Durham Businessmen To Face Sentencing For Fraud Conviction

By The Associated Press

Sentencing is scheduled for December 6 in U.S. Middle District Court for six prominent Durham businessmen who were convicted of misapportion of savings and loan company funds.

One defendant, John S. Stewart, president of Mutual Savings and Loan Association, and former A&T Board of Trustee chairman, may not be sentenced if his appeal is granted.

The others are:
- Walter J. Denier, president of Gregory Real Estate Co. Inc.
- Walter Archibald Biggs, former president of Home Savings and Loan Association of Durham.
- C. Thomas Biggs, son of Walter Biggs and a former director of Home Savings and Loan.
- Thomas C. Upchurch, former vice president and president of Home Savings and Loan.
- C. Paul Roberts, former president of a Durham real estate development firm.

The men pleaded guilty or were found guilty of charges of misappropriating funds from savings and loan companies to benefit Roberts and his brother, Bobby.

Stewart, who was re-elected to head the trustee board at A&T in October, stepped from that position pending the outcome of his appeal.

F. D. Bluford Library Gets Serial Coordinator

By Mary Williams

Mrs. Sadie Smith, a native of Aiken, S.C., has been appointed coordinator of the serials and documents department of F.D. Bluford Library.

Mrs. Smith, a graduate of A&T in sociology, acquired her graduate degree at the University of Pittsburgh in library science. She has worked as a librarian in the Pittsburgh city schools.

Serving as advisor to the service, she is able to help obtain information of recent concern for students. The documents include publications by the government and governmental agencies and federal and state agencies.

Black Officials Salute Wilkins

DENVER (AP)-The growing ranks of Black public officials saluted civil rights leader Roy Wilkins in a thunderous ceremony marked by a promise of urban aid from Jimmy Carter and Wilkins' quiet appraisal of the president-elect: "He means good.

Wilkins, who steps down next year as director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, received the Liberty Award Sunday from the National Black Caucus of Local Elected Officials. He was headed by Black urban leaders, as well as Carter and by Wilkins' successor at the NAACP, Benjamin Hooks.

"The cutting edge of the civil rights movement today is politics," said caucus president Maynard Jackson, mayor of Atlanta.

In 1969, the first year that figures were compiled, 1,185 Blacks held elected office at all levels of government. In 1976, the number is 3,979. Of these, 143 are mayors, many attending the National League of Cities annual meeting under way here this week.

Still, as Hooks pointed out, the struggle for equality that marked Wilkins' career at the NAACP remains to be won.

Though Blacks are 11 per cent of the nation's population, Black elected officials comprise less than one per cent of all elected public officials.

"Tonight we face the challenge of limited success. Tonight in America there is too little for too many," said Hooks.

"Let us not get too concerned with our Brooks Brothers suits and IBM briefcases that we forget there are people out there who need our help.

Carter told the caucus he is "deeply concerned" about urban America, and he pledged to implement a "broad and comprehensive urban policy" to aid the nation's troubled cities.

Speaking by telephone from Plains, Ga., Carter offered no specific proposals in his address, but he said Blacks would be "direct beneficiaries of our concern and our action," promising, "I will not be remote from your own objectives and goals.

Carter said the cities have been victimized by federal economic policies, and vowed that a change "must take place." Wilkins concluded, "Personally I am persuaded that he means good.

The $100-a-plate fundraiser drew a full house of about 600, including several possible Cabinet appointees-Mayors Kenneth Gibson of Newark, N.J., Coleman Young of Detroit, Thomas Bradley of Los Angeles, and Richard Hatcher of Gary, Ind.

Legislative Proposals Will Spark Discussion

RALEIGH (AP)-Recommendations to revamp the state's public school administrative setup expected soon from a legislative study commission are likely to spark lively debates during the upcoming session of the General Assembly.

What Good Men?

"Klan membership does not violate any military rules." That statement was made by Lt. Col. Daniel Brown with reference to the recent racial disturbances that occurred at Camp Pendleton, San Diego, California.

It has long been suspected that racial discrimination exists in the military. The statement made by Brown only intensifies that suspicion. It is hard to believe (and then again it isn’t) that the government would allow an organization with so many negative ideas to exist on a military base. Surely the government can see that the Ku Klux Klan has done nothing for the advancement of human relations.

Another negative statement made by David Duke, director of the KKK, concerns the defense of some Klan members. He stated, "If those had been Klansmen, they would have defended themselves adequately." To this writer that statement has some negative sentiments. This writer reads it as saying, "If those had been Klansmen, their Black attackers would have gotten more than they burnedred for—possible death."

The Navy has been seen as that branch of the military where Blacks, especially Black officers, are not wanted. But it now seems that the Marines are not in good condition either.

It is also hard to believe that the Blacks involved would attack the white marines unprovoked. Somewhere along the line something had to happen.

I'm sure we have all seen the commercials and advertisements on television and billboards saying, "The Marines—All we want is a few good men." It now makes me wonder, of what color do these ‘good men’ have to be?

The Fault May Lie With You

By Maxine McNeill

The importance Black institutions play in the area of educating Blacks is being questioned by a number of sources today. Some students attending A&T even question the significance of Black colleges.

This editorial, of course, is in defense of Black colleges.

While many students feel they do not obtain the type of education needed to prepare them for life from Black colleges, this writer wonders if that is entirely true. Are Black colleges really insignificant?

If you answered yes to that question, why are you attending A&T? A&T being a Black state supported institution, falls in the same category as other Black colleges.

If it has no importance as far as Blacks are concerned, then the proposed merger with UNC-G a few years ago should have been welcomed by students and faculty members. Surprisingly, it was not.

A college can have all the information in the world but it cannot make students absorb it. The initiative to do so has to come from the students.

A&T, like other Black colleges, has graduated many successful people. It is safe to assume that they went through some of them. The government allows some of them to benefit and we conclude that Blacks are insignificant. The fault may be within you.

SGA Promises Enlightenment

By Mary E. Cropps

Tomorrow, the second student body meeting of the semester will be held. The SGA promises to clear up all questions that may plague A&T students. Among the issues that the SGA will discuss and clear up are dormitory and cafeteria problems and linen services.

The SGA also promises to let the students know about homecoming and organization budgets and why there has not been any entertainment on campus sponsored by the SGA.

Well, all that can be said for the SGA at this point is, "It’s about time." Here it is, practically the end of the semester and these problems have been plaguing us all semester. It seems that the SGA has been somewhat slow in responding to the problems of the students.

Of course, earlier this semester there was the problem with the cafeteria and the SGA responded admirably. For a while there, the SGA was on the job. The hours that the dining hall operated were changed and little else did. What happened to the drive and the determination that spurred the SGA and the students to action initially?

And homecoming. Well, little can be said for homecoming. It’s over and many of us are glad.

After homecoming, life at A&T dragged on. Little was done to relieve the boredom. But tomorrow night at 8:00 p.m. in Harrison Auditorium, the boredom will be relieved and we will find out why what happened, happened and why what didn’t happen, didn’t happen.

The SGA promises a great deal. Let’s hope it will live up to the promise; and if it were you, I wouldn’t miss it. It should be an enlightening experience.

George Benson To Present Jazz Concert

George Benson, one of the top jazz guitarists, will perform in the Greensboro Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, December 2. For more than a decade George Benson has been considered a premier jazz artist. In that time he has recorded many well received albums and is now commanding all respect.

George Benson’s achievements have won him the Playboy All-Star Poll, a Grammy nomination and the long-standing support of a loyal following.

Appearing as special guest in the concert will be David Sanborn.

Tickets are priced at $6.50 and $7.50 with all seats reserved. They can be purchased at the Greensboro Coliseum Auditorium Box Office and The Record Bar in Greensboro.

Atlantic Records has released five new albums this month and here they are.

To begin with there’s Aretha Franklin’s "Ten Years of Gold". On this album Aretha is celebrating her tenth year with the label.

Side one consists of “I Never Loved a Man (The Way I Love You)”, “Respect,” “Baby, I Love You”, “A Natural Woman”, “Think”, “See Saw” and “Spanish Harlem”.

Side two is good also with “Rock Steady”, “Day Dreaming”, “Angel”, “Until You Come Back to Me” and “Something He Can Feel.”

Next in line is Chick Corea, Herbie Hancock, Keith Jarrett, and McCoy Tyner together in an album of the same title.

These four prolific jazz pianists have combined their talents to lay some serious music on you. With such songs as “Lazy Bird”, “Doom” and “Einbahnstrasse”, jazz lovers will really dig it.

Thirdly there are the Impressions with “It’s About Time.” This LP finds The Impressions at their peak with some truly mellow sounds.

On side one there are “In the Palm of my Hands”, “You’ll Never Find”, “Same Old Heartaches” and “I Need You”, while on side two you have “This Time”, “Stardust”, “I’m a Fool For Love”, and “What Might Have Been.”

Next are “Live! Blue Magic, Major Harris, Margie Joseph. “They get together on this two album set to tease and please you with their music.

Singing such songs as “I Love Music”, “I Got Over Love”, “Stop to Start” and “Sidewalk” it is easy to see why it is as popular as it is.

The last one is Nat Adderley with “Hummin.” You’ve probably noticed how Nat Adderley’s name kept popping up last month after the release of Germany’s “Jazz Gala Concert.” His two standards, “Live! Blue Magic” and “The Traveler,” “Valerie” and “Theme From M*A*S*H.”

Marine Corps Says:

Klan Not Linked To Attack

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A Marine Corps spokesman says 16 Marines at Camp Pendleton are thought to be members of the Ku Klux Klan but that there is no evidence to link them with a Nov. 13 incident in which Black Marines attacked white Marines.

Lt. Col. Daniel Brown denied charges made Sunday by KKK Director David Duke that Klan members had been incommunicado, and transferred incommunicado, and transferred to other bases following the attack.

Duke telephoned news media Sunday from New Orleans to say that, after the attack on the white Marines, half a dozen Klan members were "grabbed in the middle of the night and held incommunicado" by the corps.

Duke said many Klan members have since been transferred.

The executive director of the San Diego Urban League, Clarence Pendleton, has charged Duke said many Klan members had been held incommunicado, and transferred in the midst of the night and held incommunicado since the attack.

Duke said that after the attack on the white Marines though to be Klan members had been involved in the beating incident. He said the Klan membership list had been found in the barracks but not in the same section where the attack occurred. Klan membership does not violate any military rules.

Duke also said the white men attacked were not involved with the Klan. He said that the intended victims had been the Klan members and that the attackers had made a mistake, picking the wrong victims.

"If those had been Klan members, they would have defended themselves adequately," Duke said.

SPORTS NOTEBOOK

By Craig R. Turner

Yesterday marked the beginning of the 1976-77 basketball season and A&T's quest for its third straight MEAC title and its fifth in six years.

Over the short history of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference, A&T has stood out as the sole power behind the basketball league to the threshold of Division I status in the NCAA.

During the first five years of the MEAC, several strong teams and exciting individual players have passed through. Who can forget the first MEAC championship team of 1971 when A&T, led by All-American Elmer Austin, smashed nearly all of their league foes on its way to a 24-5 record!

That season marked the end to the brilliant coaching career of now-present-day athletic director Cal Irvin (401-124). It was Irvin who laid the foundation and built A&T basketball into today's power.

1972 was the year that a modest 15-11 Aggie team upset previously unbeaten and nationally ranked Maryland-Eastern Shore 81-80 in the MEAC Tournament in Durham. Most people will remember the performances of June Harris and James Outlaw.

The following year, a younger arrived on the scene who would change the face of MEAC basketball for good.

Marvin Webster, "The Human Eraser," rewrote conference record books and set an all-time rebounding mark.

Still it was UMES that ruled the kingdom that season as they rolled to a 24-2 mark and advanced to the NIT before bowing in the third round. The stars that year wore the trio of Joe Pace, Reuben Collins, and the incomparable Talvin Skinner. Later, NCAA violations nullified UMES' championship.

It was only a year of absence for the Aggies as the Blue and Gold reclaimed the title with a stirring 65-60 win over the Morgan State Bears and Marvin Webster. The man of the hour was Allen Spruill.

It was that wizard from New Bern that scored 29 points in the tournament in Baltimore, Md., and brought the crown back to Greensboro.

And just last season, the best A&T basketball team since the days of Al Attles produced a sparkingly impressive 20-6 year and the university's first postseason basketball bid. It was then we came to know a fellow named Allen Spruill.

Coach Warren Reynolds shook off the aura of following in Irvin's footsteps, and established himself in his own right as the top coach in the MEAC. His winning percentages have already put him well on the road to becoming the winningest coach in A&T's history.

Reynolds has embarked upon this year with a team combination of youth and a wealth of super talent. It is that combination that often times explodes into success or can end up as suicide.

There will be a lot of anxious eyes focused on A&T this year. Most will be wondering if the past success the dynasty or even that "magic spell" that A&T holds in basketball has finally departed and if someone else will ascend to the throne. I think not. Not quite yet.

Women's Cage Program Looks Good For Season

With the return of last season's top two scorers and the addition of two of the most sought after women cagers in the state of North Carolina, the outlook for the 1976-77 women's basketball program at A&T is optimistic.

Last season under the guidance of Joyce Spruill, who doubles as coach and director of women's athletics, the Aggiettes finished with an 11-7 record and played in the state playoffs in Chapel Hill.

Coach Spruill expects to improve on last year's mark and again return to the state playoffs. "We have a lot more depth this season and we have enough experience that we won't be making the same kinds of mistakes that hurt us last season," Ms. Spruill said.

"We have been performing very well in our drills. The skills of this year's group are excellent. Our guards are good ballhandlers and Gold reclaimed the title with a stirring 65-60 win over the Morgan State Bears and Marvin Webster. The man of the hour was Allen Spruill.

A&T Will Face Norfolk Friday

Following A&T's 86-57 loss to Virginia Commonwealth Monday, the Aggies are pointing to Friday night as they venture northward to Norfolk, Va.

The event will be a doubleheader involving A&T, North Carolina Central, Virginia State and defending CIAA champions, Norfolk.

The Spartans will tangle with NCCU in the nightcap affair. Friday at 9 p.m. A&T will face powerful Virginia State in the tipoff clash at 7 p.m.

The Saturday night thrills will open with NCCU facing Virginia State and the defending MEAC champion, A&T, going up against Norfolk.

A&T, having won four of the five MEAC championships in basketball, is hoping to return to the pinnacle of success that resulted in an NIT berth last March.

Most eyes will be centered at the Aggies in this doubleheader. A great deal of attention will be focused in the direction of 6-10 forward L. J. Pinkin. The Laurinburg sophomore is rated the top frontline performer at that position in the MEAC. Both Virginia entries will have talent to match up with its North Carolina foes.

Virginia State should be stronger and taller than last season. Last year's 18-8 team suffered through with very little height. This time four starters return.

Center John (Blue) Board (6-10) will be counted on heavily. Coach Harold Dean will use three guards with Doward Tisdol, Jerome Bell and 6-4 Melvin Cole. Tisdol was all-CIAA and pumped in 22 points per game for the Trojans in 1975.

Norfolk State should not let up on its bid to claim its fourth consecutive title.

Women's Cage Program

By Craig R. Turner

Looking good for the season, the Aggiettes are pointed toward a 24-5 record for the 1976-77 season. The team is led by senior guards Mary Long, Jackie Williams, and Mary Childs.

Mary Long, "The Human Eraser," rewrote conference record books and set an all-time rebounding mark.

Still it was UMES that ruled the kingdom that season as they rolled to a 24-2 mark and advanced to the NIT before bowing in the third round. The stars that year wore the trio of Joe Pace, Reuben Collins, and the incomparable Talvin Skinner. Later, NCAA violations nullified UMES' championship.

Three starters are gone but 6-4 dynamo Ray Epps (4'2"ppa) and 6-5 Mel Friend and Chesley Haywood will comprise the backcourt. Coach Charles Christian is optimistic about his team's chances.

Head Coach Warren Reynolds of A&T is concerned heading into this upcoming tournament. "We feel that these two games will tell us what we have to do to improve," he said.

"Virginia State and Norfolk are two real fine clubs and our younger kids are going to have to be mentally prepared."

"No doubt it will toughen us up. We should show well if we play to our capabilities."

We may have lost the first one, but we won't lose them all!!!

and can penetrate."

"Our guards can rebound and our forwards are good shooters."

Senior Eva Patterson, who averaged 20.2 ppg last season and 16.3 ppg a year ago, are the only players assured of a starting berth.

Other players expected to see considerable action this season include freshmen, center Cheryl Armwood and guard Charlene Spruill.

"Cheryl is an excellent rebounder and a good shooter," Mrs. Spruill said of her young star from Mt. Olive. "At 5-10, she can handle the ball as well as any of our guards."

"Charlene is a crowd pleaser and I'm certain she will keep the fans excited with her moves. She averaged better than 22 points a game at Southern Wayne High School in Dudley."

The A&T women play in the rough Division III of the NCAA AW. Top competition in the conference this season will come from St Augustine's, Bennett, Guilford and Meredith College.

"The competition gets tougher and tougher each season," said Ms. Spruill, who will be assisted this season by Debbie Bowman. "We have 14 good players and we are ready for the challenge."
