Students Meet To Discuss Issues

By Maxine McNeill

Some concerned students met with Willie Bailey, acting chairman of the Business Administration Department, Monday to voice some grievances they have in the Departments of Business and Accounting. The group congregated in Merrick Hall.

"The bulk of the meeting stemmed from one specific course, but we are interested in all courses teachers have kind of gone crazy in," said one female.

Other students said the instructors cover too much material and only a few are able to comprehend the work. The Business Department's upcoming accreditation is believed to be the reason the students are being pushed so hard.

Bailey told students the best solution to the problem would be to hold an open forum and let the students express their views to the instructors. He said those with specific complaints should talk with him in his office.

"We are here to learn so we can deal with society upon graduation," said a male accounting major. "We are not getting the proper material here. We are being crammed and programmed with material. All of us can not get it; only those who are able to cram can. This is a weeding out process."

Another student told Bailey he wanted things changed this semester, not next semester. They all agreed that too many courses are being added to the curriculum when the fundamentals are not being learned.

Tony Tyson, SGA president, was also present at the meeting. He later said he does not think the students' meeting was effective.

"You have to have facts," said Tyson. "I don't think the students have been heard still. Very little if anything was accomplished, but what they are saying makes sense. They need to establish a certain kind of committee. Students are interested. They want to know what way they can make things better."

Talent Show To Feature Variety Of Performances

The third annual A&T-Bennett-UNC-G. talent show will be held Thursday, October 21, in Harrison Auditorium. The show will feature talent from all three schools and other special guests. Back-up music will be provided by Funkhouse.

Among the participants in the show will be Cynthia Harris doing a creative dance and Cheryl Brown who has a surprise for the audience.

Mo "Blowfly" Green, a senior from Charlotte, will perform comedy. A singing group composed of some of A&T's football players should really surprise the audience with their singing talent.

Another band on the show will be Acme Transit, all members of the A&T Band. Ronnie Herring is doing a Stevie Wonder song.

In addition, a female singing group from UNC-G. will perform along with others from Bennett.

An added attraction will be Dwayne Norris, a student from GTI and the winner of the Cosmos $500 Talent Show.

The next rehearsal for the show will be Tuesday and Wednesday at 8:00 p.m. at the Cosmos II.

The M.C.'s for the talent show will be Glenn Holland and Monte Hall. The show is sponsored by the Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity.

Young Socialist Speaks Here

By Craig R. Turner

Cathy Sedwick, member of the Young Socialist Alliance, spoke in the Memorial Union ballroom last night before approximately 30 persons on the subject of "Black Women's Liberation."

Sedwick is part of a three person team touring the South with the purpose of introducing the Socialist Party Campaign and its national candidates in this fall's presidential elections.

The high point of Ms. Sedwick's discussion was the topic involving the opposition to unabridged abortion. She pointed out that with the attack on abortion, the elimination of medicaid, and judicial rulings, this would mean that no legal abortions would be available to the masses of women.

"We would be forced to resort to the back alley abortions of the past. And we know that there would be more women killed because of that than men that died in the Vietnam war," stated Sedwick.

She cited a lack of participation on the part of Black women. "These things I am talking about affect Black women more than anyone else. I mean things like fair credit, forced sterilizations, anti-abortion movements and the rest. We, as Black women, need to get behind this with everything possible."

Sedwick placed no faith in the National Organization of Women (NOW). "They are waiting ground for the results of the election so they can make some kind of deal. Black women are going to have to take an independent stand in the movement. We will have to determine our own future and not let it rest in the hands of men and a few women."

Lastly, Sedwick questioned the whole idea of "Christian Morality" on the issue of abortion. "How in the world can people justify a right to life movement when they systematically doom thousands of women to death through back alley abortions and who knows what. There is no ethic there."

Cathy Sedwick in a recent speech in the Student Union Ballroom cited a lack of participation on the part of the Black Woman. Staff Photo by Bill Lawson

Special Services Program Is Underway Once Again

By Anthony Motley

A&T University Special Services program has gotten well underway, according to George Armstrong, program manager and counselor.

Special Services was organized in 1970 and funded by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. It was designed for institutions to help develop and assist students. Armstrong explained that the Special Services Program has professional counselors and tries to limit the number of students to 130 but often exceeds that number each year.

The program provides tutors

Newsletter Keeps Faculty Informed Of Events

By Owen M. Dixon

Faculty and staff members of A&T have begun receiving a newsletter for keeping an update on the events of the university. The newsletter is edited by Richard Moore, information services director, and Joe Faust, sports information director.

Moore said the newsletter is an internal communications letter for the faculty and staff and should help them in the future. Because of the size of the faculty and staff, the newsletter would be vital in helping them know what is going on and keep them informed about upcoming events.

According to Moore, some of the faculty and staff members have said the newsletter has proven to be very helpful. Moore feels it will prove to be a great asset to the faculty.

MAMMA SAID THERE WOULD BE DAYS LIKE THESE BUT NOT AS RAD AS YESTERDAY WAS.

for students in academic difficulty. Armstrong added that students find relief from coming to the special services office. He commented that the tutors are trained and usually have a 3.0 average or better. It has been discovered that students need more help with math, sciences, reading and comprehension, and English, remarked Armstrong.

In 1970 the Special Services Office took 130 students from High Point and have graduated all of them. Among these were three students who would not have been accepted by the University if it had not been Special Services. After getting them into the university, they were advised and given assistance and, to the surprise of many people, they graduated in three years.

Armstrong stated that this is what the program is about. One of these students is at Howard University's Law School, one is at Duke University and the other is studying to become a pilot with Eastern Airlines and has completed most of his studies.

Armstrong concluded that no students need fail because they have supportive services to counsel them personally, academically and financially. He also added that they will try to find jobs for students during their stay here. He remarked, "Students did not come here for too much socialization but for academic development."

Tyson Lists Homecoming Events

By Bonnie Newman

Upcoming homecoming events and activities have been announced by SGA president, Tony Tyson. Tyson feels that this year's homecoming celebration will be looked forward to by many students.

The festivities are slated to begin Sunday, October 24, with singing by the A&T Gospel Choir in Harrison Auditorium. A special activity will be presented on each day to pervade spirit among the student body.

A Karate Exhibition will be held in Moore Gym on Monday the 25th. Tuesday will be recognition day for each president of a campus organization with Wednesday being Convocation Day in Moore Gym with Florence Kennedy, a feminist advocate as guest speaker.

Other events include Miss A&T's Coronation Thursday night. A social hour will follow with music furnished by Brief Encounter.

Friday will be known as Students' Day with a special dinner prepared for them in Williams Cafeteria, but not by the regular staff. Following the dinner, a bonfire Pep Rally will be held in Holland Bowl and a dance, later on, in Moore Gym featuring Ramsey Lewis and Tavares.

Homecoming celebrations and events sponsored by SGA end Friday night. Homecoming however, continues with A&T's annual parade and the game against Morgan State at Memorial Stadium.

Organization Presidents Discuss Show Sponsorship

By Benjamin T. Forbes

A meeting of the Council of Organization Presidents was held last night in the Student Union. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the possibilities of another organization other than the Student Government Association, to sponsor the Saturday night homecoming show.

SGA President, Tony Tyson said that the money allocated for homecoming would not be enough to cover two shows. He went on to say that, if another campus organization would not sponsor the show, then a professional disc jockey would be contracted to MC a jam.

The theme of the SGA is

"Unity conquers All" and Tyson said he would like to get everyone involved in the homecoming festivities.

Tyson stated that a number of groups were contacted but the majority of them refused to perform here. The main reason most of the groups turned down an A&T engagement was the size and safety hazards of Moore Gymnasium.

For the Friday night show, tickets will go on sale next Tuesday in the Union at $2.00 and $4.00 on the day of the show. Those persons having advance tickets will be admitted to the gym at the side entrance, while those persons purchasing tickets at the time of the show will use the front entrance. The time of the show will be from 10 p.m. until 2 a.m.

The reason for the 10-2 a.m. show, according to Tyson is to keep the students from getting too tired before the parade and the game the following day. To this Tyson, said, "We do not live for tradition, but to progress."

The homecoming activities tentatively scheduled for the week include Sunday-Gospel program, Monday-karate exhibition, Tuesday-all president's day and a movie, "Shampoo", sponsored by the Student Union Advisory Board; Wednesday, convocation; and a talent show in Harrison Auditorium Thursday-coronation and Friday-a pep rally, bonfire, mock funeral, a special dinner, and the SGA sponsored show. However as of press time, a Saturday night post-game show was very much in doubt.

Entertainment:

Nelle's Corner

By Lynelle Stevenson

Aggies, you disappoint me. You really do. When I say this, I refer to the football game last Saturday against Maryland-Eastern Shore. You had about as much spirit as a group of dead folks. I know it was cold, but that was no excuse. The team made touchdown after touchdown; and, with the exception of the band, the majority of the crowd was silent.

If that wasn't bad enough, you wouldn't even applaud for the show that the band put on.

Those students worked very hard to put together shows for your halftime enjoyment, and you wouldn't even clap.

Even the people who were swayed by the radio statements a few weeks ago could see for themselves that the Marching Machine was pretty good.

Even Ty Miller, who has been speaking kindly of the band these past few games, can see the improvement and is telling it like it is. He's even publicizing the uniform drive for the band.

And then there are the cheerleaders. Those Aggies stand out there at every game and cheer their hearts out and you won't even join in.

What's the matter with you all? All the above mentioned people are Aggies—the football team, the band and the cheerleaders—and are out there for A&T

Aggies, all I can say is support your school. You're an Aggie whether we win or lose, whether we're good or bad. Right? Well, act like it. Please.

Aggie Born, Aggie Bred.

Blacks Go On Rampage After Youth's Funeral

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Calm was restored in the Black township of Soweto yesterday after 700 Blacks went on a rampage following the funeral of a 16-year-old youth who died in jail.

Riot Control Chief David Kriel said he was unable to confirm a report that police opened fire on rioters who burned the home of a Black police detective.

He said the rioters destroyed 10 government vehicles and damaged 17.

Kriel confirmed that one Black was killed and that two were badly hurt in a fire Saturday night in New Brighton Township, near the coastal city of Port Elizabeth.

The violence in Soweto broke out when angry Blacks attacked a municipal bus depot and stoned and set fire to vehicle after the funeral of 16-year-old Dumisani Mbatha.

Mbatha was arrested last month after a protest march by young Blacks in Johannesburg. A prison spokesman said the youth got sick in jail, but the spokesman would not give the diagnosis or the cause of death.

Meanwhile, the presidents of four Black African nations were meeting in Lusaka, Zambia, to plan for the Geneva conference to negotiate an interim government for Rhodesia leading to Black majority rule.

Carter & The Wilmington 10

Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter is beginning to make a few waves in North Carolina in the area of civil rights. It seems that some North Carolina Republicans are upset with Carter's recent statement about justice for the imprisoned Wilmington 10.

In a statement last week, Carter's campaign staff promised to "give the Wilmington 10 case the attention it deserves." The statement comes from a letter sent to the National Wilmington 10 Defense Committee by Carter's staff. It also said the Democratic presidential hopeful would not tolerate the kind of racist injustice that has so often put civil rights leaders in prison.

That last statement carries the most weight in the minds of many Blacks in North Carolina and throughout the state. This is probably why so many of the state's Republicans are shaken by the remarks.

Many of the Republican critics are saying that the Wilmington 10 case is under jurisdiction of the state and that the federal government can not intervene. President Gerald Ford is staying clear of the matter by requesting the Department of Justice to look into the matter to see what if anything could be done on a federal level. The Justice Department contends that what the state courts have ruled will stand.

Whether Carter will actually do something about this remains to be seen, but something positive needs to be done if North Carolina is to end its present system of injustice.

* * * *

There are times when we all let our emotions run full speed ahead without thoroughly thinking out a situation. Well, I have found myself guilty of this in an editorial that appeared in the October 8 edition of The Register. Some have said that John Stewart was railroaded by the courts. This may be another segment of injustice in North Carolina. If Mr. Stewart were railroaded, then I sympathize with him.

Student Input Is Welcomed

By Mary E. Cropps

It seems that the recent editorials in The Register have been leaning toward the negative side of this campus and all the negative things that happen. A great many negative things do happen on this campus and that's all we seem to hear about.

If any good things do happen on this campus, then we here at The Register would be glad to hear about them. This is a student newspaper, here for the use of the students. We welcome any and all suggestions from the students.

Speaking of suggestions, homecoming is just around the corner. As many of you know, the staff of The Register puts forth a great deal of extra effort in order to produce a much larger paper. We do need extra help at this time and we need suggestions for features and stories.

This is your chance to have some input into the paper. If you have any suggestions, please feel free to come by and talk to the staff members and we will see what can be done.

Students with ideas are welcome at any time of the year, but your help is especially needed now. This is your homecoming edition and your input is welcomed.

There are more than 100 million drivers in the United States. Drive safely.

"Seconds" of sheets and towels with minor imperfections wear just as well as the first quality, and they're cheaper.

Seniors, Enjoy Homecoming

By Maxine McNeill

Preparation for A&T's homecoming has begun. In fact, it started weeks ago.

Though we have many other events taking place on campus during the year, homecoming seems to be the biggest and most important.

This will be the senior's last homecoming at A&T. Some of them seem to be very much excited.

For your sake, it is this reporter's hope that it will be everything you want it to be. If the groups you wanted for homecoming aren't on the list, don't despair. Have the most fun possible anyway.

When you look back on it, you can exaggerate and make the shows sound better than they really were. The same way you will exaggerate the things you did homecoming night.

Complacent Students Congress Prepares Satirical Aggie Oath

To The Student Body:

This document is prepared by the Congress of Complacent Students at A&T State University, and the rules stated therein may be followed by any segment of the student population to which it pertains.

Being Aggie born and Aggie bred, I promise to uphold the following oaths to the Congress of Complacent Students in order to help A&T State University regress instead of progress.

I swear, whether it rains, snows, or shines, to attend fraternity dog shows and other fraternity functions.

I swear to attend and support classes, SGA or other organizational meetings, either on an occasional or an infrequent basis.

I swear to complain only to my friends about the cafeteria food and other living conditions here on campus.

I swear faithfully to support the Cosmos Club any hour of the day and any day of the week.

I swear always to allow the administration to get over on me in anyway it possibly can.

I swear to criticize the band and various athletic teams, rather than join forces and help them fight to correct their deficiencies.

I swear to sit back and let the SGA fight for campus reforms, rather than take an active role in seeing that changes are made.

I swear to believe any and everything Chancellor Dowdy or any of the members of his staff promise.

I swear to be ready to do bodily harm to any brother or sister, that I don't particularly like.

But, I swear to take up arms and defend myself against any constructive criticisms.

Literary Circle Installs New Officers For 1976-77

Last night, at the first meeting of the Literary Circle Club, new officers for the 1976-77 school year were installed.

Nelder Hull, sophomore English major, was installed as president; Lila Washington, vice president; Barbara McLaughlin, secretary; Marilyn Baggett, assistant secretary; Patricia Wall, parliamentarian; Mark Melvin, treasurer; and Sylvia Gainey, program chairman.

The Literary Circle is sponsored by the English Department. It is a club for English majors, minors and all other interested persons.

The theme of last night's program was "The Dramatic Monologue." After Patty Griffin described the characteristics of a dramatic monologue, several examples of dramatic monologues were read.

The people who presented the examples were Dr. Michael Green, Elevanda Hassell, Cheryl Gardner, Vivian Edwards, Velvia Currie, Jerome Moore, Dr. Ernest Bradford and Edna Vincent.

Republicans Criticize Promise

WILMINGTON (AP)-A promise by the Jimmy Carter campaign staff to give the Wilmington 10 case "the attention it deserves" and a condemnation of "racist injustice" has aroused a Republican criticism that Carter is leaning toward interfering in a state's business.

Carter's campaign staff sent a letter to the National Wilmington 10 Defense Committee which said the Democratic candidate would "not tolerate the kind of racist injustice that has so often put civil rights leaders in prison."

The Wilmington 10 is composed of the Rev. Ben Chavis and eight other Black men and a white woman now in prison on conviction of burning a white-owned store during a Wilmington racial disturbance in 1971.

The Wilmington 10 Defense Committee had asked Carter and President Ford to take a stand on the case. Responses to the request were released last week by Imani Kazana, committee coordinator.

When the letter became public, North Carolina Republicans seized it as an issue. Ed Powell, GOP candidate for attorney general, said he was amazed that such a letter would come from Carter's staff.

"No president should interfere with any state's judicial proceedings," Powell said in a statement.

While the state Ford campaign has taken no stand, a campaign spokesman said Ford's Tar Heel staff helped Powell compose the statement.

The letter was written by the candidate's issues staff in Atlanta and was intended as a general statement and not a position in the Wilmington 10 case, a spokesman for the Carter campaign said.

Carter and his top aides did not see the letter, the spokesman said.

Ford referred the request to the Department of Justice which replied that the case was a state matter and the federal government would have no jurisdiction because the convictions were under state law.

Carter's campaign staff told the committee that "if he is elected president, Gov. Carter will give the Wilmington 10 case the attention it deserves."

Samuel A. Bleicher, a member of Carter's issues staff, said the letter was intended to assure the committee that a Carter administration would decide such cases on merits.

If there was no federal jurisdiction, the Carter administration would not pursue the matter any further, he said.

Agreeing that Carter had made no promises, Ms. Kazana said she released the letter hoping the publicity would "help the case along."

She also said the letter was important because it showed "that a presidential candidate's office would be concerned or sensitive to the problem."

Joe Faust Excels At His Job

By Ellen Spruill

Joseph A. Faust, the sports information director here at A&T.

He was born in Philadelphia and is a graduate of Johnson C. Smith University. He has a degree in English.

His job is to be sure that the media, both local and national outlets, are aware of what is happening at A&T.

The job entails designing home game programs and press books. He also assists in the direction and production of "the A&T Sports Report" on WFMY-TV, Channel 2.

Faust also hosts "Transition," a weekly talk show of events at A&T on radio station WEAL. He sometimes writes stories on the away games when they are not covered by The Greensboro Daily News.

Being sports information director is a very demanding job. Faust said, "Black schools have suffered because news editors were only concerned with major schools or Division One colleges! Divisions two and three are changing because a large number of athletes from non-Division one schools have been able to excel in pro sports."

"Faust went on to say, "An effort has been made by polls such as UPI, AP, MBN, (Mutual Black Network), and the NBN (National Black Network) to insure traditional Black schools are included in the mainstream of intercollegiate athletics."

When asked why he chose A&T, he said, "Over the years, I've seen many good Black athletes who didn't receive the proper recognition, simply because they were not exposed to media."

"I felt that I had certain skills that could help solve that situation. I was fortunate to be offered the job of sports information director here."

This year's football team has already been ranked nationally in three polls. Faust feels that the bowl game in Charlotte will be a motivating factor, an extra incentive to play.

Also the Grambling game will be a key factor. It's going to be a big game, a pressure type game. We'll be playing in a professional stadium that holds 82,000 people, and the media will be there and fans."

Faust stated, "How we (See Faust, Page 8)

A&T made short business of Maryland-Eastern Shore as expected last Saturday, 37-13, before a surprisingly enthusiastic crowd of 6,000 Aggie fans.

A&T was not sharp as in past encounters, but it was a marked improvement over the effort against Norfolk State. The Aggies dominated every facet of the game from the outset and that could explain why there was a let down in the third quarter in which UMES took advantage to grab a couple of touchdowns.

But, as in past weeks, A&T used strong defensive play and a quick hitting offense to blow the Hawks out of Memorial Stadium. To put it simply, it was a tuneup for this week's crucial contest with Howard.

The Bison are a team that got off to a rocky start by being blasted by Wayne State and vicious South Carolina squad before rebounding with three straight wins over UMES, Delaware State, and Virginia State. Their record stands at 3-3 at this point.

Now the Bison won all of these games by considerable margins, but one must take into account the caliber of competition they faced. They have yet to meet a team of offensive balance or a defense that matches their starting lineup size wise.

A&T, on the otherhand, has played under a great deal of pressure in practically all of their games except last week. Should the contest between the two go into the final minutes, the Aggies would definitely have the advantage in experience.

It will be homecoming in the nation's capital this weekend and 10,000 Aggies are expected to make the journey north for the festivities. The Howard-A&T rivalry has become a gala affair over the last four or five years.

The last time A&T was in Robert F. Kennedy Stadium some 30,000 fans looked on a titantic struggle that ended in a last second victory for Howard 13-9. Last season A&T routed Howard 34-13 in Greensboro.

If you think that A&T will not be psychologically ready for this game, you are sadly mistaken. A&T rides at the top of the MEAC as of the moment as the only unbeaten team left. The Aggies are the team to beat. There is no question about that.

A win by A&T could go a long way in determining if the Aggies will repeat as conference champions. Should Howard upset the Aggies in Washington, D.C., it would throw the league into a five-way tie for first place.

There will be a lot of watchful eyes from Orangeburg to Baltimore on the outcome of this game. There is a lot more at stake than pride. A lot more.

S. C. State Upsets Morgan 17-0

BALTIMORE (AP) - South Carolina State capitalized on its balanced ground game, two interceptions by Leonard Duncan and a Morgan State fumble for a 17-0 football victory Saturday.

Quarterback Jesse Prather scored one touchdown, carried 14 times for 45 yards and directed the Bulldog attack, which featured five players who carried for 40 yards or more.

Halfback James Walker rushed for 50 yards and scored South Carolina State's second touchdown as he went in untouched from the Morgan State 17 yard line.

Halfback Charles Burgess added 58 yards on 15 carries, fullback Jerry Reed had 40 yards on nine carries and fullback Ricky Anderson carried 12 times for 65 yards as the Bulldogs racked up 263 yards rushing.

Morgan State gained 102 yards on the ground, but the Bears out-distanced the Bulldogs 95 yards to 24 in the air.

Duncan set up a 29-yard second quarter field goal by Steve Montgomery with an interception on the Bears' 36.

Nathan Munford's fumble on the Morgan State 16 set up

Prather's one yard TD on a keeper four plays later. Duncan's interception on the Morgan State 46 set up Walker's touchdown five plays later.

Hawk Coach Gray Feels More Time Is Needed

By Craig R. Turner
Maryland-Eastern Shore is not a success story for a budding athletic program. The Hawks have suffered through two winless seasons and have gotten off to a rough start in 1976.

Prior to the UMES-A&T football game this past Friday, this reporter talked to head football coach Harold Gray. He gave some inclination as to why the Hawks have fallen off in recent years.

"I really don't know what the problem is exactly," Gray said. "We're still recruiting in the same areas as we always have and we're still recruiting the same type of football players as before."

"There are numerous things that have gone wrong. Most of them are too numerous to point out one by one. I'm really not worried about that right now. We are just looking for a win."

Gray kept his optimism about the small Princess Anne, Md., school's football team. "We're on our way back to the point where we left off. I know we have some work to do, but Rome wasn't built in a day either. I believe that anyway."

The personable coach analyzed some of his club's strengths and weaknesses. "We have only two seniors and two juniors. That is one of our problems if not the problem itself. We've have got just a young bunch of kids."

"Right now they're gaining experience and are improving everyday. Somewhere along the way somebody is going to get hurt by us. I think what we need to get us started is that first win. That could turn it around for us."

Gray's philosophy has been simple throughout his stay at Maryland. "We've always played the same type of football; we always have. We like to throw as well as run. We like to think we can do both fairly well. Most teams like to do one or the other. We can do both, or so we like to think."

Maryland-Eastern Shore has long been a defensive team, Gray feels that he has a player that could rival former All-America of a year ago, Carl Hairston.

"We feel that we have a defensive lineman, who is going to be a good one. Earl Jackson is only a freshman, but he has the tools to be a great one. Jackson is a 6-5, 275 pound tackle."

"One of our biggest problems has been that our defense has been on the field too long. It isn't a problem of defense. Our unit can stand up against anybody, but it never gets a break, stated Gray."

To say that Maryland-Eastern Shore is "weak" is an unfair statement, according to Gray. "We are in a learning stage right now. We hit a dry spell a few years back, but we'll be all right. If we keep these group of guys together for a year, I'm sure we'll be right back in it. We need just a little time. That's all."

If that is the case, then Hawk fans everywhere can look for an emergence of a winner; and the rest of the MEAC can count what short-lived success it enjoyed over UMES as just fond memories.

The A&T rushing game improved Saturday night with a total of 284 yards rushing.

Turner Is An Active Player

By Joe Faust

As a prep and amateur league performer, Ellsworth Turner never liked to sit on the bench.

The only position the talented Gaithersburg, Maryland, native, has ever played during his football career is quarterback and his coaches recognized his value to the team, and, therefore, spared the risk of injury by not playing him on defense.

But Turner was persistent on being active and learned how to do other things like punt and kick extra points. He became so efficient that by his senior year in high school, he was a reliable kicker inside of 45 yards.

Now a junior at A&T, Turner is perhaps one of the most active players in college football. In the Aggies 37-13 victory over the University of Maryland-Eastern Shore last Saturday, Turner had his most productive all-round football day.

He completed 10 of 17 passes for 141 yards and two touchdowns. In addition to his passing, he scored three touchdowns on runs of 1, 10 and 11 yards, kicked a 24-yard field goal, and booted four points after touchdowns.

"It was my best overall game," said Turner, who leads the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference in passing and total offense. "I have had some games where my passing has been better in terms of yardage, but, for an overall game, that was my best."

"When I was younger I just didn't like sitting on the bench. I wanted to play every minute of the game, but the coaches just didn't see it that way."

"In the meantime, I used to practice punting and placekicking just to get into the action. Over the years my leg has just gotten stronger."

Because of his value as a placekicker, Turner spends a lot of practice time tuning up his leg.

"I usually practice kicking during regular cycles at our regular practice," said Turner who is rated fifth in the NCAA in forward passing and is one of the MEAC's leading scorers.

"I do most of my heavy practicing on kicking an hour before and an hour after practice. Joe Bloomfield, our center, and Glenn Holland, the holder, work with me during my extra kicking sessions."

This week against the Bison of Howard University, Turner and company will be facing their toughest conference opponent since South Carolina State. And the Aggies' secondary, which is rated next to last in the conference in pass defense, will face the league's second best passer in Mike Banks.

"I have a lot of respect for Banks as a quarterback and an athlete, said Turner, who has already been named the conference's back of the week four times this season.

"He has a good arm and I understand he has a good group of receivers to throw to.

"I am happy to return to the D.C. area to play and to see my family and friends. I am not interested in trying to outdo Banks. My main interest is with the team and not in personal duels."

Turner, one of ten children, got a lot of early encouragement from his three older brothers. He has played in some of the nation's finest stadiums. He feels there is something special about playing in Washington's RFK Stadium.

"There is just a different mental feeling playing in the bigger stadiums," said Turner. "When you enter the stadium you can feel the vibrations from the crowd and, for me it's easier to get my adrenalin flowing."

A&T Whips Winless Hawks As It Takes MEAC Lead

By Dennis Bryant

Saturday night, the A&T Aggies were supposed to have met a fired up Maryland-Eastern Shore Team.

The Hawks were definitely fired up, as they spent the entire first half running after the Aggies. A&T went on to post a lopsided 37-13 win.

On the Hawks' first possession, an errant pass was picked off by freshman Earl Ricks. He returned the ball to the Hawks' 14-yard line. Ellsworth Turner scored on a sneak on the third play to make it 7-0, A&T.

On the next Hawk possession quarterback Wilson Milbourne seemed to have his problems. The Hawks gave up the ball and Ellsworth Turner later kicked a 24-yard field goal for a 10-0, Aggie lead late in the first period.

The second quarter showed no sign of a fired-up Maryland team. In the Aggies' next possession, on a Turner to Dexter Feaster pass play, was good for nine yards and a touchdown which made it 17-0, A&T.

Turner passed to Bruce Black on the Aggies' fourth possession on a brilliant 30-yard scoring strike to make the score 24-0. The Aggies went 53 yards in just three plays.

The beginning of the second half saw the Hawks come out ready to play ball. Quarterback Wilson Milbourne threw two touchdown passes to James LeSane, one for 45 yards and the latter 30 yards. This made the score 24-13, with nearly four minutes to play.

The Aggies started their bid to cut the Hawks. On their next possession, the Aggies drove 80 yards in 11 plays as Ellsworth Turner drove the last 10 yards to make it 30-13, A&T.

Howard Barnhill blocked Willis Stringer's pass and A&T retained possession on the Maryland Eastern Shore nine yard line. Turner scored his 24 and 25 points as the Aggies took a commanding 37-13 lead.

From that point on, it was more of a defensive battle, as neither team could put together a good drive.

Ellsworth Turner completed 10 of 12 passes for 141 yards. His 26 points put him on top in the MEAC with 51 points total.

Dexter Feaster caught four passes for 49 yards. Bruce Black and Frank Scott were also keys in the game.

The Aggies rushed for 284 yards on 42 carries. William Joyner rushed for 95 yards on 10 carries.

The Aggies' record is now 5-1 and 2-0 in conference. UMES dropped to 0-5 with 0-3 in the MEAC conference.

respond to playing before big crowds, and come up with the big plays when it counts, there is no question. We have the personnel. How they respond in these situations will tell."

Last year's team had four players on the first MEAC team and six on the second.

Faust said that teams as well balanced and with as much depth and good players, say a lot about the team.

Ten out of 21 says a great deal," replied Faust.

"This year, barring injuries, Ellsworth Turner will probably be named MEAC player of the year. He's already one of the top players in the State. Feaster, Aiken, J. Holland, Merrick, and Morgan will probably receive honors also", stated Faust.

Who are you, telling us how to run our business?

It takes a lot of confidence to come fresh out of school and begin telling us how to do things.

On the other hand, it takes an unusual company to provide the kind of environment where that can happen, but that is exactly the environment you'll find at Scott Paper.

We constantly search for people who have the ability to respond to challenge and think for themselves, those with the initiative and desire to seek alternatives, the skill and courage to convince others that there are better ways and who aren't afraid to express their ideas.

At Scott, we admire an aggressive stance because we are an aggressive company. You can make your own opportunities with us...and we'll prove it.
