Vet School Construction Depends On Legislature

RALEIGH (AP) — President William C. Friday of the University of North Carolina system told North Carolina legislators earlier this week that until the legislature is willing to put up $9 million to get started on a building program no school of veterinary medicine can be opened in the state.

Friday told the legislature's joint Higher Education Committee that the veterinary school planned at North Carolina State University will cost an estimated $38 million and $9 million is the "absolute minimum" to get started. "If that is not forthcoming, we can't get started," he said.

The Advisory Budget Commission did not recommend anything for building the vet school in its proposed budget.

John Sanders, UNC's vice president for long range planning, told the legislators North Carolina is now spending about $640,000 a year training about 117 students in veterinary schools in other states. He said, the state builds its own school, it will cost about $4 to $5 million a year to operate and will have a capacity of about 300 students. He said present plans call for opening the school in 1981.

Members of the committee questioned Friday and other UNC officials about overlapping between the university system and the state's community college system.

In answer to a question from Sen. Fred D. Alexander, D-Mecklenburg, Sanders said that, although the veterinary school would be located at North Carolina State University in Raleigh, plans call for carrying on some veterinary research and preveterinary medical training at A. and T. State University in Greensboro.

Friday recalled a study by the UNC Board of Governors had concluded that the state does not

Office Sponsors Annual Teacher's Fair Program

By Allan Brickhouse

Forty-one representatives from several states participated in the annual Teacher's Fair sponsored by the Career Planning and Placement office. The consultants talked with students concerning teaching opportunities in the counties they represented.

The consultants said the job opportunities in their counties at this time are uncertain because they have not been allotted their funds for this year. They explained this by saying last year was an election year.

"The job vacancies we have are scattered as of right now because we don't know to what areas the legislature will allot funds," said Mrs. Irene Martin of Henry County.

Williams Vows To Protect A&T

By Maxine McNeill

"I am going to put students in jail from now on," said Joseph Williams, a local district attorney. "I do not care about their records. The individual student will have to be sacrificed for A&T's excellence."

"I made up my mind if I couldn't do anything else, I would protect A&T's good name," Williams continued. "From now on, I will treat A&T students like everyone else."

An average of six to eight A&T students a week are arrested for shoplifting," Williams said. "Something has to be done."

Both Williams and District

Court Judge Elreta Alexander are A&T graduates. Williams said they are concerned about the public's image of A&T.

"I have never seen a student from Bennett College in court for shoplifting," said Williams. He said an average of two to three Guilford College and UNC-G students are arrested a month for shoplifting.

"When I first started hearing students say they were from A&T, I put myself in their position and tried to help them out," he added. Various means were used to see that the charges did not appear on their records.

According to Williams, the

The annual Spring Student Teaching Conference was held for student teachers Tuesday afternoon in the lobby of Bluford Library. Attending this conference which was sponsored by the Student National Educational Association (SNEA), were cooperating teachers and department advisors.

The conference opened with remarks and a speech of welcome by Dr. Frissell Jones, coordinator of student teaching.

Following Jones' speech, an introduction of cooperating teachers and supervisors was given.

The major purpose of the conference commenced as student teachers, cooperating teachers and supervisors formed small groups for workshop planning. These workshops were beneficial in several ways.

First of all, in these workshops, department advisors were given a chance to meet the teachers whom their students would be working with. Next, students who could not meet with their cooperating teachers at a previous date, got a chance to become acquainted with them in the workshop. Finally, cooperating teachers from different regions were able to familiarize themselves with the curriculum of other school systems.

Following the conference, Jones said that he was quite pleased with the turn-out of both cooperating teachers and student teachers.

Six to eight A&T students are arrested a week for shoplifting. Don't you add to the number.

Security Police Force Experiences Shortage

By Vanessa Spells

"There's definitely a shortage of campus police said Norwood McMillan," director of campus security. There are exactly 16 campus police, who are expected to patrol the vast campus area."

There are three security officers on each shift, one patrol car, and radio equipment which is in the process of being updated by the budget of the physical plant.

Approximately seventy-five incidents are reported monthly which include trespassing, breaking and entering, vandalism, assaults, and larceny-being the most reoccurring incident McMillan said.

Most incidents that occur are done to students by other students and most information received by campus police is obtained from the students.

A campus security officer was recently placed into the union and, since then, there has been a decrease in incidents, McMillan reported.

Aside from the 16 campus police there are five security guards who really don't have the police powers but aid in patrolling the buildings. McMillan said, in order to run the campus effectively, he needs approximately eight other policemen. He said one is just needed for pursuing leads to finish solving cases. Cases are never closed until solved no matter how long it takes, McMillan said.

Steam System Will Be Re-evaluated

By Rudi Noble, Jr.

While walking across campus, you probably have often wondered what causes the steam to escape from the manholes.

Is it really that hot down there?

Gerard E. Gray, director of the physical plant, says the vapor seen coming from manholes results from cold air contacting condensate (water condensed from steam) leaking from expansion joints and other places.

Actually steam transmission lines serving the campus include two pipes. One carries steam to heat the buildings while the other carries condensate back to the heating plant to be reheated so that the heating process can be repeated in a continuous cycle.

Gray also said that a consulting engineering firm is presently in the process of surveying the steam transmission system and will report its recommendation for correcting the problem to include repairs or replacement. Its recommendations will be put into effect. The firm's surveillance should be completed within a month's time.

need a new law school but that "action had to be taken promptly to improve the quality of the law school at North Carolina Central University.

In that connection, Friday said he was notified Monday that the accreditation of the NCCU law school had been continued temporarily but that another check of the school would be made this year. The last legislature provided more than $2 million to upgrade the NCCU law school.

Some of the smartest black executives work for us.

The Navy, though few black college men realize it, can be one of the fastest places for a smart young man to get ahead. Responsibility comes quickly at sea, and it's real responsibility. An officer less than a year out of college may be in charge of thirty men; after just two years he may run a division of fifty or more. In four years, a Navy officer can have more managerial experience than most civilians have midway through their careers.

The Navy has officer programs in Aviation and Nuclear Propulsion, in Supply, Law, Medicine, and many others. Talk it over with your Navy recruiter or call 800-841-8000 toll free.

Early responsibility. Black or white, it's what being a Navy officer is all about.

King Will Speak At UNC-G

Dr. Martin L. King, Sr., father of the late Martin Luther King, Jr., will speak in Cone Ballroom on the campus of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro Wednesday, February 16.

Dr. King's speech is only one of a number of events that will be taking place on the campus during the week of February 12-20.

Included in the weeks' festivities are a "Black Arts Festival," Birthday Party, and Pe Rally scheduled for Saturday, February 12.

On Sunday, February 13, there will be a tribute to the Black Church with Rev. Wayne Clapp as the guest speaker. Later on in the day, the movie "Coolie High" will be shown in the library.

The schedule for the remainder of the week follows: Monday, February 14--"Express The Message"-Sounds in Motions Dance Co., senior citizens arts and craft showing; Tuesday, February 15--"Dance The Message"-Neo Black Society Dance Group, 8:00 p.m., Cone Ballroom; Wednesday, February 16--"Taste the Message"-Dr. King, 8:00 p.m., seminars-sounds in motions, "Creative Movement for Young Children."

On Thursday, February 17--"Wear The Message"-Fashion show with "Guys and Dolls", 8:00 p.m.; Friday, February 18--"Show the Message"-talent show, 8:00 p.m.; Saturday, February 19--"Jam The Message"-music by the 'Magnificents' from 9:00-12:30 p.m. in Cone Ballroom; and Sunday February 20--"Sing the Message"- with the NBS Gospel Choir Anniversary at 3:00 p.m.

All events are being sponsored by the Neo Black Society of UNC-G, and are free to the public.

More Representatives To Visit Career Center

Leon Warren, assistant director of the career planning and placement center, said, "This was the most successful Teacher's Fair we've had in the history of A&T." He said the program was well organized and a high caliber of students participated this year.

Warren said the students who participated should be commended because they were well prepared to talk with the representatives. He also wants to thank the School of Education for its cooperation in helping to make the Teacher's Fair a success.

Additional representatives will visit the Career Planning and Placement office after the students complete their field work.

Choir Celebrates Anniversary

The A&T Fellowship Gospel Choir will be celebrating its anniversary this weekend, February 11-13. The three-day celebration will include concerts by various choirs from across the state.

The Gospel Choir will be in concert, Friday night at 7:00 p.m. in Harrison Auditorium. Saturday night the celebration, in Harrison Auditorium at 7:00 p.m., will be a gospel extravaganza. Special guest choirs will come from Mt. Zion Holiness Church, UNCG-G Neo-Black Society, Bailey's Temple, Bennett College, St. Augustine's University and Winston-Salem University among others.

Sunday's concert at 2:30 p.m. in Moore Gymnasium will include choirs from Hayes Memorial, Mt. Sinai, NCCU, Shaw University, St. James Baptist, Greensboro

College and Fayetteville State University among others.

The choir, under the direction of trainer-coach Yvonne Smith and advisors Linda Ghee and Barbara Turner, cordially invites everyone to attend the festivities.

Special Concert To Feature North Carolina Symphony

By Lynelle Stevenson

The North Carolina Symphony, under the baton of Maestro John Gosling, will give a special concert in Winston-Salem at 8:15 p.m. on February 12 in Hanes Auditorium of the Fine Arts Center at Salem College.

The concert will be open to the public free of charge and is presented in cooperation with the North Carolina School of the Arts.

The all-orchestral program, which will feature the 70 talented musicians of the North Carolina Symphony, will open with the overture to "Beatrice and Benedict" by Berlioz. Other selections to be played will be

Debussy's impressionist work "La Mer" and Prokofiev's "Symphony No. 5 in B Flat Major."

In addition, March 9 will mark the Symphony's New York debut when it performs in Carnegie Hall.

John Gosling, who will be on the podium for the special free performance in Winston-Salem and also in Carnegie Hall, is in his fifth season as artistic director and conductor of the North Carolina Symphony.

A respected figure in the world of music and education, Maestro Gosling also serves on the board of trustees for the North Carolina School of the Arts.

The deadline for removing incomplete grades assigned the Fall Semester of 1976 is Friday, February 25.

Entertainment: Nelle's Corner

By Lynelle Stevenson

I've got three more new books for you this month from Ballantine Books, a division of Random House, Inc.

To start off, there's The Sweetheart Deal by Robert Rosenblum.

Hailed as "a real cliffhanger," it is a novel with a brilliant difference. It all begins when Bart Vereste, concierge to one of New York's most powerful Mafia families, offers to "sing" for the modest sum of twenty million dollars and guaranteed security.

From the first anonymous phone call to the last explosive shock, "The Sweetheart Deal" is the most electrifying Mafia novel since "The Godfather," and will soon be a major motion picture.

The next is "Treasures of Tutankhamun" by I.E.S. Edwards. The definitive catalogue of the most important and splendid exhibition of ancient Egyptian art ever to come to the United States, "Treasures of Tutankhamun" was co-published by Ballantine Books and the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The illustrated paperback will be highlighted by 75 color plates of the treasures excavated from the chambers of the boy-king's tomb, along with scores of black and white photographs taken during the long excavation proceedings in 1922 and 1923.

Lastly, there is "The Times We Had: Life with William Randolph Hearst" by Marion Davies.

Marion Davies, the show girl who was made into a Hollywood star by publishing Czar William Randolph Hearst, speaks candidly about her 32-year love affair with him in "The Times We Had."

Illustrated with more than 150 photographs of the couple and a glamorous cast of international celebrities, the book captures the spirit of Hollywood in its most glittering era and the affair that proved to be one of the greatest romances of the century.

Her commentary on their long relationship is interwoven with gratitude and resentment, warmth and frustration and is delivered simply and poignantly.

We Need More People Like You!!!

Army Nurses work in one of the most stimulating professional environments in nursing today. As an Army Nurse, you'll have the opportunity to practice nursing within the largest health-care system in the nation which includes exciting assignments in major medical centers world-wide.

You'll be an Army Officer with the appropriate responsibilities, privileges, and salary of a recognized professional. Your minimum starting salary will be over $10,500 with regular increases up to $16,000 in three short years. In addition to the excellent salary, you'll receive other benefits such as educational opportunities, travel, tax advantages, and free health and dental care. To qualify, you need at least a Bachelor's Degree in Nursing from a National League of Nursing accredited school. Also, you must qualify under the Army's general entrance requirements. Senior nursing students may apply during the last semester or quarter of their BSN program.

How Does SGA Rate?

The performance of the Student Government Association, especially that of the present administration, leaves a lot to be desired. SGA President Tony Tyson has announced a student body meeting for February 16. All that can be said about that announcement is—it's about time.

Student body meetings at A&T for the past four years have been about as scarce as natural gas. They (student body meetings) are held every now and then; and, in most cases, it is more than now.

There have been only a few cultural events sponsored by the present administration, the most recent being Georgia State Senator Julian Bond. That event probably would not have occurred had it not been for the North Carolina Fellows who were originators of the plan. They co-sponsored Bond's speaking engagement.

Social events have also been a rare occurrence on this campus this academic year. Though some other events have been planned, we all know how some plans can fall through.

But social events should not be and are not the main concern that this writer has in connection with the SGA. From this writer's point of view, little has been accomplished since the cafeteria "boycott" of last semester. And if the same problems exist now as they did then, the "boycott" cannot be listed among the SGA's accomplishments.

This editorial is not interested in downing any particular person or group. Its purpose is to make a few observations. The fact is, the present administration's accomplishments have been few!

The student body itself is not without its faults either, but most of the attention is focused on the president and his administration. He and his staff were elected by the majority of those students voting. When things are not working as they should, then the student body is also partially at fault.

As stated earlier, accomplishments have been few. If you were to rate the present administration on a scale of minus ten to positive ten, what would its rating be?

Attend Student Body Meeting

Dear Aggies:

I am encouraging all Aggies to come out and take an active part in your student body meeting Wednesday, February 16.

We are trying to communicate better on campus by changing the location of the student body meeting from Harrison Auditorium to the Student Union Ballroom, 7:00 p.m. - 9:00 p.m.

I am sure that your participation will be most significant in expressing yourself, influences, values, events, and helpful suggestions.

As a student body, we want to be a beautiful people. We want to be loved. Sometimes we do not see others as being beautiful, and we are not seen by them as being beautiful. Is it because we see a little? Can we go deeply enough to see totally? We have an urge to be filled, to feel good inside, to feel we belong, to feel that we are worth something, to be really free, to expand our minds and our hearts.

There exists a need to express myself to others, to allow others to see my image and to accept or reject it just as I have....

Who we are today is reaching toward who we will be tomorrow. What we appear to be today and the way we will appear to be tomorrow will change.

In the subject of attending the student body meeting, it is you who must choose. It is you who must be. It is you who must live.

Thank You,
Tony Tyson,
SGA President

Celebrate Daily

By Maxine McNeill

In the past, we, as Black people, took pride in celebrating Black History week. This year the Black History celebration has been extended throughout the month of February.

It's nice that we believe in something but why should we wait until a certain week or month to express ourselves? If we are truly proud of being Black, why can't we show it daily?

The knowledge of our past should live in our hearts every second of the day. It should not be something turned on like a water faucet.

A&T and the other Black colleges should always stress Black history. We students are so unconcerned that the fact that A&T does not offer a Black history major does not bother us.

If you want to major in Black history, don't bother to apply at A&T because there is no such major here. However, A&T is considered one of the best Black colleges in North Carolina.

Yes, we are proud Black people. We proved this in the past by celebrating our past one week in last February. This year we have the opportunity to prove ourselves for a whole month.

UT May Appeal Merger Order

NASHVILLE (AP) - A University of Tennessee lawyer has recommended that the university appeal a federal court order calling for a predominately Black state college to absorb UT's branch campus at Nashville.

Judge Frank Gray Jr. of U.S. District Court ruled last week that the merger of UT-Nashville into Tennessee State University was the only way that TSU could attract white students.

TSU was founded 60 years ago, when racial segregation was legal, as the state's school for Blacks.

Lawyers close to the case say it probably will wind up before the U.S. Supreme Court, which has never ruled specifically on desegregation of colleges and universities.

An appeal could affect at least 10 other states which the U.S. Office of Civil Rights in Atlanta says face court action in connection with their own college and university systems.

Louis Bryson, higher education director of the civil rights office, identifies them as Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia, Georgia and Florida.

Thomas W. Steele, UT-Nashville's lawyer in the nine-year old case, told Dr. Edward J. Boling, UT president in Knoxville in a letter released Monday that "I have no hesitancy...of recommending to you, and through you to the University of Tennessee and its board of trustees, that Judge Gray's decision be appealed."

The judge cited figures showing the student body of TSU was more than 90 per cent Black while the student body of UTN was more than 85 per cent white.

The UT trustees meet Saturday in Knoxville.

Steele cited several previous Supreme Court opinions to claim Judge Gray went too far, including some public school desegregation cases following the courts' 1954 decision outlawing segregated classes.

In a case involving Charlotte and Mecklenburg County, schools, Steele wrote, "The Supreme Court of the United States has made it clear that not even in the public secondary school systems does the Constitution prohibit predominantly Black schools."

Other lawyers have compared Judge Gray's order in the UTN-TSU case as akin to a busing order for the two colleges.

Steele also cited a case in which the Supreme Court ruled that "The problem of desegregating higher education must be dealt with on a statewide, rather than on a school-by-school basis."

Campus Haps

There will be a Student Body meeting Wednesday, February 16 in the Student Union ballroom starting at 7:00 p.m.

The Psychology Club will meet Tuesday, February 15, at 6:00 p.m. in Hodgin Auditorium. All interested freshmen, sophomores, juniors, seniors and graduate students are urged to attend. This meeting is for all psychology majors, minors, and related fields.

Southern Blacks Organize To Stop White Takeover

ATLANTA (AP) - Black landowners in the South have organized in an effort to stop whites and big business from buying up land owned by Blacks.

They called for more federal aid to Black landowners so they can keep their land.

Members of the National Association of Landowners held their first convention last week, charging that the federal bureaucracy has set up barriers between the Black landowner and federal assistance.

Joseph F. Brooks, director of the Atlanta-based Emergency Land Fund, said that 330,000 acres of Black-owned land are being sold to whites each year.

He said the convention, which attracted about 300 landowners from seven southern states, represented only about 30,000 acres of land.

"That's reflective of the relative non-ownership of Blacks," Brooks said, noting that Blacks own about three-tenths of one per cent of all privately held land in the United States.

Blacks are losing their land because of financial hardships, because huge corporations are buying up agricultural land at growing rates and because of problems they encounter with federal agencies, convention participants said.

They said the National Association of Landowners hopes to exert pressure on the federal government to cut some of the red tape.

Dr. Aaron Henry, president of the Mississippi NAACP, said U.S. Department of Agriculture agencies, particularly the Farmers Home Administration, "seem to be geared directly against the possibility of Black citizens owning and retaining their land."

When asked if the FHA is likely to be more helpful to Blacks under Agriculture Secretary Robert Bergland, Henry said, "Let's all show a bit of euphoria and hope so. We feel he has empathy with us. But we are very concerned that the strictures surrounding him and the amount of red tape already there will make it a very difficult situation."

Gloria Cousar of the Joint Center for Political Studies in Washington said the problem of Blacks being forced off their farmland in the South has contributed in a direct way to the nation's urban problems.

"When housing and agricultural assistance don't come through for the Black farmer, people are forced to go to the city," she said. When they get there, they find jobs scarce and they often end up on the welfare rolls, she said.

The struggle is not limited to Black farmers, but extends to poor white and Mexican-American landowners as well, said Clay Cochran, president of Rural America Inc.

"The main thing that has been missing up to now was this kind of organization," he said. "Big agri-business' main weapon over the years has been the lack of organization on the other side."

That's it for now. Check these out. They're all good reading.

Next week I might have a surprise for you Aggies. I've been informed that there are to be some happenings on campus soon. Perhaps I'll be able to write about them if I'm given the information. We'll see!!

You'll never know how much good you can do until you do it.

You can help people.

In fact, there's a crying need for you. Your talents. Your training. Your concerns. They make you valuable to your business. They can make you priceless to your community.

We can put you in touch with local organizations hard at work doing things you'd be proud to be part of. Join one. Or, if you see the need, start a new one.

If you can spare even a few hours a week, call the Voluntary Action Center in your town. Or write:

I only want one Love, just one,
Some understanding soul,
Who knows my moods and attitudes,
And loves me, part and whole--
A Love who, when I am sad and blue,
Will take me by the hand,
And make me feel with friendly zeal
That she can understand;
And who, when I'm in merry mood,
A doze minutes after
Will not repress my foolishness
But join in all my laughter--
A love who gives her best to me
And who with stubbornness demands
She sees the best in me
And will accept nothing less.
I only want one love,
Just this one will amply do:
A love when I'm in need,
A love in thought, in creed;
In other words... just you!

Programs Offer Experience

Foreign students from across the state met Thursday for North Carolina's first "International Student Day at the State Capital."

More than 250 students from 21 colleges, universities and business and trade schools participated in the activities.

"The program is designed to offer an experiential learning opportunity for international students across the state to see their state government in action," says Jill Stritter, director of the International Center at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. "It also allows them an opportunity to meet international students from other schools."

Following the welcome address the international students saw a film, "Voices of the People" and heard a presentation on the legislative process by the UNC-CH Institute of Government. A North Carolina Legislators' panel featuring Senators Charles E. Vickery and McNeil Smith and Rep. H. Michaux, Jr., completed the morning activities.

In addition to attending the regular legislative session, the students had a chance to tour the Legislative Building and the Governor's Mansion in the afternoon.

North Carolina was the second state to hold a state capital day for its foreign students. Georgia began a similar program four years ago under Jimmy Carter's administration.

The following N.C. schools participated: Belmont College, Sacred Heart College, Appalachian State University, University of North Carolina at Charlotte, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill; Davidson College, N. C. Central University, Duke University, Durham Technical Institute, Bennett College, Greensboro College, Hardbarger College, N.C. Agricultural and Technical State University, University of North Carolina at Greensboro, East Carolina University Meredith College, St. Augustine's College, St. Mary's College, Shaw University, Catawba College, Warren Wilson College, and Wingate College.

I'll be glad when spring gets here.

SPEED READING COURSE TO BE TAUGHT IN GREENSBORO

The Southern Reading Lab is offering its famous speed reading course to a limited number of qualified people here in the Greensboro area. The average person who completes this course can read 10 times faster, and with substantially improved comprehension and better concentration.

This famous course has taught many thousands of people to read over 1000 words per minute with the ability to understand and retain what they have read much more effectively. Average graduates can read most novels in less than one hour.

For complete details about this famous speed reading course be sure to attend one of the free one hour orientation lectures that have been scheduled. These lectures are open to the public, above age 13 (persons under 18 should be accompanied by a parent, if possible,) and the course will be explained in complete detail, including class schedules, instruction procedures and a tuition that is much less than similar courses.

These meetings will be held at: Conference Room of the Quality Inn Central, 1000 West Market Street on Wednesday February 9, 6:30 p.m. and again at 8:30 p.m., Thursday February 10, 6:30 p.m. and again at 8:30 p.m., Friday February 11, 6:30 p.m. and again at 8:30 p.m., Saturday, February 12, 1:30 p.m. and again at 3:30 p.m., Sunday, February 13, 1:30 p.m. and again at 3:30 p.m., and TWO FINAL MEETINGS on Monday February 14, at 6:30 p.m. and again at 8:30 p.m.

Bears May Be The Team To Beat In Tournament

By Joseph Foust

The following is a preview of the MEAC Tournament scheduled for February 24-26 at the Greensboro Coliseum. The outlook for each team represents a composite view of all of the sports information directors.

Morgan State seems like the team to beat in the forthcoming MEAC tournament to be played here in less than two weeks, but Howard University and South Carolina State College are just a whisper away.

More than 25,000 fans are expected to attend the three-day playoffs February 24-26 in the Greensboro Coliseum.

MORGAN

After finishing in second place for the past four seasons, it appears the Bears will be the team to beat in this year's tournament. Coach Nat Frazier, who has already lead his bears to an NCAA national championship, has the league's most outstanding player in 6-9 Eric "The Pencil" Evans.

Evans leads the MEAC in scoring, rebounding and blocked shots. Although Evans represents the hub of the Bears' attack, Morgan State is not a one man show. Anthony Young, a rugged 6-8 forward from Brooklyn, New York, has the strongest inside game in the conference. Young has an assortment of inside moves and is a dominant force on the offensive and defensive boards. The guards, Maurice Jennings and Duncan McGriff, are quick with good shooting touches. Six-five swingman Jim Gorman gives the Bears firepower off the

HOWARD UNIVERSITY

Talent-wise, the Bison can match any of the top teams in the conference. Dorian Dent, 6-10 center, has come around but still has not been consistent as head coach A. B. Williamson would like. Forward Gerald Glover is a tremendous shooter and gives the Bison an added plus with the excitement he causes on dunk shots. The big question mark surrounding the Bison attack is the play of the guards 5-9 Gerald Gaskins and David "Hollywood" Whitehead. Gaskins is a fine outside shooter but has been a defensive liability. Whitehead may be the conference's best outside shooter. The Bison bench is fair.

NORTH CAROLINA CENTRAL

The Eagles, under the guidance of Sterlin Holt, feature the league's most potent fast break. Paced by center Floyd Monroe and guard Jim King, Central is an explosive offensive team. Sharpshooting forward Edward Roper takes pressure off the inside game and loosens up the defense. Stan Melvin has a good outside shooting touch from the guard position and at 6-5 is a tough defensive player.

Central is a well-balanced team with a better than adequate bench.

SOUTH CAROLINA STATE

The Bulldogs, who have yet to win an MEAC tournament game, could be the sleeper in this year's tournament. The Bulldogs have a balanced attack, and the top backcourt player in the conference is 6-2 Harry Nickens, a two-time All-MEAC selection; 6-8 center Carl Green and 6-6 Willie Brown give the Bulldogs a strong rebounding and inside game. Bishop Johns, a 6-5 freshman, is a fine shooter and gives the team offensive power coming off the bench. South Carolina State plays excellent (See Aggies, Page 11)

The challenge.

Here's the challenge. You'll need a watch and a pencil. Start with number 1 in the center of the ribbon. Then, as quickly as you can, cross out every number, one at a time In numerical order. When you've reached number 60, check your watch. If it took you less than three minutes, you've met the challenge.

When there's a challenge, quality makes the difference.

We hope you have some fun with the challenge. There's another challenge we'd like to offer you, too. The Pabst challenge:

We welcome the chance to prove the quality of our beer. We challenge you to taste and compare Pabst Blue Ribbon to any other premium beer. You'll like Pabst better. Blue Ribbon quality means the best tasting beer you can get. Since 1844 it always has.

A&T Defeats Quakers-Eagles

By Dennis Bryant

The A&T Aggiettes, led by Charlene Henderson with 30 points and Cheryl Armwood with 27 points and 26 rebounds, upped their record to 11-2 with a pair of victories over Guilford College and North Carolina Central.

The Aggiettes used a balanced attack to score a 63-50 victory over crosstown rival Guilford. The Aggiettes, after being behind 10-8 in the first half, spurred 8-0 to go ahead for good at 16-10, with Natalie Rogers leading the way.

The Aggiettes led 24-17 at the 10:17 mark and the Aggiettes were without their leading scorer. Coach Joyce Spruill inserted Henderson with 6:30 to go. The flashy guard scored seven consecutive baskets as the Aggiettes jumped to a 31-21 lead.

The Aggiettes were never in serious trouble in the contest. Ivy Moody scored ten first half points as the Aggiettes led at the half 37-24.

The second half, the Quakers of Guilford went on a 10-2 spurt after being down 49-34. With the insertion of Mamie Jones, the guard scored the next six points to keep the game in the hands of the Aggiettes at 57-50.

Guilford was unable to score the rest of the contest because of the Aggiettes' pressure. The Aggiettes scored the last six points to go with the victory at 63-50. Once again the Aggiettes played a good game of team ball.

The Aggiettes' balanced scoring was led by Natalie Rogers with eleven, Ivy Moody with ten, Charlene Henderson, nine points, and Mamie Jones with eight. Guilford was led by Donna Rogers with 18 points and Cyd Atkins with ten points.

On Tuesday, The Aggiettes saw to it that the early crowd of Aggies saw some excitement in the night. The Aggiettes went on to take an 83-74 victory over North Carolina Central. Charlene Henderson scored 21 points and Cheryl Armwood scored 20 to lead the Aggiettes.

The Aggiettes were off completely in the first half. They connected on only 15 of 42 field goals but led at the half 35-31. But the lead slipped away. Coach Spruill's use of the bench hasn't paid off in the last few games. The bench reserves have been outscored 59-34 in the last three games. But the starters have been able to gain the lead back. This may or may not happen always.

In the final 10 minutes of the second half, the Aggiettes outscored the Eagles 30-18 to prevent the NCCU-Eagles from sweeping a pair of victories. Charlene scored 14 second-half points while teammate Armwood scored 10 second half points.

Henderson scored the last six points in the contest as the Aggiettes were able to come from behind with the victory. The final score was 83-74, their biggest margin.

The Aggiettes shot a hot 79% the second half hitting on 19 of 24 shots. For the game they shot 52%. They out rebounded the Eagles 38-28 despite a 27-23 edge in total fouls.

The Aggiettes were led by Charlene Henderson with 22 points, Cheryl Armwood with 20 points and 13 rebounds, and Trina Graves with ten points. The Eagles were led by Yvonne Perkins with 22 points and 15 rebounds, and Juanda Gibbons with 20 points. The Eagles' record dropped to 4-7, while the Aggiettes have won 11 out of 13 games.

The Pencil' Visits Aggieland

by Craig R. Turner

"The Pencil" is coming. Yes, "the Pencil" is coming. Aggie fans will get their long-awaited opportunity to look at the MEAC's top player in 6-10 Eric Evans tonight in the Greensboro Coliseum as the Morgan State Bears meet A&T at 8:00 p.m.

The 13-6 Bears are currently one half game out of first place behind S.C. State. The Bears are noted for their tough pattern attack and an aggressive man-to-man defense that renders teams virtually helpless.

Coach Nat Frazier has the best squad at Morgan since its 1974 NCAA Division II Championship. Not to be denied, the Bears have placed second in the MEAC for two consecutive years behind A&T.

Evans, nicknamed "The Pencil," is averaging 24.3 points per game and is hitting over 54 per cent of his shots. Evans is also leading the MEAC in rebounding with 13 rebounds each outing. The Clinton giant is also a 72 per cent free-throw shooter.

Backing up Evans will be the brother duo of Anthony and Ivan Young. Both stand 6-8 in height and are extremely adept inside. Anthony is presently second in field goal percentage. Both rated MEAC honors a year ago.

The backcourt is the territory of the league's finest point guard in 6-4 Maurice Jennings. The sophomore is averaging over 17 points per game and is near the top in free-throw shooting.

Frazier will probably start all four of these experienced veterans as the Bears go after sole possession of the MEAC's top spot.

Saturday will be the day that A&T will play host to the Bison of Howard in Moore Gymnasium. The Bison will feature its usual frontline contingent of Gerald Glover (6-7), Dorian Dent (6-10), and Mike Netties (6-8).

The guards will consist of Nat Speight and Angelo Council. Speight is a 6-1 freshman who will electrify the crowd with his spectacular moves.

Backups will be 6-5 John Smith, 6-9 John Mullen, and 5-10 Larry Hollingsworth. Gametime is set for 8:00 p.m.

Aggies Defend Championship

defense and that could be a factor in their favor should they advance to the championship round.

NORTH CAROLINA A&T STATE

The Aggies are the defending conference champions. Although their conference and overall record this year would not make them the favorite in the tournament, A&T has always played its best basketball in playoff situations. L. J. Pipkin has emerged as the conference's top offensive forward; 6-10 center Melvin Palmer is the team's most improved player and 6-2 Ellsworth Turner has guided the team with poise. This team does not compare with the championship teams of the past. But any A&T team is tough in tournament play.

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND EASTERN SHORE

The Hawks have been the most pleasant surprise in the conference this season. After going through the 1975-76 season without a conference win, the team bounced back this season to defeat defending champion A&T twice. Ken Simmons, a freshman guard from New York City, is currently the second leading scorer in the conference. Forwards 6-5 Jim Golden and 6-9 Waymon Wilburn give the Hawks good scoring power from outside. If the big boys don't watch out, the Hawks could surprise them.

DELAWARE STATE

Delaware State is the youngest team and least experienced team in the conference this season. Marshall Emery has done an excellent job of molding the team together, however, the Hornets are still a year away from contention in the MEAC.

Besides the competitive basketball action, the tournament will feature a clinic on Thursday, February 24 conducted by Johnny McClendon, one of the top college basketball coaches.

Trouble Dumps Bad Company

As Intramural Season Ends

By Archie B. Bass

The men's intramural championship game concluded intramural basketball Wednesday night as Trouble dumped the defending champs Bad Company, 62-50.

A crowd of about 300 spectators witnessed the action-thrilled contest. "Intramural basketball showed us that students, male and female, are very much interested in the sport, both as participants and spectators," said Ernest Gaskins, intramural coordinator. "At this point the intramural program and activities have increased 50%, even though the budget remains the same," he added.

According to Gaskins, two new activities were added this year from basketball. Free-throw shooting which involved 130 participants-40 females and 90 males, and the slam dunk contest which was won by David Warr.

Badminton is next on the intramural roster, and the tentative date is Monday, Feb. 21. Badminton will be a co-ed tournament with single elimination.

"Hopefully, we will have a lot of participation in the spring because we are here to involve students," stated Gaskins.

There will be new pool hours, 7-9, Monday thru Thursday.

"This year we are going to have activities in the pool-water volleyball, water basketball, and a swimming meet all to take place this spring," concluded Gaskins.

3-Day Forecast

NORTH CAROLINA: Extended outlook Saturday through Monday-Brief showers on Sunday. Otherwise partly cloudy throughout the period. Highs in the 50's except low 60's in the southeast. Overnight lows in the 30's, with some 40's near the coast.

Matmen Defeat Central Eagles

By Tyrone McLean

The Aggie matmen came through in fine style Tuesday afternoon against the N.C. Central Eagles 35-17.

The matmen have been suffering with injuries all season long and Coach Mel Pinckney has gone to his second string in order to find some depth.

Coach Pinckney commented that the ability to be a winner is based upon good scheduling, good recruiting, and tough competition with the better wrestling programs.

"It's not just enough to wrestle the same schools every year, but to go against the top ranked schools in Division I," said Pinckney.

He stated that this has helped more than anything else. "I give everyone of the guys an opportunity to wrestle whether he has any experience or not. The only thing that will determine who will wrestle is by having the two guys wrestle and the one who loses sits out that match."

However that wrestler is able to come back at anytime and challenge the other wrestler in his weight class for that spot.

Coach Pinckney said that the five matches coming up this weekend against Pembroke, Elizabeth City, Davidson, East Carolina, should prepare A&T for the tournament next Friday and Saturday. "I would much rather have the tournament away from home because of the pressure that will be on the guys all the time during the tournament by the fans and their classmates. But in this case it can be used to our advantage," stated Pinckney.

As of now the team to beat is Morgan, followed by South Carolina, Delaware State and A&T. "We will have to give it all we've got to win it and we will have to use our moves and not forget fundamentals. That's the key to everything and, in the long run, fundamentals will come through for us in the tournament," Pinckney said.

tournament and the matmen of A&T will be pitting their skills against the toughest odds to try to capture its third straight championship.

Now comes Miller time.
