Students Find Partially Eaten Chicken Restaurant Receives Complaint

By Benjamin T. Forbes

Two A&T students reportedly received unsanitary service from a quick-service restaurant late Monday.

Calvin Jackson stated that he and a friend, Donell Kennedy, bought a "snak pack" of chicken from Robbins Kentucky Fried Chicken on Bessemer Avenue. After receiving the chicken, Jackson said he returned to his car and opened the box. He then found a partially eaten piece of chicken along with two uneaten pieces.

Jackson said he returned to the restaurant to get a refund or another order. The manager, Ceasar Tucker, according to Jackson, then threatened him with bodily harm.

Tuesday morning, Jackson said he contacted the Greensboro

Health Service. He said he was given the "run-around" treatment. Later he was told to speak with officials at the Environmental Protection Agency.

Along with Lawrence Munson, director of food services, Jackson said they went back to see Tucker to get an explanation. Munson said that Tucker did not want to discuss the matter in his presence but wanted to take Jackson in the back of the building to discuss the issue.

Thinking that violent actions would erupt, Munson stated that, if Jackson went, he would go too. Munson and Jackson then left the eating establishment.

When contacted by The Register, Tucker stated that there were many discrepancies in Jackson's story. He first said that at least a half hour elapsed before Jackson returned with the chicken.

Continuing he said he did not give Jackson the refund because, at that time of the night, the daily report had been made and that he could not give back Jackson's refund at that time.

When asked if he would give Jackson a refund if he came back, he stated, "I will give the boy his refund."

Munson said that there have been instances where workers were seen eating in the cooking area. Munson indicated that such practices are not sanitary.

Jackson said that he feels students should boycott this particular Kentucky Fried Chicken franchise, to prevent further incidents which might occur.

Steve Allen Discusses SGA's Call For Boycott

By Maxine McNeill

The boycotting of the Tribunal is a very real and serious happening.

Steve Allen, assistant to SGA president, Ted Mangum, said that Mangum called the boycott because the Tribunal wasn't felt to be fair. He said that the boycott is to last until the standard procedures are emphasized so that students can get fair trials.

Allen continued, "Ted said that he cannot go back and asked students not to go until some changes have been made."

Allen also said that, since the student handbook and the constitution are not in agreement with each other, things are not clear. He said because of that the students on the Tribunal don't know what's going on. Allen also said there is no set procedure for the operation of the courts.

Allen said that, because of the condition of the student court, an alternate was asked for. He said that an Appeals Board was suggested and instituted by Dr. J. E. Marshall, vice chancellor for student affairs. "A meeting of this Appeals Board should be held probably sometime next week to resolve differences," added Allen.

He also said that Dr. Marshall gave Ted Mangum his permission to nominate five students to the Board.

When asked if he thought the court procedures were better at the last trials, Allen said that naturally they would be after the meeting with Dr. Marshall but it is not known whether or not the students will continue to receive a fair trial.

Report Cites Inadequacy Of States Black Schools

RALEIGH AP-The University of North Carolina system has surveyed its nine nursing programs and found the three at predominantly Black schools have had "consistently poor results."

The report was submitted to the UNC Board of Governors in Greensboro today. It recommends that the board adopt as its top priority in nursing the upgrading of programs at A&T State University, North Carolina Central University in Durham and Winston-Salem State University.

The report also called for giving top priority to programs to train nursing professors in graduate schools. It said they are in short supply.

In 1974, 21 of the 26 NCCU graduates who took the state licensing exam for nurses failed as did 18 of the 29 from A&T and 12 of the 20 from WSSU.

By contrast 41 of the 42 East Carolina University graduates who took the exam passed and 91 of 95 graduates of UNC-Chapel Hill who took the exam passed.

Lightner Says Defeat Cost City $10 Million

RALEIGH AP-Mayor Clarence E. Lightner says that his recent defeat for reelection as Raleigh's first Black mayor has cost the city at least $10 million in promised federal aid.

In an interview Lightner said federal officials had told him of the cancellation of informal commitments made to him for the city's antiblight Community Development Program, some funding for the Raleigh-Durham Airport and other programs.

He said the grants had not been announced publicly but had been promised to him privately by federal officials. He declined to discuss specifics, saying, "It would place some people on the national level in an awkward position."

Lightner said he also intends to go to Washington soon in an effort to get the federal officials to change their minds and reinstate the promised funds.

Lightner's comments came in an interview in which he discussed his two years as mayor. He repeatedly expressed gratitude for being able to serve the city six years as a councilman and two years as mayor.

A North Carolina Man Threatens Ford's Life

NEW BERN AP—A 31-year-old New Bern man was to appear before a U.S. Magistrate yesterday for a probable cause hearing on charges that he sent a note threatening the life of President Ford to the White House.

Robert E. Rolison, arrested Tuesday, allegedly sent a letter to the White House in which he threatened to kill Ford. The alleged letter was postmarked Oct. 14 in New Bern.

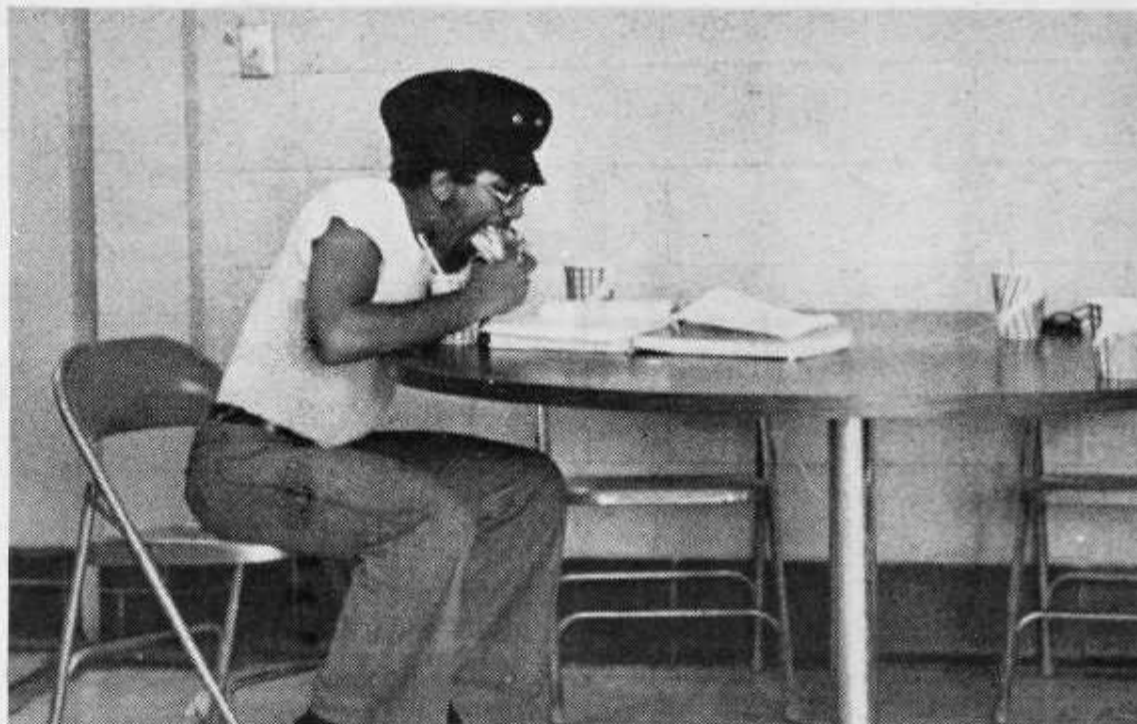

U.S. Magistrate C. K. McCotter Jr. will determine whether there is enough evidence to hold Rolison pending submission of the case to a federal grand jury.

Rolison is currently in the Craven County Jail under $20,000 bond.

Ford is scheduled to appear briefly in North Carolina Friday. However, Talmadge Bailey, special agent in charge of the Secret Service in North Carolina, said there was no indication that the alleged threat was related to Ford's scheduled appearance in Raleigh.

The maximum penalty for threatening the life of a president by mail is a $1,000 fine, five years in jail, or both.

Resignation May Effect School Desegregation Plan

WASHINGTON AP—The resignation of the government's civil rights chief leaves the way clear for the new secretary of health, education, and welfare to reshape federal school desegregation.

The resignation of Peter E. Holmes as director of the U.S. Office for Civil Rights was announced Monday, effective Dec. 1. The office administers antidiscrimination laws and has been embroiled in such emotional issues as busing and school desegregation.

"Mr. Holmes has done a wearing and demanding job extremely well," HEW secretary David Mathews said. "I regret losing him, but I can well understand his desire to move on to new challenges."

Holmes said he was under no pressure to leave, adding, "I don't have any question about the secretary's own strong commitment to civil rights."

Holmes will rejoin the staff of Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., the Senate minority whip.

Holmes was the sixth director of the office established by the 1964 Civil Rights Act. He has served in the position since April 1973 and had worked in the office since 1969. He previously served for three years on Griffin's staff.

Holmes' resignation will give the new secretary the opportunity to establish the direction in which he expects the civil rights agency to move in the future.

The 30-year-old Mathews, former University of Alabama president and the first Southerner to head HEW, has made it clear during his first three months on the job that he believes the department's traditional policy of threatening federal fund cut-offs to curb civil rights violations is counterproductive.

The threats were instrumental in breaking down segregated school systems throughout the South.

The election of Richard M. Nixon as president marked a slowdown in HEW desegregation activities, a slowdown that has continued under President Ford. As a result, HEW increasingly has found itself under attack in federal courts by civil rights groups complaining that it is not enforcing the law.

In a series of orders, a U.S. District Court judge here ordered HEW to step up enforcement against hundreds of public elementary and secondary school districts in Southern and border states and against 10 state college systems for alleged racial imbalances.

Last summer, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People sued HEW to require a crackdown on alleged segregation in schools in 33 northern and western states.

An added thorn in the side of the HEW civil rights program is a relatively new amendment prohibiting sex discrimination in schools and colleges. HEW has issued voluminous regulations that will take effect in one to three years but undoubtedly will lead to further litigation.

CLEAR UP YOUR FUTURE IN THE 2-YEAR AFROTC PROGRAM.

What's up after college? That question is enough to get a lot of young people down. Air Force ROTC college graduates have that worry, too. But their immediate future (and longer if they choose) is much more secure. As a commissioned officer, there's a good job...Travel. Graduate level education. Promotions. Financial security. And really, lots more.

If you have two academic years remaining, there's a great 2-year AFROTC program still available to you. Look into the details. We think you'll be pleasantly surprised. And pleasantly rewarded.

Allen Is SGA Prexy's Assistant

By Maxine McNeil

It is a little known fact around campus that Ted Mangum, SGA president, appointed Steve Allen as his assistant. Mangum said that Allen was appointed on September 22. The legislature approved the appointment on September 25.

Allen has many duties as Mangum's assistant. First, he keeps Mangum reminded about his appointments and assignments. Mangum said that Allen also makes the first contact with the speakers who are asked to come here to speak. Allen was the one who wrote Dr. John Henry Clark the thank-you note when he spoke during homecoming said Mangum.

Besides these few duties, he organizes Mangum's office when Mangum has to leave. He also carries out any assignment that Mangum didn't have time to finish before he left.

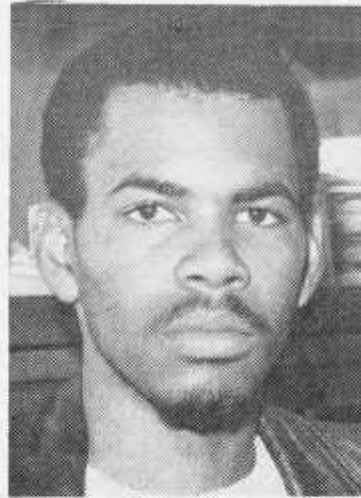

The vice-president, said Mangum, is in charge of the student legislature. Mangum said that is a very big job in itself. He said that Allen isn't taking over the vice president's job but at times everybody finds himself doing each other's job.

Mangum said that Allen is also an advisor to him. He continued "Students sometimes forget that the SGA members have classes to attend also and, at times I can't remember parts of the constitution. Instead of going back and looking up that certain part, I'll ask Allen."

He said that Allen advises him as to what he should do in certain situations. He said that Allen was previously a political science major and he knew a lot about the way the SGA operates.

Mangum said that, when Allen came in, he put a lot of things in place. He said the reasons he chose Allen were that, besides being a very versatile person, Allen is also a good organizer, has a lot of contacts, and has many insights in things.

Editor Replies To Letters

It is not a general policy of mine to argue with people, especially when trying to tell them something negative about themselves. If by chance I did convince them that I was correct in my line of thought, they wouldn't admit it. However, I find it necessary to deviate from the normal and submit this editorial of rebuttal on the subject of the "human tunnel".

First of all, in response to William Blue's letter, I say that you missed the whole issue of the editorial. The problem isn't whether or not the insults keep one from functioning, but rather that the athletes are supposed to be one of the more disciplined groups on any campus and no disciplined group would conduct themselves in such a manner. I also fail to see your relationship between having pride and submitting yourself to torture. It seems to me that you are using the word "pride" where you should be using the word "stupidity". If it takes pride and guts to take verbal abuse from common people, as you said in your letter, the people who pass through this "tunnel" must have a great deal of pride and guts.

In response to your statement that I failed to make it as a member of your group, I would like for you to know that I wasn't cut from the team; I made the decision on my own not to play football. As a matter of fact, one of the coaches was even talking with me about financial assistance - not knowing that I was a Presidential Scholar and didn't need it. Also, if you think that some people need to be insulted, you certainly aren't among the ones in your group who are as intelligent as I am.

Next, in response to the letter of Earl Chestnut, I do not see how the editorial could be degrading to all residents of Scott Hall B, mainly because I myself am a resident of Scott Hall B. Then, too, the editorial was written in regard to the people who compose the "tunnel" and cast the insults, which are generally started by athletes.

Also, in your definition of "pride" you used the word "pride" itself, which I doubt Webster would do. Furthermore, the definition I got from the dictionary for "pride" is "a reasonable or justifiable self-respect". If these people enjoy and achieve satisfaction from such actions, as you suggest, it only shows more clearly that they have a low mentality.

By suggesting that the athletes be moved to Scott Hall C, I didn't mean that all of them are P.E. or recreation majors; however, I meant that most of them have several classes in Moore Gym and even more of them spend several hours a day in the gym.

So far as retracting my remarks - NEVER! I would also like to point out for Earl Chesnut that I write expressing my own point of view and not that of The A&T Register.

No More Asinine Remarks

Editor of The Register:

In regard to the article entitled "Tunnel Casts Insults" of November 7, I think it is degrading to all males of Scott Hall "B", in particular those of athletic inclination.

Your so-called logic is fallacious because (1) it appears that you reside on the side of Scott Hall "B" twenty-four hours a day by your statement that the comments range from nice compliments to vulgar and obscene insults, more of the latter than the former; (2) your interpretation of pride is similar to your thinking, limited in scope and unobjective. According to Webster's New World Dictionary, "pride" is "a person or thing in which pride is taken or delight or satisfaction in one's achievements."

My question to you is why can't those persons who make up the supposed "human tunnel" enjoy what they regard as something enjoyable and ultimately achieve satisfaction from it, consequently destroying what semblance of logic you thought was in your statement that they do this "mainly because they have no pride to begin with".

Furthermore, sentence one of paragraph two of your article portrays the females of A&T as angelic, purified and the like. However, I must differ with such a minute analysis. Had you observed this area carefully you would find that on many occasions females are guilty of "wolf calls" at males at this junction. Many pass through this area with a prima donna complex and are subsequently pelted with obscenity; and, lastly, this supposedly outrageous area helps many women to improve their appearances.

Lastly, to say that the athletes should reside in Scott Hall "C" because of the closeness to Moore Gymnasium is to say that all athletes are physical education or recreation majors. If that is so, then one might believe athletes are incapable of studying architectural engineering, mathematics, political science, history, et cetera. Of course, you don't believe this, do you?

How do you know freshmen act more mature than athletes? I would like to believe that some freshmen and some athletes are mature and some are not. Therefore, for the sake of yourself and The Register, please retract your asinine remarks of November 7.

Disgustingly yours,
Earl Chestnut

The City Needs Help

By Daryl E. Smith

The recent controversy over bailing New York City out of a bad financial condition has brought many opinions on the subject. Some economists are saying, "President Ford may be right or he may be wrong about New York City; but in his preoccupation with the details of the things that divide us, he is concentrating on Mayor Beame, New York City, Ronald Reagan, the former governor of California, forgetting the centuries condemning the urban world we have, and longing for the agrarian world that is gone."

Other economists are saying, "The opportunities of the future will probably include an ability to put material living standards in the 21st Century more or less whenever men want them."

This writer is inclined to agree with the second theory.

New York City is not part of a foreign country and a lot of people will be out of jobs if help does not arrive.

President Ford's political situation is one thing, and helping New York City is another thing.

What is your opinion?

Out Of The Mouths Of Black Folks

Mary McLeod Bethune
1875-1955

Among the number of women who have pioneered in the field of education, Mary M. Bethune emerges as one of America's foremost educators. This Black lady, one of 17 children born to slave parents, was the founder and first president of the nationally accredited Bethune Cookman College, which is located in Daytona, Florida.

Possessed with dignity, eloquence and the power of persuasion, Mrs. Bethune was in constant demand as a public speaker, and she traveled extensively throughout this country addressing throngs of people.

She was a personal friend and special advisor to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, and she was the recipient of numerous honors and awards including the Spingarn Gold Medal. In 1949, the honorary degree of Doctor of Humanities was awarded to her by Rollins College, one of the oldest colleges for whites in the South.

In her Last Will and Testament, Mrs. Bethune wrote: I leave you love; I leave you hope; I leave you the challenge of developing confidence in one another; I leave you a thirst for an education; I leave you a respect for the use of power; I leave you faith; I leave you racial dignity Association Asks For Reopening Of Court Case

CHARLOTTE AP-North State Law Enforcement Officers Association NSLEO asked a federal court to reopen a four-year-old discrimination case against the Charlotte Police Department.

The predominantly Black organization, which includes 16 Black Charlotte policemen, said in the motion that the department is "not being effectively desegregated" under an existing court order.

The original NSLEO suit was filed in 1971, but never went to trial when both sides agreed to an order to make the department 20 per cent Black.

The new suit alleges, in part, that the Charlotte police department still has several "all white" units, discriminates against Blacks in its entrance examinations, and that merit raises are given only to white officers.

The motion does not list an specific details to substantiate the allegations.

It asks the department that Black officers who were allegedly discriminated against be compensated with back pay and promotions, the suit also calls for the immediate and effective desegregations of the department.

Supreme Court To Hear Cases

WASHINGTON AP - More than 21 years after the Supreme Court outlawed segregation in public schools, the court still is studying the question of segregated education and the U.S. Civil Rights Commission is launching a public defense of busing to achieve racial balance.

The nation's highest court handed down decisions in four busing-related school desegregation cases and then agreed to consider whether a private school can legally refuse to enroll Black students.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, which did not even exist when the high court handed down its landmark desegregation ruling in 1954, said it would sponsor public hearings, surveys and conferences in the next year in an effort to battle what officials see as a threat to antidiscrimination efforts.

Commission chairman Arthur S. Flemming said sentiment against the busing of children to achieve racial balance threatens "the whole civil rights movement" and that panel members will fight antibusing amendments in Congress.

In addition to agreeing to hear arguments in the private schools case, the Supreme Court upheld lower court decisions that could require busing to desegregate schools in Omaha, Neb., and in three St. Louis-area school districts.

The court also announced it would review a lower court decision holding that the Pasadena, Calif., board of education still is bound by a 1970 desegregation order although board members claim their schools now are fully integrated.

The private school case was appealed to the high court by two private Virginia schools. Lawyers for the Fairfax-Brewster School of Bailey's Crossroads, Va., and Bobbe's Private School in Arlington, Va., say federal antidiscrimination laws do not apply to private institutions.

If the laws do apply, the lawyers say that would amount to violations of constitutional rights to privacy and freedom of association.

In the Pasadena case, school officials say they have been in compliance for the last four years with an order that demanded that no school in the district have "a majority of any minority students."

The Pasadena case may prompt the court to decide how long school districts under court-ordered mixing plans should be required to keep reporting their desegregation efforts to federal judges.

In the two cases the high court refused to review, the justices let stand decisions by the U.S. Circuit Court in St. Louis.

The Court of Appeals had ordered Omaha school officials to have a desegregation plan in effect by next fall, using busing if necessary. In the St. Louis area case, the Supreme Court refused to review a court-ordered merger of three Missouri school districts calling for busing of children across existing district lines.

SPORTS NOTEBOOK

By Craig R. Turner

There are only two weeks left in the 1975 football season for A&T and those two weeks will determine a great deal for Aggies.

For only the third time since 1968, the Aggies are one of the few remaining teams with a shot at a possible championship.

A&T will travel to Dover, Del. to face up and down Delaware State in a most crucial contest in the MEAC.

The Hornets have won three straight games and are resting on a creditable 5-3 record this year.

Although they have not won the so-called "big games" they pushed both Howard and North Carolina Central to the brink.

With only Delaware and Central left on the schedule, most observers would point to next week's showdown with Central.

But as most coaches would tell you when facing this situation, you can't have one without the other.

In other words, A&T cannot afford to either lose or tie Delaware State. If the Aggies are caught looking ahead to Central it could be a repeat of the Grambling game in the northeast city this weekend.

Central may be on top of the MEAC but that bit of news didn't impress Johnson C. Smith in the least as the Charlotte club won big, 22-14.

South Carolina rebounded against winless Maryland-Eastern Shore, 28-0, but they were not impressive at all in Princess Anne, Md.

Howard made the same fatal mistake A&T made last week and played a Southwest Athletic Conference team. Southern University won easily 20-0.

Morgan State salvaged a little pride when they upset Virginia Union, 21-20, in an old rivalry.

In two key games this week, A&T goes to Delaware State and Howard will travel to North Carolina Central. It should be a tense Saturday afternoon.

The winners of this year's MEAC and CIAA football races are slated to meet in the proposed Gate City Bowl on December 6. The game will be held on the home field of the MEAC champion.

Another note of interest for the upcoming A&T-North Carolina Central game appeared this week. There have been some inquiries into moving the site of that game by athletic officials.

Wake Forest's Groves Stadium in Winston Salem has been mentioned as a possible site to accommodate the expected overflow crowd.

Greensboro's Memorial Stadium is still presently the site for the possible championship battle.

It is time for another weekly prediction and this weekend's contest leaves a lot to be desired.

Usually Delaware State gives A&T a rough time in Greensboro. The Aggies have blitzed the Hornets every time they have gone to Dover. This week is no different.

Knee Injury Sidelines Johnson

By Craig Turner

Earlier this week, a tall, lithe and somewhat shadowy bearded youth leaned along the bleachers of historic Moore Gym with a basketball in hand.

He watched anxiously as the 1975-76 North Carolina A&T basketball team went through its usual preseason drills in the steamy old building.

Ron Johnson, a 6-7 forward from Chester Pa., would only relate a few words of wisdom to his teammates as he was sidelined from action because of a knee operation this past summer.

Johnson's competitive spirit not only carried over from his brilliant high school in Wilmington, Del. but also into his performance of a year ago when he claimed all-MEAC and tournament honors. "I just want to get well as quick as possible. I can't stand just sitting around doing nothing," related Johnson.

Johnson played through most of the 1974-75 season with a great deal of pain and had his right knee operated on during the off season.

"The doctor told me that it's going to take some time before I can play. He wants me to be able to lift 80 to 90 pounds with it. Right now I can get to 60 to 70 pounds pretty well," Johnson explained.

The highly regarded senior displayed a high degree of coolness when faced with the question of pressure on himself to repeat his performance of a year ago.

"I really don't feel any pressure this season. I'm just trying to help out until I can play by getting myself together," he said.

Johnson was cautiously optimistic about the latest edition of the round-ball Aggies.

"We've got more talent out here than ever before. We're plenty tall but we're young and it's going to take some time for everyone to learn each other," he said.

Attitudes play an important part of any athletic squad and Johnson gave insight into his ball club's frame of mind.

"Being a lot younger, they have a better attitude. Although we have good talent, shooters, and individual players, they're working as a club. It's only a matter of time," said the Aggie standout.

Johnson will be watched very closely this season as he prepares for his final hurrah. Being rated as one of the league's top prospects hasn't affected Johnson to any great degree.

"If the opportunity to play in professional ball comes along, I'll accept it. I won't be too disappointed if it doesn't," said the recreation major.

"My major is recreation but my field is therapy. My first concern is to graduate and to work at my own pace," Johnson responded.

If academics and character still play a valuable role in today's society, then Ron Johnson can be registered as "can't miss."

Aggies Will Do Battle With Hornets Saturday

By Craig Turner

North Carolina A&T will try to secure its position as a contender for the MEAC football title as they travel to Dover, Del. to do battle with Delaware State College this Saturday.

The Hornets are under the instruction of new head Coach Edmond Wyche. The former Howard University coach has led the rebuilding Hornets to a impressive 5-3 record.

Wyche's club has been the winner of three straight games, two of which have been over conference foes of Morgan State and Maryland Eastern Shore.

The Hornets possess a bonafide all-America candidate in wide receiver John Chisholm (6-4, 200) who is second in pass receptions for the league.

The backfield will be without the services of 9.2 speedster Walt Tullis, who broke his leg earlier in the year.

The running backs will be Ricardo Moody (5-10, 170) and the Hornets' leading ground gainer and fullback Isaac Munns (5-10, 190).

The offensive line is not one of the largest units in the league by any means. The average weight is only 225 pounds per man.

The group is led by juniors Caldwell Cooper (6-2, 220) and Reggie Harrison (6-0, 225).

The defensive secondary is one of the better units in the league. Andre Dixon (6-10, 170), Norman Empty (5-10, 165), Walter Lutin (5-10, 162), and Reggie Jackson (5-11, 180) may be the best in the MEAC as a squad.

The linebackers are led by all-MEAC Ken Wright (6-2, 235) and standout Steve Wright (6-0, 200).

"Front four" have been a Hornet trademark the last three years. Several new faces will appear in this year's lineup.

Reginald McCormick is a massive specimen at 6-5, 270 pounds. His support will come from sophomores James Miner (6-4, 240) Johnnie Parker (6-4, 280), and Bernard McNeil (6-4, 260).

Kickoff is set for 1:30 pm at Alumni Field on the Campus of Delaware State College.

Reynolds Suspends Butler From '75 Basketball Team

By Craig Turner

Head basketball Coach Warren Reynolds announced late Monday that Vincent Butler, a senior forward, has been indefinitely suspended from the A&T basketball team for 1975-76.

The 6-4 senior from Winston Salem, N.C. was suspended for what was disclosed as disciplinary reasons.

It was also revealed that guard Charles Chamberlain has been ruled ineligible for the fall semester of 1975.

The 6-3 sophomore from Philadelphia, Pa. played sparingly a year ago but was counted on to add depth to the backcourt.

Butler had been a prime prospect for the starting lineup until his suspension from the squad.

A&T Vs NCCU Game Will Be In Greensboro

By Craig Turner

North Carolina A&T athletic director Calvin Irvin ended speculation Wednesday afternoon on the site of the upcoming A&T-North Carolina Central football game.

"As of today, the North Carolina Central football game will be played at Memorial Stadium," stated Irvin.

Irvin pointed out what measures would be taken to accommodate the expected overflow crowd next weekend.

"We'll treat this game in the same manner as we treated the homecoming game," he explained.

It had been mentioned earlier in the week that the crucial Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference tilt might be moved to Wake Forest University's Groves Stadium in Winston-Salem.

The Aggies bumped into Grambling and fell on the bottom, but they have the ability to bounce back.

It's true. The opportunities you'll have as a Nuclear Propulsion Officer Candidate are far from ordinary. Just ask Lieutenant Junior Grade Charles Collier, from Baltimore, Maryland. Chuck's a nuclear trained Naval Officer taking advanced studies in the field of nuclear submarine operations. It's tough, but he thinks it's worth it. Because Chuck's next assignment will be in a nuclear powered Polaris submarine. Destination: the world.

Do you think you have what it takes to become a NUPOC? First, you have to be a college senior, or graduate with a good knowledge of math, physics, or engineering. You'll also need talent... ability... and character. All the things it takes to be a leader of men and to deal with the challenges of "innerspace".

The graduate level training you'll receive in our NUPOC program will prepare you for supervising the operation of our nuclear propulsion plants on either nuclear surface ships or submarines. You'll work alongside a hand picked crew of experts. And remember, it's a Nuclear Age. The knowledge you get today will be in demand tomorrow.

You get a lot in return, too. You receive a Naval Officer's commission. Have a guaranteed income while you're learning. And a chance to travel and have some fun. Talk with your Navy Officer Recruiter today about our NUPOC program, or call toll free 800-841-8000. (In Georgia, call toll free 800-342-5855). NUPOC: it means Nuclear Propulsion Officer Candidate. But it spells opportunity!

The opportunity is for real...and so are we. NAVY
