Campus Radio Station Begins Training Sessions

By Mary E. Cropps

James Wright, adviser to the campus radio station, said yesterday that training sessions for students interested in working with the station will begin next week.

Wright said the training sessions will be primarily for the purpose of giving interested students an opportunity to show their interest by participating in the sessions.

The sessions will be given in two phases, said Wright. The first session will be held Wednesday, Oct. 6, from 6:00 p.m. until 8:00 p.m. in Room 200 of Price Hall. This session will be for the purpose of instructing students in the technical aspects of operating a radio station so that they will be able to pass the test to obtain a third-class license from the Federal Communications Commission.

Wright said this instruction will enable students to understand the operation of the console and to have a working knowledge of the radio equipment.

According to Wright, the FCC requires that the station operators acquire such a license before an FM license can be granted to the organization that applies for it.

However, said Wright, the FCC has granted the campus station a permit to begin construction on the necessary equipment to operate an FM station. Also, the FCC has already given the station its call letters which are WNAA.

Wright hopes that the radio station can become operational sometime during the spring semester or perhaps before then. But, he said, equipment still has to be obtained and tested.

When operational, the station will cover a radius of six to eight miles from campus and even farther on clear days, Wright said.

"We think the interest in radio will be greater than ever when we have an FM station,"

In Savings And Loan Scandal

District Court Convicts Stewart

The Associated Press

John S. Stewart, 66, president of Mutual Savings and Loan Association of Durham and chairman of the board of trustees at A&T State University, was convicted Thursday on two of four charges brought against him in a savings and loan scandal.

A U.S. District Court jury which deliberated the case about four and a half hours acquitted Stewart on the other two charges.

He faces maximum penalties on each of the two counts of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Judge Eugene A. Gordon tentatively set December 6 for sentencing, contingent on the outcome of a defense motion to overturn the verdict.

That date also has been set for the sentencing of Walter J. Dozier, president of Gregory Real Estate Co. of Durham, who was convicted last month on four counts in the same indictment that named Stewart and four other businessmen.

The four men, including C. Paul Roberts, a large-scale construction operator in the early 1970's and three former officers of Home Savings and Loan Association of Durham, are to be sentenced the same day.

Five other Durham businessmen, including former officers of First Federal Savings and Loan Association in Durham and Paul Roberts' brother, Bobby Roberts, are named in another indictment.

They are to stand trial in November.

The jury which heard seven days of testimony in the Stewart case convicted him of causing false entries to be made in Mutual Savings records, with the intent of defrauding the association, and deceiving examiners of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

He was acquitted of conspiracy and of unlawfully participating and benefiting in loans made by Mutual Savings in a way that constituted a conflict of interest.

Political Science Department Sponsors Death Conference

By Maxine McNeill

The Political Science Department at A&T is hosting a conference to organize against capital punishment. The conference will be held Saturday, October 9, in the Student Union.

Dr. Amarjit Singh, chairman of the Political Science Department, suggested the conference be held at A&T.

"Since so many Black people are on death row, I suggested the conference be held here," said Dr. Singh. "This is a way to organize so the General Assembly cannot reinstate the death penalty in North Carolina. We will attempt to organize legislation to let them know we do not want the death penalty."

According to Dr. Singh, the whole state of North Carolina will be involved in this conference. He expects about 200 people to attend. He said 80 to 100 of those attending will be from outside the school. A&T students are expected to attend in numbers also.

Dr. Singh had the students and faculty informed about the conference in a number of ways. He had handbills passed out and posters placed in various places throughout the campus.

He said all the members of the A&T family need to become more knowledgeable about the reasons we should not have the death penalty in North Carolina. He said it is a great punishment.

There will be five workshops and several films against capital punishment shown on Saturday. Dr. Singh feels that students should attend the conference so

Student Studies Program Teaches Research Skills

Information is now available from Dr. Alice Kidder, Room 302 Merrick Hall, about a student originated studies program.

The Student Originated Studies Program is designed to provide teams of college students with experience in independent, self directed study in which they initiate, plan, and direct their own research activities with minimal supervision.

Each project is problem-oriented and seeks an understanding of and possible solutions to local problems that have immediate relevance to society.

An explanation of the SOS Program was given at a meeting of the Transportation Institute Student assistants.

If any student is interested in gaining experience in writing research proposals the SOS Program would be a great opportunity. There will be a meeting at 4:00, October 18, 1976, in Room 302 Merrick Hall.

You'd better be early to get a good seat for Saturday's game.

Students Attend Interview Clinic

By Margaret L. Brown

The Career Planning and Placement Center held an interview clinic Wednesday in Merrick Hall Auditorium. The purpose of the clinic was to acquaint interested students with tips to help them have successful interviews.

Representatives from well-known firms helped conduct the clinic along with faculty members from the Business Department.

Clifford Collins, manager of Corporated College and School

Relations for Control Data Corporation, spoke on employer expectations. He said that companies want to make a profit and in order to make a profit they must have competent employees. But, Collins said, employees must have expectations from the company the same as the company has expectations of its employees. A prospective employee should ask questions about the company, Collins said.

Ms. Marguerite Bigelow, counselor for the Recruitment Training Program, Inc., told the students how to conduct themselves during an interview. She said one of the most important things was to be ready and on time for the interview. She defined an interview as face-to-face communication between one or more persons focused on a single purpose.

Professor Joseph Bennett advised the students on determining their career objectives. He said that one must first determine what he wants to (See Students, Page 5) have other professionals in the field to come in and assist with the training.

Wright would like all interested students to come to apply for positions on the staff. Positions are available in station management, announcing, sports and news broadcasting and production.

Wright said. He expects a number of students to participate in the training sessions.

Wright said that he and the regular staff members will conduct the sessions along with Omega Wilson, mass. communications coordinator, and Herman Gray, who has done extensive work with radio production. Wright also hopes to Wanda Blackmore, Archie Bass and Gwen Franks have fun while preparing play.

Cast Enjoys Preparing New Play

The music is the thing which will make "Tambourines to Glory," a good play, according to members of the cast. They say that preparing for the play has been a most enjoyable experience.

"We had some difficulty in locating the religious music for the play," said Wanda Blackmore, who plays the preacher's daughter. "But we have got it now, and I think it's going to be real entertaining."

A & T's version of "Tambourines" will be presented Thursday, October 14, through Saturday, October 16, in the Paul Robeson Theatre at 8:15 p.m. The production will be repeated on October 21-23.

Reservations for the play may be secured by calling the box office at 379-7852.

"Tambourines" is a happy musical drama written by Langston Hughes, one of America's most notable Black playwrights. The story is centered around the foibles of two store-front women preachers in Harlem.

"This is a real funny play," said Archie Bass, a member of the cast. "Even though it will make you laugh, the play is also very realistic."

The lead roles in the play (the women preachers) will be played by Sandra Jones, a sophomore professional major from Winterville; and Mrs. Eula Hudgens, a member of the library staff. The other main character is Elliott Moffitt, a junior from Siler City.

Jim Forster will serve as technical director and the A&T Fellowship Gospel Choir will furnish the music.

Basso Presents Concert Tuesday

Willis Patterson, basso, will present a concert Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Richard B. Harrison Auditorium. The performance will be open to the public without charge.

Patterson's concert will be the second in the 1976-77 A&T concert and Lyceum series.

Since 1958 when he won the coveted Marian Anderson Award for young singers, Patterson has enjoyed an outstanding career in the United States and abroad.

He has performed his large recital, opera and oratorio repertoire with the Philadelphia Orchestra, the Boston, Dallas, Detroit, and New Orleans symphonies, the New York Oratorio Society and the Miami Beach Symphony and the Columbus Symphony.

Under a Fulbright Grant, Patterson studied opera and Leonardo da Vinci, the man who conceived the flying machine, the paddle-wheel ship, a theoretical gear system and a device for determining the tensile strength of wire, is depicted in an exhibition opening October 8 at Taylor Art Gallery.

Leonardo's genius is closest to us perhaps in his mechanical studies and device.

Even in the military designs, he is close to us. His machine guns, steam guns and breech loading cannons represented tremendous strides in armament making, and many of his ideas plainly foreshadowed twentieth-century development.

In 1938, the city of Milan, Italy, held a great exhibition of full-scale reconstructions of the works of Leonardo. The exhibition traveled briefly and, during World War II, was completely destroyed.

New models were built after the war, and the IBM Corporation acquired the collection.

Since then, the collection has been shown throughout the country in colleges, museums, public libraries and major IBM locations.

The showing will remain through November 2 and will show 22 models built from Leonardo's scientific and technical drawings.

Future Lyceum exhibits are Roland Watts and Minnie Evans, Major African Exhibit, Japanese Posters, Indiana Coverlets and Art Students Exhibit and Sale.

Go to the gallery and take a look. There's got to be something on display that will please your eye. I'm going over there Check you later!!!

Honesty Is Best Policy

Who said that "honesty is the best policy?" According to a federal grand jury yeasterday, A&T Board of Trustee Chairman John Stewart hasn't caught on to that policy. Stewart was on trial here facing charges of conspiracy, unlawfully participating and benefiting in loans made by Mutual Savings and Loan Association and Home Savings and Loan, both Durham based enterprises. Stewart is the president of Mutual Savings and Loan.

The charges against Stewart will probably have a direct effect on his position at A&T, considering how the local news media have a way of letting everyone know that "he is one of those A&T people." I am not condoning Stewart's actions.

With the jury's decision to hand down an indictment against Stewart, it appears more than likely that the University of North Carolina Board of Governors will have to select a new chairman for the board of trustees here. The board will have its first meeting October 20.

Stewart pleaded innocent to the charges (as most people would do), but the evidence against him was enough to make any jury think, 'who is this guy trying to fool?' According to the government, more than $3 million was misapplied by Stewart's company to C. Paul Roberts, another Durham businessman connected in the case that involves 9 other businessmen from that city.

If Stewart was innocent, he also had to be very stupid (if I may say so) to let $3 million plus zip through his corporation. If he could let that amount of money get past him without knowing it, then he is not taking good care of his business and financial affairs.

Some may wonder what Stewart's loss to A&T would mean if the board of governors should decide to dismiss him. From what this writer has learned during the past three years here, there wouldn't be much of a loss.

If Stewart could be charged with illegal operations in his own business, then I wonder what has he been doing that was in the best interest of A&T. Think about it.

Try Acting Like Men

By Maxine McNeill

When Earl Butz, former secretary of agriculture, made a statement about the Black man's priorities in life, Black people all over the nation took it very offensively. The reason the statement was taken so seriously is twofold: first, because a white man said it and secondly, because this white man was at the time in a position to help or hinder Blacks.

The remark Butz made was damaging. All Black men, like all white men, cannot be placed in the same category.

This writer would not dare (or try to) categorize all Black males even though we do belong to the same ethnic group. It would be an injustice to do so.

While Black males all over the country found Butz' remark offensive, it can also be assumed that the Black males, along with the females on A&T's campus shared in that sentiment. It can also be assumed that they did not like the language Butz used when expressing what he felt to be their priorities in life.

Since the Black males on this campus know how it feels to have vulgar and offensive remarks directed at them, it would seem reasonable to assume that they would not want anyone else to share that feeling—but that does not seem to be the case.

There is one segment of Black males on A&T's campus who have made people wonder if there is some truth to Butz' remark. While people should not believe everything they hear, they should not fail to recognize the truth.

When the women on campus walk through one section of campus, which incidentally Black males occupy, they have worse comments directed at them than the ones Butz made. They prove to us that education is evidently not one of their priorities. We do not know what their priorities are though.

It has been said that these Black males do this because they want to be spoken to and looked upon as men. The word "men" is one which has been consciously avoided with this reporter's references to the males who stand out and prove themselves to be men by directing obscenities at Black women on this campus.

If you want to be labled men, try acting the part. The due respect deserved will automatically follow.

Term Paper Advertising Should Be Discontinued

Editor of The Register:

An advertisement in the October 5 Register offers students, for only a dollar, a catalog from a company called Academic Research Papers—192 pages listing term papers, all ready to be submitted as original work by any student with enough money to pay the price. I think that it is highly questionable that the Register should accept ads from such companies.

A term paper company is an openly dishonest operation and makes a mockery of the purpose of a university. Plagiarism factories like the one that placed the ad frequently argue that their term papers are intended only to be used as source material, not to be turned in as the student's original work; but such justification is pure hogwash. Can anyone seriously believe that the company is anything more than a cynical attempt to make money by encouraging cheating?

I think that the Register should not accept any more ads from the company. "But such a decision," someone might argue, "is contrary to the principles of Free Speech." Not really. Freedom of the Press is not the issue here.

A newspaper has the right to accept ads—but it also has a right to reject them. A good newspaper, for example, will often have an editorial policy that will prohibit certain kinds of ads (for something like an "adult" movie house, for example). "Such a decision," someone else might argue, "does not allow the student the freedom to make an adult decision not to cheat."

Well, a student who wants to cheat probably will find a way—but should the school newspaper offer him the means? We all know that the Register is not the official voice of the university, and we all know that the existence of the advertisement does not mean that the Register encourages cheating.

But don't most people see the Register as representing the university's ideas and standards? And won't a student feel more justified in cheating, since he found his invitation to cheat in the school newspaper?

Many campus newspapers in fact will not accept these ads, and there are suits in process in several states against such companies.

The Register should make a stand for freedom of honest expression and refuse to accept any more ads from Academic Research Papers.

Dentist Wants Book Stopped

RALEIGH (AP)—A Charlotte Black dentist has requested that Gov. Jim Holshouser halt the distribution of a book produced by the North Carolina Bicentennial Committee about famous North Carolina Blacks.

Dr. Reginald Hawkins, former candidate for governor, said the book, "Paths Toward Freedom," contains "far too many inaccurate and inadequate statements."

In a letter to Holshouser, Hawkins said the book "is a disgrace to many millions of Blacks who have lived within this state during the history of our nation."

"It does not reflect the quality of work which could have been produced by competent Blacks within this state. It is not a model of work which should be distributed to and used by students within this state," Hawkins added.

Dick Ellis, director of the bicentennial commission, was surprised at Hawkins' criticism.

The bicentennial group commissioned the Center for Urban Affairs at N.C. State University to produce the book as a bicentennial project at a cost of $40,000.

"This is the only criticism we've had among scores of praise," Ellis said. "We've been bragging about the fact that we are the only state in the nation that had a major project devoted to minority groups."

Ellis said the 240-page paperback was written almost entirely by Blacks and Indians and contains biographical sketches of famous Indians and Blacks in the state.

"It was never intended to be a scholarly publication," Ellis said. "It is a brief, popular introduction to the...contributions and culture of these two ethnic groups. It is hoped this volume will serve as a reference and supplementary source for not only the general public but for grade school, colleges, and university students and their teachers."

Hawkins is portrayed in the book, Ellis said, along with many others, including former Chapel Hill Mayor Howard Lee, Harlem Globetrotter Meadlowlark Lemon, former Raleigh Mayor Clarence Lightner and singer and composer Nina Simone.

Campus Security Tows Seven Cars Every Week

By Carol Holiness

Recently there have been a lot of complaints about our Campus Security towing away cars. Officer Walter Lindsay, in a recent interview, said that, on a weekly average, about seven cars are towed away. And the last week there were no tow-aways reported.

A lot of students hold grudges against the entire Campus Security because of the towing. But it was noted that the amount of towing that is done depends solely on each individual officer.

There have been many complaints concerning illegal parking. These complaints regarded the parking areas behind Hines Hall, Benbow Hall and the library; therefore, the Campus Security checked those areas frequently.

Since the beginning of school, the percentage of persons parking in the wrong designated areas has decreased to more than 50%. Officer Lindsay said that he realized that there was a problem of parking over on the other side of campus where Gibbs, High Rise, Vanstony and Morrison share one parking lot.

He added, "I am more than willing to work with individuals who feel that they got their car towed away or received a ticket unjustifiably."

"It's really fair to tow away. Cars should be registered. And, if the cars are not registered, they are occupying spaces that someone else paid for."

Officer Lindsay said that he was responsible for contacting Ronny's Wrecker Service. The reason for choosing Ronny's Service was that it was the cheapest one that he contacted. The fees are $15 for towing away and $7.50 if they call him and circumstances arise preventing him from towing a car.

A&T does not receive any of the money collected by Ronny for his towing services.

The Campus Security has an additional patrol car. The car was purchased about three weeks ago by the Physical Plant.

Officer Walter Lindsay said that there was a definite need for the car. The old one was used for patrolling and transporting students to the infirmary or to a local hospital.

Black Official Defends Butz

WASHINGTON (AP)—The only Black in the policy-making hierarchy of the Agriculture Department defended Earl L. Butz, saying the resigned agriculture secretary "doesn't have a racist bone in his body."

Butz resigned Monday after almost five years in the Cabinet post because of the controversy surrounding an obscene racial slur he made against Blacks. Butz said his resignation was "the price I pay for a gross indiscretion."

James E. Bostic Jr., 29, deputy assistant secretary for rural development, said that as a Southern Black "I know my racists...He was just one of the nicest men I ever met."

Meanwhile, Butz', temporary replacement, Undersecretary John A. Knebel, was reported by the Los Angeles Times to have helped Butz allegedly assist agriculture officials from seven states to avoid compliance with equal employment laws.

Quoting unnamed Agriculture Department sources, The Times said that when Knebel was the department's general counsel in 1974 under Butz, he attended a meeting in which Butz and aides reportedly agreed on delays in requiring civil rights compliance in Cooperative Extension Service programs in seven states.

Department sources said that, as a result of the meeting, the programs in the states avoided the requirement of hiring more Blacks and still kept their federal funds, the newspaper said.

On Tuesday, Butz denied through a spokesman another report in the Los Angeles Times that he held secret meetings to advise the extension service how to avoid hiring more Blacks. Knebel also denied the report, calling it "crassly wrong."

Knebel was quoted by The Times as saying that he was present at a meeting between Butz and the state directors. But he denied anything was done to circumvent the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

The Times said well-informed sources reported that at the meeting Knebel told Butz to act cautiously in changing rules because "there could be problems if we change rules in the middle of the game."

At the meeting, Knebel also reportedly referred to officials of the Office of Economic Opportunity who were pressing for action against the state programs as "civil rights activists."

The Times said that, when it asked Knebel whether he or Butz had made any such statements during the meeting, Knebel said, "No, I truly don't remember. In the course of a meeting you can make many remarks that may be open to misinterpretation."

Literary Circle Will Install Officers At First Meeting

The Literary Circle will install its officers at the first meeting that will be held on Thursday, October 7, at 7:00p.m. in Crosby Hall, Room 201.

The officers for the year 1976-77 are Nedra Hull, president; Lila Washington, vice-president; Barbara McLaughlin, secretary; and Marilyn Baggett as assistant secretary.

The program will also consist of a discussion and reading of a dramatic monologue. Any student who would like to bring a dramatic monologue to perform before the group will be welcomed.

There will be a discussion of other programs for the year, and refreshments will be served.

The Literary Circle is the English Department's Club for English majors, English minors, and other interested persons.

SPORTS NOTEBOOK

By Craig R. Turner

The weeks are rolling down for A&T before moving into the heart of the schedule. Let us take a look at what has happened thus far in the 1976 football season. The Aggie offense is moving well ahead of schedule and that is a very encouraging sign.

Last year during this time the Aggies stood a mere 2-2 with losses to South Carolina State and Florida A&M. Both of those defeats were shutouts. This year the Aggies gained the big conference win over South Carolina State and lost a squeaker to Florida.

The running game has not been anything near what it was a year ago, but injuries had a great deal to do with that. There were only three healthy backs during the first four games of this year.

Passing has been the long suit for A&T and quarterback Ellsworth Turner has been something just short of incredible. He has already thrown for over 800 yards and seven touchdowns. This time a year ago he was barely over the 300 mark and had thrown just two scoring strikes.

Dexter Feaster, the glue-fingered receiver of most of Turner's tosses, is having the finest season of his life. Not only is Feaster enjoying Turner's accuracy but also guys like Bruce Black and Coy Holland.

Defensively, the Aggies have been something short of spectacular by allowing over 20 points a game. However, the statistics do not tell the true story. The defense is a young unit. There are three freshmen in the secondary and two sophomores who did not play a great deal last season in the front four.

As the year goes on and the competition gets a little tougher, they should jell into a fine unit.

In a nutshell, the Aggies are ahead of where they were last season and are putting the ingredients of another championship into a winning recipe.

This is a rather light week within the MEAC when it comes to outside competition. Other than the A&T-Norfolk game, there are no real tough matchups involved.

Maryland-Eastern Shore entertains Morgan State; S.C. State tangles with J.C. Smith; Howard welcomes Delaware State; and North Carolina Central hosts Virginia State.

Look for Morgan, Howard, and S.C. State to win big with Central edging out a close win. As for the Aggies the foe for this week is Norfolk State.

The Spartans were unbeaten two years ago and lost to A&T 8-6. Last season the same situation presented itself and A&T won again 34-13. Well, things will probably stay true to form as they have since 1967. A&T should win by 18 points.

S.C. State Is New Defense Leader

DURHAM
South Carolina State replaced North Carolina Central as the total defense leader in the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference while A&T has taken over the total offense leadership, according to the weekly team statistics released from the conference office Wednesday.

The Bulldogs of S.C. State held Alcorn A&M to 154 yards total offense last week to decrease its total defense average to 168.5 yards per game. Last week total defense leader, North Carolina Central slipped to the number-two spot in total defense with a 190.8 average.

In total offense, A&T and Morgan State have moved ahead of last week's leader, North Carolina Central. A&T is averaging 32.8 yards per game total offense. Morgan State ranks second in total offense with a 329.3 average while N.C. Central fell to third with a 296.0 average. S.C. State continues to lead the team defense against the rush

A&T Meets Norfolk Here Saturday

By Craig R. Turner

When two defending champions meet, there is usually a great deal of fireworks. Saturday night should be no exception as Norfolk State will invade Greensboro to take on the seventh-ranked A&T Aggies in Memorial Stadium.

The Spartans, the defending CIAA champions for the last two seasons, will bring a nationally-ranked squad here that has been the dominating force in that conference.

Head Coach Dick Price has long been an advocate of the ground attack. Leading the list of fine Norfolk runners is fullback Randy Robinson (6-2, 225). Robinson has been an all-conference selection the last two seasons.

The leading ground gainer is Ken Moody. Moody (5-9, 180) is a thrilling breakaway sprinter with a great amount of pass catching ability.

Although the Spartans are primarily a rushing oriented club, they have the tools to go overhead. Quarterback Steve Graeff (6-3, 178) has been an all-CIAA performer since his freshman season. He is considered the finest pure passer ever to play at the Virginia university.

When you talk about targets for a quarterback, the Spartans probably have the easiest to spot in wide receiver Jackie "Baby" Powell. Powell is an imposing 6-8, 220 pounder who is hard to miss in a crowd. He was an all-CIAA pick last year.

Defense has been a long suit of past Norfolk State teams. The main cog in that unit is end Roger Nance (6-5, 235). State is not a large team by MEAC standards but counters that with a great deal of speed.

Most of the first 25 regulars of 1975 have gone via graduation, but Price was ready with a comparable number of redshirts. The eleventh-ranked Spartans are 3-1 on the season with all of their victories coming in their last three outings.

Kickoff is set for 7 p.m. at Memorial Stadium Saturday evening.

J.C. Smith Win Pleases Turner

By Ellen Spruill

Quarterback Ellsworth Turner expressed great pleasure with his offensive line following A&T's 37-22 victory over J.C. Smith last week. "I would like to thank those guys, especially Feaster, Black and the Hollands for the good job they did."

The Aggies made mistakes, such as six fumbles, but still managed to overcome.

Turner said, "You can't win on mistakes and fumbles," and placed some of the blame on the weather. He said, "It was very slippery and the middle of the field was especially muddy, so we had to run to the sidelines."

Turner felt that A&T played well but not to the best of its ability.

"I did not pass well, but we did run well," he stated.

As for J.C. Smith, Turner said, "They're not a bad team. They gave us a good game. They seem very young with little experience."

Looking ahead to Norfolk State, he said, "There will be a lot of practice on passing and stopping fumbles."

Turner completed 13 of 21 passes for 260 yards and three touchdowns. The All-MEAC quarterback also kicked four extra points and booted a 32-yard field goal to lead the Aggies' offensive attack. Turner beat out Allen Rose of Morgan State for the offensive back-of-the-week honor while Feaster edged out teammate Wheeler Brown for the offensive lineman of the week honors.

A&T's passing combination of quarterback Ellsworth Turner and split end Dexter Feaster has been named offensive players-of-the-week in the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference (MEAC) by the Sports Information Directors in the conference for their outstanding play last Saturday night.

Feaster, a 6-2, 195-pound senior from Charlotte, has been named offensive linemen-of-the-week while Turner, a 6-2, 190-pound junior from Gaithersburg, Maryland, is the offensive back-of-the-week for the third straight week.

Feaster was on the receiving end of five receptions for 147 yards and one touchdown in A&T's 37-22 victory over Johnson C. Smith. Feaster is the top pass catcher in the MEAC with 18 receptions for 406 yards.

Now comes Miller time.
