McMillan Says:

Towing Will Start Tuesday

By Daryl E. Smith

At a press conference held in the Clyde DeHuguley Service Center, traffic administration officer, Norwood McMillan stated that beginning September 6, any vehicle on campus not displaying a current vehicle sticker, will be towed.

McMillan said that the old sticker expired on August 15, but his office felt that a grace period should be placed into effect because of registration and new people coming into the school system.

"We have put up new signs which designate the proper parking places on campus, and I would like to emphasize that there is no grace period for cars improperly parked," he said.

McMillan commented that the parking conditions are basically the same as last year, finding a space on one side of campus and then driving on the other side of campus to park or some people show-boating in their cars, holding up traffic.

"Students who have C or B decals should park around the specified areas designed for those decals."

"People who have A decals should park where they have been allocated to park."

The traffic administrative officer said that he would like to see people park their cars and walk to their individual classes.

"Our campus is not that large that people can't walk. In addition our parking fees are less at this university than any other university its size," he said.

The traffic planning committee is presently working on plans for building parking lots on campus, but the process is very slow.

McMillan said that, in the event that the tow truck is called out for a particular car, the charge for the truck trip is 7.50; and, if the car is towed, the cost to the individual will be $15.00.

"The school has no personal interest in seeing a student's or faculty member's car towed, but the laws will be enacted upon the faculty, staff, and the students, with no favorites," McMillan said.

Asked if there had been any major traffic accidents on campus, he said, "There have been no major accidents or problems per se; traffic has been orderly."

Asked how many cars are registered on campus, McMillan said, "At this point I can't accurately say how many cars are on campus because some of the people won't register their cars, until they see that we mean business."

Davis Pushes For Boycott Against Tourist Industry

RALEIGH (AP)—Black activist Angela Davis said Thursday the National Alliance Against Racist and Political Repression will attempt to persuade people to boycott North Carolina's tourist industry to protest "Racism and repression."

Speaking at a press conference called to announce final plans for a protest march in Raleigh Monday, Ms. Davis said the boycott would "be an opportunity to put pressure on people who cooperate with the oppression in this state." The alliance, of which she is co-chairman, is sponsoring the march.

Ms. Davis, a self-avowed communist, also accused Raleigh officials of trying to create an "atmosphere of violence" in assembling a large force of law officers and National Guard troops for the march.

"We have made it absolutely clear that the Labor Day march will be peaceful," she said. "The police department and the mayor's office are trying to create an atmosphere of violence or something is happening that we don't know about."

Gov. Jim Holshouser Monday alerted 1,000 National Guard troops and 100 state highway patrolmen to provide backup for local lawmen during the

Morgan To Head Campus Ministry

By Mary E. Cropps

Rev. Marvin L. Morgan was recently named the new director of the United Campus Christian Ministry at A&T. Rev. Morgan received his B.A. from Elon College in 1971 and his Masters of Divinity Degree from Duke University Divinity School in 1974.

A native of Zebulon, Rev. Morgan is pastor of Ebenezer United Church of Christ in Burlington and a member of the Executive Council of the United Church of Christ. He has written several magazine articles, also.

Rev. Morgan feels that student attitudes toward religion, and especially the institutional church, are changing in that those who are interested in religion or in the church are extremely interested. Rev. Morgan sees this change evidenced by the almost phenomenal growth of young adult choirs in local churches and in the rise of Penecostal Fellowship choirs on predominately Black college campuses.

The new campus ministry director feels that students who are interested in religious activities are in desperate need of guidance and direction from trained religious professionals and he hopes to be able to provide this help here.

"College students have to deal with the various ways in which the adult generation has failed them," said Rev. Morgan. He cited some examples of these failures such as the Watergate scandal and the recent sex and corruption scandals.

Those students who are opposed to religion or the church are extremely opposed, Rev. Morgan said, and these students need guidance too. As a campus minister, he hopes to be able to provide some of the guidance that is necessary for students to cope with the problems that arise from each extreme.

Rev. Morgan described his job as being one of guidance. He also hopes to bring some resource people, such as James Cone, a Black theologian, on campus.

In commenting on A&T in general, Rev. Morgan said, "I find the community here to be very warm."

Students Face Text Shortage

By Zavery McDougald

Imagine, you have just completed registration; you are now waiting to receive your books in a line that seems endless. You finally hear your name called, and then you are informed that only one of your books on your class schedule is available when you have registered for eighteen hours.

This situation has occurred for many of our new and returning Aggies. This reporter decided to inquire as to the reason for this book shortage.

Upon entering the bookstore, one's eye is immediately focused on a sign urging students to help alleviate the book shortage by returning books that are not in use.

James Meachem, director of the university bookstore stated "We did not anticipate the large enrollment that we have, but we did have books available according to department chairmen requisitions.

Meachem stated that he must admit that during registration some students received the wrong books or received books for a course that they plan to drop, but it is the responsibility of these students to return these books to cut down on this shortage.

Meachem said "More books have been ordered but the shortage may not be alleviated because of the uncertainty of the enrollment during the upcoming drop and add period."

The new books are expected to arrive beginning Tuesday, September 7th, but again the supply will be limited.

demonstration, which organizers say will attract "thousands" of persons.

City officials who requested the assistance said they expected no violence and the call for extra manpower was only a precautionary measure.

The alliance's attention was focused on North Carolina, Ms. Davis said, because "when it comes to racism and political repression, unfortunately it has to be said that North Carolina ranks number one in the country."

Ms. Davis said the march would be the beginning of a new offensive in the state. The alliance sponsored a 1974 march of some 4,000 people against the death penalty. Its activities were low-key after that, but alliance coordinator Michael Myerson said it will follow up this march with sustained efforts to gain rights for laborers and prisoners in North Carolina.

Weather Forecast

NORTH CAROLINA:
Mostly cloudy through Saturday with periods of showers and thundershowers, especially Saturday. Lows at night will mostly be in the 60's. Highs today and tomorrow will be in the upper 70's to mid 80's.

Entertainment :

Nelle's Corner

By Lynelle Stevenson

Columbia Records has released an album on a new artist that it thinks will be the surprise artist of the year. Her name is Deniece Williams and the title of the LP is "This is Niecy."

In her younger years Deniece wanted to be a nurse. Although she thought little of her ability to sing, other's didn't. Now, she finds herself in one of the choicest spots in her profession.

While attending high school in her hometown of Gary, Indiana, Deniece worked part-time in a record shop. After hearing her sing along with the records, the owner brought in some friends to hear Deniece.

Next stop, recording for Toddlin Town label. Although nothing happened at that time and Deniece went on to college and then became a housewife, the stage had been set.

One day, after hearing one of her singles, Stevie Wonder wanted her to join his band as a backup singer. Deniece complied.

After touring for one and a half months, Deniece decided once again that she had no interest in singing professionally. She went back home only to hit the road once again when Wonder called with a new booking.

Deniece has participated in every album Wonder has recorded from 1972 till 1976. While traveling extensively, she has become a sought-after "voice" for other performers' sessions.

While with Wonder, Deniece developed her talents as a composer. Her songs have been recorded by Frankie Valli, The Soul Train Gang, Merry Clayton, and the Emotions.

The most recent step for Deniece was when a mutual friend introduced her to Maurice White, leader of Earth, Wind and Fire, who was looking for Columbian records. The result, a new LP.

I'm sure you'll like it. Pass the word on. . . Deniece Williams has arrived.

Paperback Books Cause Problems

By Patricia A. Eason

Many students living on and off campus complain about the prices of the paperback books they have to purchase in the book store.

James Meachem, bookstore manager said, "Many students are not aware of the complexity involved in producing the paperback books for their classes."

Continuing he said, "All of the paperback books are not expensive."

If a paperback book is a texted edition, that means that the paperback book has been researched and documented by a professional or a historian. Therefore the paperback book is authentic and more expensive."

Meachem said that the laboratory manuals are lower in price in the courses like biology, chemistry and physics because they are used by a number of students.

Text books run from $8.00 to $20.00 with manuals priced at $4.95 to $7.45 and the other paperback books run from $1.95 to $3.95.

INTRODUCTION TO ASTRONOMY TO SATISFY THE UNIVERSITY REQUIREMENTS

The past decade has witnessed an unprecedented growth in Astronomy which was brought about by the many new developments in the sciences and by space exploration. The marked increase in the enrollment of INTRODUCTION TO ASTRONOMY course by non-science students, indicates how deeply Astronomy has captured the popular imagination.

The course INTRODUCTION TO ASTRONOMY is an attempt to provide the foundation that will allow the student to intelligently appreciate the events occurring in space and to do so with a minimum of mathematics.

The University Senate has approved INTRODUCTION TO ASTRONOMY, Physics 101, as one of the courses that can be taken to satisfy the core requirements of the University in the area of natural science. The course is open without prerequisite to all students enrolled in the University and it carries three (3) credit hours.

By Michael R. Davis

What is your opinion of the 1975-76 yearbook publication?

This was the question several students desired to comment on.

Ronald Long, a junior music major from Greensboro, replied, "The 1976 yearbook did not have the A&T tradition. The photography was neither acceptable nor representative of the activities that were in effect during that year."

Pierre Melvin, a senior accounting major from Fayetteville, simply said, "The year did not even exist on the cover. Why go further to criticize other pages."

mass communications major from Greensboro, chose to combine his comments with those of senior, Glen Turner, who is a physical education major.

First, among their criticisms was the fact that the yearbook had only one date on the cover "1891".

Secondly, they felt as if there were too many insignificant pages, in addition to the repeats of a few pictures such as pages 89 and 91 where Sinclair Colbert is seen missing the same rebound twice.

Thirdly, they thought it to be very pathetic and boring, having to play "name this queen," and in other sections "what's my line?" In concluding, they mentioned a deficiency of the track, baseball and the wrestling teams in the sports section.

For the above reasons Battle boasted, "Every student should be eligible for refund. The yearbook was not worth the $20.00 everyone paid in tuition.

Nokie Norman, a junior social service major from Pisgah Forest, replied, "It appeared as if it were compiled in just a minutes' notice."

Jimmie Woods, a senior business administration major from St. Petersburg, Fla. exclaimed, "The book was very unorganized and didn't illustrate the spirit of the upcoming edition."

Finally, Sandra Jones, a sophomore professional theater major from Winterville, revealed, "I didn't see anything in the yearbook that would suggest that this was a university. There should have been more photographs of students participating in the more academic areas. Don't show students constantly going to class, but show what goes on when they get in class."

Marching Machine Goes To Richmond Saturday

By Lynelle Stevenson

It seems that the Blue and Gold Marching Machine will put in an appearance at the football game this weekend against Virginia Union in Richmond, Va., after all.

Due to pressure on the part of the administration, the band will leave A&T Saturday afternoon at 1 p.m. for Richmond.

Over in Frazier Hall there is great confusion due to the last minute orders. Band uniforms have to be issued, instruments repaired, cadences reviewed and routines learned.

Although band director Robert Williams, was not available for comments, a few band members voiced their opinions.

Band president Barney Black, a senior from Winston-Salem, commented thusly: "I feel it is entirely unfair. The administration wouldn't let the band come back early or register early and now they expect a show early. I think it's gonna leave a bad impression on the school."

Freddie Stocks, president of the Future Alumni Activity committee said this: "It's entirely wrong because the band isn't as ready as it could be."

Trumpeter, Dwain Richardson felt this way: "Students had made plans for the holiday weekend that now must be cancelled. I think the band should be given more consideration."

Lastly, Thomas Peoples, drum major said this: "I feel that we aren't ready marching wise or uniform wise. Hopefully we can find enough pins to hold all of our uniforms together."

On the whole the band feels that the pressure that is being put on them is really ridiculous for a two-hour course. However, despite the feelings of the band members, the Blue and Gold Marching Machine will perform on Saturday. Game time is at 7 p.m.

A&T Adopts New Retention Policy

By action of the University Senate and the Faculty Forum during the spring semester, a new Academic Retention Policy has been established for A&T.

In addition, a policy was established that sets forth a deadline for grade changes.

A request for grade change, for any reason, must be made within one year following the date the original grade was assigned by the faculty member.

To continue at the University, a full-time student must have the following minimum grade point average and the following minimum semester hours passed at the end of the semester indicated:

For two semesters, the minimum grade point average (GPA) must be 1.2 with 24 semester hours completed. A minimum GPA of 1.4 is required for four semesters completed, which is equivalent to 48 semester hours. For six semesters, the minimum GPA must be 1.7, totaling 72 hours. For eight semesters, (senior classification) the minimum GPA must be 1.9, totaling 96 hours.

The student who does not meet the requirements will be placed on academic probation and required to remove the deficiency prior to the beginning of the fall semester, or by the end of the student's third regular semester.

Failure to remove this deficiency during the probation semester makes the student ineligible to re-enroll until the student has been suspended for a semester.

Students who are on probation at the end of the spring semester may attend summer school and work towards removing their academic deficiencies.

The student who has been suspended and re-admitted is required to make a minimum average of 2.0 the first semester of re-enrollment. Undergraduate part time student must have obtained the grade point average in the new policy, in order to be in good academic standing.

Dr. Frances Logan Becomes Social Service Chairman

By Carol Holiness

To those who are unaware of the new changes in the Sociology and Social Service Department, Dr. Frances Logan, professor of social service who was responsible for the Social Work Field Program, is now acting chairman of the sociology and Social Service Department. Dr. Logan is replacing Dr. Will Scott.

Prior to her appointment, Dr. Logan was a professor of social work at Atlanta University, assistant director at the Settlement House in Philadelphia and was employed by a state mental hospital in Maryland.

Dr. Logan did her undergraduate work at Temple University and went on to complete her master of education. She also completed requirements for her master of social work at the University of Pennsylvania along with her doctorate for social service.

When asked how she felt about her new appointment, Dr. Logan replied, "I'm very happy to have the opportunity to serve the university. During the course of the year, we (the department) expect to refine our departmental goals and curriculum objectives, so that we can continue to provide the high quality educational program in the Sociology and Social Service Department."

Continuing she said, "The social service program is nationally accredited by the Council of Social Work Association. This program is one of the first undergraduate programs in the United States to receive such an accreditation."

The earliest English comedy was written in 1533 and called Ralph Roister Doister.

Are They Necessary ?

As most of us know, parking has become a major problem on campus in the past few years. There are just too many cars here for a campus this size. It is hard enough to just find a parking space; but, if one can find a space close by to where one is going, it would be an absolute miracle.

It seems that, with so many cars on campus, the pedestrians are able to get to, and change classes faster than the motorist. It also may be possible to walk from one side of campus to the other before the frustrated motorist can "bogard" his way into traffic.

There are more cars on this campus than there are students enrolled at some small colleges it seems. One may wonder if having a car on campus is luxury or necessity. For some it is both, but for many the reality of having a car on this campus will soon become a headache.

While on the subject of having cars as a status symbol, there are those persons who will drive around here hour after hour just to show-off their cars. What one does with one's car is one's own business, but there are finer ways to waste gas than driving in circles around A&T.

There are also those people who drive feel they have the God-given right to abruptly stop in the middle of the street and try to set a world's record for the longest conversation.

Trying to cross Laurel Street between Brown and Scott Halls during the changing of a class is like crossing Interstate Highways 85 or 40. Most of the time when crossing that street, the pedestrians just take the chance of stepping out into the street with hopes that the motorist will stop.

The situation boils down to one question: "Are all these cars necessary?"

Who me worrying about a debate?

Put The Labels Aside

By Daryl E. Smith

How important is the veterinary medicine to the student body? Will the alumni and administration have to carry the burden of the legal battles that are in the process now?

For too long A&T has been the victim of a stigma of being the other school across town, or that Black school where all students are militant towards the white race.

The conscious effort that has been directed towards A&T by the people outside of the school, negative in nature and basically sarcastic in form, has perpetuated itself into a realistic barrier that all students, faculty members and past and present administrators have to deal with.

One instructor this summer stated that he had been in Texas teaching at another Black institution, when he decided to transfer to A&T because he had heard that students at A&T were very militant and that he would have to be careful when approaching the students at A&T because he might be beat up.

This impression towards the students and the school in general left the students wondering in their own minds about what the instructor has said. The lies and distortions of the true picture of A&T have caused untold damage to the school and the student body.

The situation has not been helped any by the Board of Governors or the legislature in Raleigh.

The historic implementation for allocation of money for future development within the universities in North Carolina can be documented to show that A&T was left out of the main stream from the beginning of the higher education system in North Carolina.

The time has come when all students, no matter what their majors are or where they are from, must decide for the basic interest of themselves or their school.

The question of how important the school is to the students at A&T will have to be determined and then positive programs for actions will have to be organized.

The question of polarization of the student bodies is another issue that should be dealt with, mainly because students attending NCSU, A&T, UNC-G, and other schools in the system have been historically kept apart, for obvious reasons.

The addition of the veterinary school at A&T would successfully integrate the student body; without the school, A&T will continue to receive token numbers of white students.

From where A&T has come to where A&T has to go is another chapter in the struggle for our survival.

During the Middle Ages, baths were usually taken only on a doctor's request!

'Do You Have A Proper Diet?'

Editor of The Register:

Every person sometimes or other asks himself "am I getting the most out of life?"

Do you suffer with recurring headaches? Maybe you can't concentrate as well as you used to? Did your temper flare up over some trivial matter? Or, no matter what you wear, do you still not feel well? Or maybe your good looks are slowly fading? If so, you may be the victim of improper diet and health habits.

Now, hundreds of people are daily seeing the wisdom of turning back to nature and are beginning to use natural methods to obtain sparkling and immaculate health.

Hundreds of people are now pictures of health and enjoying life much more than they ever imagined.

Regardless of how one thinks, the foods that he eats, as well as habits we observe, often make the difference in success or failure.

Good health is really true success, for success without good health really is not success. The finer things in life mean little to one in bad health.

Hopefully, we at A&T can at least be exposed to the "secrets" of true success, in order that we may compliment or highlight our lives.

Whether one already possesses success, it is my hope that future articles will serve as the key to the world of good health and true success.

Peace & Love,
Faruq Abdul-Haem

The A&T Register will hold its regular meeting, Wednesday, September 7, at 7:30 p.m. All staff members are urged to attend. A meeting of all editorial board members will follow.

There will be an organizational meeting in the student union ballroom, on Wednesday night September 8, at 7 p.m. The meeting will be held for student volunteers to work on Howard Lee's campaign for Lt. Governor.

A similar meeting will be held at Bennett's chapel Tuesday night, Sept. 9, at 7 p.m.

There will be a list at the student union information desk for students to sign if they wish to volunteer their services.

"...To Give You Must Get"

Editor of the Register:

I am most happy to know that our chancellor has a keen interest in the "Blue and Gold Marching Machine." I think that it is a good experience for the band to go to Richmond, Virginia.

This is the type of interest and support the band needs on a full time basis.

I sincerely hope our chancellor's interest will not vanish when it is time for the band to travel to Tallahassee, Florida, and other distant but beneficial places.

As has been said numerous times "productivity is the main theme" and the band has definitely produced. It is just as good as Grambling and other outstanding college bands.

It is high time we get them out of the closet and give them an opportunity to share their talent with others.

In the final analysis, it must be admitted, an outstanding band does have an effect on both enrollment and on the impression some develop about a school.

Last year the band was somewhat wounded by not having competed against the Grambling Tigers.

"One who ignores the past is destined to repeat it." To get, you must give; to give you must get.

Miss Sweeny Joins Staff Of English Department

By Carlese Blackwell

"I have not seen enough of A&T, or the English Department to render a just opinion on them," said Miss Marilyn Jeraldine Sweeny when she was asked to comment about A&T.

Miss Sweeny now holds the secretarial position in the English Department once held by Mrs. Dolores Ahrens. The twenty-two year old woman was employed by A&T in the latter part of July.

For the past seven months Jerry, as she is called by many, worked at First Union National Bank in Greensboro.

Originally from Salem, Va., Miss Sweeny received her professional secretarial certificate from Smithdeal-Massey Business College in Richmond, Va., in 1973.

Miss Sweeny cited that she was not totally unfamiliar with A&T because she has a sister and a brother-in-law who both graduated from A&T.

Although the new secretary refused to give her opinion of A&T and the English Department, she did, however, comment on A&T's students. "The students here are very nice and I'm young, so we get along quite well."

Democratic Candidates Face Run-Off Tuesday

Democratic candidates vying for the offices of lieutenant governor, state auditor, and labor commissioner will be placed in a run-off on Tuesday, September 14. Student supporters for Howard Lee, former mayor of Chapel Hill and a candidate for lieutenant governor, have been working to get registered voters at A&T (especially students) to file for absentee ballots if they live outside of the immediate Greensboro-Guilford County area.

Those students wishing to vote in the upcoming run-off and are unable to return home may ask their father, mother, brother or sister to visit the County Board of Elections and fill out an application for the absent student. The elections office will then send an absentee ballot to the student.

September 8 will be the last day for students to visit their home county board of elections to apply for a ballot.

130 Foreign Students Enroll Here

By Clifford H. Simpson
Throughout North Carolina college campuses, the number of foreign students is increasing. The A&T International Students Office has reported that approximately 130 foreign students are enrolled, with 35 newcomers.

Also for the first time there are students from such countries as Thailand, Guatemala, Guam, Mexico, and Vietnam.

Foreign students are provided with every kind of assistance in helping them adjust efficiently to American living. Though like all other students, foreign students have some problems too. The major problem facing most foreign students is obtaining financial assistance to cover their bills.

Mrs. Anne Graves, foreign student advisor says that for the past two weeks she has been confronted with more problems than average in handling foreign students' problems.

Housing is not a major problem for foreign students. There are still three students on the waiting list for housing. This year A&T has received more government sponsored foreign students from OPEC countries such as Iran, Kuwait, Venezuela, and Nigeria.

SPORTS NOTEBOOK

By Craig R. Turner

Approximately 25 hours from now A&T will begin its quest for its second straight Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference football championship. The Aggies will be facing a fired-up Virginia Union squad in Richmond that has every intention of putting the Aggies to bed even before the twilight of the football season comes into view.

Undoubtedly there will be a large contingent following the A&T team to the Virginia state capital this weekend to give support.

The first game of any season is a very important one, perhaps more so than any of the rest. There is a psychological advantage at stake this early in the year that no team can afford to lose.

This is the case with A&T. The Aggies will have to have this advantage because, on September 18 it will take on what is considered one of the truly great defensive football teams in the nation this season. Of course I am referring to South Carolina State.

But, despite the obvious importance of that upcoming contest, A&T will have to be on its guard against a young and extremely dangerous Union club. Overconfidence and the favorite roles should be the toughest opponents the Aggies will have to face all year.

The only other football on this Saturday will be played in a couple of places worlds apart. Delaware State will host Elizabeth City State, a team they defeated easily last season and should do the same thing it did then.

In the other game concerning an MEAC club, Morgan State will journey halfway around the globe to face Grambling in, of all places, Tokyo, Japan. That's right, Japan. It seems Grambling talked the State Department into sponsoring the game.

Now there is nothing wrong with playing an exhibition game anywhere in the world as far as I can see. However, it's a little frustrating to see Grambling talk its opponents into all kinds of gimmick promotions.

Besides, if some things aren't straightened out between the Tigers and the Southwest Athletic Conference about scheduling, then Grambling as a drawing card may no longer be attractive. It takes two to tango.

That is about the size of the matter going into this first weekend of competition. There has been a lot said and written about how good the Aggies look on paper and how easily they should dominate the conference. Now that entire jargon will be put to the test this Saturday, the first of eleven. It should be interesting to see if the weekly predictions of the A&T Register sports staff hold true. Enjoy the game.

Adams Finds Season Exciting

By Joe Faust

Upon entering North Carolina A&T, Gary Adams was rated as one of the top prep football players in the state while at Gastonia Asbrook High.

At 6-3, 230, he was one of the leaders of his team that went all the way to the state semi-finals. He was voted as his team's "Defensive Player of the Year."

But, Adams' duties at A&T have been mainly as a reserve. This season, with the return of All-MEAC candidate Jearold Holland and two-year regular Arthur Boone, it appears Adams will close his career in a reserve role.

Despite his quiet role, Adams is a very important part of the A&T football team. He has no disappointment over his performance since enrolling at the university.

"I'm not a regular starter but I have seen a lot of playing time," said Adams, a senior history education major.

"I contribute to the team by working hard everyday in practice and by pushing the guys in front of me to keep up the good job they've been doing. They know that, if they relax or stop putting out 100 per cent, I will be in the lineup."

"I am happy just to be a part of this team. I have never felt any regret or disappointment."

A&T has always prided itself on tough defensive play. Adams believes the team's concept on defense was a big part of last year's success.

"We are drilled in how to be responsible for our own territories first, then to cover in case of a breakdown. Last year we were successful because it was hard to fool us."

"We reached our peak just at the right time."

Adams feels conditioning is an important part of football. And with the Aggie season starting the first week in September with tough Virginia Union of the CIAA, he feels an urgent need for everyone to be in good condition from the outset.

"Being in top condition helps to cut down on injuries and gives you that added drive when you think that you can't do anymore," Adams said. "Getting ready for the football season has always been exciting for me."

"I have always looked forward to getting my mind and body in shape. This is my last competitive season and I know it's going to be hard to give it up."

Just think. Only 12 more weeks to go.

Aggies To Play Virginia Union

By Craig R. Turner

Saturday night will mark the beginning of the collegiate football season, as A&T will travel to Richmond, Va., to do battle with the Virginia Union Panthers.

A&T, picked as the team to beat in the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference, will have its hands full with a young and very large Virginia Union squad.

Coach Willard Bailey possesses a strong offensive front wall.

Daryl Hill (6-5,275) will be a star lineman for the Panthers as will guard Walter Brown (6-3,260).

Hill and Brown will be opening holes for one of the premier fullbacks in the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (CIAA) in Bobby Gibson (6-3, 202).

Gibson ended last season near the top in rushing and scoring in the CIAA and should, barring an injury, gain All-CIAA honors when the season ends.

The defense lost seven veterans including All-America, and now star National Football league star rookie, Anthony Leonard.

Leonard's departure leaves a large hole in the secondary. The line was hit even harder when Don Tate and Larry Seward departed via graduation.

Most of the defensive assignments will fall to linebacker Dale McNeil (6-2,220) and the best crop of freshman recruits in the conference.

Coy Holland Is Most Unusual

By Tyrone McLean

Coy Holland, a 6-5 244 pound freshman, is the most unusual of all the legendary Holland brothers. Coy plays tight-end for the Aggies.

He is 24 years old and majoring in early childhood education, a field not many men go into. But, when asked about this, his reaction was, "I'd like to teach fifth and sixth grades."

Coy is different from other students, or for that matter other freshmen, because he has his ideas and goals already set.

He wants to play professional football; but, if that falls through, he would like to teach. Coy said he "likes to be odd." By that he means he doesn't like to be in the lime light at all. Holland stated he wants to be accepted "first as a person, second as a football player, and third as a Holland."

He is proud of his name, but he doesn't seek any favors from anyone. Holland doesn't want teachers to give him anything because of his name or because he is a football player. He related that he could maintain a 4.00 average. Even when playing football, he really gets into those books. He sets his goals high; and, if he falls short, it won't be because he didn't try. He is not a quitter. He's a winner. Holland spent four years in the military service, two in Germany, where he took up boxing; and out of nine fights, he acquired four knock outs. He also played basketball and against the U.S.

Olympic team in his spare time, he enjoys playing golf and being alone on a quiet beach or a park to think and relax.

The super slide rule programmable powerhouse

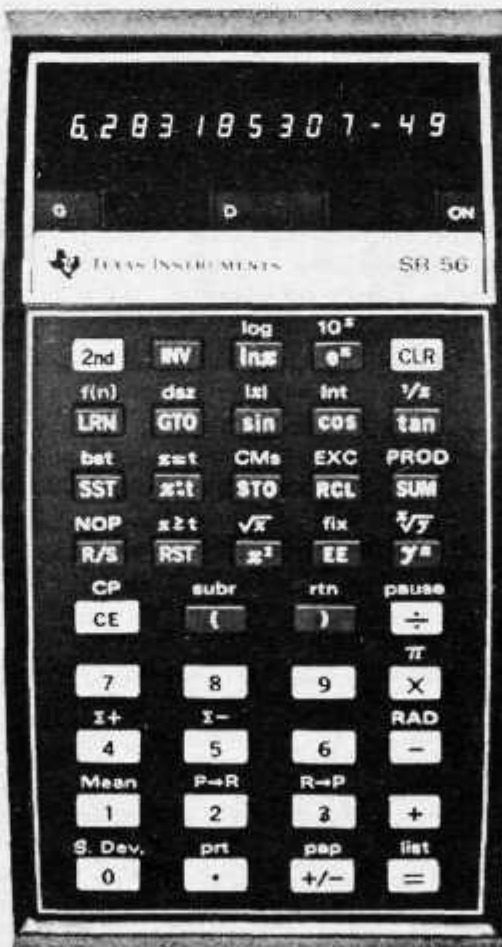

...with 10 memories and 100 program steps.

$109⁹⁵*

The SR-56 is a tremendously powerful slide rule calculator. Yet you can program it whenever you're ready.

There are 74 preprogrammed functions and operations. You can do arithmetic within all 10 memories†. It has AOS—a unique algebraic operating system that lets you handle problems with up to 9 levels of parentheses. There's also polar to rectangular conversion—built in. Mean. Standard deviation. Degrees, radians, grads. And, it works with TI's new printer—the PC-100.

Chances are, you'll be programming. That's what professionals in your field are doing—right now. And with an SR-56 you're ready. It has 100-merged prefix program steps. 6 logical decision functions. 4 levels of subroutines. You can decrement and skip on zero to iterate a loop as many times as you specify. There are 4 levels of subroutine to let you use your program steps to maximum advantage. And, you can even compare a test register with the display to make a conditional branch. So you can check an intermediate result for convergence, or a maximum.

The edge you need. Now. And in your career.
