New Education Program Will Inform Students

By Mary E. Cropps

A Career Education Program has been established here at A&T. The program is a part of student services. A segment of the program is the establishment of a Career Education Center in Bluford Library. The Career Education Program and the Center are being developed by Joseph A. Bennett.

According to Bennett, the purpose of the program is to furnish career information to students. This information, he stated, will help students answer certain questions pertaining to chosen fields of employment and employment opportunities in these fields.

Bennett went on to say that he is now in the process of trying to reach all first year students. The program will also sponsor a series of seminars for certain majors. During these seminars, Bennett said students with a certain major will be given information and materials pertaining to their chosen field. They will also be helped with preparing for interviews.

Students interested in taking advantage of the Career Education Program may make inquiries at the program's office in Bluford Library.

Bennett commented that the program has been an eye opener for those students who have been introduced to it.

A&T Revamps Fire System

By Benjamin T. Forbes

Approximately $10,000 has been spent to improve A&T's fire prevention system. Irving S. Bull, coordinator of safety and health, said that most of the fire extinguishers were obsolete and they had to be replaced.

Bull stated that all of the schools within the university had to have such improvements.

Continuing, he said the University of North Carolina system created a department on each campus within the system. The system did this to comply with the North Carolina Safety and Health Act, which in essence states that any employer must provide an adequate safety and health program for its employees.

Bull mentioned that the program was just getting started, and that the department's main concern at the moment is an adequate and up-to-date fire protection system.

When asked what he would do to help promote efforts to get more student involvement, Irving said that he will try to work with the SGA, administration, and The Register.

He also stated that before long he hopes to have fire drills to acquaint the student body with the proper exit of campus buildings.

Army ROTC Awards Go To Fourteen Cadets

By Benjamin T. Forbes

Fourteen ROTC students were given awards at the Army ROTC Awards Day Thursday. The students received these awards because of their leadership ability, academic success, and participation in various campus activities.

Also in order for the students to receive the awards, they have to rank in the upper one third of their ROTC class, rank in the upper one half of their university class, and possess high morals.

Vice chancellor for university development and relations, Marshall Colston told the students that they were "part of the hall mark that has become a part of this university."

Anthony Baggett received special commendation by being named cadet of the month.

Colston concluded by telling the students that they must be doing something right to receive such an honor.

Spring Pre-registration Presents No Problems

By Carlese Blackwell

There had been no problems with pre-registration, as of Friday November 7, according to Dr. Rudolph Artis, director of Registration and Records. Artis said that he had spent additional time in his office in order that he could be easily located, if any conflicts had risen, as in previous years.

Artis stated that this was a time when the old saying, "no news is good news," really became appropriate.

However, Artis explained that, at first, he was quite concerned about schedule books. He stated that he wanted schedule books to be on hand for students a week before pre-registration began, so that students would have enough time to prepare their trial schedules without difficulty.

Continuing, Artis suggested that many students probably encountered problems with obtaining class cards for some of the courses that they might have wanted.

Yet, Artis pointed out that he felt that the most reliable sources concerning problems of pre-registration would be the students and department heads.

The Lutheran Student Center is covered with the end product of leaves plus fall.

Parking Lot Presents Problem

By Maxine McNeill

Holland Hall's parking situation has presented problems for both the students and the people who work around Holland Hall. The problem, as many see it, seems to be that there are just not enough parking facilities to accommodate both Curtis Hall and Holland Hall.

This is not the real problem, though, says Officer Norwood McMillan. The real problem, says McMillan, is that the students don't want to walk anywhere.

First of all, space outside Holland Hall is not a parking area. It is a loading zone for trucks. The administration just allows students to park there.

The students in Holland and Curtis Hall are supposed to park in the Laurel Street parking lot. McMillan said that these students can also park in the parking lot outside of the laundry. The reason students don't use these parking lots, says McMillan, is that everybody's looking for convenience. "But there are not enough parking lots," he continued.

"Right now Holland Hall's parking lot is on a first come first served basis," added McMillan. "Cars parked outside of parking spaces will be towed away."

McMillan said that there are no parking problems around Scott Hall. He also said that High Rise doesn't have any parking problems after 5 p.m. He explained this by saying that, after 5 p.m. anyone can park in any parking lot as long as the cars are out by 8 a.m.

McMillan also said that maps telling students where they can and can't park are given to students whenever they register a car on campus. He added, "Students don't read these maps; they throw them away."

"Also, instead of students in

Norwood McMillan

Holland Hall walking to the library," said McMillan, "they drive." McMillan said this is also true of students in Scott Hall. He said that they drive to Crosby or Merrick Hall to keep from walking. This limits the space in that parking lot.

McMillan sees two solutions to the parking situation at Holland Hall. First, if students continue to abuse their parking privileges at Holland Hall, the lot will have to be closed down.

Secondly, said McMillan, parking spaces will have to be assigned. He said that the traffic committee is in the process of doing this now. Under this system, if a car is found parked in the wrong space, it will be towed away.

As far as building new parking lots is concerned, it is out of the question. McMillan said that neither the money nor the space is available. He said that A&T charges its students only $10 for a parking sticker. This is the lowest amount charged in the state, McMillan added. He said that some schools charge their students as much as $50 for a sticker. He said that, if A&T charged that much, it would have the money to build enough parking lots.

Give The People What They Want

Today's politicians are constantly coming up with new methods of appealing to the general public. These methods generally contain many loopholes.

One of the more popular trends today is the appeal to the emotions of the people. Believe it or not, many people vote for certain candidates out of pity or because of the mere fact that the candidate is of a particular race.

Jumping on this bandwagon, with the group that plays on people's emotions, is Alabama governor George Wallace. He began his campaign for the Presidency by visiting Europe to prove he is physically fit to enter the White House. He probably thinks the people will think of him as another F. D. Roosevelt. Undoubtedly, many people will vote for him out of pity for his physical handicap.

Well, Wallace must be out of his mind if he can't see the fact that his likeness to F.D. Roosevelt for the U. S. Presidency is more of a childish fantasy than a political possibility. This is not so much because the nation doesn't believe in "hiring the handicapped", but rather because this is a period when the nation is in need of a strong president, one who appeals to all the people. There is no way that you can say a man with George Wallace's past has a positive appeal to the nation today.

Wake Up, Black People

Editor of the Register:

There is a great problem between Black people, a problem which has followed us ever since we reached the point of being recognized. This problem is togetherness.

We go to athletic events and sing the Black National Anthem, raise our clenched fists as though we are true brothers. Who is that true brother or sister? We go around talking about each other and constantly downing one another for irrelevant things.

Wake up, Black people. Instead of stabbing each other all over, we had better start working toward unity. The individuals of the society's majority do not care what we do against each other.

We, as Black people, had better start looking at the future

We, as Black people, had better start looking at the future because, if we remain as we are at the present, Black people will not advance anywhere but back to their hidden corners.

My appeal to you is to stop jiving each other, for we have to make it together. Build a goal where your financial and property status will strengthen the Black society because, without these things, the battle is lost and the togetherness still undone.

If we work toward these things together rather than acting foolish, then the sound of Black power will be well established.

Who's Shouting Insults?

Editor of the Register:

Does it take a lack of discipline to shout insults? Does it take an athlete to shout an insult? Does moving athletes to a different area prevent insults? I say your article in the November 7 edition of The Register is as absurd as some of the insults shouted. Do these insults damage you so greatly that you can't function? If they do, then you lack self-discipline by letting them upset you. When have you seen words physically hurt someone? If they affect them mentally, I say that their mentality is even less than the persons shouting.

I see you're sticking us with the same stereotype as other people of this institution. Why should we live near the gym when we are not all recreation majors. In fact, there are more athletes that have other majors.

As far as our pride, ATHLETES have more pride than most people. We subject ourselves to torture that no one else does. Simply because you don't win at A&T no one likes you. This takes pride and guts to take all types of verbal abuse from common people like you. I see you tried to join our undisciplined bunch, but you can't make it. Look and evaluate yourself. Maybe you need to be insulted. Some of us are as intelligent as you and many have more common sense.

This letter is only in response to your editor's note. You only prove that, when athletes are in the limelight, anything they do is subject to question. Anyone else doing the same thing goes unnoticed.

Sincerely yours,
William A. Blue, IV

Make sure you have enough men on look out, say about 2000. Can't be too careful of those coons on a Black University campus.

Ford Should Work First

By Benjamin T. Forbes

President Ford's planned visit to North Carolina Central University this Friday has come as a shock to many. One may wonder why Ford chose a Black institution in particular to speak at. Surely what he will say in Raleigh will be more than most want to hear.

As far as this reporter is concerned, Ford hasn't done enough for this state or North Carolina Central, (for that matter no Black schools period), to deserve such a visit. The only thing good Ford's visit will bring to North Carolina Central is national and international media publicity. Such publicity will only last a day. Ford doesn't deserve to even step on the grounds of a Black institution, if he is going there for campaign purposes. If he expects to receive Black support, he should demonstrate some type of support for the Black community.

Even Ford's return visit to North Carolina is rather ironic. Last year Ford made a visit to Greensboro. His visit here was less than successful.

There are those who see this visit by "our lord and master" as an honor to a Black institution. Yet, I still maintain that this would not be an honor but an insult to the community and the said institution.

Why shouldn't Ford visit Duke or UNC-CH instead, someone may ask? For one good reason Duke has as its president Terry Sanford. Another good reason is that Carolina would probably protest such a visit by means of its many political activist groups.

Another ironic point is that Ford will be at NCCU in conjunction with its 50th Founders Day Celebration. You will have to excuse me for being so blunt, but it would seem less than appropriate for a man of Ford's caliber to speak at a Black school's founders day.

Ford should expect nothing from his visit to NCCU. I say this because he hasn't established any grounds to receive a favorable response. Ford should work before he expects to get paid.

Lynette Fromme Gets Thrown Out Of Court

SACRAMENTO, Calif. AP-Lynette Fromme, who had to be carried into court by a U.S. marshal, was banished again from court Monday after refusing to promise not to disturb her trial on charges she attempted to assassinate President Ford.

Miss Fromme, who had a red cloth over her eyes, was carried from a van that had brought her from the county jail, carrying out a vow made Friday that she would not return to court unless she was carried.

She rejected an offer by U.S. District Court Judge Thomas McBride to allow her to attend her trial if she promised to avoid the disruptions that caused her ejections twice last Friday.

She had demanded that convicted mass murderer Charles Manson be allowed to testify at her trial, and she balked at watching proceedings on a television set up in a courthouse cell.

Plans A Visit

To NCCU Friday

DURHAM, AP-President Ford will help North Carolina Central University celebrate its 50th anniversary as a four-year liberal arts institution Friday by speaking at a convocation there.

Ford may also meet with students either before or after the speech, NCCU officials said Monday.

NCCU spokesman David Witherspoon said the White House advance team was "very amenable" to the idea of a private and informal talk with about 12 students leaders but no decision by the White House has been announced.

After his speech, Ford will appear in Raleigh at a fund-raising luncheon held by the North Carolina Republican Party.

Witherspoon said the invitation to the President was issued several months ago and the convocation scheduled in response to its acceptance. He said the university had planned to hold the convocation this fall but held the date open in case Ford accepted.

principle," she told McBride, with the jury absent from the courtroom.

McBride asked her whether she would remain quiet and express her objections through John Virga, whom he named to be her attorney when he took away Miss Fromme's right to represent herself last Friday.

"No, I am the only one who could put on my defense," said Miss Fromme, who fired Virga after he agreed with McBride and the prosecution when they blocked her attempt to plead no contest to the charges.

"So you refuse to sit down and be quiet?" asked McBride.

"I have to," she replied, and the judge ordered her escorted to her cell.

Monday was a field day for Ronney's Sunoco. They are shown here with a double catch.

THE PAULISTS ARE HELPING TO UNITE THE UNITED STATES!

Our nation, united in goal and ideal . . . but divided in so many ways.

Divided by doubts, prejudices, fears, violence, injustice, poverty.

The Paulists have been bringing Americans together for over a century now, trying to overcome the barricades men erect between each other. We work to unite believer to believer, believer to non-believer, man to man. As Catholics and Americans, we know unity is worth a lot—worth giving our lives to bring about.

We do this everyday through the communication arts—books, publications, television and radio—on college campuses, in parishes, in missions in the U.S., in downtown centers, in working with young and old.

If you would like to help us in our venture of healing American wounds with the Gospel of Christ as a Paulist priest, mail the coupon below for information.

U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission in the Regulation of Civilian Nuclear Power

The newly established Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) is responsible for performing the licensing and regulatory functions which were formerly part of the activities of the Atomic Energy Commission. These functions emphasize an obligation to assure that civilian uses of nuclear materials and facilities are conducted in a manner consistent with the public health and safety, environmental quality, national security, and pertinent antitrust laws.

As part of the professional staffing program, NRC utilizes new or recent college graduates, primarily in the engineering disciplines at the B.S. and M.S. levels who desire to direct their talents toward the resolution of challenging problems in the nuclear regulatory field.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission offers employment stability and professional growth opportunities of an expanding industry, the challenge of rewarding work, competitive salaries, and the benefits of career federal employment.

Grambling Tigers Hand Aggies A Sound Defeat

By Craig Turner

The bubble burst last Saturday afternoon for A&T as the Tigers of Grambling State handed the Aggies a sound 42-16 thumping in Grambling, La.

A crowd of about 8,000 looked on as A&T fell behind early and never really threatened.

The Aggies played without the services of two key persons in their attack this past weekend.

Tailback George Ragsdale was sidelined with a bruised thigh which he received early in the contest. Coach Hornsby Howell did not make the trip as he was in attendance at his father's funeral in Athens, Ga.

A&T made several key errors throughout the first quarter along with some controversial officiating.

Grambling drew first blood following James Smith's interception of an Ellsworth Turner pass at the Aggie 37.

It took only three plays for quarterback Doug Williams to hit all SWAC end Dwight Scales on a 24-yard touchdown pass with 11:49 left. Larry Scrubbs added the extra point.

A&T was unable to move the ball and was forced to punt from its own 16. James Hunter fielded Mike Howell's booming punt at the Tiger 39.

Hunter broke a tackle, received two key blocks down the far sideline, and raced 61 yards for the score. Scrubbs converted the point after at 9:49.

A&T was again unable to move out of its own territory and gave the ball up to the fired-up Grambling offense.

It took a mere three plays for the Tigers to score their third touchdown in just six minutes.

The big gainer in the 72-yard drive came when Williams connected with Sammie White on a 33-yard pass play.

White put the clincher up on board when he ran 30 yards for his first touchdown at the 6:04 mark. Scrubbs' kick was good and the blitz was about to begin.

A&T interrupted the Grambling route with a 10-yard scoring strike from Turner to flanker James Lily on the first play of the second quarter. Wayne Walker kicked the extra point for a 21-7 deficit.

That was about the extent of A&T's effectiveness for the rest of the half.

Grambling came right back, moving 73 yards on just two plays. Williams lofted a 72-scoring pass to All-America White, who had beaten the A&T secondary badly. Scrubbs was on target again with the extra point.

Grambling put together its only real drive of the game as it utilized 13 plays to move 80 yards for the score.

Daryl Carter did the honors this time by crashing over from a yard out. Scrubbs' extra point lifted the Tigers to a 35-7 halftime advantage.

Eddie Robinson's club finished the slaughter early in the third period. Clifford Martin capped the Tiger scoring with a one-yard plunge with 5:17 left.

A&T could muster only a safety against the Grambling offense and a spectacular 26 yard touchdown run by sophomore Glenn Holland late in the game.

The disappointing loss dropped A&T to a 6-3 record. Grambling reinforced its hopes of post-season bowl play with a current 8-1 record.

The Aggies face a crucial contest with Delaware State this coming Saturday in Dover, Del. Gametime is set for 1:30p.m.

MEAC, CIAA Leagues Agree To Meet In Game

By Michael R. Davis

The MEAC announced that the CIAA and the MEAC reached a mutual agreement to hold a championship game between the winners of both leagues.

The game is to be scheduled at the homefield of the MEAC winner and next year at the home of the CIAA winner since the agreement was on a two year basis.

The winner of the CIAA championship could possibly be Norfolk State or Johnson C.

Smith. At present NCCU is on top of the MEAC rack,

A&T and South Carolina State are tied for second since both share a conference loss.

The two conferences also agreed to hold an eight-team holiday basketball tournament next year. The eight teams will be comprised of four teams from both conferences.

The MEAC office also added that the preferred site is Richmond, Va.

HOW TO WIN AT Pong

1 You can sometimes control the direction of the ball by where it hits your paddle. If it hits the center it will go straight. If it hits the right edge, it will go right, etc. Flicking the paddle to get a spin might work but is less controlled.

2 Avoid the sharp angle shots since they tend to slow the ball and are easy to return. The most effective angle shots are those that rebound closest to your opponent, the deadliest being the shot that rebounds just as it hits his line of play.

3 Shots down the middle are boring and slow. However, late in the rally after the ball has speeded up, a middle shot can be a killer if used deliberately to surprise your opponent.
