NCATE Team To Evaluate
Teacher Education Program

A&T State University will face a milestone in its development this weekend when its programs in teacher education are evaluated in an effort to gain national accreditation.

A nation-wide evaluation team of the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education will arrive here Sunday, November 7, and spend three days in the evaluation process. The team will be headed by Dr. W. Clem, dean of the School of Education of Prairie View University in Texas.

Also to be evaluated for national accreditation will be A&T's programs in industrial technology and media education. The technology programs will be evaluated by the National Association of Industrial Technology and the media education programs will be evaluated by the Association of Educational Communication and Technology.

"We sincerely welcome this assessment of our teacher education programs," said Dr. Lewis L. Dowdy, chancellor of A&T. "A&T has committed itself fully to teacher education from its inception. A sound teacher education component has always been an integral part of the university's overall organization."

A&T faculty members and students, directed by Dr. S. J. Shaw, dean of the School of Education, have spent much time preparing for the NCATE evaluation.

Shaw said both the basic programs and the advanced programs in teacher education will be evaluated by the team.

He said the team will consider such standards as the design of the curriculum, competencies and utilization of faculty, student participation in program evaluation and development, library resources, evaluation of programs and the advanced program will also be evaluated for graduate credit, preparation of faculty, research and advanced curricula, composition of faculty and facilities for doctoral programs, retention of students and physical facilities.

The advanced program will also be evaluated for graduate credit, preparation of faculty, research and advanced curricula, composition of faculty for doctoral programs, retention of students and physical facilities.

A&T, founded in 1891, currently offers baccalaureate degrees in early childhood education, in 16 areas of secondary education and in the special areas of art, educational media, health and physical education and music.

In the Graduate School, master of science degrees are offered in agriculture, education, chemistry, education, engineering, food and nutrition, and industrial education. The Board of Governors recently approved a new master's degree program in adult education.

A&T Researchers Compile Report

A report compiled by two A&T State University researchers has been accepted for publication by the U.S. Department of Transportation. The report, Factors Influencing the Success of Company-based Carpooling Programs, was written by Dr. Alice Kidder, acting director of the A&T Transportation Institute, and Chi Fai Pun.

The report was an effort to measure workers' interest in carpooling before, during and after the energy crisis. The research was conducted among workers of five companies in the Greensboro area.

In general, the report noted that the percentage of carpoolers increased from October, 1973, to May, 1974, during the height of the gasoline crisis.

In the five companies surveyed, the percentage of carpoolers rose from 10.8% of the work force in February of 1973 to 14.4% of the work force in May of 1974.

The report added that all of the companies except one exhibited a pattern of carpool expansion.

The A&T researchers also concluded that carpooling is preferred as a means of transportation at the event that a person can't drive to work alone. Time savings, low cost to riders and convenience were cited as major advantages.

Research Project Designed To Improve Driving Skills

A new research project at A&T, designed to make high school students improve their automobile driving skills, has been funded for $50,000.

The grant, made by the Governor's Highway Safety Program and the State Board of Education, was announced by Dr. Isaac Barnett, director of the Safety and Driver's Education Program at A&T.

Barnett has a theory that if high school students who have an overwhelming interest in wanting to drive the family automobile, and be motivated to like their other high school courses, they can become better drivers and improve their overall academic grades.

The pilot study will extend to twenty local school systems in the Piedmont and Northwest sections North Carolina.

"What I hope to do," said Dr. Barnett, "is to see whether the courses of high school curricula can be used to contribute to the vast pool of knowledge necessary" (See Safety Page 3)
Endowment Gives UNCF $300,000 Contribution

NEW YORK—The board of directors of Lilly Endowment, Inc. of Indianapolis has approved a grant of $300,000 to the United Negro College Fund (UNCF). The grant was announced October 28th by the UNCF executive director, pointed out that the grant was a $60,000 increase over last year's contribution.

"We are extremely heartened by this increased vote of confidence on the part of the Lilly Endowment," Edley said. "Its actions are a model for what we would hope to be a general trend among American philanthropy."

The UNCF is seeking a 1976 national goal of $15 million. Last year, the Fund raised $12.2 million to help its member institutions. All are private, fully-accredited institutions, with enrollments totaling some 50,000 students.

The Lilly Endowment's latest grant continues an association stretching back to the UNCF's first national campaign in 1944. During that time, the Lilly Endowment has given the College Fund $3,200,000.

"The Lilly Endowment has been one of the UNCF's most consistent and generous supporters," Edley said. "Its actions are a model for what we would hope to be a general trend among American philanthropy."

Call us for help.

I HAD CANCER AND I LIVED.

Marvel Bayh

I have had breast cancer and a mastectomy to cure it. But it didn't change my life—or my femininity. Of course, right after surgery, I was discouraged. But then I received a visit from an American Cancer Society volunteer. She gave me a ball and a rope. And she showed me how to use them to strengthen my arm. She gave me information about breast forms and how to fit my clothes. Then she told me that she, too, had had a mastectomy. That's when she gave me faith. I knew then, if other women could do it, so could I. I did.

If you know a cancer patient who needs help, call your Unit of the American Cancer Society. We can give people information and counseling on all kinds of cancer. We can also give them hope. I know. Because I had cancer and lived.

Aggie 'Fashion Show' Is Highlight Of Homecoming

By Mary Partlow

Once again the Aggie Fashion Show or what is generally known to the public as A&T's homecoming game became the highlight of the celebration. The Aggie spectators at Saturday's game started to become restless before half-time because the Aggies had not scored.

All of a sudden, the Aggies began their fashion parade. The ladies showed a wide variety of styles. Some wore the classical rendition of the man's three-piece suit. The ladies showed a wide variety of styles. Some wore the classical rendition of the man's three-piece suit complemented with the satin tie, blouse, clutch purse, felt hat, and three-inch heels. Another outfit that the ladies wore was the classic three-piece suit with light colored shirts and bold colored ties. The accessories that some used were the cane, pendant watches, and the classic loafer.

The men complemented their leisure attire with bright print shirts, tie-up shoes, boots, and the classic loafer. The men also wore the classic three-piece suit with light colored shirts and bold colored ties. The accessories that some used were the cane, pendant watches, and the classic loafer.
Carter Plans To Seek Action

PLAINS, Ga. (AP)—Jimmy Carter, whose Baptist Church canceled services rather than worship there, said Sunday he will "seek church action" to "niggers and civil rights activists." voted Sunday to recommend that the Rev. Edwards be fired, a published report said Monday.

The pastor, who said he disagreed with the resolution, had told reporters at a news conference earlier in the day that he was sure it was an attempt by enemies of Gov. Carter to sabotage his campaign.

Spokesman for President Ford denied any involvement in the incident, but they used it as an occasion for criticizing Carter.

Meanwhile, the church deacons, who had decided to enforce a 1965 resolution excluding "Negroes or other civil rights activists," voted Sunday to recommend that the Rev. Edwards be fired, a published report said Monday.

We Will Let You Know!

An article entitled "Lack of Concern Seen in University management" that appeared in the October 29 homecoming edition of The A&T Register is drawing a lot of critics and blame from a number of students. This writer was told that a number of alumni were very upset over the many discrepancies that appeared in A&T's financial report compared to the state auditor's report.

Another question that this reporter has always wondered about is the scarcity of washers and dryers in Scott Hall. There are more than 900 residents in Scott who must be content with using six washers and dryers. Most of the time fewer than five of them are in any type of functional condition.

The article appeared right on time—just in time for all the alumni to see. A large number of that special publication were distributed in area hotels where the alumni stayed over the weekend.

If the alumni of this university refuse to contribute another penny to this institution, I for one could hardly blame them. First of all, I would want to know exactly what my hard-earned money is being used for.

If there is any question as to the authenticity of the figures published in Friday's paper, let me out your mind at ease. Each figure is documented. Each figure comes from the state and the Dudley Building.

Another fact that is of particular interest to this organization is implication that The Register could spend $10,000 in one day (June 30, 1973—July 1, 1973). It would take this paper approximately two and one-half months or more to spend that much, including break downs in equipment which occasionally happen.

The purpose of this organization is to inform the university community and, if anything new concerns this issue of university spending, we will be sure to let you know.

Letters To The Editor

Aggies Should Give Support

Editor of The Register:

"When the going gets rough, the rough get going", or so goes the old saying and certainly this saying could be applied to A&T's homecoming game.

Never have I seen so many non-spirited Aggies as there were Saturday at the game, From the first kick off to the final seconds on the scoreboard clock, fans, alumni, students, and faculty members did not appear to be the least interested in the game nor the halftime show. No one cheered the team on as they tried unsuccessfully to fight off the Morgan State attack. No one applauded for the "Blue and Gold Marching Machine" band as they tried to present a homecoming show. But everyone was eager to leave when it started to rain, when the team appeared as though no victory was in sight, and when the band did not play what everyone wanted to hear.

What does it mean to be an Aggie? Does it mean partying all week-end and getting too high to care what goes on or does it mean supporting the football team when they're losing.

I would like to comment on the way many people reacted to our homecoming. I know all of us were disappointed in losing the game, but that's not the whole picture of the spirit of homecoming. I hear students complaining that homecoming was "lousy", but no one thinks to admire or speak up for the decorations or the long hours spent working on the beautiful floats that were entered in our parade. This (homecoming) should be the true spirit of being an Aggie, what it means to you, making each of us proud to see our alumni come back home to tell of their lives and what part A&T played in it. It will be said again and again. If you feel that it wasn't a good homecoming, remember homecoming can only be what you make of it.

Where's The New Stadium?

By Maxine McNeill

A&T's homecoming celebration proved to be less than a lot of people expected. It is unclear exactly what the cause was. The student interest and participation were felt, but some students felt there were no events scheduled for them to participate in. If that is true, it is not saying much for our elected student government leaders.

Tony Tyson, SGA president, said in an interview earlier this semester that his administration attended summer school so that they might eliminate the pressures of homecoming this semester. Tyson said he would have time to work on other problems confronting students.

While his early preparation for homecoming was a good idea, he fell short of his intentions in the eyes of some students.

There is nothing else that can be said about the unorganized events and other disappointments of homecoming week. There is nothing that can be done now.

It can be said though, that the future homecoming shows, events and football games cannot prove to be any more unfortunate than this one.

Homecoming Was "Unfortunate"

Well, another homecoming has passed for the Aggies. Many felt the majority of planned activities and events went well, with of course the exception of Saturday's game. Coach Hornsby Howell stated that the Morgan State team gave the Aggies "an old-fashioned butt kicking".

Board Cancels Church Services

Sunday, the Rev. Mr. Edwards told him that "There will be no services today." The Rev. Mr. Edwards said the board of deacons voted Tuesday night, 24 hours after the Rev. Mr. King applied for membership, to enforce the 1965 resolution. He said they later decided to cancel worship services Sunday to avoid possible trouble.

"I felt that, under the extreme tension we would be under, it would be impossible for us to worship," the Rev. Mr. Edwards said.

The Rev. Mr. King who makes his home in Atkins, Ga., about 30 miles from Plains, said he would return to the church next week.

Float Committee Selects Winners

By Maxine McNeill

The float committee met Saturday morning to determine the winners of the dormitory and float decoration contests. Leroy Holmes, chairman of the Art Department, was in charge of the committee.

Vanguard Hall won the award for general appeal. Its theme was, "Love is coming back to Aggieland."

Mrs. Mary Marks, a counselor in Vanzant, said Helen Bryant, a senior resident of the dorm, was chairman of the decoration committee. "Helen did such a beautiful job," said Mrs. Marks. The award for best interpretation of the homecoming theme will be given to Morrison Hall. "Love is A&T, You and Me," was the winning theme for Morrison.

For the float contest, several winners were chosen.

Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity will receive the Chandelier award. This award is administered to the most beautiful float.

The recipient of the Alumni award will be the Esquire social fraternity. This award is given to the technically outstanding and artistic float.

The unique float was chosen to be the Aggiacultural Education's. It will receive the Student Government award.

The Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity will be administered the Homecoming Committee award for the best interpretation of the Homecoming theme.

Sullivan Wellbro, director of the memorial union, worked on the committee. He said, "Overall there were beautiful floats in the parade. In fact, they were some of the most beautiful floats we had in years."

The winners for the dormitory and float decorations will receive the Paul Revere Silver Bowl award.

The Aggies got blown out at homecoming this week. So what else is new? Actually nothing is new. The game followed the expected course.

A&T muffed a couple of plays and Morgan took them and capitalized for a couple of quick scores.

Then there was the instant comeback that has typified all of the Aggie games up until this week. Ellsworth Turner calmly picked Morgan’s secondary apart, and, yes, by magic A&T was suddenly in the game again.

Well, A&T’s guardian angel must have been astir in the second half because a devil by the name of Mark Durden did something very rare in these days and times.

He single-handedly beat the entire A&T secondary apart.

Never have I ever seen a defensive unit so helpless against the pass as I did last Saturday. The Bears beat A&T for short yardage, long yardage, hitch passes, and yes, even broken plays.

Now don’t place it all on the defense. The offense can’t run its way through a wall of onion skin typing paper. The teams are as even as I did last Saturday. The Bears beat A&T did something very rare in these days and times.

College Football Sees Surprises

By Craig R. Turner

There were a great many surprises on the scene in Black College football this weekend. The most astounding news came from New York and Greensboro.

As of Bethune-Cookman, 23-14, in Newark, Delaware State has never beaten the Aggies and well I don’t have to explain what the Central game is all about. That confrontation is legendary.

A&T let homecoming get away, again, but there still is a lot at stake for this football team. There is only one question that remains, Are we Aggies or will we take the pill to call its quits? I hope not.

A&T To Tackle Grambling

It lack a factor in an athletic event if it is, then the Aggies don’t have back especially when they tangle with the Grambling Tigers. The Aggies gridders have played Grambling three times, and have failed to capture a victory in as many outings.

But this year is totally different in all respects. The Grambling Tigers are spinning this year with an overall record of 4 wins and 3 losses. But their record is not indicative of the incredible amount of talent Grambling possesses and their sometime as a team.

The stage was set. There was a crowd on hand somewhere in the neighborhood of 20,000 persons in Memorial Stadium to watch the league leading A&T football team destroy Morgan State.

Well, surprise! A&T was blown completely and thoroughly out of Greensboro last Saturday by the Bears in a 45-16 rout. A&T was out of sync leaving homecoming contingent watched Morgan as it jumped to a commanding 24-0 halftime advantage.
