University Honors Black Pioneer

Robert L. Wynn of Greensboro, who in 1945 became the first Black extension specialist in the United States, has been honored as a pioneer by the Department of Animal Science at North Carolina State University in Raleigh.

Wynn's portrait has been permanently placed in the hallway of Polk Hall, home of University Honors Black Pioneer Hyatt, Jr., chairman of the Department of Animal Science and Bio-Chemistry at NC State.

Wynn, a native of Taylor County, Georgia, retired from the state's agricultural extension service at A&T State University in 1970, after completing 29 years with the program.

According to Dr. George Hyatt, Jr., chairman of the Department of Animal Science at NC State, Wynn's work with Black dairy farmers was outstanding.

In 1963, Wynn accepted a two-year temporary assignment as director of continuing education at the University of Nigeria. In 1970 he helped organize the Animal Husbandry Department at Fort Valley State College. He later earned a B.S. degree in animal husbandry from Michigan State University.

Wynn has also been honored for his work by Tuskegee Institute and Hampton Institute.

In a memorandum issued by the vice-chancellor for student affairs, Dr. Joseph E. Marshall, on December 1, it was reported that Joseph Bey, a sophomore co-op student, had died during the Thanksgiving holiday.

Bey, from Chicago, Illinois, will be buried in his hometown on Saturday, December 6.
Levi Insists On Supervising FBI

WASHINGTON AP—Unlike most of his predecessors, Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi says he insists on supervising the FBI and is voicing criticism of the agency's past misdeeds.

Levi says his major effort to control FBI conduct lies in a comprehensive set of guidelines now being drafted to prevent future abuses such as those described to the Senate intelligence committee on Wednesday.

The FBI spied on newsmen, government officials and civil rights leaders under presidents of both parties and agents were used for political purposes as early as the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration, witnesses told the committee.

Testimony during the past two weeks has included a flood of fresh details about FBI attempts to discredit the late Martin Luther King and other civil rights leaders, sow dissension among political activists and collect and spread derogatory information about politicians.

FBI officials have made only feeble attempts at a defense. They acknowledge there was no legal justification for many activities, but point out that past presidents and attorneys general must share the responsibility.

They maintain "the times were different" in the 1960s when the FBI's disruptive tactics and political abuse peaked.

Levi also notes that concern about the sometimes violent civil rights and antiwar protests of the 1960s may have spurred concern about individual rights to free speech and privacy.

But he frequently and publicly has labeled many FBI harassment tactics outrageous and some of them foolish.

Appeals Court Refuses To Set New Bond

RALEIGH AP—The North Carolina Court of Appeals has refused to set a new bond for Joan Little and delay her return to prison, the last legal step before her attorneys ask the state Supreme Court to review her 1974 conviction for breaking (See Little's, Page 3)
Females Are Upset By Thefts

By Daryl E. Smith

There have been several complaints from female students received by the campus security concerning the thefts taking place from various dormitories.

Officer Cynthia Cole, nicknamed “Christie Love,” by the students at A&T reported, “Our office received calls from Vanston and Morrison Halls, reporting a bra and a leather jacket missing.”

“Investigating further, I was able to get a description of three women that had been sighted coming out of the basement of Vanston,” she said.

Asked how she was able to obtain a description of the suspects, Officer Cole said, “An informant gave me a name and I was able to trace the suspect through records here on campus.”

Asked if the suspect lived on campus, Miss Cole said, “No, the suspect lived off campus with two other women.”

She continued, “One of the complainant’s recognized her missing coat being worn by the suspect. She approached the suspect and questioned her about the coat. The suspect fled.”

She continued, “I picked up the suspect and the articles in question, and the suspect and complainant were taken downtown where formal procedures were carried out. The other two women were taken downtown for questioning.”

Asked what is the major area that she responds to more often, Officer Cole said, “Cooper Hall is a headache. There are fights between different individuals and locations are quite frequent.”

Officer Cole said, “The major complaints are stolen property.”

If her appeal to the state Supreme Court is unsuccessful, Miss Little’s lawyers have indicated they will appeal to the federal courts in a fight to keep the case which attracted international attention.

Students Compare A&T’s Food

By Michael R. Davis

Lawrence Munson, director of food services, expressed a want to hear student opinions on his food service as compared to food at Grambling and South Carolina State. Miss Cole said, “We have very pleasant attitudes. The food is still enjoyable and the personnel have very pleasant attitudes.”

Williams Cafeteria which serves the majority of students is the building most students compare to other cafeterias. Most students say they really like the fact that one can get as much bread and drink as desired.

Several students who eat lunch at 11:00 a.m. however, find themselves eating lunch again at 2:00 p.m. because the food change doesn’t take place until approximately 1:00 p.m. One band member suggested that during this conflicting time, one line be set aside for the dinner foods and another for the lunch foods.

The Athletic Department here is involved in an entirely different food program from that of Williams Cafeteria. There is the necessary balanced meal designed for athletes, which leads up to many complaints about that of the basic food service designed.

While visiting Brown Hall (athletic cafeteria) one will discover that there are no curtains over the majority of the windows. In addition, that athletes have been eating out of paper plates for several months because of the dishwasher that hasn’t been repaired. The food is still enjoyable and the personnel have very pleasant attitudes.

A&T Deserves Grants

This week's series in The Greensboro Record concerning federal aid granted to local institutions hints that The Record may be a bit prejudiced against A&T and Bennett College. The Record's staff writer, Darst McNairy, suggests strongly that he thinks A&T and Bennett are receiving money that should be going to UNC-G. He bases this belief on the fact that UNC-G's enrollment is greater and that UNC-G students are receiving more money in the form of loans and grants.

It doesn't seem to matter that the majority of these grants received by A&T are to be used strictly for research and various programs. Maybe McNairy doesn't know that grants aren't to be used as the school pleases, but rather by the demands of the grant itself. McNairy also seems to ignore the fact that although A&T receives more money in the form of grants than UNC-G, very little of it is from state funds. Each year state funds are making up less of A&T's total revenue.

McNairy's using the increase in student aid at UNC-G as a reason why A&T shouldn't be receiving so much more money than UNC-G disregards the fact that about 80 per cent of the undergraduate students at A&T receive financial assistance.

The fact that A&T is steadily meeting the demands of the federal grants received should be evident enough that these grants are well-deserved. So, I say to Darst McNairy, The Greensboro Record, and anyone else who thinks UNC-G should be receiving more federal money, look somewhere other than to the funds received by predominantly Black institutions.

Fellowship Gospel Choir Participates In Festival

By Zevvy McDougald

The North Carolina A&T Fellowship Gospel Choir travelled to Atlanta, Georgia, November 28-30, 1975 and participated in the third annual National Black Gospel Festival. A total of thirty-eight members and several advisors attended the festival.

The choir rendered three selections on Saturday night. Those selections included "In Shady Green Pastures," "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart," led by Nellie Roundtree, and "I Ain’t Gon Let Nobody Turn Me Around" led by Geraldine Graham.

Court Rejects Extradition Case

Lansing, Mich. AP. The state Supreme Court has rejected the six-year-old fight of a Black activist to avoid extradition from Michigan to North Carolina to face a charge of kidnapping.

On a divided 3-3 vote, the court upheld a Circuit Court of Appeals decision denying Robert F. Williams' attempt to challenge a North Carolina indictment while remaining in Michigan.

Williams, a Black separatist, former head of the "Republic of New Africa" and now living in Red China, had fled the state.

He spent several years out of the United States, including four years in Red China, returning to Detroit in 1968.

The Republic of New Africa, now seldom heard from, is a Black separatist group which wanted the U.S. to hand over five southern states which would form a new, all-Black nation.

In 1965, the North Carolina Supreme Court upheld the 1961 indictment, and new indictments were issued against the five. Williams claimed the second indictment against him was a forgery and invalid.

The governor of North Carolina nominated Williams for extradition, and in 1969, Gov. William Milliken issued the extradition warrant.

Williams, after learning the high court had rejected his bid, said his return to North Carolina would rekindle racial problems there.

Williams said he would keep fighting the charges if he returns to North Carolina. He did not indicate what the next step in his legal struggle might be, since he had not talked with his attorney.

He said earlier that he was not in the area when the alleged kidnapping occurred. Earlier, however, he said his friends helped shield those who were allegedly kidnapped from a threatening crowd.

Williams maintained before the high court that he should be permitted to prove the second indictment against him was a forgery.

He argued before the Supreme Court that he should be permitted to argue the case in Michigan, and not in North Carolina where, he said, he would not be given a fair hearing.

Three justices—Mary Coleman, John Fitzgerald and Lawrence Lindemer—voted to reject Williams' argument and affirm the extradition.

Judicial matters often become the basis for a new struggle for political freedom. The new struggle is to be won or lost in the courts, which are the only social institutions that will not fall into disrepair through frustration or despair.

Williams said he had no plans to leave Michigan if he is extradited.

Williams, after learning the high court had rejected his bid, said his return to North Carolina would rekindle racial problems there.

Final Examination Schedule

Course Sequence Time of Examination

FALL SEMESTER 1975

107 will be held Monday, December 15th, 6:00-8:00 p.m.

Night classes meeting in three-hour blocks of time will have their final examination the regular meeting night during examination week.

Classes meeting on Saturday have their final examination at the regular meeting time, Saturday, December 23, 1975.

All examinations will be held in the regular classroom unless notified otherwise by the instructor.

Grades are due in the office of Registration and Records by 2:00 p.m., Friday, December 19, 1975.
A&T got its 1975-76 basketball schedule underway by disposing of two nonconference opponents during the Thanksgiving holiday.

Although A&T won without a great deal of trouble over both Morehouse and High Point, I can truthfully say A&T has a lot to prove.

Admittedly, a game this early in the year cannot be used as a measuring device for the rest of the campaign. But neither can Coach Warren Reynolds disregard the fact that A&T was blasted on the boards by what was referred to as a "Division II" ball team.

If A&T is to continue to be outboarded by its opponents and to have 39 percent shooting nights, the domination of the MEAC could end rather abruptly.

The Aggies will find out how good they really are this week with Delaware State and Maryland-Eastern Shore coming into Greensboro.

UCLA has relinquished its title as the king of college basketball temporarily to Indiana. There will be no permanent residence of that title in the Hoosier State.

South Carolina State won the South Carolina College Tournament by upending Benedict 79-78 in the championship contest.

Howard seems to lose by big margins everyday it plays the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. It was only 115-75. That was much better considering it was beaten by 60 points last season.

A&T will be making some tracks to Durham Tuesday night to play a vastly improved North Carolina Central (See Sports, Page 7).

An All-American

A&T tight end Walter Bennett has been named to Associated Press College Division All-America team for 1975.

The 6-2, 210 pound senior was a key figure in leading the Aggies to their first Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference championship.

Bennett's selection to the third team on the All-America squad is the first for the Aggies since tackle William Wideman's selection in 1972.

team. This game could prove to be a tough one.

That Durham bunch would like nothing better than to avenge a loss of a few weeks ago.

Smith Barrier's crew down at Greensboro Daily News picked the All-State collegiate team last week.

Their sports department picked A&T defensive players Ron Morgan and Joe Crosby. Amazingly the Daily News completely disregarded quarterback Ellsworth Turner and tighten. Wilt Bennett both of whom rated the first team all MEAC.

George Ragsdale, who ran for 920 yards and 15 touchdowns, and Dexter Feaster, who has caught nearly 800 yards in passes in two seasons, were relegated to the honorable mention list.

Surely Dave Buckey of N.C. State is a fine and talented quarterback but he can hardly match Turner's performance for consistency and completion percentage. To rate Pat Hovance, another State player, over A&T's Bennett at tight end is an insult.

Ragsdale led all backs in scoring in this state while playing only eight games for the year. Surely Ted Brown, honorable mention list.

A&T Makes Clean Sweep

Of Postseason Honors

DURHAM AP-South Carolina State, football co-champions of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference for 1975, placed seven players on the first team of the All-MEAC team announced Wednesday.

The Bulldogs finished the season with 5-1 league mark and tie A&T for the conference title. Howard and Morgan State each landed five players on the first team, while A&T gained four positions. Delaware State placed two players and both North Carolina A&T and Maryland-Eastern Shore each placed one player on the first team.

The first team also included eight repeaters-four on offense and four on defense.

Walter Bennett of A&T, who tied for the tight end position last year, was a repeater as was Dexter Feaster at split end.

The offensive line included guards Keith Naper of Howard, a repeater, and Luther Dixon of South Carolina State, center Dan Ambrose of Howard and tackles General Roney of Howard and William Lighty of Morgan State.

Ellsworth Turner of A&T beat out Michael Banks of Howard for the quarterback position. Turner, a sophomore from Goldsboro, Md., led the conference in passing and total offense this season. He completed 107 of 197 passes for 1,349 yards and gained 920 yards in 207 carries.

Ragsdale was named a first team All-MEAC player.

The 16-0, 185 pound senior from Baltimore, Md., rushed for 920 yards and 15 touchdowns.

The defensive line was made up of A&T's Keith McCants, a repeater, and Luther Dixon of South Carolina State and Carl Houston of Maryland-Eastern Shore.

Perry Is Intent On Teaching

A&T plenty of young but inexperienced talent. However Perry seemed undisturbed about that item. “These young guys showed us in pre-season that they can play. They’ll take the pressure off us when we need a blow or get into foul trouble. They’ll be all right,” answered Perry.

Overall we’ll be a lot better. There is no one individual that dominates on this club. Our scoring will improve and the defense will be as tough as ever.” Defense is something Perry is familiar with as his over aggressiveness has sometimes caused him to get into early foul trouble. “Defense is the strongest point of my game. Quickness and anticipation go hand in hand here,” said the scrappy little competitor.

The senior recreation major is intent on a career in the teaching profession. “When I leave, I would like to get my teacher’s certificate and possibly coach if the chance comes along,” stated Perry. The popular Perry had little aspiration when talk of the professional ranks came up. “If anything comes along, I will take it, but I won’t rely on that in the least,” he responded.

Raymond Perry may not be the most talented individual on the basketball court, but he merely proven the point of just what a little hard work and basic fundamentals can do for a collegiate guard.

Sedley Roach

designs instrument systems to cut pollution, and save energy.

Sedley is 23 years old. She holds a BSEE from Southern University in Baton Rouge and has been a Du Pont Engineer for just over a year.

Right now Sedley is part of a team designing instrumentation for process control in a new distillation column to be added to an existing organic chemical plant. The modification will reduce aqueous waste pollution without increasing energy consumption. It’s all part of Du Pont’s plan to spend $2.5-billion in capital improvements to make the future more productive, more efficient, safer and cleaner for everyone.

Sedley’s contribution is not unique. Du Pont has a reputation of getting young engineers into the mainstream quickly. If you’d like to work for a company where contributions really count, and where you’re much more than just another number on a computer printout, do what Sedley did. Talk to your Du Pont Personnel Representative. He’ll show you how to help yourself while helping others. Du Pont Co., Rm. 24112, Wilmington, DE 19898.
