."

Another regulation governs a team's practice sessions. According to Reynolds, an institution's practice sessions may include only 15 athletes who meet both the institutions' and the NCAA's eligibility requirements.

Even before a player can participate in a tryout, he must be certified, on the basis of his high school grades, that he can sustain at least a 2.0 average on a 4.0 scale. This rule presents another problem for Reynolds.

"Most of our players are on full athletic scholarship and it is going to be difficult for walk-ons to receive a tryout," Reynolds remarked.

"But, anyhow," he continued, "if a player is that good, he would not be at A&T unless he is on a full scholarship to start with."

Another of the changes reduces to six the number of recruits an institution may bring to campus for practice sessions. Reynolds has his six prospects on campus and now he has another problem.

Only three players are missing from his 1974-75 team.

He has 12 veterans back for 1975-76. "My problems won't start until 1976-77," Reynolds revealed.

He has five senior forwards and center for this season, but he will need to replace them for 1976-77. Reynolds said it is going to be hard to find five frontcourt performers from only six recruits.

"But, who is worried about next year. I'm not; at least for the time being," Reynolds concluded.

going to determine just who will challenge the Bulldogs along with North Carolina Central. It should be a good one.

This week some records go on the line in the prediction department. As of right now, Blannie Bowen and I stand a humble 6-0. Nicie Cannon is 5-1 and Mike Davis is 4-2.

Experience will tell every time. So here goes this week's picks.

- Mike Davis..... A&T
- Nicie Cannon..... A&T
- Blannie Bowen..... A&T

Soul Mate/Motherland/Maiden Voyage
Creole Lady/You Are My Love

There are lots of different ways a man can sing a love song to a woman. The way Jon Lucien does it is the most beautiful way of all.

Lucien: he's sensuous, sinuous, relaxed and romantic. In person or on record, a very special man with a very special music. He sold out Carnegie Hall during this summer's Newport Jazz Festival in New York, and he'll be on tour all around the country later on this year.

Lucien: an experience not to be missed. Jon Lucien's new album, "Song for My Lady."
