A&T Receives Research Funds

The curtailment of federal spending during the past year had an impact on A&T State University's research efforts; but the university still managed to secure $7.5 million in research funds.

The total, surpassing a million dollars for the second straight year, was noted Friday by Dr. Howard Robinson, director of the Office of Research Administration at A&T.

Robinson said, "The administration's inflationary policy and emphasis on the curtailment of government spending in all areas was primarily responsible for the lower level of funding for 1974-75, but the university was still successful in obtaining funding in key areas of its extra-mural program."

Robinson noted that A&T's success is due partly to the aggressiveness of faculty members in submitting worthy proposals to the agencies.

Former A&T Student Receives High Honor

Bernice Bingham Holloway has honored on October 26 by the International Business & Professional Women's Club, Jamaica Chapter at the Americas Hotel in New York City.

Among the distinguished guests were Congresslady Bella Abzug, Ruby Dee, movie actors, Lady Sara Lou Carter from England, many first ladies of many countries, several commissioners of New York City agencies and television personalities also attended.

Miss. Holloway received her B.S. degree at A&T College of Greensboro, North Carolina, and her Masters of Science Degree at Long Island University in Brooklyn, New York. She is the director of the agency for Child Development and she also does marriage and family therapy and counseling.

Her three children, Angela, attends A&T, Cecil, attends Morgan State University and Cheryl attends Richmond Hill High School in New York City.

Students Steal Utensils At Halloween Dinner

By Benjamin T. Forbes

At the Halloween Special which was held at the A&T Williams Student Dining Center, sponsored by the department of Food Services, a sizable number of table decorations were stolen.

According to Lawrence Munson, director of Food Services, 10 new orange table clothes and over 100 candle holders were stolen. He stated that the lights were turned out in order for the students to eat by candlelight. While the lights were out, the decorations were stolen. Munson also mentioned that two additional table cloths were burned.

Munson said that employees of the Food Services Department had worked hard to prepare for the event. At the dinner, employees were "checked out" in Halloween attire.

When asked if this incident would affect future dinners sponsored by food services, the director emphasized that planned events would not be cancelled.

Munson continued by saying that the students (only a small portion) are only ripping themselves off when they commit such actions. He said that students shouldn't always speak negatively of the administration, but should look at what they do.createElements. He added that, in the long run, such activities would only hurt the university, because the alumni will not continue to devote their time and money to the institution nor will they bring their families to A&T.

The incident prompted Munson to contact the SGA to see if the student leaders could aid the food services department concerning the incident. According to Munson, no word had been received.

Campus security have been called in to investigate the matter, but they were not able to search anyone's room.

"We are still giving the best service possible," Munson stated. He pointed out that students at What's Happening?

What has happened to campus communications this year? No one is letting anyone know anything.

When someone tries to inform others of campus happenings via mail, the mail gets mishandled and is rejected late, if at all. When posters or other signs are put up, they are either put in places where they will not be noticed, or someone rips them down shortly after they are put up. Then, too, many students simply refuse to read announcements, regardless of where they are put.

Students have been complaining about mail services from the beginning of the semester. I do believe that the campus mail service has improved a great deal since August. Yet, it still has much to be desired.

It seems that, with the delay of mail and the ripping down of posters, the best mode of communication left is word of mouth. This should be the surest way of getting information to people.

Many times this semester The Register has learned of campus events, awards, grants, and other things of relative importance to the University family by reading it in the city papers. It seems only logical to me that the people in the various departments of the University would give the school newspaper the first opportunity to print the story. Yet, they give the information to the city papers first, to get it hidden in the bottom corner of some page in the middle of the paper. Then, they expect us (The Register) to play up the story big, despite the fact that it is historical information by the time we get it.

They can't say that they aren't able to get in contact with us. We have three telephone lines which are seldom busy simultaneously. We also have an answering service, which is usually operating when we aren't in the office. So, evidently no effort was made to tell us over the phone or to come by to tell us.

This takes me back to the previously mentioned statement that the surest way of getting information to people is by word of mouth. Otherwise, the Aggies will remain uninformed about things that are happening in Aggieland.

The Outcome Affects Us

By Benjamin T. Forbes

Today was elections day in Greensboro. Many may wonder what candidates won their prospective bids. But the real and most important aspect that most of us should be concerned with is whether or not those persons elected will work in the best interest of all the people of this city.

There are probably some students here who may think that the outcome won't mean anything to A&T. However, this is incorrect. The outcome of the city elections will determine whether or not A&T receives more support from the city of Greensboro or if it will receive any support in the future. From this writer's point of view, this campus isn't getting lip service from the school council or city fathers.

Maybe and hopefully some new faces in office will mean more support for this institution and those pieces in Greensboro who have been neglected over the years.

Last week, the candidates for offices were on campus to give their views on certain issues which they felt were most important to the Greensboro area. They gave their views on improvement of roads, sewers, senior citizens, crime, etc., but only a few persons mentioned something about A&T.

This reporter strongly feels that A&T is being cheated. This city reportedly receives over $41 million annually from A&T by means of homecoming, regular shopping by students, university employees who live here, and other events that occur which bring in money. Yet this university is still shunned by the city leaders. The city council cannot honestly say that they give equal support to A&T.

There are some members on the council who have been there for a long time. If the people in this city have come to their senses, then this writer wouldn't be the least bit surprised to see some of these long-time members on the city council soundly defeated.
Student Discusses Campus Crime

Editor of the Register:

I am sure that even by the time one finishes this article there will be no drastic changes in behavior of those concerned, but I still would like to put forth the idea of participating in stealing.

There are countless numbers of us who can verify to the loss of money, watches, blouses, umbrellas, books, etc., in such locations as the cafeteria, classroom, dorm room, car and bathroom.

Many of us have adjusted to the situation as being just another part of life—having somehow adjusted to and becoming accustomed to the act of participating in stealing.

But of course the question is larger; in a society that perpetuates and sets up conditions for such situations (i.e. unemployment, exploitative prices) a chain of action of mass stealing continues to plague us and those concerned.

Munson stated. He added that food institutions in the state.

Munson concluded by saying that for the services of the cafeteria.

INTRODUCTION TO ASTRONOMY
TO SATISFY
THE UNIVERSITY REQUIREMENTS

The past decade has witnessed an unprecedented growth in Astronomy which was brought about by the many new developments in the sciences and by space exploration.

The marked increase in the enrollment of INTRODUCTION TO ASTRONOMY course by the minimum of mathematics.

The course INTRODUCTION TO ASTRONOMY is an attempt to provide the foundation that will allow the student to intelligently appreciate the events occurring in space and to do so with a minimum of mathematics.

The University Senate has approved INTRODUCTION TO ASTRONOMY, Physics 101, as one of the courses that can be taken to satisfy the core requirements of the University in the area of natural science. The course is open without prerequisite to all students enrolled in the University and it carries three (3) credit hours.

N.C. A & T STATE
Institutions Must Provide Comparable Programs

By Blannie E. Bowes

What are Title IX and the NCAIAW? These two acronyms mean that institutions with athletic programs must now provide "comparable" athletic programs for women.

Easily enough, NCAIAW means the North Carolina Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women. A&T belongs to this state unit, but not the national organization.

Title IX is not so easy to explain. It is really a piece of legislation intended to eliminate discrimination against women athletes. The intentions and the results of Title IX are not closely related.

Constant pressure from predominantly male athletic organizations such as the NAIA and the NCAA has resulted in careful wording of Title IX. The word equal has been skillfully avoided in favor of comparable and other unmeasurable terms.

A&T's athletic program for women is coordinated by Joyce Gross, a graduate and former basketball star for the A&T Aggiettes. She started working this past August as the program's coordinator.

Joyce said A&T is a member of the NCAIAW's Division III which also includes Guilford, UNC-Charlotte, Salem College and Bennett. She said this conference is for basketball only.

A&T has volleyball, softball and soccer for women this year. Joyce explained that all females are eligible to play these sports if they have 1.5, 1.7 and 1.9 grade averages for sophomores, juniors and seniors, respectively. Freshmen are automatically eligible, Joyce noted.

She said $5,000 has been allocated for scholarships this year. Although the would not reveal the total amount of her budget, Joyce said the money for uniforms and other necessities is more than adequate. She explained that "our program is better funded than many of the schools with established women's programs."

Joyce remarked that basketball opens November 10 and softball will be played next spring. Volleyball is currently being played. Assisting her this year are Velma Jones and Lee Conyers.

Aggies Treat Themselves To A Victory

By Michael R. Davis

In keeping with Halloween, the Aggies treated themselves to a victory as they gave Morgan State the tricks. This was the first time the Aggies have defeated Morgan since 1972.

Ellsworth Turner started the scoring when he ran for a ten-yard touchdown early in the first quarter. Steve Ryan followed with the extra point reception. Donald Beasley of Morgan broke through the Aggie defense for a five yard touchdown later in the second quarter. Donnie Coleman attempted to kick the extra point but failed.

Ragsdale bombarded the Bears for another touchdown in the second quarter, while Turner kicked the extra point.

A&T was in front of the half-time score, 21-14. Ragsdale had gained 127 yards at this time and two touchdowns.

Early in the third quarter, Walt Bennett broke loose for 34 yards, adding six more points for A&T.

Then Darden threatened the Aggie defense by running 13 yards, Lloyd McLeave went in from one-yard out making a touchdown for the Bears on the following play.

Glen Holland made his way through for six points for A&T as the versatile Turner's kick was true.

Ragsdale, who had been running at 12 yard intervals in the third quarter, scrambled by for a big 54-yard gain. Peaster carried the ball seven more yards; then Ragsdale struggled another yard for the A&T touchdown.

Turner, who was very hot in passing by now, kicked another extra point.

For Feaster, this was not enough, so he broke through the Morgan defense for an eleven-yard touchdown reception.

Edgebirt Mack of Morgan tried to help his team by making a last minute touchdown and Danne Danner kicked the extra point for the Bears.

Though the scoreboard read 48-28, A&T proved who was the more dominant.

The Aggies were indeed victorious and so was Ragsdale, who set a record by having 322 yards rushing in a single game.

Tennis Courts Will Open Soon

By Benjamin T. Forbes

"The tennis courts should be complete any day now," this statement came from Gerard Gray, director of the physical plant. According to Gray, the surface of the tennis courts are not yet complete.

When asked if the courts would have lights by the time they initially open, Gray stated that the courts would have lights by next spring.
